A SENATOR'S LIFE

James E. Martine Putting in a Strenuous Summer at Washington.

BESEIGED WITH MANY CALLERS.

People From All Parts of the Country Want Something—City Filled With Soldiers of Fortune.

Contrary to his usual custom, United States Senator James E. Martine is enjoying life at Washington, instead of at "Cedar Brook Farm," and he finds much to occupy his time and attention. Senator Martine's time is largely taken up, when not occupying his seat in the Senate, in entertaining visitors from all parts of the country, and even though he is a past master in this respect he finds it rather difficult to accede to all the demands made upon him in his official capacity.

Notwithstanding that he is a very busy man, Senator Martine is never too busy to listen to a caller, and this being his first year in the councils of the mighty, he is particularly anxious to "get onto the ropes," so that when the next regular session of Congress begins he will be prepared to engage in the work of law making, a task that appeals to him strongly. Thus far Senator Martine has not missed a roll call, which cannot be said of some who have represented the district in Congress.

In a characteristic letter to one of his friends in this city Senator Martine says "Why work when so much cash is on hand, as is stated in the annual report of the treasurer of the United States. The city is full of sight-seers. Senate sessions seem a great attraction to all. Hard to tell when we will adjourn. It looks as though it might be September. Senate is not in session at this writing and I am occupied cleaning up a pile of letters that demand answering. Just had a delegation from Bergen, N. J.

"I have from twenty-five to forty callers each day wanting all sorts of things. We have all sorts. Some want offices, others a "little cash." Inventors, who have the greatest invention on earth, only want a little cash to bring it out. Baby camps by the score. Societies wanting money. Cranks by the hundreds, black and white, all have an axe to grind. Women both good looking and homely, come without number. They would like to typewrite copy, post letters, manicure your nails, rub your corns, all for a little money.

"This is a city filled with soldiers of fortune. All, both men and women spend every dollar of their salary in advance, yet it is all very pleasant and beautiful."

THOMAS M'GRATH TAKES THE PLEDGE FOR A YEAR.

Thomas McGrath, of South Second street, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. He was charged with having been partly the cause of the disturbance in the West End last Friday night, when several 'phone messages to police headquarters said that murder was being done and resulted in the patrol wagon with several policemen being rushed to the scene. Investigation showed that McGrath had been fighting with his brother. Judge DeMeza suspended sentence with the understanding that McGrath take the pledge for a year.

Plans for Trinity Excursion.

For the accommodation of those living at Clinton and Grant avenues who plan to go on the annual excursion of Trinity Reformed church on Thursday, the second section of the train will stop at both of these stations as well as Plainfield and Netherwood, going to Asbury Park, and returning both sections will stop at all stations in this city. The train will leave Clinton avenue at 8 o'clock and Grant avenue at 8:05 and the other stations as advertised. All persons are requested to purchase regular return tickets to Plainfield from stations west.

Stanley Kellak Discharged.

The hearing of the charge of assault, made by Wojziel Brnadyn, the Pole hit on the head with a beer bottle at a Palish christening Sunday evening on West Third street, in the city court this morning called for the exercise of a considerable amount of patient questioning by Judge William G. DeMeza. Through an interpreter, an insufficient amount of information was obtained to hold Stanley Kellak, the man charged with having started the fight.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith, of this city, have leased the beautiful residence at 50 Washington avenue, corner Mercer avenue, owned by Judge Issac P. Runyon, and have taken possession.

FIREMEN'S PENSION FUND GETS A BOOST

A check for $256.24 has been sent to the Plainfield Firemen's Pension Fund by Edward Hardingham, of this city, who acted as agent for several insurance companies doing business in this city. This is the largest amount ever turned over to the firemen of this city by the various insurance companies and shows a decided care in a matter which has heretofore been rather neglected. Assistant Chief Andrew D. Jennings, of the local fire department, who is treasurer of the pension fund, sent a letter of thanks to the insurance companies.

The insurance companies doing business in this State are compelled by law to give 2 per cent. of the amount of the total premiums, which they collect to the firemen's pension fund. Premiums to the amount of $12,817.48 were collected by the various local agents from policies held by Plainfield people for the year ending yesterday. Edward Hardingham acted as agent for several companies in the matter and sent a check to Treasurer Jennings as stated.

JULY WAS NOT SUCH A HOT MONTH AFTER ALL

Plainfielders who thought that the past month was the hottest they ever experienced will change their minds when they hear the weather report from Sergeant Neagle. The mean temperature for July was only 2.1 degrees above the normal so it was not so hot after all. There were 13 clear days and 13 days when it was partly cloudy. There was rain on only 7 days while 5 were recorded as cloudy.

Rain was lacking during July for there was a deficiency of 5.23 inches and the precipitation for the month was 1.55 inches below the normal. Southwest winds prevailed for nearly the whole month and ten thunder showers were blown to this city by them. Little rain was brought in these, however, although there was a large amount of lightning.

The hottest day was Monday, July 10, when the temperature was recorded as 103 degrees. Wednesday, July 26, was the coolest day, when the mercury stood as low as 51 degrees. The average temperature for the month was 76 degrees, the normal mean being 73.9 degrees.

Other statistics on the weather were—Mean maximum temperature 88.1, mean minimum 64; greatest daily range 33 degrees, mean daily range 24 degrees, monthly range 52 degrees; total precipitation 3.85 inches; normal precipitation 5.40 inches; greatest precipitation in 24 hours was on July 14 when 1.29 inches of rain fell; greatest July precipitation was in 1889 when 15.52 inches fell for the month; least July precipitation was .33 inches in 1910.

DISMISSAL OF DEFENDANT ANGERS COMPLAINANT.

The charge of having stolen three shirt waists and a skirt, made against Belle Grant, colored, of West Fourth street, by Cecelia Holmes, also colored, and of West Fouth street, was dismissed in the city court this morning by Judge William DeMeza, as the complaint was made on the "say so" of another party who would not come to court as witness for Cecelia, and because the police were unable to find any of the alleged stolen articles in the Grant woman's possession.

When the Holmes woman heard the decision of the court in the disposal of the case, she became so noisy and talkative that it was necessary to place her in a cell to restore quiet. She will be arraigned for contempt of court tomorrow morning.

Parties at Playgrounds.

Informal parties will be held in all the city playgrounds Saturday afternoon when special games and drills will be on the program. It is the desire of the playground directors that all the children, who intend to come to the party Saturday, attend the school yards before that time in order to learn the new games and drills. Lemonade and cake will be served to all the children and spectators at the party.

Trinity Reformed Church.

Rev. J. T. Shock, of Albert street, a retired clergyman, will have charge of the prayer meeting at Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow night and also preach Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. Y. Broek, who has been called to Grand Rapids, Mich., by the critical illness of his mother.

Please Note.

To give our employes a full holiday, this store will close every Thursday all day until September 15th.—M. & A. Tepper.

CELEBRATE TENTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

In honor of the tenth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Ayers, of Centre street, Dunellen, were given a surprise party at their home last evening by about fifty friends. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Ayers' sister, Mrs. Charles Leland, of West Fifth street and Mrs. J. D. Burdick, of New Market. The host and hostess were presented with several gifts, including silver and granite ware, commemorating the occasion and the time was pleasantly passed with various social features.

The guests were from Scotch Plains, Plainfield, New Market and Dunellen. Refreshments rounded out the evening's enjoyment before the guests departed extending congratulations and best wishes for the future.

MISTOOK ANOTHER WOMAN FOR HIS WIFE

Mistaking the home of a neighbor for his own, so he says, William Smith, of South Second street, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning. The complaint was made by Mrs. Alice Gudgeon who, with her husband, occupies one side of the double residence with Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

When Mr. Smith returned home late one night last week, he found the door of what he supposed was his home, locked. A window can be reached from the porch and this was open with a screen in it. He thought that he would not arouse his wife, but would remove the screen and let himself in that way. This he did, and once inside, removed his shoes coat, collar and tie without the aid of a light.

Going up stairs he found a woman, whom he thought was his wife. He took her in his arms for the usual greeting, only to find that she was not his wife at all. A light revealed the fact that he was not in his own home. The husband of Mrs. Gudgeon was at Camp Wilson with Co. K.

Smith beat a retreat as hastily and gracefully as possible, offering profuse apologies the while. These apparently fell on deaf ears, for the complaint was drawn and will be pressed on August 12, that being the date set by Judge DeMeza, on request for a postponement by Smith's counsel, F. J. Blatz. Robert Newton Crane represents Mrs. Gudgeon.

Great Sketch at Proctor's.

Harry Holman & Co., offer by far one of the best sketches seen at Proctor's theatre in many moons. It is entitled "A Wise Old Guy," and it is just one big scream from start to finish. A rich broker, a charming daughter who wants to get married and a nephew who wants to marry her, together with the joke they "put over" 'on Papa, combines to make a fine sketch. The Mells Troupe of accomplished European arcobats is well worth seeing and the Bootblack Quartet is a collection of harmony that pleases everyone. The fine bill is concluded by Paula Verdayne, a French name grafted on an Irish singer, who has a voice that it pleasing.

Fresh Air Boy Missing.

The local police were asked today to be on the lookout for a half-witted boy, 12 years old, who disappeared from the Christian Endeavor fresh air camp at Scotch Plains, yesterday, and who has since remained unheard from. The lad wore tan shoes and stockings, a white shirt with a black stripe and is distinguished by a noticeable flat nose. Any information should be sent to the local police or sent to the camp.

Mrs. Catherine Hoff.

Mrs. Catherine Hoff, widow of John Hoff, died yesterday in her seventy-fifth year at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John Gray, of West Third street, with whom she had been making her home for some time. Surving besides Mrs. Gray is another daughter, Mrs. Charles O. Pearson, of West Fifth street. The funeral will be held from No. 402 Park avenue, tomorrow morning at eleven o'clock.

Coyle to Try Out.

Bill Coyle, short stop on the Dunellen baseball team, will try tonight for a berth on the Scotch Plains League team. Coyle has held that position on the Dunellen nine and has played almost errorless ball with them and it is almost a certainty that he will make good.

MEN'S CLUB HOUSE

The Dutch Arms of Netherwood Reformed Church to Have a Home.

FIRST OF ITS KIND IN THIS CITY.

The New Building Will Be of Brick and Located on Midway Avenue—Subscriptions Started.

The first church men's clubhouse in this city will be built within a short time by the Dutch Arms, of the Netherwood Reformed church. This was decided at the meeting of this organization at the parsonage of the church last night, called for the purpose of discussing the advisability of the erection of a separate building for the club.

The new building will be located in the rear of the parsonage lot, which is owned by the church and it will be situated so that the entrance will be on Midway avenue. It is intended to have the building constructed entirely of brick, being one story high and with a large basement. On account of the lowness of the building and the large lot, on which the parsonage is located, the brick structure will not be in the way on this property.

An auditorium will be located on the first floor where the church entertainments and socials will be held. It has also been planned that this room serve as a place for dinners, consequently a kitchen will be built in the clubhouse. The auditorium will be equipped so that it can be used as a gymnasium during the winter on evenings after the club meetings and at other times through the week. On the first floor will also be located a reading room and social room which will be fitted accordingly.

A box ball outfit will be the feature of the new clubhouse, this to be in the basement, which will be given over largely to this game. Box ball has become extremely popular in American clubs of late and it is the intention of the officers of the Dutch Arms to make the new clubhouse as modern as possible.

Twelve hundred dollars is the estimated cost of the building without equipment and it is expected that the fixtures for the inside will amount to several hundred dollars more. In order to procure the necessary funds for the clubhouse, the Dutch Arms has issued subecription books to all of its members. Each book contains twenty blank spaces and each space represents a brick in the new structure, the price of which is five cents. All of the members of the boys' choir of the church are circulating the books as well as the members. Rev. Royal A. Stout, the pastor of the church, is also busily engaged in getting subscriptions. A meeting of the holders of the books will be held on Monday night, August 21, when the amount of money raised will be announced and the extent of the expenditures on the new building will be decided.

Each subscriber's name is entered in the space which he buys and this name in the book will be placed in the cornerstone of the building which will be laid within the next two months. It is the hope of the club to have the building ready by the middle of October so that the first anniversary of the founding of the club on October 16, 1910, can be held in its new home. If the building is completed by that time, the affair will be celebrated with a large dinner in the auditorium and a program of speeches.

There are at present thirty-five members of the society, which is only one year old. Henry Hansen is president, Amos Andrews is vice-president, Claude Gonod is secretary and William Carson is treasurer. The building of the clubhouse is in the hands of a committee, of which Amos Andrews is the chairman. Although several of the other men's clubs in the city have been organized for many years, this club is the first one in the city to have a separate clubhouse, the other organizations meeting in the parlors of their respective churches.

John Kenlon Appointed Chief.

John Kenlon, who has been acting chief of the New York fire department since the retirement of Edward F. Croker, was appointed to the position of chief today, winning the highest rank in the examination, which was taken by ten deputy chiefs, and therefore won the post by order of Mayor Gaynor.

Royals Want a Game Saturday.

The Royal A. C., a strong colored team in this city, has an open date for Saturday, August 5. Manager P. J Simmons, of 121 Madison avenue, would like to hear from some good team desiring a game on that date.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR OSLIN TAKES CHARGE

Older Oslin, the new physical director of the Young Men's Christian Association, today assumed his new office. Mr. Oslin's training in this work was received at the summer training school at Lake George and since his graduation, he has had considerable experience. Previous to his coming here he was located at Wilmington, Delaware, Kingston, N. Y., and at the Williamsbridge branch of the association in New York city.

No plans have been formulated by the new director for the fall work, but he intends to give the boys, young men and older men every possible chance for physical development. Mr. Oslin is very enthusiastic over his position here and hopes with co-operation of the members to make the coming year a banner one for the association.

POLICE CALLED TO QUELL LABOR TROUBLE

A small labor riot was started at the new building, which is being constructed by Charles H. Hand on East Second street near fire headquarters, this morning and the police were called to the scene to calm the trouble. The crowd of threatening laborers was dispersed by the officers and three of them returned to their work this afternoon.

The trouble started early this morning when George Gildersleeve, the contractor, laid off two of the hodcarriers on account of the absence of three bricklayers. When the two men were laid off, the rest of the hodcarriers, who are all colored except one, immediately quit work and remained outside the building making all sorts of threats to Mr. Gildersleeve. The annoyance from the colored men became tiresome to the boss and he notified police headquarters, and two officers were sent to the scene. The strikers were driven from the place but three of them came back to work this afternoon.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the unemployed men returned to the scene of the building in a body and started to fight with the men who had gone back to work. Bricks were thrown from the street at the men who were working on the second floor and several were hit. The police were again called and arrested two of the offenders.

GEORGE RALPH RUN DOWN BY A HORSE

William Lucke, colored, of New Brunswick, is being held at the North Plainfield police station charged with careless driving as a result of running down George Ralph, aged eighteen years, of 356 Somerset street at the corner of Race street and Watchung avenue at noon today. Ralph is laid up at his home suffering from two fractured ribs and severe bruises on his right side. Lucke will be arraigned before Recorder Charles M. Dolliver tomorrow morning.

Lucke was driving a horse and runabout belonging to Dr. Long, of New Brunswick, around the corner of Race street and Watchung avenue when young Ralph went to cross the street. The young man claims that Lucke turned on the wrong side of the street and the horse struck the pedestrian in the side, trampling him on the ground and fracturing two of his ribs with his hoofs.

The injured young man started to walk to his home and reached Bellis' garage on Watchung avenue, where he fell down. R. L. Bellis found him lying in the grass and took him to his home in an automobile. The police department was notified and Marshal L. A. Pope placed Lucke under arrest. Dr. D. C. Adams was summoned and attended to the victim of the accident, who will be confined to his home for several days.

Summer School a Success.

The work at the local summer school, which was inaugurated by the Board of Education last month, is progressing satisfactorily, despite the hot weather. All of the pupils have been regular in their attendance and the teachers report that the school is more of a success than anticipated.

Edwin A. Abbey Dead.

Edwin A. Abbey, the noted American artist, died at 1 o'clock this afternoon in London. He had been critically ill for sometime and annoucement of his death was expected at any minute.

BORROWED A HORSE; HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Richard Scudder and Victor Cook, the two young colored men charged by Spencer Conway, of West Fourth street, with having taken his horse without permission, Sunday afternoon, and who were arrested with it in their possession in Westfield early yesterday morning, were held under $50 bonds for the action of the Union County Grand Jury, this morning by Judge William G. DeMeza, in the city court.

The young men said in their defence that they both work for Conway and had asked him for a loan of the horse some Sunday without specifying any date, and had selected last Sunday as the day they would go for the ride. Conway was not at home when they called for the horse, but they thought that inasmuch as he had signified a willingness to let them have it, there would be no objection on his part to take it without his knowledge and his wife said so, too. Conway flatly denied ever having told the men they could have his horse although admitting that they had asked him for the loan of the animal.

'TOM' MUIR MAKES HIT IN HOPATCONG SHOW

Thomas McMasters Muir, better known as "Tommy," who runs Camp Ram's Horn, at Lake Hopatcong, broke into high grade vaudeville at the lake Saturday night when he did a song and joke act on a program with several well known New York artists. The affair was the annual entertainment of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club, given for the benefit of the cup racing fund and was largely attended.

Mr. Muir took the place on the bill of Miss Carroll McComas, one of Charles Frohman's stars, who was scheduled to do a whistling act. At the last minute she received word that her mother was very ill and so she was obliged to leave the lake. Carlton Baker, of Madison, who is well known in this city and who was in charge of the program, immediately asked Mr. Muir to take her place on the program. Within fifteen minutes, Tommy had his kit of costumes packed and was at the yacht club ready for the show to begin. He was assisted in his act by cross fire from Clarence Rittenhouse, also of this city. The Plainfielders made the hit of the evening and were encored several times.

Among the others on the program were George H. Babbitt, of Ad Hoyt's minstrels, in a buck and wing dance; Billy Murray, the well known baritone, who sang several solos; William Payne, the comedian banjoist; Miss Eleanor Jess, singing some of the latest songs; Jack P. Newhoff, assisted by Robt. Haines, leading man for Elsie Janis, in some impromtu verses, and a piano solo by Mrs. Charles P. Gray.

Many Plainfielders visited Cmp Ram's Horn Sunday, there being four local young men camping there this week. All report being in the best of health and having the time of their lives, although their shoulders are a bit sunburned.

MOTORCYCLE RACES TO BE HELD AT WESTFIELD.

Motorcycle racing will be revived in New Jersey if the efforts of a number of Newark and Westfield promoters are successful. The proposition is to hold bi-weekly race meets on the Fair Acres half-mile trotting track at Westfield and the inaugural meet will take place there on Saturday afternoon, August 5, Claude E. Holgate, of Newark, and George Firstbrook, of Westfield, are the moving spirits in the project. The card for the first meet has not been entirely made up, but it will contain events for private owners, trade riders and perhaps a race for professionals. Frank Hart, the new amanteur champion, who won his title recently at Buffalo, and John Constant, of Brooklyn, who captured the ten-mile title race at Buffalo, are two cracks who will be booked. Howard O'Brien, the former Newarker, who is home from the West, will very likely ride in the professional race. There will be a special race for the New Jersey riders and another for Union county motorists.

K. of C. Excursion August 10.

The annual excursion of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, to Asbury Park, will be held on Thursday, August 10, and as usual, the council's committee will arrange every detail for the full enjoyment of those who take in the outing.

—Neuman Bros. are receiving daily choice Hunterdon county peaches, rich in flavor and very fine, and a large shipment will be offered for tomorrow's trade.

TO ENTER RACE

R. H. Woodhouse Will Stand For Assembly Nomination on Democratic Ticket.

J. P. HOMAN FOR COUNCIL.

Republicans Have Not Declared Themselves—Seven Councilmen Will Retire.

Robert H. Woodhouse has consented to enter the race for the Assembly on the Democratic ticket, the announcement being made last night after a conference with friends. While it is not at all certain that Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead will be a candidate for re-nomination, Mr. Woodhouse has been persuaded to allow the use of his name and his friends feel confident that he will be successful at the primary and the election.

Mr. Woodhouse has been a resident of this city sometime, is thoroughly conversant with local conditions as well as those of the State, and his admirers declare that he will make an ideal Assemblyman. He represents manufacturing interests and is said to have a knowledge of the needs of the people in this part of the State.

Among those mentioned prominently for local officers on the Democratic ticket this fall, is James P. Homan, who is talked for the position of councilman-at-large. Mr. Homan has already served the city in this capacity and has a knowledge of affairs that his friends believe would make him a valuable member of the Common Council. Mr. Homan has been interviewed, but has not yet consented to stand for the nomination. However, it is expected that he will yield to the request of his friends and become a candiate.

Several others have been talked of as possible nomines for councilmanic honors and there is strong indication that the Democrats will wage a lively campaign this fall. They were encouraged a year ago by the support received from the independent vote, which was largely responsible for the election of Mayor G. W. V. Moy, and they are counting on the same support this year.

As yet the Republicans have not declared themselves in this city and there has been no talk concerning a municipal ticket. Seven councilmen will retire, which include W. L. Gloak, F. L. Montgomery, eGorge S. Clay, Herbert Buxton, Charles C. Randolph and W. W. Wilson. It is confidently expected that some of them will seek a re-election, but thus far W. L. Gloak is the only one who has so announced himself.

DUDLEY S. MILLER GIVES HIS VERSION OF AFFAIR.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, who, with his son, Russell Miller, had an exciting experience in the city park late Saturday night, says that he and his son did not retrace their steps after passing Tony Dilabrio, the Italian, who was seated on a bench at the entrance to the park, and inquire if he was not the man complained of by Mrs. Miller earlier in the evening, who was annoying and frightening her by peeping through the windows at the Miller home.

Mr. Miller said that after he and his son had passed the Italian, he advanced on a run towards them, waving his arms and talking. Thinking that he was the man Mrs. Miller complained of and that his intentions were not friendly, they took hold of him and asked who he was and what he was doing about at that hour of the night. After stating that he worked for Warren Marsh, of Union street, Mr. Miller and his son escorted the struggling and frightened foreigner to Mr. Marsh's home, where explainations were made. It is not likely that Tony knew where he was being taken nor for what purpose or he would have gone quietly.

BIG CATCHES OF FISH REPORTED AT SEWAREN.

The best run of fish in ten years was reported by the anglers at Sewaren for the last three days. Out of 220 boats from R. O. Acker's dock, hardly a single case of fisherman's luck was heard. Several Plainfielders were on the list of good fishermen for the week. Striped bass were among the catches, some of which were as follows:

J. Hervey Buchanan, eleven weaks; Peter K. Dilts, five weaks; Edmund and Charles Saunders, fifteen weaks; Ephriam Compton, sixteen weaks, one blue; William Moscher, twenty-six weaks; A Stenzenberger, twenty-eight weaks.

Wilbur Tovell, of Union street, has returned to this city from a vacation at Lake Hopatcong.

POSTAL MEN MAY RIDE FREE IN PHILLIPSBURG.

Phillipsburg, Aug. 1.—The mail-carriers of Phillipsburg have won their fight for free transportation while in the performance of their official duties. The question was first referred to the department at Washington and later taken up with the attorney-general and the State Board of Public Utilities.

The town has a contract ordinance providing for free transportation for mailcarriers and all municipal officials and firemen, but under the new public utilities law all free transportation was cut off May 1.

President H. R. Fehr, of the local trolley company, was notified Saturday that it will be no violation of the public utilities law to grant free transportation to mailcarriers within the confines of the town.

Two weeks ago policemen and firemen, while in the performance of their duty had their free transportation renewed. President Fehr notified Postmaster Pierson that all mailcarriers will be carried free as heretofore.

Mayor Firth stated that the decision indicates that all municipal officials are also entitled to have their free transportation renewed under the contract ordinance between the town and the transit company and a fight with that end in view will be started at once.

LOUIS SLOCUM SIGNS WITH WORLD'S CHAMPS

Louis Slocum, who signed Thursday with the Philadelphia Athletics, is but a youngster, being twenty years next month, but for one of his age and build he has developed into a remarkable pitcher. It is understood that his monthly salary with the Philadelphia team can be written in three figures, and it is a considerable raise over the money which he had been earning in this vicinity.

Louis started his baseball career with the old Netherwood A. C., when his speedy outcurve was a terror to all the embryo players in the city. His next step was pitcher on the Stillman Grammar School nine, where he made a name for himself. He did not go to High School but entered a military institute and here again his twirling ability brought him fame. Upon his returning to this city he was pitcher on the local Y. M. C. A. team last year and then went with Scotch Plains. He developed greatly last season and at the beginning of this year he worked out with the Plains team in the Central League. Three weeks ago he started to pitch for the McNulty Brothers, of New York, on Sundays and held down second base for Dunellen on Saturday afternoons.

Although of a light build, Slocum has remarkable speed and a variety of curves. His control this year is good and in all the games which he has pitched, he has always chalked up ten or more strike outs. In fact, he has been dubbed "Strike Out" Slocum. He is a speedy fielder and a fair hitter. Philadelphia will give him a thorough try-out and in case he does not make good, he will be farmed out to some minor league organization for the remainder of the season. He will make his home for the present in Philadelphia until his try-out occurs.

THE TWO BEST SPORTS ON CENTRAL CIRCUIT

Where is the spirit in the Central League? The question would not be a difficult one to answer for anyone who saw the High Bridge-Bound Brook game Saturday afternoon for the dynamo of baseball energy is located somewhere in the Hunterdon county town. The generator produces currents of enthusiasm at such a high voltage that all mocking resistances by the other side are overcome, and the power acquired from the intensity of the flow enables the High Bridge boys to fight hard and win seventeen inning games.

And now who and what is the generator? It is the combination of two fans and between them some breezy baseball weather is produced. One of them is no other than the Mayor of High Bridge, the best sport on the Central League circuit, and his name is William M. Williams. The power behind the dynamo, whose efficiency is the result of cross fire, is William La Rue, of Annandale, better known as the Laundry Man of this vicinity. The former is a middleaged fan while the latter is a seasoned vet of the bleachers and between the two they lick High Bridge's opponents.

Ask what won the game for High Bridge Saturday and the reply will not be Walton's two bagger but the consistent cheering of these two kings of fandom. And it is really true for it was their ever ready shouts and enthusiasm which started the crowd going and kept the Hunterdon county boys on the jump. Never did the two Bills stop their shouts once they began and with "Pop" LaRue's yoddle and the Mayor's kidding Bound Brook was stupified.

"High Bridge is the best team in the league and there's nothing like it," said the Mayor, although the odds were against the boys from Hunterdon. "That's right," replied the other Bill, "always believe your home players are the best although they're losing every game they play." There was a nod of approval from several of the sporting writers nearby and still the merriment kept up.

The Mayor is a benevolent fan and does not forget that money is essential in the making of a winning nine. More than once he has dug down in his pocket and kept the High Bridge team alive, but he always knows how to treat the visiting players and do it in a sportsmanlike way. An evidence of this fact was shown Saturday afternoon when he invited the whole bunch of players to dinner, both Bound Brook and High Bridge.

It is no wonder that High Bridge plays snappy baseball with two such men as these behind the team. They always sit on the bleachers for there is to be found the place for the dynamo. Perhaps Plainfield could use a few bleacherites and take a lesson from High Bridge, its Mayor and the Laundry Man.

Well there is one comforting thought for the week—we know who can stop "them Pets" although Plainfield did lose their first game.

Westfield wasn't so bad after all, in fact, the Mt. Ararat combination was almost good.

We learn by bitter experience. Therefore we have something to acquire from Saturday's game. How is this? Brit Martin is too slow for the Pets. Do you agree? We do not mean to knock Brit for he has been a worthy veteran in the service of local fandom but he has apparently seen his day. He lacks the ginger on the inside playing, although his stick work is first class. On Saturday he was severely criticized and perhaps justly, too.

The Pets did not seem to care after the mixup occurred in the initial round and the whole bunch seemed to give the game. A little more pep boys!

But there was one shining star above all the others in the Central firmament Saturday afternoon and his light could be seen regardless of the sun's rays. It was O'Rourke, of the High Bridge team, who grabbed ten chances in the first fourteen innings and made High Bridge fans tip their hats more than once. His playing was simply marvelous for those two running catches, one off the right field fence and the other a line drive nab in left field were little short of miracles. His batting was weak, however, but he did his work for one day so there's no kick coming.

Frederickson made good on his first attempt in the league circles and held Somerville to four scattered hits. Somerville is some bunch of sluggers, all of which speaks well for Otto. The kid has a future without a doubt.

Louis Slocum starts on his big league career Thursday when he goes to Philadelphia to await orders from Connie Mack. The local youngster accepted the offer from Mack through Scout Samuels after receiving bids from Arthur Irwin, lookout man for the Yankees and Scout Scott for the Boston Americans. Louis said that Mack's money looked best to him so he took the Philadelphia job. He will be framed out for the remainder of this season and possibly for next.

Eugene Lidgate distinguished himself for Scotch Plains Saturday when he nailed a foul fly against the Somerville grand stand. Liddie is making good in the league and the old P. H. S. star has a brilliant future ahead of him.

NAMES MAID OF HONOR FOR ASBURY CARNIVAL.

Asbury Park, Aug. 1.—The first maid of honor to Queen Titania, who will reign over the baby parade August 31, was selected yesterday. She is Miss Marie Winsor, daughter of Henry C. Winsor, president of the Asbury Park and Ocean Grove Bank.

Miss Winsor is one of the most popular young women here, and has taken an active part in many of the social doings of the resort. The queen has not been selected. This task has been left to the maids, the rest of whom will probably be named this week. The coronation of the queen will occur at the Casino on the evening of August 18.

COMMISSION LOWERS RAILROAD RATES

After three months of deliberation the Interstate Commerce Commission has decided that the commutation rates charged by the Pennsylvania Railroad in New Jersey were excessive and unreasonable. Readjustment was ordered in accordance with the cost of the new sixty-trip tickets from New Brunswick to New York, which the commission places at $10 instead of $12 as formerly.

The decision will have the effect of materially reducing all commutation fares on the Pennsylvania lines in New Jersey to a basis equivalent to the new price of the sixty-trip ticket from New Brunswick to New York.

Rather than go through the work of computing the reasonable fare from all points in New Jersey to New York, the commission merely ordered that the New Brunswick fare be taken as a model for the new schedule of prices, and that all other similar fares be readjusted on an equal scale.

The Pennsylvania Railroad was allowed until September 1 to change its New Jersey commutation rates in accordance with the New Brunswick sixty-trip ticket.

According to the decision the fifty and ten-trip fares of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Lehigh will not be disturbed. While the new fifty-trip fares of the Erie, the Lackawanna and the West Shore are higher than the commission deems proper, no order will be issued with respect to them at the present time.

None of the rates on the other roads mentioned in the complaints which instigated the investigation were ordered changed, but the opinion intimated that an order will be issued reducing the commutation fares on the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the New York Central Lines as soon as a more complete investigation can be made.

DENTISTS' SCRAP TO BE RELATED TO GOVERNOR.

Asbury Park, Aug. 1.—A conference of the officers of the New Jersey State Dental Society with Governor Wilson will be held this week, when the fight between the "insurgents" and the "old guard" element of the association will be aired in order that the State Executive may get a better insight into the trouble that exists between the two elements of the society.

As told recently, the "old guard" was routed at the annual meeting in this place when the "insurgents" elected all their candidates. One of the things which the "insurgents" did was to recommend the appointment of Dr. Vernon D. Rood, of Morristown, as a member of the State Examining Board.

The "old guard" favors the selection of Dr. William E. Truex, of Freehold, for the place. The object of the conference with the Governor is to acquaint him with the situation.

It is expected that after the "insurgents" have had their innings with the Governor that he will arrange to hear the side of the "old guard." Both sides are confident of victory. The date of the conference has not been set.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

A delightful bill of summer diversion is the offering at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre for the week of August 7. It is an entertainment of the sort that the stay-at-homes will particularly enjoy, being light and airy, full of genuine humor of the breezy sort, with abundant diversity, all presented in the most cool and comfortable playhouse in America. The headline honors on this occasion are divided between Nat Wills and La Titcomb. Nat Wills in his now famous character, the Happy Tramp, will deliver his monologue which never fails to be the laughing hit on any bill he plays. La Titcomb, the international celebrated singing equestrienne, has a spectacular novelty, which is one of the most beautiful and artistic acts in vaudeville. Trovato, well known to New York theatregoers will continue to charm and entertain, with the assistance of his violin, which, comparatively speaking he makes talk. Others on the bill are Clark & Bergman, singers and dancers; De Voie trio acrobats; Henning's animals and others. Keith and Proctor's motion pictures complete the program.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

John Lofty, of this city; Frank Shepherd, of North Plainfield, and a sailor of the name of Eskesen from one of Uncle Sam's battleships, landed in the borough lockup, Saturday night, as the result of too much liquor. They were arraigned before Recorder Campbell, Sunday morning. A fine of $1 was imposed on Shepherd, while Eskesen and Lofty were each fined $5. Shepherd and Lofty paid, but the sailor was broke. It had about been decided to send Eskesen to New Brunswick for a short term in the county jail, when some friends got busy and raised his fine, securing his release. He immediately jumped a train and got back to his ship as quickly as possible.

The Holy Name Society of St. John's church held a meeting Sunday morning following the regular mass.

Mayor Sandford has returned from a two weeks' vacation on Long Island.

Miss Pearl Dodwell, of Jackson avenue, is enjoying her annual vacation.

The Board of Education will hold an important meeting this evening.

HERE AND THERE.

Some people think that the joke is on two Newarkers who took a trolley ride by a roundabout way to Perth Amboy a few days ago, but the joke is really on a place on the map called Bound Brook, which was once great because 300 Continentals whipped 3,000 Britons and Hessians there. The conductor on the Main Line car heard Hiram tell Hank that Bound Brook was a most picturesque town, having ridden through it in automobiles several times, but you know you don't have time to note small details when breaking the speed laws. Hiram said to Hank: "We will get off at one of the hotels near the railroad station and have a little dinner." The conductor snorted and made an effort to conceal a smile. They got off and entered the barroom of the nearest hotel. They had everything but food there, but could not serve even a sandwich. The barkeeper said that there was a lunchroom across the street. They wandered to the brick hotel on the next corner, where they failed to obtain anything to eat, but were told that the car for New Brunswick stopped right between the hotel and the Central Railroad station on the opposite side of the street. It did not, in this particular instance, but reversed at the trolley station and sped away toward New Brunswick.

"We'll try the lunch room,' said Hiram to Hank, and after shooing the flies from the screen door they entered a cosy room and were attended by a neat young woman who announced the bill of fare: "You can have eggs, or ham, ham and eggs or an egg sandwich, a ham sandwich or a ham and egg sandwich." Hiram took an egg sandwich and Hank ate a ham and egg sandwich. They had missed two cars and barely caught the third. At New Brunswick they got a good dinner in the old Mansion House and leisurely proceeded to Perth Amboy by the Metuchen route, but meanwhile the shades of night had been pulled down and they saw nothing of the route to which both were strangers. For several days they have been avoiding people who ask them to take a trolley trip to Bound Brook. Hiram says, "Between the two give me Rahway."—Newark Sunday Call.

COURT WANTS LAWYERS MOTIVES INVESTIGATED.

Jersey City, Aug. 1.—In refusing a writ of error in the case of former Alderman Edward Sheehy yesterday morning, Justice Swayze stated that he wanted the prosecutor to investigate the motives which prompted Alexander Simpson, counsel for Sheehy, to apply for the writ.

"It's a question with me," said the court, "whether or not this is not an abuse of the process of the court and intended to delay justice. I want the prosecutor to look into the motives of Mr. Simpson in this matter and report to the court later."

Mr. Simpson addressed the court and declared that his motives were honest, but thought that inasmuch as the prosecutor was asked to investigate them he would say nothing further, but submit his case to the prosecutor.

Sheehy has been sentenced to three years in States prison for fraud in connection with election booths.

POPE CUTS DOWN LIST OF HOLY DAYS

Announcement is made that Pope Pius X., by a recent pontifical decree, has removed from the list of holy days of obligation, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, which Roman Catholics the world over celebrate on December 8.

The effect of the decree will be to relieve Roman Catholics of the obligation of hearing mass and abstaining from unnecessary work on the feast day.

Reports of the decree, which has not yet been promulgated officially in this diocese, brought expressions of surprise from Roman Catholic clergymen, and some of them were inclined to think the translators of the decree were at fault and that no such change had been made by the Pontiff.

The Immaculate Conception remained a matter of pious belief only until Pope Pius IX., after a Vatican council, in an apostolic letter dated December 8, 1854, defined the doctrine as an article of faith. Thereafter the Feast of the Immaculate Conception was observed throughout the Catholic world as a holy day of obligation.

In his recent decree Pope Pius X. says that on account of the changed conditions of civil society and in response to numerous petitions for the lessening of the number of holy days of obligation he has prescribed that only the following shall be observed:

"All Sundays throughout the year, the Feasts of the Nativity, the Circumcision, the Epiphany, the Ascension, the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin, the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul and the Feast of All Saints."

In this country the Feasts of the Epiphany and SS. Peter and Paul have never been observed except as days of special devotion. When Archbishop Farley receives an official copy of the Pope's decree and sends a copy of it to each priest in the diocese there will be one less holy day of obligation in the local church calender.

AUTOISTS WILL MEET AT SHORE

Asbury Park, Aug. 1.—Automobilists are enthusiastic over the meeting which has been called for Saturday, August 19, to discuss problems that confront motorists, and also to agitate legislation that is said to be necessary. This meeting was arranged by the Ocean Boulevard Commission, which met at the Hotel La Reine, Bradley Beach, Saturday, following the dedication of the Ocean Grove-Asbury Park link in the new boulevard.

The New Monmouth Hotel at Spring Lake will probably be the scene of the autoists' meeting, and if this is found to be too small an adjournment will be taken to the Beach Casino in the same resort. Mayor Appleby, at whose suggestion the mass meeting was called, expects not only New Jersey autoists, but many from other States will attend.

One of the things to be discussed will be reciprocal automobile arrangements with other States, and another will be the advisability of building better roads and more of them. Colonel Edwin A. Stevens, State Road Commissioner, and his assistant, Robert A. Meeker, are in sympathy with the plan and have promised Mayor Appleby they will attend.

Governor Wilson will also be invited, and the plan is to invite former Governor Fort. The Mayors of all the municipalities along the coast will receive invitations to the affair.

Mayor Appleby said yesterday that there was no reason why the shore resorts should not show more consideration to the automobilist.

RETIRED SHIPBUILDERS DIES FROM INJURIES.

Spring Lake, Aug. 1.—William Rowland, of New Brunswick, for years a prominent shipbuilder in Newark, died here Sunday. He was eighty-three years old and had retired. He was for years actively connected with the Iron Steamboat Company and other water transportation enterprises. He fell downstairs last Wednesday at the summer home of his daughter, Mrs. Riva, and never regained consciousness. Mrs. Robert Adrain, of New Brunswick, whose husband died six months ago, is another daughter. A brother, Charles Rowland, also survives. The funeral will be held in New Brunswick, Thursday afternoon. Mr. Rowland aided in building the Livingston Avenue Baptist church in that city.

DIVIDE THEATRES

Keith and Proctor Agree to Dissolve Partnership of Long Standing.

NO CHANGE IN LOCAL THEATRES

Official Statement Given of Litigation in the Courts—Final Argument August 10.

Final arguments of the attorneys in the Keith and Proctor Amusement Company dissolution suit on the question of the disposition of the Fifth Avenue Theatre property will be heard before the Supreme Court of Maine, in Portland, beginning August 10. Action in this matter will make history of one of the most strenuous menagerial controversies of recent years.

Except for the disposition of the Fifth Avenue house, in which Mr. Proctor is certain to be awarded at least a half interest, if not complete ownership, the amusement corporation has, by agreement, been fully dissolved. On the other hand, Mr. Proctor, in winning his contentions, has become once more the leading figure in metropolitan vaudeville circles.

In November, 1910, Mr. Proctor, feeling aggrieved that he was not receiving as a partner with Mr. Keith the consideration due him, sought legal relief, but failed to obtain it. It was ascertained that Mr. Keith, acting as the International Amusement and Realty Company, the company in fact, was renting to the Keith and Proctor Company, of which he and his son together were half owners, the Fifth Avenue theatre, and was reaping a personal benefit therefrom.

At the time of the formation of the Keith and Proctor Company, Mr. Proctor had a lease from the Gilsey estate on the Fifth Avenue theatre which had seven years to run. Under the guise of the International Company, Mr. Keith bought the property for a little more than $1,300,000. He concealed this fact from his partner. Mr. Proctor contributed to the Keith and Proctor Company the lease he held. There had been an understanding that a new lease would be given or the old one renewed, if written notice was given by September 1, 1910.

After October had passed, the International Company declared that it was not prepared to renew the lease to the Keith and Proctor Company. Many letters on this question passed between Mr. Proctor and Mr. Keith.

Mr. Proctor contended that he had contributed a several years' lease on the Fifth Avenue theatre along with other properties and houses. Efforts to compromise were futile. Finally, Mr. Proctor and S. B. Larabee were appointed receivers of the company, pending suit in the Supreme Court, at Portland, Me., against the International Amusement and Realty Company, et al.

Judge Peabody died just at the completion of the case. The whole thing therefore had to be gone over again, this time before Judge Bird. In the meantime application by Mr. Keith had been made to discharge the receivers of the amusement company, Mr. Proctor and Mr. Larabee. The present crisis came about through interruption of the receivers in conducting the company's business by Mr. Keith. He failed in this, but Mr. Proctor succeeded in obtaining a sweeping court order restraining him from any interference in the company's affairs.

Thursday of last week the opponents of Mr. Proctor virtually threw up the sponge, agreed to a distribution of the property of the Keith and Proctor Amusement Company and granted that the lease on the Fifth Avenue theatre held by Mr. Proctor was valid and should be considered as a part of the property he had contributed to the company. This means that he will, at least, be awarded a full half interest in the theatre, if not complete possession, as soon as the arguments are concluded next month.

F. F. Proctor when seen at his office was quiet, apparently elated over his victory in the courts and frankly admitted that he was already busy on plans for the refurnishing of his houses and several innovations, to install which he has not been at liberty until now.

"Until the final settlement in regard to the Fifth Avenue house is made," he said, "it, of course, will remain under the direct manager of Edward F. Albee, under the supervision of myself and Mr. Keith.

"By the terms of the agreement we signed in Portland, the Harlem Opera House was bid for by Mr. Keith and myself, he taking it over for $82,000 one half of which comes to me in cash on Monday."

Mr. Proctor now has twenty amusement enterprises and is interested in one hundred more. This is a partial list of his houses:

LID ON AT ASBURY PARK.

Asbury Park, Aug. 1.—In explaining his actions in ordering the lid on the new beach, particularly as it applied to the new bathing establishment, Mayor Appleby said yesterday that he was acting for the best interest of the resort.

The Mayor added that the bathing establishments are allowed to keep open until 1 o'clock Sundays, and he thought it no more than fair that half a day a week should be given up to rest. He went on to say that Asbury Park had grown on the principle that it was not a wide open city.

Miss Julia Williams, of Somerset street, has finished a two weeks' vacation visit at Asbury Park and has returned to her home in the borough.

Miss Helen Carson, of East Second street, has returned from a trip through Illinois and upper New York State. She was in the West for three weeks.

HITCHED WIFE TO HARROW.

Kansas City, Aug. 1.—Because her husband hitched her to a harrow beside a team of mules and drove her around a cornfield, Mrs. Lafayette Choate, wife of a farmer living near Birmingham, Mo., appealed to the Juvenile Court here Friday for the custody of her two sons, four and six years old. Mrs. Choate declared that her husband tied her hands behind her and drove her four times around the field hitched with the mules. She said that when she stumbled and fell, he beat her with a club.

When asked by the court why she did not prosecute her husband, she replied that she would not do so because he was the father of her children. The court gave the children to her and provided that they be sent to the Institutional church until she could give them a home.

Wants Motorboats Inspected.

YIELDED TO EDMUNDS.

Cleveland's Political Foe Won After His Friends Had Failed.

Soon after Mr. Cleveland entered the White House in 1885 Vice President Hendricks died at his home in Indianapolis, and the president made arrangements to attend the funeral. Many of his social intimates and all his official advisers united in an effort to dissuade him from making this twenty hour journey, enlarging on the manifold risks of rail travel at all times and the special opportunity this would offer some fanatic to assassinate him. But he remained immovable until within a few hours of the time set for closing up his business he received an unexpected call from Senator Edmunds of Vermont.

Mr. Edmunds was the leader of the Republican side of the senate and was understood to have in preparation several measures of opposition to the announced policies of the new administration. But he was also and above all else an American citizen and a patriot, and his visit to his political foe was made in that character. In a conversation of less than half an hour, in which he drew the curtain over all differences and disregarded all empty formalities of intercourse, he laid before the president in the clear terms and logical order in which he knew so well how to express himself the larger aspects of the situation.

As the presidential succession law then stood the speaker of the house of representatives stood next in line to the vice president, and next to him came the president pro tempore of the senate. The house not having organized since the inauguration, no speaker had been elected, and, the senate having failed at its special session to choose a president pro tempore to serve during the recess, only one life—that of the president himself—stood between the nation and administrative anarchy; hence, argued Mr. Edmunds, it was Mr. Cleveland's duty to forego every other consideration and invite no chances of throwing upon the country they both loved a strain such as it had never been subjected to before.

The writer of these lines was seated in the next room while this visit was in progress, and he will never forget the president's expression of satisfaction on coming out of his office after the senator had gone. He gave orders at once that all preparations for his journey should be suspended and declared that nothing that had occurred since he entered the White House had so touched him as the kind solicitude shown by Mr. Edmunds about his exposing himself to any peril now. The others who had reasoned with him on the subject were men who were presumptively friendly and whose chief anxiety seemed to be lest he should suffer some injury to his individual person or fortunes. But here was a man who, as far as politics was concerned, was a hostile of hostiles, yet who appealed to him in behalf of the American people and their government.

"That settled it," Mr. Cleveland concluded as he turned to go back to his office. "After what Edmunds said there can be no further question of where my highest obligation lies."—F. E. L. in New York Post.

Soft Toned Bells of China.

The natives of China use large bells of their own make in many of their temples and monasteries. I have noticed all through Japan and China that the tone of the monastery and temple bells is very soft and smooth, due to the superior quality of the material used in their manufacture and to the absence of iron clappers, the result being a marvelous softness and mellowness of tone. The bells are never swung, being always suspended in a fixed frame, and the sound is produced by striking them on the outer edge with a wooden mallet. This makes the soft tones which are so delightfully melodious.—Consular Reports.

Dr. Holmes' Wit.

One of the best repartees ever credited to a habitual maker of happy phrases was that made by the beloved "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" on a certain social occasion.

Going to dine with a Boston neighbor, Dr. Holmes was met by her with an apology:

"I could not get another man. We are four women, and you will have to take us all in."

"Forewarned is fourarmed," he said with a bow.

Flies and Filth.

The fly is born in, lives and thrives upon filth. If no filth is allowed to accumulate in a house or its neighborhood it will not be troubled by flies, for they do not ordinarily stray far from their breeding places and their sources of food. In a thoroughly clean neighborhood they cannot live in the face of screens preventing their access to food and to the absence of manure heaps and other receptacles for filth in which to deposit their eggs.—Survey.

Helping Things Along.

"The family in the next flat has three phonographs and four boys with toy express wagons," said Mr. Growcher's wife. "What on earth shall we do?"

"Send for the piano tuner and ask him how much he'll take to work by the day."—Washington Star.

Good News.

"My dear, our landlord says he's going to raise our rent."

Though some of us are poor, let us all be genteel.—Stevenson.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

TOWN DIVIDED ON GROVER CLEVELAND

The question as to how Grover Cleveland regarded Caldwell, his birthplace, promises to become an issue there. Some of Mr. Cleveland's admirers plan the purchase of the house in which he was born to hold it as a national Cleveland museum. It was reported yesterday that F. H. Phillips is one of the opponents of the movement. He objects to the use of any of the borough's money for a Cleveland memorial.

"If the citizens as individuals care to contribute money toward the establishment of a memorial to Mr. Cleveland well and good," said Mr. Phillips yesterday, "but Caldwell can find better use for $18,000 than to expend it for an old building, even if Mr. Cleveland was born in the structure."

Those who favor the memorial say that they will produce documentary evidence showing that Mr. Cleveland cherished the highest regard for Caldwell, and they declare that they will produce this evidence when the proposal is launched formally.

The story of the opponents of the movement is to the effect that Mr. Cleveland all his life resented the displacement of his father as pastor of the Caldwell Presbyterian church and that he resolved never to return to the town when he left it, seated with his two legs dangling out in the rear of the wagon which conveyed the Cleveland household effects from Caldwell.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. La Maire have returned to this city after a short trip following their wedding at Dunellen last Thursday night. The news of their marriage came as a surprise to their friends although the quietness of the ceremony was not withheld from the Dunellen people. When the couple called at the parsonage of the Presbyterian church to be united in wedlock, the young people of the church were holding a social on the lawn. They soon found out that a wedding was taking place when Rev. Ernest Brown was called in the house by Mr. La Maire.

When the ceremony had been performed the couple was given a warm reception as they left the house and they then departed on a short trip. Upon returning to this city they took up their residence on West Front street. The bride was formerly Mrs. Ella Totten, of Duer street. Mr. La Maire is in the employ of Woolston and Buckle and was a resident of West Second street.

CHATTANOOGA

A FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY
BY F A MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

Mark began to be interested. It was now evident to him that this person ensconced behind a snake fence, holding him under cover of a gun, was a friend instead of an enemy.

"Well?"

"I kem out hyar to tell y' 'bout it."

"Then let me see you as well as hear you."

A figure with a gun climbed over the fence and advanced toward the soldier. When it came near enough Mark saw a girl who might be anywhere between sixteen and eighteen, for her skirt only reached to the tops of her shoes, and her hair was cut square around her neck. She came very near to him and spoke in a low tone:

"After y' left the tavern some on 'em 'lowed y' was Union, and some on 'em 'lowed y' was Confederate; leastaways, they wasn't sartin. Uncle, he's bad

"SOME ON 'EM 'LOWED Y' WAS UNION."

secesh, and he 'lowed y' was Union and bound on some errant fur the Yankees. So be pursuaded several on 'em ter mount 'n follow y'. They was gitten ready, and I slipped out to the barn and tuk my pony, what I rode over on this afternoon, 'n Jakey's squirrel gun (Jakey's my brother), what I allus carries when I ride round in these hyar war times, 'n I makes tracks cross country by a trail I allus goes to uncle's 'n comes hum agin while the men air comen by the road. I jest rode Sally Maria among the trees thar and tied her and squatted behind the fence till y' come along and—Lordy sakes!"

"What's the matter now?"

"Listen!"

They were both quiet for a moment, the girl's two big black eyes denoting her anxiety. They could distinctly hear the tread of horses coming on a brisk lope.

Without a word the girl seized Mark's bridle rein and led horse and rider off the road into the wood. At a short distance behind a rise in the ground she stopped. Mark was inclined to go on farther.

"No, no," she said hurriedly. "My pony's right thar. If she ketches sight o' your horse she'll whinny."

Mark dismounted, and the girl, plucking a handful of grass, held it to his horse's mouth to keep her attention from other matters that she might not neigh and betray them. The two stood looking at each other while the sounds grew louder, dreading every moment that either one of their horses might give the signal that would lead to their discovery. There were evidently not less than half a dozen of the horsemen on the road, altogether too many for one man, even if well armed, to meet.

The men rode up to the fork of the road, where they reined in their horses for a parley. It was a question doubtless which road the Yankee soldier had taken. Presently they divided, one party taking the left hand road to Tracy City, the other the road leading up the valley.

As soon as they were gone Mark took the girl's hand and gave it a grateful pressure:

"God bless you, my girl; you've saved me from capture or being shot in the back—shot, I expect."

The girl shuddered. She knew well enough the fate he would have met if his pursuers had overtaken him. They would have come upon him warily and shot him from behind a tree. When the sounds from the retreating horsemen had died away in the distance she said:

"Come!"

CHAPTER II.

A CHANGE OF UNIFORM.

THE soldier followed her, leading his horse, till they came upon her own pony tied to a sapling. Mark offered to help her mount, but she was not used to such civility, and leading her horse to the trunk of a fallen tree mounted by herself.

Crossing the road, the two entered a wood on the other side. The girl kept a straight course till she came to a creek, which she forded below and near a log that had been felled across it to be used for a footbridge. On the farther side she struck an old road, abandoned, at least for wheels. Mark rode up alongside of her. She was a wild looking thing, with hardly a trace of civilization about her except her calico dress and cowhide shoes.

"Where are you taking me to?" asked Mark.

"Hum."

"Where's home?"

"T'other side o th' Sequatchie river."

"How far is it to the river?"

"'Bout a mile from the creek we jest crossed."

"And how far from the river to your home?"

"'Bout another mile. We live on a road ez runs from the Chattanoogy pike to Anderson."

"That's well. I want to reach the pike."

"Waal, y'll only hev ter go a couple o' mile from our house t' git thar."

"You seem to know all about this country."

"Reckon I do. I was born hyar. I done a heap o' hunten in these hyar woods. I toted a gun all over 'em."

"Tell me something about yourself. What's your name?"

"Souri."

"Souri what?"

"Slack."

"Oh, yes! You're one of the Slacks, you told me. Isn't Souri a singular name for a girl?"

"Waal, dad, he kem from Missouri. So thet's what he named me."

"Have you a mother?"

"Yas."

"Brothers and sisters?"

"Henery and Jakey."

"How old are they?"

"Henery, he's 'bout twenty-two. He's in Jim Brown's company o' east Tennessee cavalry."

"What? Union cavalry?"

"Yas."

"You mean regiment, not company. I know Brown well. How old is your other brother?"

"Jakey, he's thirteen."

"At home?"

"Yas."

"What are you going to do with me when you get me to your home?"

"Take y' to the barn, I reckon."

"Why not to the house. Aren't your folks all right? I thought you said they were Union."

"Oh, they're all Union. But mebbe they mought suspect at the tavern (seein' I'm gone 'thout sayen goodby and knowen I'm Union) thet I've put y' up to somep'n or tuk y' hum."

"Souri," said Mark meditatively, "do you know that since I met you I have been thinking that you're nobody's fool."

The girl laughed, or rather chuckled. She enjoyed the compliment and was too unsophisticated to pretend that she did not.

They soon struck a dirt road leading directly south, which they followed till they came to the Sequatchie river, striking a ford at the same time. Souri led the way into the ford, Mark following. Her pony was used to such crossings, this one in particular, while Mark's horse preferred to feel his way slowly; consequently Souri reached the opposite bank before Mark had got half way over.

It was now night, but it was clear, and a half moon cast its faint light upon the land and the river. Mark suddenly looked up from the water and saw Souri on the bank watching him. Had he been near enough he would have seen anxiety depicted on every feature of her face.

"Keep up the stream!" she called, pointing at the same time.

He turned his horse's head as she directed, but soon lowering his eyes to the water began to go down stream again.

"Look at me," she called; "don't look at the water. Its runnen makes it seem sif y' war goen straight when yer goen crooked. Thar's a ledge o' rocks below thar and deep water beyond."

Mark fixed his eyes on his guide, and turning his horse's head toward her urged her forward. She picked her way slowly, as if conscious of danger, and at last coming to the brink stepped quickly out of the water and shook herself.

"What makes you tremble so?" he asked of Souri.

"I ain't," she said, coloring.

"Is that a dangerous ford?"

"Ef y'd a-tumbled offen the ledge y'd 'a' drownded."

"I've done some scouting before this, but I see now that I haven't learned to cross a current till today. Next time I'll look out for something on shore to steer by."

Another ten minutes brought them home. Souri led the way to a rickety barn, where both horses were stabled. She left Mark in the barn while she went into the house to inform the inmates of his presence.

Presently she came out.

"Dad 'lows y' mought come in fur a spell 'thout much resk. They won't know o' y'r bein hyar yet awhile. Leastaways thar's no hurry. But dad reckons y' mought sleep in the barn with one eye open."

"I shall not sleep anywhere tonight. I must go on. But I'll go in with you for awhile."

A man met them at the door with white, shocky hair and a stubble beard. He looked sixty, though he was ten or fifteen years younger. He walked as if he were following the plow. His trousers were drawn nearly up to his armpits, a double breasted waistcoat served in lieu of a coat.

"Them blue clothes looks kinder peart to we uns down hyar ez ain't seen nothen but gray," said the man. "I 'lowed when you uns went up ter Chattanoogy last June and fired them big guns at the town y' was goen to hold onto these hyar parts."

"Perhaps it was a mistake," said Mark, "but I never criticise the acts of my superiors."

"Come inter th' house."

The dwelling was composed of two square log houses, some ten feet apart, under one roof, with a floor between the two. The man led Mark into one of these parts or houses. The articles in it that struck the soldier's eye were a very high bedstead, heightened further by a feather bed; a chest of drawers, and a clock on the mantle that ticked loud enough to be heard out in the barn. There were some pieces of rag carpet on the floor, two or three hard seated chairs and a rocker.

"What y' got fur supper?" the old man asked as his wife entered.

"I don't want any supper," said the soldier. "I only ate an hour or two ago."

The woman, who was bent down through some nervous disease, went to the chest of drawers, took therefrom a cob pipe and some tobacco and began to smoke.

"Much shaken among the sojers, stranger?" she asked.

"At the beginning of a fight there's a good deal," replied Mark, "but after they're once in they get on without much trouble."

"Don't mean that kind of shaken—ager."

"Oh, ague. No, I don't think there's much ague."

"Fever?"

"There's always more or less camp fever. It seems as if every man who campaigns in this country must have a dose of typhoid to get acclimated."

"Thar's a powerful lot o' fevers 'bout hyar. Thar's the typhoid, the broken bone, the intermitten and the remitten, and onct en awhile we git yaller jack when it comes up the Mississippi from Orleans."

"That's a good deal of fever," replied Mark; "but, to come down to business, I want to say a few words to you people. You're sure you're Union?"

"Sarten," said the old man.

"Got a young un in Jim Brown's company of east Tennesseeans," said the old woman. "I hearn th' all had the measles in th' spring. Henery hed it."

"Yes, that regiment was nearly all down at one time. Now, I'm going on a very dangerous mission. May I rely on—who are you?"

A boy about thirteen years of age had come into the room, and squaring himself before Mark began to stare at him.

"Jake," replied the intruder, "I have something of importance to say to your father and mother." Then to the parents, "Won't you please send him out?"

"Jest's y' like, stranger," answered the father, "but mebbe Jake mought show y' the way or somep'n. He's purty peart."

Jake's appearance did not bear witness to the encomium.

"Well, let him stay. I would like to rely on this house as a place of refuge in case I have to get back here rapidly. I want you to take care of my horse, and if I never come you can keep her. If I do come I'll pay you more liberally for horse fodder than you ever were paid before."

"Y' talk purty rich fer a common sojer."

"Don't fear for that. I have money," and Mark showed a roll of bills that astonished his host.

"Do you agree?"

"Sarten, but the money don't make no differ. I'm a Union man to the backbone."

"Have you any citizen's clothes?"

"Thar's Henery's store clothes ez he left when he went to jine th' army."

"Will they fit me?"

"Reckon so. Henry's 'bout your size."

Slack took the soldier into the twin log cabin and there gave him a suit of clothes which were intended for best wear, but they had evidently been so intended for years, with frequent deviations from the intention. Mark took off his uniform, which, with his rifle and pistol and other accouterments, he put under the bed. Then he drew off his boots (so loose that he could easily remove them without unbuckling his spurs) and put on a pair of shoes. A felt hat completed his attire.

"La sakes!" said Souri, raising her hands as she met him passing between the cabins, thus arrayed for secret service.

As Mark entered the room where he had left Mrs. Slack and Jakey their eyes stood out wonderingly. Mr. Slack followed Mark into the room.

"Now how about the road?" asked Mark.

"Whar?"

"To Chattanooga."

"Waal, y' mought go right up the road in front 'n the house fur 'bout a mile. Then y'll come ter a road leaden sort o' southeast like. Ef y' go down this ar road it'll take y' ter th' Chattanoogy pike. Jakey, you mought go along 'n show 'm th' way."

"Do you know the road your father speaks of, leading to the Chattanooga pike?" asked Mark of the boy.

"Does I know, Souri?"

"None o' them sideaways talken, Jake. Answer straight," said Mr. Slack severely.

"Reckon I does. I knows all th' roads 'bout hyar."

Mark looked at the boy and thought a few moments without speaking. He was a stupid looking child, but Mark thought that if he could get him to go with him it might avert suspicion.

"Jakey," he asked, "how would you like to go with me on—a trip?"

"How would I like to shoot squirrels?"

"You, Jake! Didn't I tell y' t' answer straight?" from the father.

"Yas, I'd like to go."

"I've a mind to take you, if your father will let you go," said Mark meditatively.

"Many fevers 'bout Chattanoogy?" asked the mother, taking the pipe out of her mouth and casting an anxious glance at her son.

"What y' goen ter do with him?" asked Slack.

"I only want him for a companion—to divert suspicion—and—well, I can't tell exactly what—for an emergency, perhaps."

"What's a 'mergency?" asked Jakey.

"Well, if I should learn something of importance I might want to send you back with the news, or if I should be caught in a—in a"—

"Tree, like a coon, with a gun or a dorg below," supplied Jakey.

"That's it exactly. I might want to send word about that."

"I'm afeard he's too little ter be of any use that a-way," said his father.

"Oh, Jakey can't go. He's got ter stay right hyar 'n do hoen," chimed his mother.

"What do you say, Jakey? Do you want to go?" asked Mark.

"Would I"—

"You, Jake!" again shouted his father.

"Course I want ter go."

"I'll tell you what I'll do. If you will let him go I'll bring him or send him back safely and leave a twenty dollar greenback here with you for him on his return.

"Souri! Souri!" called Slack.

Souri came in so quickly as to argue that she had not been out of hearing of all that had passed.

WILSON HOST OF OFFICERS.

Gives Another Military Dinner at the Sea Girt Encampment.

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, August 1, —Governor Wilson was the host last night at another military dinner, his guests being the men in charge of the commands which are in camp this week for a tour of duty. Included among them were Brig. Gen, Edwin W. Hine, Commandant of the First Brigade, and his Adjutant, Major Alexander P. Gray, Jr.; Col. John D. Fraser, Lieut. Col. George M. Buttle, and Capt. I. Newton Davies, Adjutant, all of the First Regiment; Col. Albert A. Van Wairaven, Lieut. Col. William W. Salter, and Captain and Adjutant Wilmer A. Cadmus, of the Fifth Regiment; Adj. Gen. Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., Col. Archibald S. Alexander, personal aid; Col. William Libby, and Capt. Ralph W. E. Donges, of the Governor's staff.

Both officers and men had a busy time yesterday, with the bulk of the work coming on those who carry commissions. The program is much in line with that of last week, with the privates having the easiest time. Both commands with the exception of details who re-erected the camp, were either on the rifle range or out on the parade ground in the morning.

The bright afternoon brought out a big crowd to watch the evening parade, the soldier boys of the First Regiment, of Newark, doing the honors. Last night there were two band concerts in camp, and these also drew a crowd from neighboring resorts.

Governor Wilson spent the morning with a stenographer, clearing up his mail, and yesterday afternoon received a number of callers. Tomorrow there will be a Riparian Board meeting at his cottage. On Thursday he will entertain county officials and heads of departments, who have been invited to the second Governor's Day of the encampment. On either Friday or Saturday afternoon it is expected that he will attend the Sea Girt and Spring Lake Country Club Horse Show and present the cup which is offered for the best military charger exhibited, known as the New Jersey National Guard Trophy.

ASSEMBLYMAN GERAN IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH.

Red Bank, August 1, 1911.—One woman was hurled twenty feet and badly injured, another thrown out and bruised and two large touring cars were completely wrecked when the machines came together in a head-on crash just east of the Middletown trolley station Sunday afternoon.

One of the cars was owned by William F. Harms, of New York, and the other machine was being driven by Assemblyman Geran, of Matawan, who was taking a party from Keyport to Red Bank.

With Mr. Geran were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Burrows and Miss Daisy Burrows, of Keyport, and Miss Bee Hubell, of New York. Mrs. Burrows, who was sitting in the rear seat of the machine, was hurled far from the car by the impact and was badly bruised and cut about the head, face and body.

Miss Burrows, who was in the front seat with Geran, was also thrown out and more or less bruised. The driver of the other car received a bad cut on the lower lip.

Traffic along the road was blocked for thirty minutes while the wreckage was being cleared away. Several of the party received minor bruises, but none was seriously injured.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets, with preaching by Rev. N. Y. Nyrap, of Brooklyn.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Evangelical Lutheran church will hold its regular meeting Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Charles Smith, 51 Craig place.

NEWSPAPER WAR IN BAYONNE.

Editor of Neither Daily Will Admit That His is Superfluous.

Quite a few persons live in Bayonne, but not even the most optimistic among the town's enthusiasts would suggest that Bayonne could support two daily newspapers. This is just what Bayonne is trying to do, however, and Editor J. T. R. Proctor and ex-Recorder Hyman Lazarus each declares that he will never suspend publication.

Mr. Lazarus is editing and publishing The Bayonne Times, which Mr. Proctor formerly owned, while the latter is printing a four-page daily called The Daily Review. Over Mr. Lazarus' office, which was formerly his. Mr. Proctor has posted a big sign announcing the place of the office of The Daily Review, with the added information that just now it is closed and the temporary office is at 724 Broadway. Beneath this sign Mr. Lazarus has put other signs asserting that the office is that of The Times, and that it is open for business.

The trouble started several years ago, when Mr. Proctor found himself in difficulties with The Times. Mr. Lazarus came to his financial aid, and says Mr. Proctor agreed then that if the paper ever made a success, the ex-Recorder was to have 51 per cent. of the stock. Mr. Proctor says now that he never agreed to such an arrangement, though admitting that Mr. Lazarus indorsed notes of his. These have been taken up, however, and Mr. Proctor thinks that Mr. Lazarus euchred him out of his stock.

The case has been tried in two courts and each gave a verdict to Mr. Lazarus, who thereupon took control of the paper. Mr. Proctor immediately started the rival paper and today Bayonne is divided against itself. So far both papers have appeared daily, but the end is not yet, says each of the editors.

BOY RESCUES SISTER WHILE CROWD CHEERS.

Jersey City, August 1.—Diving over-board after his six-year-old sister, Ellen, who had fallen from the Morris street dock into the North River, Sunday night, James Dilion, fourteen years old, of 69 Sussex street, swam with her back to the dock and saved her from drowning, while the mother fainted and the crowd gathered on the dock cheered.

The children, with their mother, had joined the throng which was lounging on the docks enjoying the water breeze. The child, unnoticed, crept too near the edge of the dock, and when some one suddenly called to her to come back, little Ellen toppled into the water, seven feet below.

GREAT WELCOME FOR NOTED MOTOR TRUCK

Bringing a letter to Mayor Gaynor, of New York, from Mayor McCarthy, of San Francisco, the first motor truck to cross this continent is due to reach the City Hall, New York, about half-past three o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The completion of the trip will be celebrated by the Motor Truck Club as a justification of everything that has been claimed for power wagons, which the doubters have said could never repeat on rough American roads the records they have made on the standard military roads of Europe. The Pioneer, which is a five ton Saurer truck, made in this city at the plant of the Saurer Motor Truck Company, carried all the way from ocean to ocean a load of three and a half tons.

A delegation from the Motor Truck Club, which promises to include most of the organization's membership, is going up to Kingsbridge to meet the truck and will escort it to City Hall. As the club has on its rolls all the motor truck men in town, and as it is proposed that the trip to Kingsbridge shall be made by each man in his own car, there is likely to be an imposing parade of commercial cars. After the Mayor's letter has been delivered the party will turn back to Columbus Circle, where the club will dine at 7 o'clock at Reisenweber's.

Places of honor at the dinner will be reserved for A. L. Westgard, the automobile road expert, who went with the freighter from Denver to Los Angeles as special representative of the office of Public Roads of the United States, Department of Agriculture, and Arthur Thompson and George McLean, the drivers who had the big Saurer in charge throughout the transcontinental trip.

Mr. Westgard, who was commissioned to study the condittions of roads, bridges and highway equipment in general and gather certain special statistics for the government, will give an illustrated account of his work, and the drivers will tell some of the things in their experiences that are valuable as throwing new light on motor car operation.

CONFER ON CONDITION OF NEW JERSEY ROADS

Colonel E. A. Stevens, State Highway Commissioner of New Jersey, who has done much good work on State and county roads since his acceptance of the commissionership, will have a conference with William Bittles, chairman of the Good Roads Committee of the New Jersey Automobile and Motor Club, today. Mr. Bittles has compiled a list of New Jersey roads which require repairing and Mr. Stevens has sought the aid of the big automobile organization in his efforts to improve the State roads.

In addition, the onference will take in the matter of sign posts, for by an act passed last year the State Highway Commission is empowered to expend at least $1,000 per annum on sign posts for New Jersey roads. Inasmuch as the active motor organization is planning the erection of several thousand signs, the co-operation of Mr. Stevens' department will greatly facilitate the club's work.

Colonel Stevens has actively engaged in the duties of his office and has already established a reputation for thoroughness that will add a great deal in getting New Jersey's many roads in touring shape. There is no denying the fact that a great many of the main arteries of travel are not in fit condition.

Under the New Jersey laws the entire amount received by the Motor Vehicle Department is turned over to the Highway Commissioner, to be expended upon the repairing of State roads. This year the receipts of the department should be fully $350,000. Several of the counties, notably Essex and Hudson, the largest in population, receive little or no benefit under the motor vehicle act because of the scarcity of State roads in those counties. In this event repairs, alterations and new roads are left to the care and wisdom of the county Boards of Freeholders.

Essex county, of which Newark is the largest city, has many miles of splendid roads, as has Hudson county. The roads of Morris county are now undergoing extensive repairs, notably in the neighborhood of Morristown, and the Union county authorities have just appropriated $50,000 for road repairs.

OCEAN GROVE PLANS TO ENTERTAIN TAFT.

Ocean Grove, Aug. 1.—Ocean Grove residents could hardly believe their ears when they heard that President Taft was coming to this place, and that the date selected was August 15. This place has a reputation for "doing things," but it was beyond the widest dream of the residents that the President was coming.

All the plans for his entertainment have not been completed, but they will be carried out on an elaborate scale. The President will be met at the depot probably by the militia and taken to the Ocean Grove Auditorium, where he will deliver an address. While here he will be the guest of the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association, which has entertained Presidents William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt. In addition it has also had as its guests several of the former Governors of the State.

It was no longer ago than the Fourth of July last that Governor Wilson spoke from the platform of the auditorium. Asbury Park at that time tried to get the Governor to go over on its side and make an address, but was unsuccessful. The Governor has promised to be at Asbury Park on the occasion of the baby parade, August 31.

STABBING AFFRAY MAY RESULT IN MAN'S DEATH.

Elizabeth, August 1.—Arraigned before Judge Mahon, on a charge of stabbing Joseph Young, of 35 Spring street, Jeremiah McLoughlin furnished $500 bail yesterday to await the outcome of Young's injuries. The latter was stabbed in the abdomen and may die, according to the physicians at the German Hospital.

The stabbing followed a quarrel Saturday night over cards in a saloon at Third avenue and Spring street, in which several blows were struck. McLoughlin, it is alleged, drew a long-bladed penknife and slashed Young. The latter fell and McLoughlin was arrested later in the rear of 1014 Elizabeth avenue, by Detective Ward, of police headquarters. McLoughlin is married and lives at 344 Washington avenue.

ASBURY SUNDAY TRAIN SERVICE UP TO BOARD.

Asbury Park, Aug. 1.—Answers to the petition of City Solicitor James D. Carton for Sunday train service at this resort and Ocean Grove Station have been filed with the Public Utilities Commission by the New York and Long Branch Railroad.

These answers, indorsed by the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Pennsylvania Railroad, admit he commercial importance of the city and the need of the service, but maintain that an agreement with the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association prevents the stopping of trains on Sunday if the railroad company's corporate honesty and integrity are to remain unsullied.

Mr. Carton has gone over the answers, as has also S. A. Patterson, counsel for the Ocean Grove association, and Mr. Carton has applied to the utilities commission to have a date set for a hearing in the matter. This application will come up today, when the commission will decide when the hearing shall be held.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Attorney-General Wickersham to Inquire Into Affairs of Mining Company.

AT REQUEST OF MAYOR MOY.

Stockholder's Committee Said to Have Completed Report—Suits are to Follow.

For the purpose of ascertaining the exact condition of the affairs of the National Mining and Leasing Company, which had its headquarters in this city while the late Ellsworth D. Middlekauff was living, G. W. V. Moy, in his official capacity as Mayor, has written to Attorney-General Wickersham asking him to investigate the company's affairs. Mr. Wickersham has informed Mr. Moy that the matter has been turned over to his assistant and will be promptly attended to at once.

Mr. Moy represents several parties who have been interested in the affairs of the National Mining and Leasing Company, and it is expected that a number of suits will result in the near future. It is said that the affairs of the company are not in a satisfactory condition. Already there have been several suits started on notes given in exchange for stock in the company, and there are more to follow.

Acting for Frank H. Smith, owner of the property at Park and North avenues, in which were located the offices of the company, there was a sale on Monday of some of the goods claimed to be the property of the Middlekauff estate, for rent. This was a constable's sale conducted by John Manley. The goods were sold as the property of the Middlekauff estate, although there is a question as to whether they do not belong to the National Mining and Leasing Company. There was no one present to dispute the question and the goods were sold as advertised.

Sometime ago a committee from among the stock and bondholders was appointed at a meeting in this city to investigate the company's affairs, inquire into the value of the mining property, etc., reported to be owned by the company, and it is said that that committee has made a report to the stock and bondholders, but it has not yet been made public. At the meeting in this city, a sum of money was raised to conduct this investigation, and the committee was given full power to go ahead and make thorough inquiry into the affairs of the company.

One of the suits on a note which was tried before Judge Dixon, of the District court, Trenton, in which H. G. Adams, clerk of the local District court, sought to recover on a note given by Dr. VanNest, of Hopewell, was decided in favor of the plaintiff, the court holding that Dr. VanNest was liable inasmuch as he had already made two payments of $50 each on the note, which was originally for $400. When the company stopped paying dividends, Dr. VanNest refused to pay further on the note. It was turned over by a banking institution, which had discounted the note, to Mr. Adams, for collection. There are a number of similar suits to be tried within a short time.

FIGHTING LABORERS GET OFF WITH SMALL FINES.

As a result of the fight between discharged and striking hodcarriers on the new building near fire headquarters, yesterday afternoon, Luther Jackson, and George Gilbert, colored, were each fined $5, and William Harvey, also colored, $3 in the city court this morning by Judge William G. DeMeza. The men paid.

The fracas grew out of the laying off of two hodcarriers yesterday morning because some of the masons did not go to work. When the two men were laid off the others quit, but after lunch two of them went back on the job. The others stood around taunting them and finally attacked them. Gilbert alleged that Jackson after the attack sank his teeth in his. Gilbert's arm and showed the marks in court this morning to substantiate the charge. Harvey was a moving spirit in the fracas, it is said, but there was no such act charged to him this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Wood, of East Sixth street, will return tomorrow form a trip to Michigan.

MOTHER OF REV. J.Y. BROEK PASSES AWAY

Word was received by telegram last night of the death of Mrs. D. Broek, mother of Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, at her home in Grand Rapids, Michigan, Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Death occurred before Mr. Broek and his brother, Rev. Dr. A. T. Broek, of Newark, could reach her bedside. Mrs. Broek had been lingering for some time, having contracted pneumonia a year ago, which brought on heart trouble. Rev. J. Y. Broek has been called home several times of late on account of his mother's serious condition. He received another telegram Sunday night at Asbury Park, where he was preaching in exchange, stating that his mother was critically ill. With his brother and sister-in-law he started for Grand Rapids Monday morning but could not reach home in time to see his mother alive.

No details have been received of the death as yet. Mrs. Broek was the wife of a minister and the mother of two ministers and a doctor of medicine. She also had an unmarried daughter. Funeral services will be held from her late home on South Lafayette street, Grand Rapids, Friday afternoon.

A telegram of condolence was sent to Mr. Broek at Grand Rapids this morning by the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church.

GEO. HARPER, JR. DEAD FOLLOWING OPERATION

George Harper, Jr., aged 34 years, of Scotch Plains, died last night at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis on Monday afternoon. Mr. Harper was taken ill last Saturday, but his condition did not become serious until Monday, when it was decided that he had an aggravated attack of appendicitis. An operation was arranged for at once. This revealed a dangerous condition, and when the patient failed to rally from the operation doubts for his recovery were entertained.

Mr. Harper was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Harper, of Southold, L. I., who resided at Scotch Plains for many years, the elder Mr. Harper being the senior member of the old firm of Harper, Hollingsworth & Darby. Several years ago the family removed to Brooklyn. When the old firm gave up business a few years ago, Mr. Harper returned from Brooklyn and for a time conducted the business until ill-health prevented.

Later Mr. Harper was associated as a partner in the Fanwood Coal, Lumber and Realty Company, and had charge of the company's office on Park avenue, Fanwood, since it was opened in the spring. He was highly esteemed among a large circle of friends. He was a member of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, a trustee of the Baptist church. He is survived by a wife, two daughters, Adelaide and Margaret; also his parents and a brother, Joseph and sister, Miss Margaret Harper, all of Southold. The funeral services will be held at the late home at 8 o'clock. The burial will be in Greenwood.

ALBERT E. THORNTON GETS CONTRACT TO CARRY MAIL.

Postmaster Bird has received word that Albert E. Thornton, of Chatham street, was the lowest bidder for the position of carrying the mail between the postoffice and the railroad station, and he has been given the contract at a salary of $780 a year. He will have to furnish his own wagon and any assistants he may find it necessary to employ to aid him in his work.

The business of the postoffice has been increasing steadily and it has been found necessary to put another carrier on temporarily. It is the hope of the postmaster that the authorities at Washington will allow him another carrier regularly.

To Improve Park Avenue.

At an adjourned meeting of the Board of Freeholders of Middlesex county yesterday afternoon, a resolution was passed authorizing the improvement of Park avenue from the Plainfield line to Metuchen. This will be good news to the large number of automobilists of this city whose favorite route to New Brunswick it by the way of Metuchen.

Escaped from Reformatory.

Word was received by the local police yesterday afternoon from the Rahway Reformatory to be on the lookout for George Barson, who escaped from the institution yesterday morning. Last evening it was learned that the fugitive had been captured by one of the squad of attendants sent out when Barson escaped.

NEED OF ACTION

Carlton B. Pierce Shows Why Grade Crossings Should be Abolished.

THIRTY KILLED AND INJURED.

Former Assemblyman Presents Official List of Casualties in This State for the Past Six Months.

Former Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, who has inaugurated a campaign for the abolishment of grade crossings, has collected considerable data on the subject, showing the number of deaths from such cause in this State since January 1 last. Mr. Pierce said today:

"To give some idea of the need for action, the following list is submitted, of the grade crossing accidents occurring in New Jersey since the first of the year:"

January 16, Elizabeth, man killed, woman seriously injured; 20, Paterson, man killed; 24, Dover, man killed; 27, New Brunswick, two men injured, auto wrecked; February 3, Long Branch, horse killed, carriage wrecked; 13, Hoboken, man killed; March 7, Paterson, man seriously injured; 13, Palmyra, woman killed; 15, Matawan, man injured; 17, 17, South Glassboro, man injured, wagon wrecked; April 7, Perth Amboy, two men seriously injured, horse killed, wagon demolished; 17, Elizabeth, three killed, a man and two women; May 3, Elizabeth, boy killed; 5, Paterson, boy injured; 20, Paterson, two men seriously injured, auto wrecked; 24, Paterson, man seriously injured; 25, Camden, girl killed; June 5, Amboy, one killed, three seriously injured; July 6, Caldwell, two men killed, wagon wrecked; 15, Belleville, automobile wrecked; 17, Somerville, boy and horse killed; buggy demolished.

"Totaling the results, we find for the six and a half months covered, fourteen persons killed and fifteen injured, most of the latter seriously. Elizabeth alone furnishes five killed and one injured.

"The list given is taken from a statement compiled by the National Highways Protective Association, giving the record in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. For the three States named, the total of grade crossing accidents since the first of the year is ninety-five, in which forty-six men and thirteen women have been killed, sixty-one men and six women seriously injured, nine children killed or badly injured, twenty-two horses killed, and thirty-two horse-drawn vehicles and fourteen automobiles demolished.

"It is stated the association ordered the facts compiled without realization of the truth, and so surprised were the officers at the result shown, it was decided to enter at once upon a campaign to abolish crossings.

"Such an undertaking should not prove unsuccessful in New Jersey, and will not if public sentiment supports it.

"It may be conceded the difficulties are serious, the great expense, the influence of the roads, the conservative attitude heretofore maintained by the New Jersey Courts, but with the charters of the bulk of the roads imposing the duty to separate crossings, and the law clear that the State can enforce separation, it should prove possible to reach the desired result."

PERCY HENRY GIVES A CHECK SAID TO BE NO GOOD.

Percy Henry, colored, who was formerly employed as a butler by a number of Plainfield families, was arraigned in the city court before Judge William G. DeMeza, this morning on a complaint made by Moses Schloss, of the Scheuer Co. The complaint alleges that on March 5, Henry requested Mr. Schloss to cash a check for $10, which upon presentation at a local bank proved to be no good, as Henry had no account there.

Since that time Mr. Schloss says, ample opportunity has been given Henry to make good and he has promised to do so, but has thus far failed. Hence the action.

On request of the prisoner, who wants to engage counsel, Judge DeMeza put the hearing over to tomorrow morning.

Board of Directors Meet.

The Board of Directors of the Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room, held its regular meeting at the library last night. Only routine business was transacted. Those present were L. V. F. Randolph, J. Herbert Case, W. H. Larrabee, Dr. Leonard Waldo, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges and W. F. Merrill. L. V. F. Randolph, as president, was in the chair.

—Neuman Bros. will have a fine assortment of Jersey peaches for tomorrow's trade.

DECLINES TO RUN

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen Will Not Seek Re-Nomination

TALK OF HIS SUCCESSOR.

Dr. Charles Moldenke and C. C. Wheeler Mentioned for Assembly—Caucus Tonight at Somerville.

Feeling that his duties as a member of the State Board of Education will occupy all the time he can devote to his county, State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset, announced yesterday that he would not be a candidate for renomination this fall. That Senator Frelinghuysen would not seek renomination has been felt for some time, but not until yesterday did he make any formal announcement to that effect.

Prior to the announcement, the name of former Assemblyman W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, had been finding favor among the Republicans of Somerset county, and it is probable that he will be selected. The Somerset County Republican committee will meet tonight at Somerville, at which candidates for the Senate and Assembly will be discussed.

So far as the Senatorship is concerned, it is reasonably certain that Mr. Smalley will be endorsed. Regarding the Assembly candidates, two, Dr. Richard Moldenke and C. C. Wheeler, both of North Plainfield township, have been mentioned. Both are considered strong men and either would be satisfactory to the workers, it is said. Both Dr. Moldenke and Mr. Wheeler have been prominent in the political life of North Plainfield township for several years and the latter is a member of the Somerset County Republican committee. The contest between them has not been fraught with any of the characteristices usually noticeable in affairs of this kind between men seeking office, for the reason that neither of them is seeking the nomination, but would probably accept if selected by their friends.

Mr. Smalley represented Somerset county in the lower house of the Legislature four terms and his advocacy and support of popular measures made him widely known throughout the State. He was also one of the most independent members of the Legislature, which fact, it is said, prevented him from being chosen Speaker of the House.

PLAINFIELD ELKS TO VISIT BURLINGTON

The Plainfield Elks' baseball team will leave here tomorrow morning on the 11 o'clock train for Burlington, where they will lock antlers with the team from the Burlington Lodge of Elks. The aggregation will be accompanied by a number of lusty rooters, who expect to make the invasion of the Burlington glen an occasion victorious and demonstrative.

The trip last year has been a fond recollection, but for one thing—the fact that the local Elks were not victorious in the struggle for diamond supremacy. The Burlingtonites left nothing undone in a social way to recompense this lacking feature, and have promised to repeat tomorrow, win or lose. That they will make good not one of the local "Hello Bills" doubts for a minute, but the feeling that this year they will wine and dine the victors, rather than the vanquished, is paramount. The lineup will be as follows: McLoughlin, p; Torpey, c; MacNaughton, 1b; Hoyt, 2b; Evans, ss; Craig, 3b; Nolan, cf; Townley, rf; Flannery, lf.

Two Sections on Excursion.

Those, who are going on the excursion of the Sunday schools of Trinity and Netherwood Reformed churches and Marconnier chapel to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove tomorrow, should notice that the train will be in two sections, the first one stopping only at the North avenue station in the morning, while the second section will stop at Netherwood, Clinton avenue and Grant avenue. Both sections will stop at all stations in Plainfield on the return trip.

"Judiasm, the Mother of Religion."

Rev. Arthur Zinkin, of Lafayette, Ind., will deliver a lecture in Y. M. H. A. Hall, on Grove street, Friday night at 8 o'clock on the subject: "Judiasm, the Mother of Religion." Mr. Zinkin is a young man and is said to be a fluent speaker and well versed in the topic upon which he will speak. He will be introduced by Judge William Newcorn.

CAN BUILD HOUSE

Dr. F. W. Cornwell Refused Injunction Against Mrs. J.W. Johnson in Chancery Court.

CASE WAS TRIED YESTERDAY.

Defendant Can Proceed With Dwelling on Watchung Avenue, in Which Professional Offices Will Be Located.

Dr. F. W. Cornwell, of this city, was refused an injunction against Mrs. J. W. Johnson, also of this city, in the Court of Chancery at Trenton yesterday when the complaint made by the doctor against the erection of a dwelling house on the lot adjoining his property on East Seventh street and Watchung avenue, in which offices for physicions and dentists were to be located, was heard before Vice Chancellor Stevenson. The case was a peculiar one insomuch that Dr. Cornwell based his argument on the fact that professional offices in the proposed dwelling house would be a detriment to his own property. The complainant was represented by Charles M. Dolliver and the defendant's case was presented by W. A. Coddington, both of this city.

The suit was the result of a sale of the lot on East Seventh street and Watchung avenue to Mrs. Johnson last February. In the deed for the transfer, Dr. Cornwell, who was the owner of the land, had it stipulated that the property should not be used for trade or business purposes. To this proposition Mrs. Johnson quite agreed. But there was nothing stated in the deed, which forbid the practicing of a professional on the property.

Seeing that the site was a desirable location for the offices of physisians and dentists, Mrs. Johnston had plans drawn by Charles Force, an architect, so that rooms could be rented to the practitioners of these professions. The plans called for a handsome dwelling house, modern in every respect, and to cost at least $10,000. In a neighborly way, Mrs. Johnson showed the plans to Dr. Cornwell before she started to build. Dr. Cornwell objected to the erection of the house, stating that it was contrary to the wording of the deed and when Mrs. Johnson refused to accept his objections, the former owner of the property started injunction proceedings against her in the Court of Chancery.

When the case was heard yesterday, Charles M. Dolliver based his argument on the grounds that Mrs. Johnson had not stated before signing the deed her intention of erecting an office building. W. A. Coddington claimed that the practicing of professions could not be brought under the head of trade or business and also stated that the proposed house would be entirely in keeping with the surroundings. He produced an affidavit of Armstrong Mulford, of this city, who gave a deposition in the case and stated after inspecting the plans, he found that the intended building would not be a detriment to the community but would rather be a benefit and would tend to enhance the value of the adjoining property.

The case will be given a final hearing in October or November, but from the intimation of the court yesterday, Dr. Cornwell will not be granted an injunction unless he presents a much stronger case than he did on the first hearing. Mrs. Johnson is now at liberty to proceed with the building if she so desires since no restraining order was issued. It is said that she will start to build since it is doubtful whether Dr. Cornwell will be granted an injunction at the final hearing.

George Bibber Injured.

George Bibber, of Newark, was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital early this morning suffering from a scalp wound and injuries to his left leg, the result of an accident at South Plainfield. Bibber was walking from Newark to South Plairfield in search of work, and he failed to get out of the way of an approaching train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad before it struck him and bowled him down the embankment. The man's injuries are not serious.

Carlton Smith Out of Game.

Carlton Smith, the captain of the First Baptist Sunday-school boseball team and one of the best pitchers in the city league, will not be able to play Saturday afternoon with his team. Smith has been on the sick list all week and his physician has forbidden him to play ball again for two weeks. Bert Trotter will undoubtedly go on the mound for the Baptist boys.

H. K. Dumont, of 20 Washington avenue, left Saturday on the Steamship St. Paul for a business trip to Paris and Spain. He will be away five weeks.

ANOTHER HEARING ON STREET WIDENING

A special meeting of the Borough Council will be held tomorrow night in the Council chamber when another public hearing on the proposed widening of Somerset street from Jackson avenue to Johnson's drive will take place. All the objectors to the proposed widening have been invited to attend the meeting, which has been called by Mayor Newton B. Smalley, and the facts of the matter will be thoroughly explained to them.

The ordinance providing for the improvement will be brought up for its third reading before the Borough Council at its meeting Friday night. At that time final action will be taken on the ordinance. After the special meeting last Friday night, several of the objectors went away without clearly understanding what the borough proposed doing in the widening. In order to satisfy everyone before the Council proceeds in the matter, Mayor Smalley thought it best to explain the situation.

The meeting was originally called for tonight but on account of the Somerset county Republican caucus at Somerville, which occurs at the same time, the Borough Council postponed its special sitting until tomorrow night. It is expected that a large number of the objectors will again come out to present their side of the story to the borough fathers, while many of those who are in favor of the improvement have signified their intention of attending the meeting.

It is rumored that the question of sewers in North Plainfield is still in the air and that no action will be taken on the matter Friday night. The councilmen held a secret session with the sewer committee shortly after Governor Wilson vetoed Bill No. 301, but nothing has been learned as to their decision on the subject. According to Mayor Smalley, the public will be informed on the sewer question Friday night.

WILLIAM LUCKE FINED FOR CARELESS DRIVING.

William Lucke, colored, of New Brunswick, a coachman for Dr. Long, of that city, was araigned before Recorder Charles M. Dolliver, in the borough court this morning, charged with reckless driving. He was fined $5, which was paid by Dr. Long under protest.

Lucke was driving a horse and runabout on Watchung avenue yesterday morning when he ran down George Ralph, of Somerset street, severely injuring him as was stated exclusively in yesterday's Daily Press. In the court this morning the defendant claimed that young Ralph was at fault but his story was without weight before the testimony of Joseph Dunlap, of this city, and Jas. E. Reilly, of the borough, who were witnesses of the affair.

Promised to Be Good.

James McClaine, of Westfield, was arrested last night in an intoxicated condition and when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza this morning in the city court, promised that if allowed to go he would not misbehave in Plainfield again. His honor gave him a chance to make good.

TAKES HIS LIFE

Edmund W. Pack, Well-Known Citizen, Commits Suicide by Shooting.

IN PLAINFIELD AVE. CEMETERY.

Had Been Despondent Since Death of Father and Wife—Body Found in Family Plot.

Distracted, morose and driven to desperation by his lonliness since the death of his wife, a year ago last June, Edmund W. Pack, sixty-two years old, a native and lifelong resident of this city, committed suicide in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery yesterday afternoon at five o'clock by shooting himself. The body was discovered within a few feet of the grave of his wife and father, with a 32 caliber revolver bullet hole about an inch above the right temple. The revolver was found under the body and had been snapped twice, the first time the trigger was pulled failing to discharge the cartridge.

The only eye witness to the shooting was Cornelius Scruple, a laborer, employed on a new house at Plainfield avenue and West Fifth street. He was working alone on the building at the time and hearing the shot, looked in the direction of the report in time to see Mr. Pack fall. Unable to speak English, Scruple had difficulty in making Joseph Parsons, a colored hackman, who came along a moment later, understand, but finally by gestures and pointing he made clear what he had seen. Parsons drove to the home of Patrolman O'Keefe nearby and together they returned to the scene of the shooting.

Patrolman O'Keefe notified police headquarters at once and word was sent to City Physician Lufburrow, who upon examination pronounced Mr. Pack dead. A search of his clothing revealed a watch and a postal card, received July 31, from Lake Hopatcong. The card was signed John Jr.,' and had written on it, "Dear Uncle:—It is very pretty up here. The lake looks beautiful and am fine." The "John Jr." is John H. VanWinkle, Jr., of Duer street, a nephew of the deceased, who was spending his vacation at the lake. County Physician Westcott was notified and permitted the removal of the body to A. M. Runyon's undertaking establishment, where he later viewed it and issued a burial permit.

Mr. Pack's deed has not occasioned surprise among his friends, since the facts became known. He has been making daily trips to the grave of his wife and father since last March when he severed his connection with R. W. Barnes, the grocer, by whom he was employed at the former's store on Park avenue. Since that time he had been boarding at the home of John Rowland, 303 East Fifth street and occasionally he would be quite cherful and it was hoped that time was softening the severe shock he felt in the loss of his wife. At other times he refused to be consoled, was moody and depressed. This condition always brought on an aggravated case of nervousness that caused his friends alarm, but they thought the attacks were growing less frequent.

He left home yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock and said to Mrs. Rowland, when going out, that he would shortly return. He was not in depressed spirits at the time. He went to Cleveley's restaurant and spoke to the proprietor a few minutes, after making a purchase. Leaving the restaurant he went to the office of Dr. Thomas D. Blair, on Park avenue, to have a scratch on his hand dressed. After leaving the doctor's office he must have bought the revolver, for it was not known at his boarding house that he ever owned one.

After securing the revolver he must have gone directly to the cemetery for except in passing he was not seen until found dead. No one noticed him particularly as he went into the cemetery and, even if they had, it would not have caused unusual comment, for he had been seen there a great deal of late, and knowing the cause of his visits this would not have aroused any suspicion.

Mr. Pack's nephew, John H. Van Winkle, Jr., is the nearest relative surviving, although he has a number of cousins, among them being Mrs. T. O. Doane, of West Fifth street; Miss Elizabeth Keithler, of Elizabeth; Mrs. Mark Baumgartner, and Mrs. Freeman, of Rahway and Miss Louise Prall, of Philadelphia. Mr. Pack's father died September 14, 1909, and his wife passed away on June 16 of last year. In March he sold the building on Park avenue, where R. W. Barnes conducted a grocery store. H. L. Viebrock bought the building and resides there at present, also conducting the business. Notice of funeral will be given later.

K. OF C. IN NATIONAL SESSION AT DETROIT.

Detroit, Aug. 2.—Thousands of Knights of Columbus from all parts of North America have arrived in Detroit to attend the national convention of the order, which began a three days' session Monday. After the celebration of pontifical high mass, at which Rt. Rev. Edward D. Kelly, auxiliary bishop of Detroit, officiated, Mayor Thompson extended a welcome to the delegates assembled in the auditorium of the Knights of Columbus House on Edward avenue.

Hundreds of wives and daughters of the visiting knights have accompanied the delegates. An extensive program of receptions, automobile rides and river excursions has been arranged for their entertainment.

It is probable the convention will take some official action relative to the dedication of the statue of Columbus, which will be unveiled in Washington next May, as efforts are being made to bring together on that occasion the largest assemblage of members in the history of the order. The membership of the Knights of Columbus is more than 230,000.

ALLIANCE HEAD IS A DOVER MAN.

Elizabeth, Aug. 2.—With the election of new officers for the coming year, the thirty-fourth annual convention of the supreme council of St. Patrick's Alliance of America was adjourned late Monday afternoon. The principal contest was for the presidency, with representatives of Newark and Dover in this State the contestants.

John F. Kerwick, of Dover, was the successful contestant, defeating Joseph Dolan, of Newark.

Paterson was chosen as the place for holding the next annual gathering. That of Monday was reported as the largest and most successful that the order has held in its history.

During the session in the afternoon Mayor Alfred A. Stein, of Elizabeth, delivered an address before the convention in which he extended the delegates the courtesies of the city.

Following the adjournment, a large number of the delegates were the guests of General Denis F. Collins.

Resolutions were introduced into the Texas Legislature for the closing of saloons from 7 p. m. until 6 a. m., a ten-mile law and a quart law.

Contracts for another section of the Lexington avenue subway, in New York, were let, although notice of a suit to block construction was filed.

Prominent Cubans in New York city, said the threatened revolution on the island would probably reach large proportions because of the official graft scandals.

John Kenlon was appointed Chief of the New York Fire Department and several other members of the force were promoted.

Witnesses in the steel inquiry said the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, which the Steel Corporation bought for $29,000,000, owned coal and ore deposits that were worth $200,000,000 on a royalty basis.

After robbing and shooting the proprietor of a jewelry shop in upper Madison avenue, New York, the thief escaped the pursuing crowds and got away over the roof of an apartment house while the police were searching for him.

By means of a drill shaft rescuers reached Jospeh Clary, who was imprisoned in a mine near Joplin, Mo., by a cave-in on Sunday; Clary signalled that he was well; food and water were let down through the new drill shaft, and it was believed the imprisoned man would be taken out today by a larger shaft that was being dug.

ROSELLE PARK BOY MISSING.

Roselle Park, Aug. 2.—The police have been trying for several days to locate David O'Connell, Jr., fourteen year old, son of Mr. and Mrs. David O'Connell, of 34 William street, who left his home last Tuesday morning with the intention of going swimming. He was last seen near the Central Railroad station Tuesday noon.

A general alarm has been sent out for the boy. When he left home he carried his bathing suit with him and had but a few pennies in his pockets. Boys who usually went swimming with him say that he was not at the usual swimming hole in the Cranford River that afternoon. His parents are almost distracted.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEET TO PAY BILLS

Owing to the fact that three members of the Board of Education, Floyd T. Woodhull, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges and James F. Buckle, were in town, a meeting of that body was held this morning, instead of waiting until the regularly-appointed time, August 7. There was very little business outside of routine, the meeting being held more especially to pay some bills.

The collector's report showed collections amounting to $2,595.51 for July, and the present balance to the credit of the board in the hands of the custodian of school money is $8,284.91. Bills amounting to $2,500 were ordered paid and the finance committee was authorized to borrow $2,000 to meet current bills. Unless something special should occur the board will not meet again until the first of September.

Observed "Woman's Day."

"Woman's Day," was observed at the Shiloh Baptist church, Sunday, the services all being well attended. In the morning there was a sermon by Rev S. Carwell and the pastor, Rev. E. W. BEACHES BOAT TO SAVE LIVES.

Trenton, Aug. 2.—Striking a submerged anchor, which tore a huge hole in her bottom, the steamboat Burlington, one of the oldest excursion vessels plying on the Delaware River, was saved from going down in midstream with nearly 200 passengers and crew, three miles south of Trenton Monday night, by the quick action of Captain John Gray, who beached her in five feet of water.

The passengers, among them a number of women and children, were transferred in safety to a tugboat that answered the stricken Burlington's distress signals, and were taken to Trenton. The crew remained on board and transferred the freight to the Twilight, a sister ship of the Burlington.

It was almost 6 o'clock when the Burlington, bound from Philadelphia to Trenton, hit the obstruction. The vessel quivered, and at the same moment water began to pour into the jagged hole stove in its bottom.

The news spread quickly among the passengers, and there was a rush for the boats. Captain Gray and his crew assured them there was no danger, and in a few minutes the passengers' fears were calmed.

Reports from the engine-room convinced Captain Gray that the steamboat could not make port in its crippled condition and he ordered it beached.

DISCUSS SIGNS FOR RAILROAD CROSSINGS

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 2.—Many representatives of automobile associations met at the Capitol yesterday for the purpose of discussing a uniform system for direction and precautionary road signals and the best kind of sign to be placed near railroad crossings. They also discussed signs for dead ends on roads and those to be placed at curves and straight road crossings.

There have been so many accidents in various parts of the State and in other States from trains that officials of the numerous automobile associations called a meeting for yesterday to try to adopt some plan whereby automobile drivers would have sufficient warning when they were approaching a railroad crossing, and whether the train approached the crossing from a curve or straight.

LLOYD THOMPSON RECEIVES PRAISE

Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, who appears to be the logical candidate to succeed State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, is being favorably commented upon by the newspapers of the county, as well as individuals. Mr. Thompson seems to be particularly strong in the Senatorial race, although he has a worthy opponent in former Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford. The political pot is beginning to boil, and before a great while the issues will be clearly defined and the Republicans will have something definite to work upon.

"In conformity with our advice to the people of Westfield to pick the man for the position and not the party, there is one candidate for a State office, who is not new and whom the Leader has heretofore always supported with the confident prediction that he would make good. Although the field is strong with good candidates, both Republican and Democratic, we feel that Assemblyman Thompson has fulfilled expectations in every respect and has looked out for the interests of the community which he represents even before and above his consideration for his party. He has been a good servant of the people, and we should be inconsistent with our own declared policy of supporting the tried and and true in public life if we did not now endorse our townsman, Mr. Thompson, as worthy of the high office of Senator, which endorsement we again give him.

THIRD BLAZE CLOSE TO PEAPACK CAUSES ALARM.

Peapack, Aug. 2.—Fire Monday destroyed the barns and outbuildings of Frederick McMurtry, located about one mile from the town. The cause of the blaze has not been ascertained.

The local firemen could do nothing excepting to save the dwelling and some smaller outbuildings. This makes the third mysterious fire in a short time, as Saturday evening the coach barn on the estate of Percy Pyne, together with the contents, were completely destroyed, and Sunday evening a large building on the same estate, occupied as servants' quarters, was also destroyed.

The townspeople are alarmed at the frequency of these mysterious fires. The loss last evening on the McMurtry estate will aggregate propably $8,000 to $10,000; partly insured.

Judge William Newcorn, of the District Court of this city, will be among the invited guests at a luncheon given by Governor Wilson at the executive cottage at Sea Girt tomorrow. This luncheon and reception is for the county officials including the District Court Judges, Surrogates, County Clerks and members of the various boards and commissions.

Glass Front for Market.

The owners of the City Market property have decided to improve the East Second street entrance with an attractive glass front. Work will be started at once and rushed toward completion. Other changes are planned for the market within the near future.

SEEKS TO RECOVER ON FORECLOSED MORTGAGE

A bill to recover on some property purchased from Miss McVey, formerly owned by J. H. McVey, her father, by M. Kapelsohn, was filed today in the Court of Chancery. It is alleged that at the time the property was purchased, Mr. Kapelsohn did so with the understanding that a mortgage on the property had two more years to run.

As a matter of fact it is alleged that foreclosure proceedings had already been instituted and were overlooked by Mr. Kapelsohn's lawyer when the search was made. The mortgage was foreclosed and now Mr. Kapelshon is bringing action to recover the loss thus sustained.

GEORGE L. MARION TO BE HANGED SEPT. 28

District Attorney Valentine, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., has fixed the date for the hanging of George L. Marion, who shot his wife in Wilkesbarre, two years ago, after he had followed her from this city. He will be hanged on September 28 in the county jail at Wilkesbarre.

Marion was a theatrical man in New York city and came to this city two years ago to rehearse "The Gay Hussars" at the Plainfield theatre. While here he found that his wife, who was Frances Lee Brooks, was going with another man. When she knew that her husband had discovered her, Miss Brooks immediately fled to Wilkesbarre. Marion followed her on the next train.

After searching for his wife in Wilkes-Barre for some time, Marion traced her to police headquarters there and under pretense of effecting a reconciliation with her, he met her in the office of the chief of police. When they were left alone in the room, Marion shot her twice, killing her instantly. At his trial he pleaded emotional insanity. A final appeal will be made to the Board of Pardons in an effect to save his life.

JUDGE SULLIVAN WANTS TO BE MAYOR

Judge Mark A. Sullivan, of Jersey City, has sent his resignation as s lay judge of the New Jersey Court of Errors and Appeals to Governor Wilson, and as soon as it is accepted he will announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Mayor of Jersey City.

For some time it has been expected that Judge Sullivan would resign. He has been urged as a candidate by the Democratic organization, which acknowledges that it has on its hands a big fight to defeat Mayor H. Otto Wittpen, who seeks a re-election. With Judge Sullivan in the field, there will be four candidates for the Democratic nomination. The organization, under the direction of the so called big five, the successors of the late Robert Davis, promises that the campaign will be the livelist Jersey City ever has seen.

BOARD OF ASSESSORS' WORK IS COMPLETED

The local Board of Assessors are turning in their books this week to the Union County Board of Taxation, having completed their work of assessment. In a few instances the amounts have not been totaled up in the wards and all the figures will not be known before the last of the week. Clarence B. LaRue in the First ward reported today a total valuation of $5,071,305.00 for his ward, a substantial increase over that of last year. Last year's total valuation for the city was $24,206.41, and it is believed that there will be a large increase this year over those figures.

There has been considerable talk as to the tax rate for next year, but nothing definite can be known until all the books are turned in and the county figures are known. A conservative opinion has it that the rate will be about $1.70 or a trifle more. The rate last year was $1.65.

Asa F. Randolph, of the Second ward is now finishing up his work and will turn in his books tomorrow, and the others will follow closely.

REORGANIZE GUARD MEDICAL STAFF

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, Aug. 2.—Aside from the regular drills yesterday was a quiet day in the camp of the National Guard, and the men of the First and Fifth Regiments were steadily at work with their drills. Even at the Governor's cottage it was dull, for Governor Wilson made his weekly visit to Trenton, and his secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, was with him. The Governor has taken to golf as an outdoor exercise, and has been on the links of the Spring Lake Club several times since coming to Sea Girt.

One of the most important steps ever taken with the New Jersey guard will be consummated probably before the camp closes and surely before another year rolls around. This will be the establishment of the medical department as an entirely separate organization, instead of having the men and officers connected directly with the various regiments, troops and other organizations. Lieutenant Colonel Henry Allers, assistant surgeon general on the staff of General P. Farmer Wanser, has the actual arrangements in charge, assisted by Majors Paul M. Mecray, of the Second brigade, and J. Talmage Wyckoff, of the First brigade. To equip the new department which will be formed just as soon as the arrangements are complete, a full field outfit for a hospital has been procured from the government at a cost of nearly $7,500. The department will be run absolutely independent of the other organizations in the guard and surgeons will be furnished to the various commands by detail, as is the case in the regular army.

Rifle practice for the First and Second battalions of the First regiment was in progress on the rifle range all day yesterday. The strength of the regiment is 640, while that of the Fifth regiment is 620.

TAKE TESTIMONY IN FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY MATTER.

Testimony in the suit over the settlement of the fire insurance loss on the cottage burned last March on the Underhill farm in Washington Valley, was taken in Judge William Newcorn's office this morning, the latter acting as referee. The Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company held a policy on the cottage and there was a clause in the policy regarding the place insured being occupied. At the time of the fire it was unoccupied and the insurance company claims that a notice was sent to the agent of the company here stating that the clause nullifying the vacancy clause was recalled.

Mr. Underhill asserts that he was never informed that the policy was nullified if the house was not occupied. The purpose of the hearing was to get on record Mr. Underhill's assertion. S. S. Swackhamer was counsel for Mr. Underhill and the representative of the insurance company from the New York office handled the company's questioning.

DENOUNCES EFFORTS TO CHANGE OCEAN GROVE.

Ocean Grove, Aug. 2.—Those who are trying to break down the association form of government which has been in existence since the place was founded forty-two years ago were denounced at the founders' day exercises held Monday afternoon.

The speaker was Rev. Dr. Aaron E. Ballard, president of the Camp-meeting Association. He said that there were two evils which the resort had to contend with, and they were the boroughites and the liquor traffic. Concerning the former, he said:

"The boroughites — those who would break down our religious influence—are secessionists. These men have recently been trying to obtain a charter from the Legislature that would make Ocean Grove an incorporated place after they have taken a pledge to abide by our rules.

"This thing has been devilish. It has been one of our greatest difficulties lately and it is so unreasonable, because it is so misguided. You hear the secessionists say that if Ocean Grove were a borough they would get the benefit of the taxes they now pay. True, they would get a part of the taxes to spend on the street, but they would have to pay our association for the streets that are already here, and which the association built."

Speaking on the liquor question, Dr. Ballard said that most of the opposition to the work of the corporation was due to the concentrated liquor interests in New Jersey.

Another matter which Dr. Ballard touched upon was the picture shows, which have recently become an important part of the social and commercial life of Ocean Grove.

"I am now appointing one of the leading women of the township," Dr. Ballard said, "to act as a censor of all the films shown here the rest of the season. She will assume her duties next week."

BEATEN, AGED MAN IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION.

Glen Gardner, Aug. 2.—James Brown, atout seventy years old, of this place, is in a precarious condition at his home, as the result of a beating by Charles Congie Monday afternoon. Brown and Congie had been employed at the New Jersey Sanitarium for Tuberculous Diseases.

Congie, it is said, lost his place Saturday. Monday he was working on his lot when Brown passed along the street, and the men got into an altercation.

It is said Congie threw a stone at Brown, striking him beside the head, knocking him down. It is alleged that Congie then jumped on him and pounded him with his fist. Brown went to his home nearby, and Dr. Edgar Hunt was summoned. The doctor says that Mr. Brown is in a dangerous condition and may die from the result of the beating. The stone struck within a quarter of an inch of the temple and the wound is serious.

TO FIGHT SUNDAY OPENING.

Long Branch, Aug. 2.—Effective work, without the blowing of trumpets, has been done by the Men's Civic Federation toward creating a better sentiment for the observance of the Sabbath day in Long Branch. The W. C. T. U. is interested, and several union meetings have been held in the interest of morality and good government.

A meeting is set for Thursday evening next, when Rev. Dr. J. G. Lovell, president of the federation, and Rev. T. B. Hughes, of the First Baptist church, will speak. The federation does not intend to quit fighting the open Sunday movement. It has counsel to represent them and arrests are likely to follow.

Recovers for Goods He Didn't Get.

Rockaway, August. 2.—Through his attorney James H. Botlitho, of Rockaway, Theodore Anderson, of Dover, has recovered from the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company the greater portion of a sum of money paid a year ago to the Murphy Manufacturing Company, of South Norwalk, Conn., for goods and advertising watter with which to start a mail order business. All he ever got for his money was a bundle of catalogues. It was found that the goods had been left at the railroad office, not properly marked, and were later returned to the Murphy company.

City Sues for Fifty Cents.

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 2.—The territory of New Mexico and the city of Santa Fe Monday "went to law" over fifty cents, the fee the city claims from the territory for issuing a building permit for a garage on the grounds of the Executive mansion. The territorial officials say that fee is in the nature of a tax from which they claim exemption and secured a temporary injunction restraining the city from collecting the fee. Final hearing in the matter will come before the court August 10.

Child Dies from Burns.

High Bridge, Aug. 2.—From burns it received in lighting a match, the eighteen-month-old child of John Lorenski, died. The child was playing with a match found on the floor. Its dress took fire and before the mother could extinguish the flames the child had been fatally burned.

The Burglar's Umbrella.

Among a collection of articles used by burglars when engaged in their nefarious calling is one particular contrivance that arouses great interest. In appearance it resembles a large umbrella that has seen hard service. It was formerly the property of a burglar, and it was by its means that he was able to enter the second story of a building. Removing the cover, a stick wound with ropes is revealed. The stick opens like a telescope or a jointed fishing rod. Wound round it is a rope ladder made of strong material and about thirteen feet in length. The ladder is only wide enough for one foot to be placed on the rungs. The extending stick was used to raise one end of the ladder to the window through which the operator wished to enter, and on the upper end of the ladder are two hooks to be fastened to the sill. This imitation umbrella is regarded as one of the most ingenious affairs ever made use of by a thief.—London Standard.

Took the Shilling.

A recruiting sergeant one day met an ignorant youth idling, with his hands in his pockets and standing before a house on the front of which was a notice informing the public that the building was to be sold. The notice ran thus: "To Be Sold by Private Treaty."

The sergeant approached the youth and asked him if he had ever thought of joining the army.

"Not me," was the reply. "You'd have nothing in the army worth talking about."

"Is that so?" said the other. "Well, how is it then Private Treaty has a house for sale and him only a private yet?"

The youth looked thoughtful and puzzled, and presently, over a pint of ale, the possibility of owning a house by joining the army grew into a certainty and the shilling changed hands.—London Tit-Bits.

Wonderful Animalculae.

Of all the minute creatures that inhabit this globe unseen by the naked eye there is none so astonishing, according to the Scientific American, as the little living things that live in stagnant water. They are called slipper animalculae, or, as the scientist has it, the paramecium. These tiny, invisible things develop so rapidly that if they were able to live through 350 generations they would crowd every other living thing off the face of the earth and form a mass larger than the planet itself. Should they go on reproducing until the nine hundredth generation these little creatures would form a mass large enough to crowd the moon and stars and even the sun entirely out of space. Luckily for us this is not possible, according to nature's decree. The paramecium dies after it has attained the one hundred and seventieth generation, and so the awful possibilities are checked of its multiplying to fill the universe.

The Medicine Bottle.

In order to avert the most serious thing of having a child take the wrong medicine, mothers should adhere to the following rules:

Never give medicine in the dark.

Always read the label on the bottle.

When the bottle is refilled see that the label reads clear.

Keep poisons locked up.

Keep all bottles locked up in a drawer or medicine chest.

Mistakes of giving children carbolic acid and such like poisons in the nighttime make it imperative that mothers study and adhere to these rules, for sometimes such inadvertent mistakes bring about terrible conclusions.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

In an English Hotel.

Proprietor (addressing porter)—Was the American pleased with his room, William?

William—Now, I wouldn't hexactly s'y that, sir. 'E looked as if there might be something that wasn't just to 'is liking, but I gathered from 'is remarks that 'e found it hunusually comfortable.

Proprietor—Well, what did he say about it?

William—'E said it was cowlder than 'ell, sir.—Judge.

A Wiseacre.

Tommy—What is an acre, dad?

"Four roods."

"What is a rood, dad?"

"Forty square rods, poles or perches."

"What is a wiseacre, dad?"

"One who keeps a spare rod, pole or perch to apply to a boy who asks useless questions. Fetch me my cane!"—London Answers.

Off the Line.

"What became of Buts' educated goat?"

"He had to dispose of it."

"What was the trouble?"

"The neighbors thought the goat was learning too many human accomplishments, and there was a crisis when the animal began to take in washing."—Augusta Herald.

Evidence.

"Was your husband a bear in Wall street?"

"I think so," replied young Mrs. Torkins. "He certainly acted like one when he got home."—Washington Star.

A Young Cynic.

Tom—They say that every woman is beautiful in some one's eyes. Do you believe it? Jack—Certainly, if you include her own.—Boston Transcript.

I was all crippled up and I knew perfectly well that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble. A neighbor recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me and on her suggestion, I used them. They gave me almost immediate relief and three boxes changed me from a chronic sufferer to a healthy woman. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally when a cold settles on my kidneys and they act as a preventive of any serious recurrence of my former troubles. Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 6, 1911.

The book of Job has been called a philosophical discussion of the problem of human suffering. The discussion revolves around the life of a real historic character, but undoubtedly the purpose is didactic and not simply the recording of historical facts. It is clearly intended to deal with moral and religious problems and their solution—the problems of prosperity and adversity, the suffering of the righteous, the extent of God's interest in man, the possibility of a future life, the ability of man to know God—great and interesting problems and wisely discussed, and yet after all is said and done the conclusion as summed up in the words of Elihu seems to be that it is impossible for man "by searching to find out God." God's ways are not our ways. He "moves in a mysterious way, His wonders to perform," and we must trust Him regardless of the fact that we cannot always understand the purposes of His dealings with us.

The life of Job, however, still teaches many comforting and helpful lessons. Let us note the following:

1. The faithfulness of Job under testing. The first question discussed is that of the possibility of disinterested goodness. Satan raises the question when he asks, "Does Job serve God for naught?" To prove that a man may love Him and delight in His service God puts Job to severe tests. He is tried and tested in every possible way. He suffers great misfortunes, deep bereavements, personal affliction, his wife mocks him, his friends misunderstand him. Yet he remains faithful to God. Job stood the test and thus demonstrated the possibility of disinterested righteousness. Such righteousness is the more possible today through the possession of the Spirit and the example of Christ, who was "tried in all points as we are, yet without sin." Through love to God we should serve Him regardless of the fact that it may seem to cost us sacrifice and suffering. If tested let us, like Job, still remain faithful and true to God. "Though He slay me, yet will I trust Him."

2. The purpose of God in the suffering of the righteous. Why do the righteous suffer? Why did Job suffer? His friends declared that his sufferings were proof of the fact that he was not righteous. They took the usual position of the ancient Jews that temporal prosperity is an evidence of righteousness, while temporal adversity is a sure proof of unrighteousness. But Job knew that this was not true, that he was not afflicted because of his sins, yet he is almost driven to despair and comes near to the point of questioning the justice of God, as countless others have done under similar circumstances. The final answer given is that "God sends calamities on good men by way of chastisement, not of punishment; in love, not in anger; to purify and strengthen them, to purge out faults, 'to save from the pit.'" This is undoubtedly the teaching of the book of Job upon this question, and it accords with that of the entire word of God upon the same subject, and through his afflictions Job is made to see that it is not because of personal righteousness, but through the mercy of God, that the greatest blessings are to be obtained and the truest fellowship with God enjoyed.

It was through repentance and complete submission to the will of God that he came into his greatest prosperity. When he humbled himself, "abhorred himself" and "repented in sackcloth and ashes" God exalted him. God's purposes toward His children are always good. "Whom the Lord loveth, He chasteneth"—"chasteneth," not punishes. True, we cannot always understand. Why should we try? Can the child understand the purposes of its parent in discipline? But can it doubt that they are good? Let us trust Him and not seek to understand Him.

Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust Him for His grace.
Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face.

3. The problem of the future life. This question is raised in connection with the life of Job. "If a man die, shall he live again?" is asked, and in one passage at least Job answers clearly, definitely and with evident assurance, "I know that my Redeemer liveth * * * and after my skin has been destroyed in my flesh shall I see God." Like a gleam of sunlight between dark clouds comes the expression of deep conviction on the part of the ancient patriarch concerning the future. And what was a personal conviction with Job, Christ has demonstrated to be a certainty. God does care for His own.

Five Pointers to Remember.

A traveling man, attracted to a Christian Endeavor society years ago because he saw an invitation to the meeting hanging in his hotel, advanced the following points as essential to successful effort: 1. Talk it up. 2. Work it up. 3. Live it up. 4. Pay it up. 5. Pray it up.

"Snack fur these two uns," said her father.

Souri departed, and presently returned with a bundle containing cold eatables.

"Now, Jakey," said his father as they all stood at the front gate before the departure of the two travelers, "remember yer a Unioner 'n treat the stranger f'ar."

"Oh, I ain' no slouch, 'f I am little," replied the boy, with a shrug and a scowl, indicating that he regarded the injunction entirely uncalled for.

"'N, Jakey," called his mother, "don't yer go 'n sleep out nights 'n git th' ager."

"Never yer mind, maw. I ain't goen ter git no ager."

They passed out of the clearing, and were about entering the wood into which the road took them when they heard a step behind them. Turning, there was Souri.

"GOODBY, MY LITTLE GIRL," SAID MARK.

"How long d' y' 'low y' mought be gone down thar?" she asked.

Mark looked into her face, and she lowered her eyes.

"Why do you want to know, Souri?"

"Waal, maw, she'll 'worrit 'bout Jakey."

"I can't tell you."

"How fur y' goen?"

"To Chattanooga. Perhaps farther, but not likely."

"What'll th' do t' y' ef they ketch y'?"

"They'll probably lift me off my feet with a hemp cord."

"They won't, will they? Don't talk that a-way."

She looked at him with her black eyes and shivered.

"I guess I can get through all right," said Mark reassuringly. "I've done it before."

The girl stood for a few moments irresolute. Then she drew a red silk handkerchief from her bosom and handed it to Mark. It was the only bit of finery she possessed.

"What is that for, Souri?" asked Mark, affected in spite of himself.

"Waal, ef I don't see y' no more, y' mought keep et ter—ter— Mebby ef y' git inter trouble y' mought find a chance ter send it ter me—Jakey mought tote it—'n I'll go down '—'n"—She turned away. It was evident she could not clearly express her meaning, and her voice was getting husky.

"Goodby, my little girl," said Mark, going up to her and taking her hand. "I have a notion that if it is necessary to the Union cause for my life to be saved again you will be on hand to save it."

Then the girl went back to the house, and the travelers went on their way.

"Jakey," asked Mark, "can your sister read writing?"

"Reckon not."

"Can you?"

"Can I sing like a bird?"

"Do you mean that you can or you can't?"

"I can't."

"Well, your sister is a good girl, and a smart girl, and a courageous girl. She has saved me once, and if I get into trouble I would rather have her near by than a sergeant and ten men."

"Reckon she giv' y' th' haashicuf ter send instead o' writen."

Mark looked down into the stupid face of the boy beside him. He began to think that the child's stupidity was not flattering to himself, inasmuch as Jakey had penetrated further than he had into Souri's design, and her diffidence as to confessing her ignorance.

"I hope there'll be no necessity for that, Jakey. But we must arrange what we shall pass for in Dixie. Now do you know what you are?"

"I'm y'r little brother."

"Exactly. And what are we going to Chattanooga for? What shall we tell 'em?"

"Goen ter buy calliker fur maw n' Souri, 'n galluses fur paw, 'n terbacker fur you uns, 'n a squirrel gun fur me."

When he came to the squirrel gun his little eyes glistened under the rim of his hat.

"By George!" exclaimed Mark, laughing. "You ought to be 'Old Pap's' chief scout instead of me."

"'S thet what y' air?"

"I am just now."

"Golly!"

CHAPTER III.

A CONFEDERATE HOUSEHOLD.

MARK and Jakey trudged on. They met no one on the way, but at one part of the road running through a thick wood they saw a light in the distance to the right in the thickest part. They halted for a moment and then advanced cautiously. Coming to a place where they could get a view of what the light revealed, they saw several men in "butternut," whose horses were picketed near by, lying around the embers of a fire.

"Guerrillas," quoth Mark.

Not caring to disturb these villains, who had no more respect for Confederates than Unionists, they passed on stealthily.

About midnight they came to a rivulet, and Mark concluded to bivouac there. They turned in among the trees beside the road.

"Jakey," said Mark, "before we go a step farther, or do anything, in fact, we must fix this money."

He pulled his roll of bills from his pocket.

"Take off your boot," he said.

Jakey pulled off his boot and handed it to his companion. Mark took a number of bills, and ripping out the lining of the boot put it back in its place with the bills under it. Smoothing it down, he handed the boot back to Jakey and told him to put it on again.

They took a bite of the snack Souri had prepared for them and drank from the rivulet. Then they laid down, resting their heads against the root of a tree. It was not long before Jakey was asleep, and Mark drew his head over toward himself and laid it against his own breast. Thus the two rested. Mark slept at intervals; Jakey with all the soundness of healthy, irresponsible boyhood.

At the first sign of dawn Mark waked Jakey, and after they had both thrown the refreshing water of the rivulet over their heads they started in search of a house, at which they designed to "happen in" at breakfast time. Fortunately they soon found such a place. Turning into the gate at the first farmhouse, a farmer's wife received them kindly and gave them what for that time and country was a palatable meal.

Refreshed by their breakfast, they walked on. Various people—countrymen, negroes, Confederate soldiers and occasionally a squadron of cavalry—passed them on the road, but they were not questioned or interfered with by any one.

About sunset they reached a large place set back off to the left of the road. The premises were more imposing than any they had yet passed, and they judged by it that they were in the environs of Chattanooga. The house was a large, square, old fashioned building, with a very high basement. In the rear were the negro quarters and the barn.

Mark determined to ask for food and shelter for the night here. Turning into the gate, he followed a straight road leading for perhaps a hundred yards to the house. A young girl robed in a white muslin dress of a very simple pattern, and a pink sash, stood on the veranda watching them as they came on. When they reached the steps leading up to where she stood, Mark saw a pair of black eyes looking at him, which, conscious of the deception he was about to practice, seemed to read him through and through. Indeed he was sufficiently confused to take off his hat to the girl with all the grace and manner of a polished gentleman.

"If you please, ma'am," he said, assuming the dialect of a countryman, "me 'n my leetle brother's goen ter Chattenoogy. My brother, he's walked a right smart show for sech a younker. Could y' give us some supper and a place ter sleep all night?"

"You can come up here and sit down, and I'll see."

"What a musical voice," thought Mark.

The travelers went up onto the veranda and sabon some wooden benches ranged along the rail.

"Have you come far?" asked the girl, who regarded them with evident curiosity.

"From our leetle farm on the Sequatchie."

"Your brother does look tired. Are you hungry, little boy?"

"Is it a-gitten dark?"

"Why, yes," she said, surprised. "What has that to do with it?"

"I'm hungry jest as sarun," and Jakey's little eyes glistened at the thought of a hot supper.

The young lady laughed and went into the house.

"Mamma, there's a young countryman and his little brother out on the gallery. They want some supper and a bed for the night."

An elderly lady, with two white puff curls on either side of her face, looked up from a book she was reading. Her appearance was dignified and refined.

"The young man looks quite like a gentleman, if he is a countryman," added the daughter.

"We must be very cautious, Laura; you know how we are situated; your father and brother away and no man in the house, we can't let strangers sleep here. But they may have something to eat, and perhaps it might do to let them sleep in the barn if they look right."

"Where shall they have their supper?"

"Have it put on the hall table down stairs."

The daughter paused a moment and thought.

"Do you know, mamma, I can't exactly feel satisfied to put the elder brother in a place given up to the servants."

"What nonsense, Laura! We are taking a great risk to let them into the house at all. Heaven grant that the horses are not all taken before morning. The man may be in league with a band of guerrillas, for all we know."

The daughter withdrew, for the moment quite impressed with her mother's prudence. As she stepped out on the veranda Mark rose respectfully and stood looking into her black eyes with his blue ones. Her mother's caution fled away before that honest countenance.

"You can have some supper," she said, "if you care to eat it in the lower hall, and you can sleep—you—you can sleep"—

Mark was bowing his thanks.

"Would you mind sleeping in"— She paused again.

"The barn? Certainly not."

"You know these are troublous times," she said apologetically, "and we are alone. I mean we haven't many men in the house," she quickly added, conscious of having made known the household's weakness to a stranger.

Mark smiled. The young lady was looking at him as he did so, and she thought he had a very charming smile.

"We will sleep anywhere you choose to put us. Leastaways we ain't purticular."

The first sentence was spoken in his natural way; the second in dialect. Mark's manner of speaking to her was singularly mixed.

"I suppose your men are fighting our battles," he remarked to relieve an awkward cause.

"Papa is away."

"Have you no brothers?"

"Yes, one; he is fighting for the Confederacy."

"And your father—is he at the war?"

"No; papa does not care much about the war."

"Perhaps he's a Union man."

"Well, yes. Papa is Union."

Mark concluded to hazard a surmise. "Was he driven out?" he asked.

"Not exactly," she said, with a frown. "He's gone north, though."

She did not like to tell the whole story to a stranger, who was gradually getting a good deal of information. Her father had come to Chattanooga from the north years before, where he had married a southern woman. After the opening of the war, on account of his pronounced Union sentiments, he had been warned several times to leave, and his family were much relieved when he was well away from the danger that threatened him.

"You are divided," said Mark, "as we are. Now, my leetle brother hyar's a Union boy. I'm Confed'rate."

There was a pause, and the girl, remarking that she would see about their supper, turned and went into the house.

It was quite dark before supper was announced. The mistress of the house came out, and as Mark saw her eying them both he knew that she came to have a look at them. Fortunately for him, the darkness prevented her getting a good view of him. Mark at once commenced to probe a mother's heart by dwelling on the tired condition of little Jakey, and kept it up till the lady was quite unwilling to send the boy to sleep in the barn. She inwardly resolved that the child should have a comfortable bed.

Jakey ate a hearty supper—the heartier for the delay—and the two wayfarers were shown up stairs to a large room with a big bed in it. A few sticks were lighted on the hearth to dry the dampness, for the room had been long unused, and there was a general air of comfort. Jakey, who had never seen such luxury, rolled his little eyes about and wondered. But he was too tired to waste much time in admiration. He was soon in bed and asleep.

Mark took his pipe and went down to the yard to have a smoke. Going back to the barn he entered into conversation with an old darky sitting on a barrel by the stable door and evidently master of the horse.

"Fine night, uncle."

"Yas, bery fine night, sah."

"That's not very good tobacco you're smoking, uncle. You'd better take some o' this hyar."

"Thank y', sah."

"Do you hear any news, uncle"—

"Dan'l. My name's Dan'l, sah. No, sah; I don't git no news 'cept de sojers is getting mighty thick at Chattenoogy."

"Do you know how many are there?"

"I reckon 'bout free hundred thousand."

Mark laughed.

"You're not much at figures," he said.

"No, sah, I ain't got no larnen."

"Uncle, I shan't want anything of you while I am hyar, but you must have somep'n to remember me by all the same," and Mark put a new crisp dollar greenback in the old man's hand.

"Bress de Lo'd, you is de fines' specermon ob a po' white gentleman I eber had de facilatude ob meeten."

"Well, don't spoil it all by tellen t'other hands. Keep it to yourself."

"Sho' nuff. I ain't gwine to tell nobody."

Mark left Uncle Daniel chuckling on his barrel and strolled about the grounds. Presently he found himself walking near the front of the house. The mother and daughter sat on the veranda in the moonlight. Presently the daughter came down the steps and advanced to where Mark was loitering.

"Mamma says that if you like you may—she would be pleased to have you come up and sit on the veranda."

"Thank you!" Mark was about to lift his hat in his usual deferential manner, but suddenly remembered that he was not supposed to be a gentleman. He followed the girl up to the veranda, and she placed a seat for him near where they were sitting.

August Sale Furs

People who have been here and viewed the collection of furs we have assembled for our Annual Advance Sale, have gone into ecstasies over them. Some folks had been to other stores and were able to make comparisons, and many smiling references were made to the terms applied to fur garments elsewhere.

Furs are called by so many different names these days, and some of those who sell them are seemingly not particular in the application of these names, that the only way you can be sure of what you are getting is, first, to buy furs from a house that knows furs and a house that sells only dependable furs; second, to make comparisons with other reliable stocks, so that you may know exactly what you are getting for your money, regardless of the names attached.

We are glad to have any of our fur coats, muffs or scarfs compared with any offered in any other establishment, both as to quality and price.

Our selections have been made from the stocks of every maker of consequence in the country, and in the selections the most drastic scheme of elimination was employed so that we might be certain of having the very best the market afforded.

BOY KICKED TO DEATH BY COW.

Port Murray, Aug. 2.—Just to have some fun leading a cow from his father's farm to that of a neighbor, George Crotsley, a youngster of thirteen, tied a rope around the cow's neck and then abou this waist, while his little brother John coaxed the animal along with a birch rod. The cow didn't like the performance so ran away, and when it was stopped George had been kicked to death by its heels.

George's father told him to lead the animal over to Benjamin Apgar's farm, a mile down the road. The brindle had been taken from a herd of Mr. Crotsley's and turned over to the boy. He asked his brother, Harry, to go along and before they started George went to the barn and got a rope.

When some distance from their father's place George suggested playing "horse" with the cow. The animal didn't travel any too fast to suit the boys, so George fixed the rope fast to the cow. For a little ways they drove it this way. Then George tied the rope around his waist and told his brother to put the whip on good. He did, and the cow kicked up its heels and started down the road at racehorse speed.

Unable to keep up the pace, George was carried off his feet and fell under the hoofs of the animal. For a distance of half a mile the boy was dragged and kicked by the cow. When near the Apgar farm the cow ran into a fence and Mr. Apgar, hearing the younger boy yelling, hurried up the road.

Cutting George loose from the rope, he found the boy dead. His skull had been crushed and his face battered beyond recognition. The body was later removed to the father's farm.

ABERNATHY BOYS START.

New York, Aug. 2.—From Coney Island to the Pacific Coast on horseback is the trip which is being undertaken by the Abernathy boys, the two little veterans of the saddle, who last year rode into New York from Oklahoma. It was one minute after midnight, Monday night when Louis Abernathy, eleven years old, and his brother, Temple, four years his junior, started on the trip, which will take them 3,600 miles, according to the route which they have picked. If they abide by certain conditions they will win $5,000.

The boys have agreed that they will not eat or sleep under a roof during the ride. Their beds will be on the grass and they will eat their meals by the roadside. Before leaving Coney Island they drove their horses into the Atlantic Ocean, knee-deep, and then started toward the Pacific. They will ride up the eastern shore of the Hudson to Albany, thence west and will conclude their trip at Presido Park, San Francisco.

FOUR NEW RECORDS IN SOUTHERN MEET.

Four new southern records were established at a meet of the Meteor A. C., in New Orleans yesterday, presided over by officials of the Southern association of the A. A. U. William Phillips, of the Meteors, ran 75 yards in 7 4-5 seconds. The old record was 8 seconds flat; he also covered 115 yards in 11 2-5 seconds. Jeff Van, also of the Meteors, hurled the javelin 144 feet 2 inches, topping the old record of 133 feet, made by himself, Edward Schroth, of the Y. M. G. C., in the pole vault for distance, a new event, covered 22 feet 3 inches and got the credit, although A. C. Books, of the same club, covered 22 feet 6 inches, while breaking a tie.

News and Notes

PLATT ADAMS HURT; HE IS OUT OF 'CHAMPS'

Trying to please his club and those interested in the great game of athletics will keep Platt Adams, of the New York A. C., and former player on the local Y. M. C. A. nine out of competition for three months. Last Saturday at Travers Island he strained a tendon in the right leg after finishing a practice 100-yard dash, one of the feature events carded for the all-round championships.

Adams went to Travers Island and started training. He got along so well in the jumps and felt so good that he was advised to try out all the events scheduled ofr the big games. The hurdles came next. He leaped over them a la Eller, although he had never gone over them before. The distance was 120 yards, and those who held the watch timed his performance in 16 1-5 seconds. He broad and high jumped until he felt sure he was right.

With the track events over, Adams figured on doing some running, and toed the mark for the 100. On the crack of the gun he was off like a streak and breasted the tape in 10 4-5 seconds. He had hardly walked a dozen steps when he was seen to put his hands to the leg.

"I feel sorry, and I suppose so do the boys," declared Adams yesterday, "but it can't be helped. I was anxious to go into the all-arounds and battle with the westerners for the big honors. I felt I was in great shape to do myself justice."

BASEBALL.

Consolating thought for today—Joe Harter has his eye on the ball again anyway. Four hits out of four times at the bat was his record for Saturday afternoon.

Somerville is only one game behind the Pets but wait until that July 4th tie is played off before there's any crowing!

How the old Y. M. C. A. players are making good! Otto Frederickson is pitching great ball for the 'Plains team; Platt Adams is breaking world's records and almost his legs in track athletics while his brother, Ben, is not far behind him; Louis Slocum has been signed by the Philadelphia Athletics; Billy Coyle is on the Scotch Plains list of players; Frank Evans is on the Plainfield team and Walter Nelson likewise. The local association nas had some great ball artists in its time.

George Ortlieb is among the "can come backs" for that no hit game which he pitched up State last Saturday was a beauty. Because a pitcher is knocked out once does not say that he is done for.

Howard Craig had his old time batting eye with him Saturday afternoon and clouted "Red" Waller's delivery for two two sockers.

Next to Scotch Plains, High Bridge is the cheapest team in the league but that doesn't mean that the Hunterdon boys can't play ball. If there had been eighteen $11,000 players in that Bound Brook-High Bridge game Saturday, there couldn't have been better baseball. High Bridge made but one error while six were chalked up against Bound Brook. The High Bridge fans certainly got their money's worth with seventeen innings for the price of nine—and that's almost two games for one price with all the excitement thrown in.

By the new ruling of the league, there will be no meeting of the magnates tonight.

It looks as if the Monroe Avenue team was going to make a runaway race for the Sunday-school pennant. The question will soon have to be asked: "Who can stop them Methodists?"

Raymond Force, of the Trinity team, is recovering from the bad dig in his leg, which he received while covering first base Saturday against the Park Avenue Baptist nine. One of the base runners jumped on his leg and the spike tore a deep gash in the limb. A doctor was summoned and took several stitches in the cut.

"Mike" Donlin Sold.

Pittsburg, Aug. 2.—Following a conference here last night between President Russell, of the Boston National League team and Manager McGraw, of the New York National Club, anouncement was made that "Mike" Donlin had been sold to the Boston club. The sale was outright, no other players figuring. The price was not stated.

Dooin to Go Home.

Manager Dooin, of the Philadelphia National baseball club, probably will return to his home town tomorrow. It is hoped the plaster cast in which his broken leg was encased yesterday will be sufficiently dry to allow him to travel.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Mel Sheppard is reported as saying after he witnessed the special mile race Saturday, at Brooklyn, which John Paul Jones won: "Give me two weeks to train and I'll race Jones for a mile any time he wants." The Irish-American Athletic Club is trying to bring these two star runners together in a half-mile race at its games on Labor Day.

Not a few of the spectators at the St. Agnes games remarked on the large amount of fat Martin Sheridan has taken on during the past two months. Sheridan compares favorably now in this respect with "Babe" McDonald and the rest of the big fellows.

Pat Ryan, the giant of the Irish-American A. C. has been coming pretty close to Flanagan's record with the hammer, and it would not be a big surprise if he should send the leaden missile on a journey for a new mark before long.

Bernie Wefer, track coach of the New York Athletic Club, opens his training tables at Travers Island today. He will start right in to condition his string of athletes for the coming senior metropolitan championships.

To the many who disbelieve that Fmilio Lunghi ever broke Charlie Kilpatrick's record in the half mile at Montreal, want to listen to Mike Murphy tell what Melvin Sheppard would have done on the Stadium track the day he won the national championship recently at Pittsburg. Mike says Shep could do better than 1.52 for the half.

SINGER BADLY HURT IN FIGHT.

Ocean Grove, Aug. 2.—Following a fight in the foyer of the Arlington Hotel Monday night, in which it is alleged G. Dexter Richardson, of 25 West Forty-second street, New York, manager for Miss Maud Klotz, a singer appearing at the Auditorium, assaulted William Wield, baritone of the Criterion Quartet, knocking the baritone down and pummeling him severely. Richardson was held in $1,000 bonds Monday on a charge of atrocious assault and battery. Bail was furnished by Eckert V. Eskeson, of Perth Amboy.

While the defendant admitted that he had struck Wield, he asserted that he did so only after Wield had assaulted him. It is alleged by several witnesses, however, that Richardson sought the Criterion baritone. Richardson claims Wield interfered with him by trying to break a contract Richardson held with John Finnegan, a tenor soloist of St. Patrick's Cathedral, New York.

ENJOYING GAMES

ETHEL SKILLMAN IN CHARGE.

Friday Afternoon Athletic Meets Create Much Enthusiasm—Daily Program Said to Be Ineffectual.

Record crowds of happy youngsters have been going to the Irving school playground every day, this recreation spot being the most popular of any of the municipal playgrounds. The average attendance there for the season thus far has been nearly 200 a day, the throngs of children coming at both morning and afternoon sessions. The work is being carried on by one director, Miss Ethel Skillman, who has become extremely popular with the young boys and girls of the West End section of the city, and her fame as a leader of playground games has spread throughout all Plainfield.

On account of the popularity of the Irving school-yard the attendance at the other playgrounds has fallen off considerably during the past two weeks. A spirit of sport and a rollicking good time prevails there and this has been largely the cause of its popularity. Many of the youngsters go to the Irving playground from the East End of the city, riding their bicycles there and leaving them at the yard until the session is over. This is against the rule, however, which was laid down by Mrs. Elorgy G. Bowers, the chairman of the Women's Auxiliary committee, who did not think it best for the children to flock to one schoolyard.

Miss Skillman has won the hearts of all her charges and every one of them co-operate with her in having a good time. On account of characteristic differences of the children at the Irving playground, the daily program, which was oultined by the auxiliary committee, it is said, has proved ineffectual, for the youngsters there seem to desire to play instead of being restricted by time limitations and strict rules.

One of the features of the play at the Irving yard is the athletic meet among the boys. A series of these contests is being held every Friday afternoon and has proved to be one of the most attractive events in the weekly routine. A healthy spirit of rivalry has sprung up among the boys' "gangs" of the West End and all the youngsters are trying their best to win the medals, which have been offered by the Playground Commission for the three highest scores in points at the end of the season.

The boys have staked out a running track in the school-yard for their meets there every week. A large cowd of enthusiastic youngsters always gather on these occasions and the shouts of victory from the different sets of boys when their favorites win, stir the peaceful air of the City Beautiful and in vibrating re-echo from the Watchung hills. Several residents of the neighborhood have remarked that the merry voices of the youngsters are a tonic to their spirits and bring them back to their childhood days.

Nine events are on the program of the meets, these being the running high and broad jumps, the standing broad jump, the standing hop, skip and jump, the three legged race, the 50 yard dash, and a race around the track three times. All of the events have been hotly contested and some good records have been made. "Sodie" Porter is at present the leader for the first prize at the grand finish. He is a small boy but he has plenty of pluck and goes into the game with a grim determination to win. "Hollie" Holger is a close second, while "Buster" Brown and "Mortified" Morley are fighting it out for third place. The meets are being managed by Albert Pierson with Miss Skillman as referee.

When a Daily Press reporter visited the yard, he found very litle work being done by the children in the industrial session. On investigating the cause he discovered that there was only one pair of scissors provided by the commission for seventy-five youngsters and that only a small supply of material was on hand. When one of the children was asked if he liked to make things in the sand and with paper, he replied, "Naw, we get all that stuff in school. I like to have some sport in summer and I wish they'd leave the slides and swings going longer. I don't like to have to sing and march and be quiet when it's vacation time."

With the present attendance at the Irving yard, the commission is facing a difficult problem. It has been suggested that an assistant be appointed for the work there but the members of the governing board seem to think it better to equally distribute the children among the other playgrounds.

POLICE GET ONE IN CRAP RAID

Henry Jackson, colored, of Plainfield avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective-Sergeant J. J. Flynn on West Third street, for shooting crap. Jackson's companions who were "fading the nickle" with him, escaped in the excitement caused by the officer's appearance. They were recognized and will be apprehended later. The residents of the neighborhood have made complaints regarding the "bones" being "rolled" on the sidewalk, the players squatting in a circle, so that passersby have to step to the curb to get past. A "lookout" is stationed at Liberty stree and another at Plainfield avenue when the game gets going and the players are warned when the police appear.

Yesterday the "lookout" was not on his job and Sergeant Flynn slipped up to the game before being detected. He saw a couple of "passes" made to throw "seven" and then placed the players under arrest. Jude William G. DeMeza fined Jackson $5 with the alternative of spending twenty days in the county jail.

REPUBLICANS PLANNING FOR ANNUAL OUTING

The annual outing of Union county Republicans to Far Rockaway on Saturday, August 12, promises to be the best in the history of the county, and already promises have been received by the committee that there will be a record-breaking crowd of the faithful ones. Former United States Senator John Kean is almost sure to be present, while State Treasurer Daniel Voorhees and a delegation from Morris county will be among those on board. Every town, village and hamlet in the county will be represented, including the usual large number from this city.

The Republicans will devote considerable time on the day of the outing to a discussion of affairs in the county, and no doubt a plan of action for the fall campaign will be decided upon by the leaders. Thus far little has been said as to the campaign, but there has been a lot of quiet thinking. While it is not expected that a slate will be "fixed" on the outing, the leaders and other members of the party will have a better understanding of things and several candidates will be discussed for the offices to be filled this fall.

This will be the seventh annual outing and the committee has secured the Steamer Isabella for the trip. The boat will leave the foot of Livingston street, Elizabethport, about 10 o'clock in the morning and the return trip will be started from Far Rockaway at 9 o'clock in the evening. There will be good music and plenty to eat and drink.

TRIBUTES TO MRS BROEK FROM TRINITY CHURCH.

Mrs. Broek, mother of Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, whose death occurred at Grand Rapids, Mich., on Monday, was a member of the Home Department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday school, and always evidenced considerable interest in the work of the department. Upon learning of her death, the Home Department telegraphed the funeral director at Grand Rapids, who will have charge of the services, to secure a floral tribute to be placed on the bier at the funeral services.

The Consistory of the church has also taken similar action and has ordered a handsome floral tribute as a mark of esteem and affection to both Mrs. Broek and her sons. The Consistory also sent a "night letter" to Mr. Broek, last night, expressing the sympathy of his congregation.

POLICE MAKE A RAID ON EAST SECOND STREET GANG.

John Burke, of Elizabeth, was arrested yesterday afternoon as one of the East Second street "gang" the police is trying to break up. He was drunk and was loitering in the vicinity of the favorite lounging place of the gang.

This morning in the city court Burke explained to Judge William G. DeMeza that he did not know that that locality had a "dead line" and promised that if given another chance his deportment while in Plainfield in the future would be above reproach. The chance was given.

Funeral of Mrs. Hoff.

The funeral of Mrs. Katherine Hoff was held yesterday afternoon from 402 Park avenue and was attended by a number of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, conducted the service and interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

MET IN IRISH SCHOOL; WERE MARRIED HERE

Following a romance which started fifteen years ago in a little district school house in County Mayo, Ireland, Miss Katharine Mulligan, of Madison avenue, and John Reilly, of West Sixth street, were married in St. Mary's church at 8 o'clock last night by Father Hogan. The couple met one another when they were schoolmates in the old country and when Miss Mulligan came to the United States seven years ago, her lover promised to come here and marry her. His trip to this country was delayed for some time and it was not until three months ago that he arrived on this side.

Upon coming to this country, Mr. Reilly immediately came to Plainfield, where he secured a position with the Pond Machine Tool Company. At the wedding last night, the bride was attended by Miss Mary Sloyan and Thomas Sloyan, also of this city, was best man. Sixty of the friends and relatives of the bridal couple were present and a reception followed the ceremony at the home of Patrick Keilly, of West Sixth street, where Mr. Reilly has lived since his arrival in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mulligan, of County Mayo, Ireland, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Patrick Reilly, of the same county. Following the reception the bridal couple left for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and upon their return they will live on East Seventh street.

REFUSED TO PAY FINE; SENT TO JAIL

Rather than pay a fine of $10, Glen Borough and William Plank, members of the "Holy Jumpers," of Weston, yesterday started a ten-day jail term in the Somerset county jail at Somerville. They were arrested in Bound Brook Sunday night for violating an ordinance recently passed in that place, depriving this religious sect from making speeches on the streets of that town. Other members of the colony arraigned on the same charge paid the fine imposed.

The "Jumpers" have been in the habit of holding meetings on the streets in Bound Brook every Sunday night. They shout and jump about and make a noise with base drums and brass instruments before the addresses begin and then the speakers deride the local churches and ministers. This has been going on for several years until the town fathers were called upon to put a stop to it and as a result the ordinance was passed. The "Jumpers" say that they will test the right of the authorities to deprive them of their right to worship in public.

CONDITION OF STATION PARK DRIVEWAY TO BE IMPROVED

The unsatisfactory condition of the driveway leading from Park avenue to the eastbound station of the New Jersey Central has been the cause of considerable comment on the part of automobilists, and this morning the attention of W. G. Besler, general manager and vice-president of the New Jersey Central, was called to the matter. He promised to give it his attention.

The driveway is filled with large sized loose stones, which is particularly hard on automobile tires, and the condition can be remedied without much trouble by rolling and using a fine coating of stone as a dressing. Mr. Besler said that he had failed to notice the condition complained of, but at once recognized the need of making an improvement. This will be appreciated by automobilists.

REV. DR. T. B. THAMES GOES TO HIS NEW CHARGE IN GA.

Rev. Dr. Travis B. Thames, a brother-in-law of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Nash, of the Valley road, and pastor of the First Baptist church of Elizabeth, left today for Newman, Georgia, where his family had preceded him. Dr. Thames is well known in this city having lived with his brother-in-law on the Valley road for the past half year, and having spoken in the First Baptist church on various occasions.

Dr. Thames has received a call to a Baptist church in Newman and bid his congregation in Elizabeth farewell last Sunday. He thanked the members of the congregation for their kindness toward him during the past eight years of his ministry among them and especially to the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Dunn, of Grove street, are spending the day at South Plainfield at the home of Mr. Dunn's brother, L. C. Dunn, who has been ill for the past two weeks.

TO FINISH ROADS

Local Contractors Will Complete City Work Before Fall.

RAHWAY ROAD UNDER REPAIR.

Tarvia is Being Used Extensively on City Streets—$5,000 Appropriation for County Work.

Despite reports to the contrary, Mobus and Burke, the contractors, who are in charge of several large jobs on road building in the city, expect to have all their work done this year. They have a large force of men employed now and all the work is being rushed with speed. On account of several delays due to labor trouble and other things, it was thought that the paving of the streets would not be finished before the frost came in the fall. John McNabb, of Bound Brook, who has the contract for building the roads on Thornton avenue and Randolph road, has kept his men busy all the time and has the work nearly completed.

The paving of Randolph road extends from Park avenue to Woodland avenue and is a much needed improvement. Heretofore the entrance to Crescent Oval has been a dangerous one and several accidents have occurred on account of the poor condition of the roadway. Two weeks ago an automobile was stuck in the piles of dirt on the road and it took a gang of men some time to get it out. With the new macadam the street will be made safe for automobiles and carriages hereafter and will be a great benefit to the baseball fans.

Mobus and Burke are at present in charge of the work on West Front street, which has been torn up on one side for some time. They have laid a new coating of macadam pavement and are finishing the job with a dressing of bituminous binder. The work was delayed for several days on account of the non-arrival of the freight cars containing the asphalt.

The city workmen, under the direction of Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett, have completed the application of Tarvia B to East Front street from Berckman street to Terrill road. This street was in bad repair, being full of holes which were dangerous to the large number of automobiles passing that way. With the recent work upon it, East Front street is now one of the smoothest roads in the city.

Another much needed improvement was made by the city men on Rahway road on the long hill which begins near Woodland avenue. A large amount of work was needed to put this street in proper condition, the holes being filled with half-inch stone while a layer of stone screenings was laid on top of that. The finishing touch to the road was an application of Tarvia B, which has proved very satisfactory. This new paving was an expensive piece of work but it will hold the road from wearing away very soon. The traffic at this place is quite severe, as the steep hill necessitates high speed with the automobiles.

A coating of Tarvia X, which is applied hot, has been laid on Richmond street from East Front to East Second streets. The work is to be extended past the railroad bridge and the street has been torn up for some time. When the job is completed Richmond street will be much improved.

With the completion of East Front street the set of roads leading out of Plainfield are in good condition. All the county roads in Union county are in excellent repair now, except Rahway avenue, near Rahway, for which State Road Commissioner E. A. Stevens has made an extra $5,000 appropriation to the Freeholders' roads committe. This money was given after a petition had been made for $10,000, but as the State had appropriated more in proportion to Union county for roads than to any other, this amount was cut in half.

Refused $8,000 for Crop.

Peter Neuman, of Neuman Bros., made a tour of Hunterdon county, yesterday in search of peaches for his particular trade. He reports a very light crop throughout that section of the State. In an interview with a grower, who owns a fine young orchard, estimated to contain 8,000 baskets, he promised to supply Mr. Neuman with fruit from this orchard. He informed Mr. Neuman that he had been offered $8,000 for his entire crop, but this he had refused.

Boy Choir Will Sing.

Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church, will preach at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, August 13, and the boy choir from the former church in charge of Horace J. Martin, leader, will be present and take part in the service.

OAK FARM DRAMATIC CLUB ENTERTAINS

The Oak Farm Dramatic Club, of this city, gave a pleasing entertainment for the benefit of the youngsters at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home last evening. The entertainment was divided into two parts The first was a one act sketch arranged by William F. Richards, and was entitled, "Fun in a Wigmaker's Shop," The cast for the sketch was, "The wigmaker," William F. Richards, "Simple woodseller," charles Mulford, "colored servant" Samuel Rothberger, "confidential clerk," J. B. Richards, "crazy daughter," Miss Tryphona Mattox. This farce greatly amused the children. The parts were all well taken.

In the second part of the entertainment, a harmonica quartett composed of W. H. I. Cubberley, Frank Downs, W. F. Richards and Asher Fleming rendered a few pleasing selections. Charles Mulford gave a monologue and W. H. I. Cubberley followed with a bass solo. During the intermission, the children sang a few songs much to the edification of the large audience. The affair last night was one of the best given this season. These entertainments are given every Wednesday evening under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, to help make the lives of the fresh air children more pleasant and so far, great success has attended the efforts of those in charge as well as those who have given their services in this way.

MRS. HALLOWELL GETS HEAVY SENTENCE

Judge William G. DeMeza, presiding in the city court today had the most difficult case to adjudicate that has thus far come before him during his term, and it is the first case of the kind to be tried in the city court. It was the trial of the complaint made against Mrs. Mamie Hallowell, of Spooner avenue, by a number of residents of that vicinity, who have been subjected to verbal and physical abuse at her hands for some time. They delayed making the complaint because of the Hallowell woman's several small children, one of whom is of tender age, and requires its mother's services.

There was no abatement to the nuisance, however, and in order to be afforded relief the complaint was made after a conference of the neighbors. This is not the first time the Hallowell woman has been arrested on the same complaint and she has twice been sentenced to terms in the county jail. While she was there, peace and quiet reigned in the locality and while the complainants did not again insist on a jail sentence they knew of no other way to effectively gain relief.

Judge DeMeza sentenced Mrs. Hallowell to serve sixty days in the county jail and warned her that if she is ever again brought before him on a similar charge he would give the limit of 159 days. Arrangements have been made with the proper authorities to care for the children.

WILLIAM CRAIG'S SPIRITED HORSE IN LIVELY RUNAWAY.

West Front street was the scene of an exciting runaway yesterday afternoon when William Craig, Myrtle avenue, left his carriage to go into the postoffice, and while he was absent the horse, a spirited bay, took fright and ran away. It collided with an automobile, smashing the buggy and breaking the straps that held it fast. Turing the aimal ran eastward on Front street through the business district at a fast clip, avoiding all who tried to restrain it, barely missing several other horses and carriages it managed to keep its footing on the pavement while winding in and out among the vehicles until past Watchung avenue where it had comparatively free going.

Near this street a young man by the name of Williams chased after the horse on a bicycle and caught the frightened animal, badly winded near Berckman street. He lead it back towards town and turned it over to Mr. Craig who was following on foot. The auto was not damaged.

PERCY HENRY HELD IN $200 BAIL FOR HEARING.

Percy Henry, the colored youth arrested on complaint of Moses Schloss, for passing a worthless check, was again arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, but on request of his counsel, Robert Newton Crane, who wants time to look up a recent act of the Legislature giving police court judges jurisdiction in complaints of this nature, the hearing was set over until Monday morning. Henry was admitted to bail in the sum of $200.

FIRST REGIMENT WINS ENGAGEMENT

The sham battle which Co. K members of this city missed because of the inclement weather while they were at Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, took place yesterday and the first skirmish was won by the First Regiment. The Fifth Regiment, or as it was designated the "Blue Army," left camp shortly after seven o'clock and took up a position north of the Manasquan river. The "Blues" were supposedly from Philadelphia. They threw up intrenchments and made all arrangements to repell the attack of the First Regiment known as the "Red" army.

Shortly after the "Reds" put in an appearance and, at once there began a rattle of musketry that continued until the nearby farm houses were enveloped in clouds of gunpowder smoke and the "dead" of the "Blue" army were marching off the field to stretch in the cool shade of a neighboring orchard. The "Reds" outnumbered the "Blues" 3 to 1. The battle was voted a good manoeuvre and gave the soldiers a lot of practice.

TRINITY EXCURSION LARGEST OF SEASON

Despite the heavy clouds, which hung over this city early this morning, the largest crowds of the season went to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove on the excursion of the Sunday schools of the Trinity and Netherwood Reformed churches and the Marconnier chapel. Over 1,200 men, women and children filled both sections of the train, which was made up of two sections of ten cars each.

The first section of the train stopped only at the North avenue station, leaving there shortly before 8:30. All the cars on this train were quickly filled and a large crowd was obliged to wait for the second section, which came in at 8:32. A representative delegation from the Marconnier chapel was already on board when this section stopped at the station and only three cars were left vacant for the Netherwood people, who were to get aboard at the Netherwood station.

From all reports the weather at the seashore today is cool with a stiff breeze blowing in from the ocean. The surf, however, is said to be warm and large throngs will undoubtedly enjoy a dip in the waters of the Atlantic. The two sections of the excursion will leave Asbury Park at 7:10 tonight, reaching this city about 9 o'clock, and stops will be made at all the stations in Plainfield.

The committee in charge of the excursion is composed entirely of members of Trinity church. Chauncey F. Colthar is chairman and the others are Harry C. VanEmburgh, W. J. Trembath, LeRoy Woodhull, William Wyman, Sidney Frazee, Harry Kenyon, and Charles M. Dolliver.

COMMISSIONER J. Y. BARRETT VIOLATES TRAFFIC RULES.

John Y. Barrett, street commissioner of the borough, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning for a violation of the traffic regulations at the North Avenue station. Mr. Barrett brought his wife to this city to go on the Trinity Reformed church excursion and drove into the Fourth street entrance, instead of entering at the Park avenue driveway.

The regulation was explained to him and sentence was suspended. In departing from court he said that he was thankful the borough has no such rules to regulate traffic. Patrolman Dobson made the arrest.

ARRESTED FOR STEALING RIDE ON RAILROAD TRAIN.

Frank King, of New York, was taken from the bumpers of a P. & R. flyer at the North avenue station last night, and this morning was arraigned in the city court before Judge William G. DeMeza on complaint of one of the railroad company's detectives, who charged King with stealing a ride. King said that he was "broke," out of work and had heard that work in his line, that of a lineman, was plentiful in Philadelphia, and that he was on his way there when arrested. He was allowed to go under a suspended sentence.

Red Men Hold Meeting.

Miantonoma tribe, No. 188, Improved Order of Red Men, gathered at the council tent last night and had an evening of pleasure. Four applications for membership were received and after the routine business was transacted the fifty members adjourned to the dining hall where an elaborate banquet was served. The festivities continued until early this morning.

NAME CANDIDATES

Somerset County Republicans Select Successor to Senator Frelinghuysen.

C. C. WHEELER FOR ASSEMBLY.

State Senator Makes Pessimistic Speech to Which County Committeeman Hope Takes Exception.

Regardless of a pessimistic speech by State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who presided, the meeting of citizens of Somerset county, held at Somerville last night, at the call of the Republican County Executive committee, was well attended and enthusiastic. Senator Frelinghuysen explained that the meeting was held for the purpose of giving voters a chance to discuss candidates for the State Senate and Assembly ticket, to be presented at the primary in the fall, and thus do away with what had been termed star chamber proceedings and bossism.

Continuing, he said, that regardless of the defeat of last year, the county Republicans are harmonious and in good shape to tackle a hard fight. That it will be a hard fight he had no doubt for Governor Wilson will enter the county to back up the Democratic candidates. The rest of the Senator's remarks were considered pessimistic by County Committeeman Hope from the Raritan district, of Bridgewater township, for in it the Senator gave his opinion of the strength of Governor Wilson.

Mr. Hope said that because the Governor had put the "kibosh" on Senator Frelinghuysen and the other Republican Senators, the same influence had not been extended to the Republican voters of the county and for that reason he took exceptions to the tone of the Senator in expressing his views and opinions on the coming campaign. Governor Wilson, Mr. Hope said, is just as well aware that it was Republican votes that elected him Governor as any Republican who voted for him, and the reason he received these Reupblican votes was because of prevailing conditions at the time of last fall's election. Things are different now, he averred.

Exception to the Senator's speech was not taken by Mr. Hope until after candidates for the Senatorship and Asembly were discussed and endorsed. W. W. Smalley, of Bound Brook, was the choice for State Senator without a disenting voice and amidst rounds of applause and cheering. C. C. Wheeler, of North Plainfield township, was the selection for the Assembly nomination.

Prior to the selection of Mr. Wheeler, Committeeman Edward Garretson, of Franklin township, who had been mentioned as a possibility, declined to allow his name to be considered. Frank Remsen, of East Millstone, who was also considered by some as a likely candidate, declined when his name was presented. Dr. Richard Moldenke's name was presented by the North Plainfield township delegation, but he said that it was a pleasure for him to withdraw in Mr. Wheeler's favor and did so.

Mr. Wheeler has been a resident of the township for about ten years and has always taken an active interest in county political affairs. He is engaged in the iron business in New York and has had a wide business experience. He has been a member of the Somerset County Republican committee for several years and was one of the two men who conceived the idea of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society, and carred it through successfully to the end that the society was formed and has accomplished in a large measure the purposes of its organization.

ELIZABETH COUNCIL NOT TO CLOSE ISHAM PLACE.

Elizabeth, Aug. 3.—After an exciting debate Elizabeth's alderman Tuesday night refused to close Isham place, at Elizabethport, in order that the Singer Sewing Machine Company could convert the land into a new public park. The closing ordinance was laid on the table by a vote of 16 to 6.

In a communication from Jackson E. Reynolds, one of the counsel for the Jersey Central Railroad, the city was asked to co-operate with the company in the proposed elevation of the tracks of the Long Branch Railroad at Second and Third avenues, Elizabethport. No action was taken by the Council on the request.

It is expected that the detailed official report of the pure food board on the subject of beer and what should be its ingredients will be ready in a short time.

GLIDDEN AUTO TOUR THOUGHT TO BE DEAD.

New York, Aug. 3.—The Glidden tour, for several years an automobile fixture is looked upon as dead, automobilists generally looking up on the absence of definite plans for this year's "Reciprocity Tour," to Canada, as the death knell of the event.

Manufacturers have not taken kindly to this year's plans and the entry list is so far a failure. It is now thought a tour of the South during the Savannah meet will be substituted for the proposed run to Ottawa.

An Exhibition of Hand Painted China

BY AMATEUR PAINTERS OF NEWARK AND VICINITY, SEPT. 18 to 30.

In order to stimulate interest in hand decorated china and incidentally afford the amateur painters of Newark and vicinity an opportunity of displaying their work, we have decided to hold a competitive exhibition on our fifth floor from September eighteenth to thirtieth, inclusive. This exhibition will be open to amateurs only. Each exhibitor will be permitted to enter from one to six pieces, and all pieces thus entered may be offered for sale during the exhibition, if the exhibitor so desires. This is the first time, so far as we can learn, that local amateur painters of china have had presented to them the opportunity of exhibiting their work to the public in competition, and we trust every china decorator will take advantage of the chance. All china will be fully covered by insurance while in our possession. Write for entrance certificate or call personally at China Department, Basement, or Artists' Materials Department, fifth floor. All exhibits must be in our possession at least three days before the exhibition begins.

P.H.S. PLAYERS WHO WON FAME IN FANDOM

When a survey is made of some of the fast baseball teams in the country many former players from the Plainfield High School are found on their lineups. Few schools in this vicinity have produced such good baseball material as the local High School, which always held enviable reputation in baseball as well as in scholarship. Several noted teams have represented the Plainfield institution on the diamond, especially the nine in 1905 which was the undisputed title holder of the championship of New Jersey and New York City.

The majority of P. H. S. stars, who have made good after graduation, have won their fame in college baseball although a few have achieved distinction without going to any higher educational institutions. Howard Craig is among this number. He is now covering third base and right field for the Westfield team of the Central New Jersey League and is making good. In the game against Plainfield last Saturday he banged the ball for two two baggers and fielded his position o. k. Craig was a member of the famous P. H. S. nine in 1905, covering short-stop at that time and batting .427 for the season.

Frederick Tabor VanAuken is another product of the City High School who made his name and fame at Annapolis, where he studied for Uncle Sam's navy directly after being graduated here in 1903. He was captain of the local school team on which he pitched for four years. He was the terror of all who faced his speedy curves in his high school days and when he twirled on the Navy team during his Junior and Senior years, his pitching made him extremely popular there. He was captain of the team in his Senior year.

Stewart Freeman, who was one of the mainstays in the box this year for Yale University, was pitcher on the P. H. S. aggregation in 1906, the year in which he was graduated. He was never considered a wonder while here but college coaching brought him to the front. Phillip Smith, perhaps the best slab artist that ever wore a P. H. S. uniform, had a short career in the pitching line after he left the high school. He was the whole noise on the 1905 championship team and after he left school, he pitched for the Westfield team, which was then in a bitter contest with Plainfield. Phil had an offer from the Giants but did not make good with that team and then pitched in the Connecticut State League for some time. His arm went back on him and for the past two years he has only twirled occasionally on small teams in this vicinity.

Eugene Lidgate, who is doing the backstop work for Scotch Plains in the Central League this year, played on the High School team for three years, but was never graduated. He is creating a lot of conversation about himself among local fandom by his speedy playing and looks good for faster company. Cliff Randolph is a product of the Stillman grammar school and although he never went to the High School, he is making good on the slab. He was a star performer in the New York State League and his recent glorious achievement was a seventeen inning victory for the High Bridge over Bound Brook.

EVERY MOTORBOAT ON DEAL LAKE BREAKS LAW.

Asbury Park, Aug. 3.—An inspection of the motor boats on Deal Lake was made yesterday by J. F. Runyon, of Lake Hopatcong, chief inspector of power vessels, and, according to his report to the local authorities, every motor launch on the stream is violating the law relating to the use of mufflers.

Mr. Runyon says the law requires motor boats to use "good and efficient mufflers," but he did not find a single boat so equipped. He will make an official report of his findings to Mayor Appleby.

Notices will be served on all offenders that they must comply with the law. If they do not do so within a reasonable time prosecution will follow. Mr. Runyon said the omission of cut-outs on the boats made a difference of only two per cent. in the speed of the craft.

The law in relation to the use of lights on rowboats and canoes which are operated on inland waterways where motor boats ply, will also be enforced. The chief inspector will be here again in ten days to see if his orders have been complied with.

PENNSYLVANIA ROAD EVADES BOARD'S ORDER.

Burlington, Aug. 3.—Although the State Board of Public Utilities Commissioners has issued an order forbidding the Pennsylvania Railroad from putting in effect August 1 increased passenger rates from Burlington to Philadelphia, pending investigation as to their fairness, the increased rate is charged, just the same. The commission's orders covered rates within New Jersey. The railroad company has met the situation, it is alleged, by increasing the rate from Burlington and other points to Philadelphia. This brings the matter within the scope of interstate traffic. Then the railroad refuses to sell tickets from Burlington to Camden only. The Burlington-Camden rate is covered by the State board's order.

Appeals to both the New Jersey Public Utility Board and the Interstate Commerce Commission will be taken by the South Jersey Commuters' League. Special emphasis will be laid upon the alleged action of the Pennsylvania Railroad in refusing to sell all classes of tickets to Camden.

PETITIONS "LOST," THEN QUICKLY FOUND AGAIN.

Paterson, Aug. 3.—That an attempt was made early Tuesday evening to steal the petitions calling for a special election under the provisions of the Walsh act, filed in the morning in the office of the city clerk is the belief of many. The petitions were missing for more than an hour, but were afterward located in a desk in City Clerk T. Simpson Standeven's office. How they came to get there no one seems able to explain.

It is believed that the person who placed them in the desk intended to get away with them later. When City Hall Policeman James Miller realized they had disappeared, he immediately got into communication with City Treasurer Eugene Wickum, and after a search they were found.

Jersey Moose Favor Donges.

Elizabeth, Aug. 3.—At its regular meeting Tuesday night Elizabeth Lodge, No. 393, Loyal Order of Moose, indorsed Ralph W. Donges, a lawyer, and National Guardsman, of Camden, for the position of supreme vice-dictator of the order, to be elected at the national convention held this month in Detroit. The Elizabeth delegates were instructed to work and vote for his election. Local Dictator John F. Martin added Daniel Fallon as an additional member of the committee appointed to select a site for a suitable home ofr the lodge.

THE FORUM.

"To the Editor, The Daily Press:

"Regarding the case of Cornwell versus Johnson, reported in your issue of today, permit me to state one word for the complainant, Dr. Cornwell, as the case of the defendant has already been so well presented. The hearing on Tuesday was on a rule to show cause why a temporary injunction should not issue. Upon a statement of the complainant's allegations in his bill, the court refused to go into the merits of the question regarding a construction of the covenant and reformation thereof, stating that the matter must be determined on final hearing; and in the meantime, if the defendants went ahead with the proposed building, they did so "at their peril," and if on final hearing decree went for the complainant, whatever had been constructed contrary thereto, would have to be demolished.

"Respectfully yours,
"C. M. DOLLIVER."

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—The Southern Pacific, beginning this month, is putting into effect a rule that hereafter no women are to be employed as clerks or stenographers in the company's passenger department.

Officials of the company assign as reasons for this action the tendency of the girls to marry just when they are becoming of great service.

GOVERNOR WILSON CHARGES FRAUD

Governor Woodrow Wilson spoke last evening before the newly organized New Jersey Association of County and Municipal Clerks in session at the Hotel Brunswick, Asbury Park. He urged his hearers to give the new election and corrupt practices law a fair interpretation. He admitted that the voters were lazy, but he predicted an increase of 20 per cent. in New Jersey's vote next fall and said the increase would be largely Democratic.

He objected to the way balloting was conducted in cities where the commission form of government was defeated recently. He said:

"I don't know what kind of legal advice they could have had. They voted under no law whatever as far as I was able to learn. The ballots were marked outside of the polling places and were voted without the formality of the use of a booth. The whole thing was the same kind of criminal farce as was enacted about fifteen years ago when the will of the people was registered."

He declared that the new laws did not limit the right of candidates, but safeguarded those of the people. He made reference to Atlantic City elections and investigations, saying:

"We have come into calling a spade by its real name. Grand juries are being impanelled to know the truth, and before we are through we are going to clean house, cellars and all. There will be no more registration of twenty persons in one room as in Atlantic City and Camden."

His hearers thought he was referring to James R. Nugent, of the Democratic State Committee, when he said:

"I haven't the least feeling against any one in particular. When a man is destined for destruction give him rope and he will hang himself. I never bother my head about contradicting a lie."

The Governor denied that he referred to Mr. Nugent.

These officers were elected by clerks: President, Joseph McDermott, Freehold; vice president, Josiah Brick, Crosswick; secretary and treasurer, Lincoln E. Rowley, East Orange.

APPLES MARKED "WILSON" 1912

Trenton, Aug. 3.—Tangible evidence that Governor Wilson's Presidential boom has been growing in the country was received at the Executive department Tuesday afternoon. It came in the form of a box containing apples, pears and tomatoes on each of which appeared the inscription "Wilson, 1912."

The box was sent here by a rural admirer of the Governor who had marked the fruits in the young stage so that the inscription had grown into them and appeared to be a natural part of the product.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

December 18, 1873.

Mr. Stephen O. Horton, the contractor for laying New street sewer, has sued the City of Plainfield for amount due him—$15,000. The summons served on the Mayor and Council is returnable on the 27th inst.

Mr. William Smalley is building an addition to the house recently purchased b yhim corner of Somerset and Race streets, North Plainfield, to be fitted up and used as a meat market by his sons Dan and Dave.

Col. J. Madison Drake, publisher of the Elizabeth Daily Monitor, was arraigned before Judge Depue on Tuesday morning last to answer an indictment for libel. He plead not guilty and his trial is set down for Wednesday next.

Captain Ackerman, of the police, desires us to request the citizens to refrain from giving tramps or bummers either money or clothes. As a general rule the money is spent for rum and the clothes pawned for the same material.

One of our subscribers, a resident of this city, on Tuesday last paid us his subscription in advance to April, 1875. We will warrant his slumbers are peaceful and his conscience clear.

The children are now visiting the different stores and selecting in the toy line, what they wish Santa Claus to bring them, and nowhere do they find as many nice toys at low prices as at Case & Mulford's, Cherry street. Their stock has been selected with great care, and we trust they will be well patronized.

Bargains! Bargains!—A bankrupt sale of fine furniture, carpets, toys and fancy articles, will be held in the store formerly occupied by Gaston & French, on Front street, commencing on Wednesday, Dec. 17th, and continuing until the entire stock is disposed of. A chance is here offered for bargains, as the stock must be sold.

December 25, 1873.

Mr. John H. Tier and his estimable lady, of this city, were the recipients of a surprise party on Thursday evening last, the participants being mainly from New Brunswick. A large number were in attendance, and under the inspiring strains of excellent music furnished by Wearts, or the above city, dancing was enjoyed until the early hours of morn.

We understand that Mrs. Conkling has disposed of her business to Mr. David L. Linbarger, formerly with Mundy & Jones, of this city, possession to be given Jan. 1st, 1874. Mr. L. having had considerable experience in the business intends keeping a first class dry goods store.

The house situated on North avenue, near Clinton avenue and nearly opposite Evona Station, occupied as a summer residence by Mrs. Sarah Taylor, of New York city, was entered by thieves during the fore part of last week and everything that was valuable taken away.

January 1, 1873.

Elm street, a thoroughfare laid out about a year ago, between Liberty and William streets, and running from Front and Second streets is rapidly being built up. Among the buildings erected on Elm street the past year, that of W. W. Coriell, now in course of completion, bids fair to eclipse all others. We learn that the building is for sale as soon as finished, at extremely low figures. It will be well for parties desirious of procuring a home cheap to call on Mr. Coriell, at his meat market on Front street.

Mr. J. C. Cutter is now established in his new and commodious store, next to Chamberlains Crockery Store, on Front street. His stock is new and of the best variety, while his prices will compare with those of New York or other large cities. He invites an inspection and trade.

Our old friend, S. C. Ryder, has purchased the property corner of Sixth and Division streets of Isaac Woodward, Esq., and is making decided improvements on the same by building an adddition to the house preparatory to making it his future residence.

MONTCLAIR REPUBLICANS IN HOT CLASH AT CLUB MEETING.

In one of the most acrimonious meetings ever held by the Fifth Ward Republican Club, Montclair, during which County Committeeman F. F. Brown accused Mayor Hinck, of having misrepresented facts, the Republican campaign in that town, was opened last night.

This statement School Commissioner George C. Hirst said, was equivalent to calling the town executive a liar, Mr. Hirst demanded that Mr. Brown apologize for the words used, which the latter refused to do.

Sitting directly in front of the county committeeman when the alleged statement was made the Mayor, it is said, was boiling with indignation at the insult. He controlled his temper until Mr. Brown refused to apoligize. He then arose to his feet and in a voice which vibrated with passion exclaimed:

"I wish to repeat a statement which I publicly made a year ago, Mr. Brown is the biggest hyprocrite of a politician Montclair ever had."

Freeholder Edward Winslow, the club's president called for order and Mr. Hinck sat down.

The meeting, which was held in Times Hall, had been called by the Club's Executive Committee for the purpose of indorsing candidates for ward and town officers to be placed on the ballots for the September primary election. Although there was no open hitch in the early part of the proceedings, it was plainly evident from the start on some matters there was a wide variance of opinions among the forty odd club members present.

The principal controversy was over the choice of county committeemen and was waged firedly for a few minutes. It was when the matter of indorsing a candidate to represent the Montclair district in the small board of freeholders came up, however, that the battle waged most vigorously. It was during the controversy over the freeholder question that Mr. Brown made his statement concerning Mayor veracity.

COMMUTERS LOOK TO STATE TO FIX RATES

Roy M. Robinson, secretary of the New Jersey State Commuters' Association, said yesterday that he could see no season why the New Jersey State Board of Public Commissioners should not take into their own hands the fixing of local commutation rates.

"The Interstate Commission has approved such action by State boards," said Mr. Robinson, "and with three commissioners in New Jersey drawing $7,500 a year, an attorney receiving $7,500 a year, and with $100,000 appropriated for the expenses of the commission, why have not the commuters a right to look to the State board for relief.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission's decision makes no reference to the rates between Jersey City or Hoboken and other parts of New Jersey. Only the fares between New York and those points are criticised. There are hundreds upon hundreds of commuters who stop their journey at Jersey City or Hoboken and do not cross the river. Why should they be compelled to pay for transportation across the Hudson that they do not use."

William L. Ransom, attorney for the New Brunswick Board of Trade and its affiliated commercial and commuters' organization said yesterday:

The commissioners' decision disposes of three contentions in the local transportation situation: (1) That a regulative commission has no power over commutation passenger rates; (2) that commutation service is a charity, performed by the carriers at a loss, and (3) that a terminal charge, like that claimed by the Pennsylvania at Jersey City, may 'cover a multitude of sins.' The commission's decision is put explicitly on the basis that the commutation rates approved by the commission allow the carriers a fair and reasonable return upon all the elements entering into the computation of a proper transportation rate."

REAL LIVE JOB FOR UPTON SINCLAIR

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 3.—In addition to carrying out his announced intention of fasting during his brief term of imprisonment, Upton Sinclair, Socialist and author, was breaking stone at the New Castle county workhouse yesterday. His nine associates of the Arden colony of Socialists are likewise employed. If the Ardenites expected a holiday when they declared in favor of spending eighteen hours at the workhouse instead of paying the fine of $4 each imposed upon them by Magistrate Robertson in the actions for breaking the Sunday laws in playing baseball and tennis, they were disappointed. On arriving at the workhouse they were immediately put to bed and in the morning they were given a shower bath, dressed in prison stripes, and after breakfast, which Sinclair declined, put to work on the store pile, their imprisonment terminating at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The action against Sinclair and his associates was brought by George Brown, who calls himself a "philosophical anarchist" and who last week served five days for insisting upon speaking at a meeting of the Arden Club in the colony. Sinclair threatens to invoke the Sunday law against members of the Wilmington Country Club and others who indulge in amusements on Sunday, in order, he says, to demonstrate the absurdity of such "blue laws" in these times.

Complain of Medicine Man.

The licensing of a medicine show by the Westfield Council has called down a storm of opposition from the Retail Merchants' Association of that town, who assert that the medicines thus distributed are quack remedies and take money out of the town that should find its way into the stores of the local repurable dealers.

SUBMARINE SHIPS

Life Aboard These War Craft Is a Sequence of Discomforts.

TORTURE FOR THE NOVICE.

Between Choking For Air and Suffocating From the Fumes of Gasoline the Agony Is Excruciating—Added Terrors When Caught In a Storm.

Submarine boats have been developed to the point where they can cover on their own power a radius of 800 miles in effective fighting trim. In storm and calm the submarines are capable of navigating the seas with credit to their inventors and constructors. With a fleet of these vessels stationed in the vicinity of any of our large coast cities it would be difficult for battleships to get within effective striking distance.

The first impressions received on descending into the hold of a submarine are those of discomfort and suffocation. The accommodations for a crew of thirteen seem about right for half a dozen. One is in too close proximity to whirring machinery, too, to enjoy the sensation.

On all sides are arranged electrical devices and machinery to operate the craft and the torpedoes. A thin shell of steel separates the visitor from the torpedoes, and the outside water is so close that one can almost feel its moisture.

When under way on the surface the submarine hums and trembles. The fumes of gasoline are almost suffocating. There is no escaping from them. Some of the men contract what is called "gasoline heart." If under water too long the fumes make one sick and dizzy.

A novice cannot remain in a submarine under water for any great length of time without suffering excruciating torture. In time, however, one gets used to it, and a trip may be one of enjoyment.

But it is when the submarine dives that the most unpleasant symptoms come. There are ten compressed air tanks supplied, and these furnish sufficient air to keep the crew alive a good many hours.

But did you ever live on compressed air? If not it will be a new sensation, especially if you are fifty feet below the surface of the water. There is a tingling sensation all over the body, a pounding of the eardrums and possibly a sense of nausea.

As the air is automatically regulated from the compressed air tanks one gets his share of the oxygen, but sometimes the supply may vary. It certainly does in different parts of the ship. One may be choking for lack of good air in one part and be exhilarated by a too abundant supply in another.

Sometimes when the engines are running to charge the batteries the fumes of the gasoline become so strong that men are rendered unconscious. They must be taken up on deck then to get a whiff of fresh air.

For this reason the batteries are only charged when above the water. But in time of war it might be necessary to charge them while running below. Then, indeed, the man aboard the submarine might envy the aerial navigator flying above the sea with his abundance of fresh air to breathe.

Cooking under water is a pretty uncertain and disagreeable work. The only appliance for this purpose is a small electric heater. This is just about big enough to heat water to make a cup of coffee and nothing else. The crew have their food cooked aboard the tender.

The submarine is built on the principle of economizing space in everything. There is no room for anything except the actual necessities. Every inch of space is given over to machinery. This is everywhere compact and efficient, but multiplied so often that one wonders what it is all for.

There is machinery for running the boat, for guiding it under water, for controlling it when it dives, for compressing the air tanks, for operating the torpedoes and even for regulating the power of vision above and below water.

When caught in a storm in a submarine life is really not worth living. It consists of a series of intense struggles to prevent death by being battered against steel walls or to keep from becoming involved in whirring wheels and dynamos. If you survive the ordeal you conclude that it is not necessary to wait for war to find hades. It is with you all the time.—Harper's Weekly.

Quicker.

"How are you makin' out?" asked one Pullman porter.

"Well, I used to think I was doin' pretty good," replied the other, "but after seein' a train held up by a road agent the other day I feel a good deal like throwin' this old whiskbroom away and gettin' a revolver."—Washington Star.

Modern Children.

"How old are you, Elsie?"

"Nine years."

"And you, Erna?"

"I am twelve."

Glad He Left.

Actor—There was a thunder of applause when I left the stage. Bored Friend—Serves you right! You shouldn't stay on so long!

What the stars are to the firmament kind deeds are to the earth.

Japan's Snapping Turtle Farm.

One of the oddest farms in the world turns out each year tens of thousands of snapping turtles and has solved the problem of preserving the supply of what is to the Japanese as great a delicacy as diamond back terrapin is to some Americans. This queer farm consists of a number of ponds. Certain of them are set apart as breeding ponds. Once a day a man goes over the shores and with little wire baskets covers up all new egg deposits. Sometimes thousands of these wire baskets are in sight at a time marking the places where the eggs lie and preventing turtles from scratching the earth from them. Hatching requires from forty to sixty days, according to the weather. The young as soon as they appear are put in separate small ponds and are fed with finely chopped fish. They eat this during September and October and late in October burrow in the mud for the winter, coming out in April or May. Most of them are sold in the market when they are from three to five years old, at which time they are most delicate.—Harper's.

A Resourceful Badger.

An English artist while painting a sea piece discovered a badger's lair and thought to play the animal a practical joke. Gathering together a bundle of grass and weeds, he placed it inside the mouth of the hole and, igniting it with a match, waited for the ignominious flight of the astonished householder. But Master Badger was a resourceful animal and not disposed to be made a butt of practical jokers. He came up from the depths of his hole as soon as the penetrating smoke told him that there was a fire on the premises and deliberately scratched earth on the burning grass with his strong claws until all danger was past. No human being could have grasped the situation more quickly or displayed greater skill in dealing with an unfamiliar event.

Building a Reputation.

Young physicians in the smaller towns have an idea that appearing very busy will help them greatly in starting a practice. The following is told by a now prominent Kentucky physician. He had a call the afternoon following the hanging out of his shingle and started through town in his buggy at terrific speed. A policeman stopped the enterprising physician.

"Doctor," he said, "it is against the city ordinance to drive at the speed you are going. You must accompany me to the judge and pay your fine."

"What is the fine?" inquired the doctor.

"Five dollars."

The doctor's hand flew to his pocket. "Here's $10. I have to come back just as fast as I am going."—Success Magazine.

Ambition.

The scroll of fame has variant attractions for different minds.

"Here lies one whose name was writ in water"—the despairing and dying John Keats desired that admission of defeat engraved for his epitaph.

"Write me as one who loved his fellow men," was Leigh Hunt's aspiration.

To be remembered as the author of the Declaration of Independence and of the first statue for religious freedom and as the founder of the University of Virginia, this was Thomas Jefferson's prayer to posterity.

Thus one may go the range. And thus the lines recur:

Ambition is our idol, on whose wings
Great minds are carried only to extreme,
To be sublimely great or to be nothing.

Generous Tramp.

"Please gimme a quarter," begged a panhandler on Washington street. "I won't hand yer no tale about bein' hungry, pard—honest, I wanter git a drink."

"But," we objected (for it was indeed us), "you don't need a quarter to buy a drink."

"Sir," answered the panhandler, "do youse t'ink I'm fallen so low as ter take a gent's money an' den not invite him ter drink wid me?"—Boston Traveler.

Salt Eaters.

Idiosyncrasy often takes the form of a special craving for instead of an objection to certain foods. Many people possess an extraordinary relish for common salt and will eat it by the teaspoonful when opportunity admits. This sometimes leads to obesity and dropsy, but it has also the peculiar effect of increasing the weight.

Highly Improper.

"What is the proper thing for a man to do when his wife asks him for money and he hasn't any?" queried young Newed.

"Oh, there isn't any proper thing to do under those circumstances," replied Oldwed. "Anything he does will be wrong."—Chicago News.

When a Man Makes His Will.

It is a morbid superstition that a man dies when he makes his will. More often he lives happily and long after he has done so. It relieves his anxieties.—London Saturday Review.

Past That Now.

Bystander—My boy, some day you'll bring sorrow to your father's gray hairs. The Bad Boy—No danger, sir. Worrying about me has made him bald.—Philadelphia Times.

A Few Words.

"Did you have many words with your wife last night?"

"No; only a few words, but they were repeated—very often."

A RISING FINANCIER.

He Has the Right Idea and the Nerve if He Can Only Work Them.

The old man was perched upon a high stool, figuring up the day's sales of dry goods, groceries and hardware, when his son came in with a rush.

"Say, pop," exclaimed the young man, "if I can buy a $300 horse for $150, will you take a chattel mortgage on him and help me out with the cash?"

"What kind of a hoss, my son?" inquired the father cautiously.

"Bay, four years old, sixteen hands high, weighs a thousand pounds and is sound in wind, limb and bottom."

"That sounds good to me, my son, and I want to do all I can to help you along in the world." And he reached down into the safe for his roll. "How much do you want?"

"A hundred and forty-nine fifty."

The old man gasped and caught hold of the desk.

"What?" he exclaimed.

Slowly the old man shoved the roll back into the safe.

"My son," he said softly, "you are wasting time trading hosses. What you ought to do is to go into the loan and trust business."—W. J. Lampton in Lippincott's.

TAXES AND TORTURE.

The Duke of Alva's "Tenth Penny" That Caused Riots in Spain.

One of the most absurd and tyrannical measures of taxation that were ever imposed upon a people was that ordered by the despotic Duke of Alva, prominent in the history of Spain up to 1582, when he died.

For six years he was governor general of the Netherlands and levied a tax called the "tenth penny," or 10 per cent, upon every article of merchandise, to be paid as often as it should be sold. He assessed real and personal property 1 per cent, to be paid instantly and collected once, and on every transfer of realty he exacted 5 per cent.

Every one in the land, excepting Alva himself, perceived how utterly ridiculous a scheme it would prove, but he persisted in enforcing the rule. The towns rebelled, and examples by dozens were made of refractory subjects, who were tortured to death, but to no purpose.

Finally Philip II., the Spanish king, was petitioned, and a temporary compromise was effected by which the towns were to pay $2,000,000 annually for the two succeeding years, until August, 1571.

Ice in Persia.

The fact that ice is plentiful and cheap makes living in Persia more pleasant than it would otherwise be, and the fact that it can be obtained at all is indicative of the ingenuity of the people of the country. The ground is so porous that water percolates through quickly. There are therefore few rivers or lakes from which ice can be obtained, and it is seldom so cold in any part of Persia that ice of a thickness suitable for packing would form under the direct rays of the sun. The Persian obtains his ice by making a shallow pool and building a high wall which will protect it from the sun. A thin layer of ice will form. This he floods at night with water, and so he goes on adding inch to inch until he can cut a block of considerable thickness.—Los Angeles Times.

Garfish Skin.

A woman looking over costly jewel cases in one of the most expensive of the uptown shops the other day was struck with the beautiful, ivory-like finish of a number of them. "What are they made of?" she asked admiringly. "Garfish skin, madam," answered the salesman. "Garfish leather, we find, is very little known about outside of the trade, and yet it has come to be of importance. It not only can be worked up to the polish, but it is wonderfully hard. They say certain tribes of Indians knew its secret and that among them it was used as armor, the tradition being that a breastplate of it would resist any tomahawk or arrow. It can be made now so that it will turn the edge of a knife or a spear."—New York Sun.

He Liked the Lie.

William —— was said to be the ugliest though the most lovable man in Louisiana. On returning to the plantation after a short absence his brother said:

"Willie, I met in New Orleans a Mrs. Forrester, who is a great admirer of yours. She said, though, that it wasn't so much the brilliancy of your mental attainments as your marvelous physical and facial beauty which charmed and delighted her."

"Edmund," cried William earnestly, "that is a wicked lie, but tell it to me again!"—Everybody's.

Dutiful For Once.

Boy—My tooth aches, and mamma said I should come here and let you look at it. Dentist—I see. It must come out. Won't take but a minute. Now be a brave little man, and I'll—Boy (hastily backing off)—Mamma didn't say I should let you pull it. She only said I should let you look at it.

Natural.

Mrs. Hatterson—The ladies of the parish got up a baby show for the benefit of the hospital.

Mrs. Chatterson—Was it a success?

"Oh, a howling success!"

What I aspired to be and was not comforts me.—Browning.

CHATTANOOGA

BY F A MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

"Your brother is a good deal younger than you," said the mother when Mark was seated.

"Oh, yes, ma'am; he is ten years younger."

"You don't resemble each other at all. You are light and he is dark."

"So we don't. Jakey is my stepbrother, you know."

"He seems to be a peculiar child."

"Yas, Jakey, he is peculiar, very peculiar, ma'am."

"You haven't told us your name yet," said the mother.

"Slack. I'm Farmer Slack's son."

"How many field hands does your father own?"

"Father, he don't own no niggers at all. We're just only poor whites."

"You're very frank about it," said Laura.

"Waal, there ain't no use maken purtensions."

"And you go to Chattanooga tomorrow?" asked the mother.

"Yas, ma'am; I cal'late ter do some traden thar."

"And you will return this way?"

"I reckon I'll be along hyar in a few days."

The mother arose and walked with all the stateliness of a southern high born matron into the house. There she resumed the book she had been reading earlier in the evening.

Mark had kept up his assumed character very well during her presence. Now that he was left alone with the daughter he was put to a much severer test. He had been so used from his childhood to meet a refined bearing with one equally refined that he found it difficult to avoid doing so now.

"Don't you love to look at the stars, Mr. Slack?" asked the young lady.

"Waal, yas, Miss'—"

"My name is Laura Fain."

"I hev always been fond o' the science of'— He paused; he suddenly remembered that poor "white trash" were not usually versed in any of the sciences.

"Astronomy," she supplied.

"Waal, yas."

"How did you come to learn astronomy?"

"Oh, I don't know nothen 'bout it," he said quickly. "I hearn a man at Jasper talken onct. He said a heap o' quar things."

"What bright star is that?" pointing.

"Venus, I reckon."

"I wonder how far it is from us?" she said musingly.

"Venus? Why, Venus is sixty-eight millions of miles, I reckon."

"I happen to know that's a correct answer."

Mark suddenly became conscious of having forgotten himself. He recollected his critical position and resolved to proceed with greater care.

"How far is the moon?" asked Miss Fain.

"The moon's a hundred million miles, I reckon."

"Oh, no. You're far out of the way there. It's only about two hundred and forty thousand miles."

"Waal, now!" exclaimed Mark in well feigned surprise.

She looked searchingly at him, but Mark looked as if he had simply received an interesting piece of information.

"Do you like poetry?" she asked, changing the subject.

"Some'at."

"My favorite poet is Tennyson. Is he yours too?"

This was dangerous ground for Mark. He had a special fondness for poetry, and was more likely to betray himself on this than on any other subject.

"No," he said; "I love Shelley best."

"Why, Mr. Slack, how can you understand Shelley? I can't."

"Waal, he is kinder obscurelike."

"Do you remember any of his poems? If you do I would like to hear you repeat it."

"Waal, I mought give you a few lines of the 'Ode to the Spirit o' Nature.'"

"Please do."

Mark would have done well to let the "Ode to the Spirit of Nature" alone; but with a beautiful girl beside him, the half moon sinking in the west and all nature in repose, he momentarily forgot his assumed character entirely. Suddenly he awoke to the consciousness of having given the whole poem in his natural tone and with his ordinary accent.

"Mr. Slack," said his listener when he had finished, "did you learn that from a man in Jasper?"

"No—no—I—waal," he stammered, "I read it in a book."

He stole a glance at his companion, but failed to detect any unusual expression on her face. He took courage.

"What do you raise on your plantation?" she asked.

"Oh, we put in some potatoes and corn and straw this year."

"Straw?"

"No, no; not straw." Mark was as little conversant with the farmer's art as he was familiar with the poets. "I mean hay."

The girl looked at him and smiled.

"The wheat was all gotten in early this summer, I am told," she remarked casually.

"Yas, we got in ourn early. We jest finished up before I kem away."

"Why, Mr. Slack!"

Mark knew that he had blundered again.

"Wheat is gathered in July," she informed the young farmer.

"I mean the corn," he said wildly.

"The corn comes later. It is ripening now."

Mark felt it was all up with him so far as deceiving Miss Fain as to his being a farmer, but he struck out boldly to undo some of the mischief.

"Waal, you see, Miss Fain, to tell the whole truth, dad he don't reckon much on my farmen. He says I oughter be a perfessor or somep'n o' that sort."

"A gentleman, for instance."

Mark made no reply. For the first time he detected irony in her tone.

"Mr. Slack—if that is really your name, which I don't believe—you are certainly not very complimentary to my sense of perception."

"How so?"

"In trying to make me think you are not an educated gentleman."

Mark saw the futility of keeping up the sham with Miss Laura Fain any longer. He resolved to give her so much of his confidence as was necessary to keep her from betraying him.

"I will be frank with you. I am not what I have pretended, but I am not here to injure you or yours."

"Are you a Union man?"

"Yes."

"A northerner?"

"Yes; but let that suffice. You would regret it if I should confide anything more to you. Yet from this brief interview I have learned to trust you sufficiently to place my life in your keeping."

She thought a moment. A faint shudder passed over her.

"I don't want to know your secret."

"Will you tell your mother what you have discovered?" asked Mark anxiously.

"Not for worlds."

"You suspect"— He paused and looked at her inquiringly.

"Yes, yes. Don't say any more. Don't breathe another word. Only go away from here as soon as possible."

"I shall go tomorrow morning. I shall always hold you in grateful remembrance. You are a splendid—a lovely woman. I owe you"—

"Yes, yes; go—go early."

She rose and went into the house. In a few minutes a colored boy came out and told Mark that he would show him to his room. As Mark had been there before, he knew this meant that he was expected to retire for the night.

As he went by the parlor he glanced in. The mother sat by a lamp on a "center table" reading. Miss Fain's face was also bent over a book. It was white as the margin of the page she pretended to read.

CHAPTER IV.

GLORIOUS PERFIDY.

WHEN Mark went down stairs the next morning, followed by Jakey, they were invited into the breakfast room. Laura Fain was there, but her mother was not. Mark looked at Laura, but she avoided his gaze. He asked after her mother.

"Mamma scarcely ever gets up to breakfast," she said as she poured out a substitute for coffee.

During the meal she said but little, and that was only on commonplace subjects. She seemed to have more on her mind than the soldier who was taking his life in his hands, and studiously avoided looking at him at all.

After breakfast Mark followed his hostess through a door opening into a sitting room on the opposite side of the hall from the parlor.

"Miss Fain," he said, "I know too well the station of your family and southern customs not to accept as a gift the hospitality you have afforded. I can only express my indebtedness, and the hope that some day the war may be over and I can come down here and show my gratitude for something of far more moment to me than a night's lodging."

He paused, and then added:

"May I ask a question? Are you a Union or a Confederate girl?"

"Confederate."

Mark looked at her uneasily.

"I inferred from what you said last night that you will not betray me."

"I will not."

"But you think you ought to."

"I do."

Mark stood gazing at her. She was looking out of the window with a troubled expression.

"Miss Fain," he said, "you may be doing wrong; you may be doing right. At any rate you are acting the part of a woman, and this act makes you in my eyes the loveliest woman that lives."

The words were scarcely spoken when the muscles of the girl's face contracted into an expression of horror. Mark

Most of them are pongees and silk mixtures.

Why, getting qualities like these at such prices should lead men to waive any little matter of taste, and it will, for we are very sure these 600 pairs of pajamas will go like wildfire when you see what splendid clothes they are.

The values run from $1.50 to $6 a suit.

Most of them are in the $3 class, very few in the $1.50 class; many that would sell at $5 and $6.

FOR NEXT WEEK.

Beginning Monday, August 7th, we will offer a lot of manufacturers' discontinued patterns and unmatched pieces of furniture at cut prices, to make room for new goods. Not cheap stuff bought for a "Special Sale" but pieces taken from our regular stock and sold at low prices to close out the designs the manufacturers are not making and the odd pieces we cannot match up. We will offer dining-room, bedroom and living-room furniture at prices that will interest you.

FOR THIS WEEK.

We are offering big inducements to close out the odds and ends of Porch Furniture and Refrigerators. There's a good variety to choose from and the prices are low.

POWLISON & JONES

could not understand why his speech had so affected her. The natural uncertainty of his position impelled him to look about him for the cause. Glancing out of the front window he saw an officer in gray uniform on horseback in the act of reaching down to open the gate.

"Come quick!" she said, seizing his arm. "No, no! Mamma! She doesn't know. Oh, what shall we do?"

Mark took her by the hand and spoke to her coolly, but quickly. "Call Jakey for me, and we will both go down stairs and from there to the barn. We can then go out without meeting this officer, for he is doubtless coming in. There is no especial danger. We shall meet plenty of soldiers before we return."

She flew out of the room to find Jakey. While she was gone Mark watched the approaching horseman. He was a fine specimen of a southern man—tall and slender, with long black hair, mustache and goatee and a fine black eye. He looked, as he came riding up the roadway, the impersonation of the southern gentleman.

"COME QUICK!" SHE SAID, SEIZING HIS ARM.

Before he had dismounted Mark and Jakey were on their way to the barn.

Laura Fain opened the front door just as the officer was coming up the steps.

"Why, Cameron," she exclaimed, "how did you get away? I thought you told me you were to be officer of the guard today."

"I persuaded my friend the adjutant to detail another man."

"Was there a special reason?"

"Certainly. I positively couldn't stand it another day not to see you. Besides we are momentarily expecting orders to cross to this side of the river."

"But you will be nearer to us then, won't you?"

"I am afraid not. Once on this side we'll not stop nearer than Dallas or Poe's. We may join Colonel Forrest near Sparta, or wherever he may be, doubtless somewhere in the enemy's rear. He seldom troubles the Yankees in front. But you are not listening, my darling, and you are pale. You are not ill?"

"Certainly not."

"You are sorry that I came?"

"Why, Cameron, what do you mean? You know I always want you to come."

She led the way into the sitting room, from which Mark had disappeared but a minute before—a minute is a long while sometimes. Mrs. Fain entered and received the guest most graciously.

Captain Cameron Fitz Hugh was a young Virginian, a graduate of the University of Virginia law school, the son of wealthy parents, whose acres and negroes were numbered by thousands. He had known the Fains before the war, Mrs. Fain having been born and reared in the Old Dominion. During a visit of Laura to his people, shortly before the breaking out of hostilities, he had fallen in love with her, had proposed and was accepted. Both families being agreeable, the two were engaged to be married.

"This is an unexpected pleasure, captain," said Mrs. Fain.

"I did not suppose I could get away today."

"Everything is unexpected in these times. We never know who is coming to us. Last night I slept uneasily for fear that we harbored a guerrilla in the house."

"How is that?" asked Captain Fitz Hugh.

"Where are the strangers, Laura?"

"I think they are gone, mamma."

"A countryman and his little brother," said Mrs. Fain to the captain. "Laura thought him quite a gentleman for one so poorly dressed."

"But I changed my mind, mamma," said Laura quickly.

"And what was the occasion of so sudden a bouleversement?" asked the captain.

"Why—why, when we were sitting on the veranda after you went in, mamma"—

"Sitting on the veranda with a countryman!" exclaimed the lover.

"Well, yes; mamma said to invite him up. But I was going to say"—Laura's inventive powers had gained time to act by the interruption—"I found that he was only an ignorant farmer after all, for I asked him how far the moon was, and he said he reckoned it was a hundred million miles."

"That doesn't prove anything," Fitz Hugh remarked. "I don't believe there's an officer in my regiment knows that. But it becomes us to be very careful. The commanding general has made it known unofficially through his staff officers that he is especially desirous of concealing his intentions. One spy penetrating for even a day at Chattanooga might frustrate all his plans. If the enemy knew that we are concentrating there, and how weak we are there at present, he would at least he should come down with a large force and drive us south."

A troubled expression crossed Laura's face.

"Indeed!" said Mrs. Fain. "I was not aware of that. Suppose the young man was a spy."

"Cameron," said Laura, "I wish you wouldn't talk so to mamma. She will be suspicious of every poor beggar that asks a crust. The man's name was Slack. There are plenty of Slacks among the poor whites about here. I have a sick family of that name on my hands now not a mile up the road."

"Has the fellow gone?" asked Fitz Hugh. "I think I would better see him."

"Gone! Of course he's gone," said Laura, with a heaving bosom.

"Where did he say he was going?"

"To Chattanooga," said Mrs. Fain.

"I'll mount and follow him. I can easily overtake him on horseback."

"Nonsense," said Laura, with a pout; "you have kept away from me for a week, and now you are going as soon as you've come."

"But, my darling, would you have me"—

"I would have you stay where you are, and"—

Mrs. Fain, seeing that some cooing was coming, wisely withdrew.

"And what, sweetheart?"

"Tell me what I love to hear," she said softly.

"I've told you that so often you should certainly be tired of it by this time."

Fitz Hugh looked inquiringly into her face as he smoothed back her hair. He was used to these requests to repeat his assurances of affection, but there was a nervous something about his fiancee this morning that puzzled him.

His back was toward the window, while she was facing it. Suddenly she clasped her arms tightly around him.

"Now go if you can!" she said, affecting a playful tone.

"Why, Laura, what does this mean?" he asked, astonished.

"You don't love me," she whined.

"Love you, pet! You know I do."

"Then why do you act so?"

"Act how?"

"You never come any more but you want to go right away."

"But, sweetheart"—a half dozen kisses for exclamation points—"I only intend being gone a little while."

"If you once start out to follow somebody you don't know anything about you'll be gone all day, and then you'll be ordered away, and maybe I'll never see you any more."

Never was a lover more charmed at such evidence of woman's affection, and never had this lover less cause to be charmed at the evidence of his hold upon Laura Fain. Had Captain Fitz Hugh seen what Laura Fain saw from the moment she put her arms around him and held his back to the window—Mark and Jakey going down the walk to the gate—he would have exclaimed:

"Oh, woman, thy name is perfidy!"

"Oh, woman," the departing soldier would have responded, "thy name is indeed perfidy, but how glorious thy perfidy!"

"Jakey," said Mark as they passed behind trees that hid them from the house, "I don't like that officer coming to the Fain plantation just at this time. There'll surely be some mention of us, and it is possible he may want to have a look at us. You know, Jakey, we're only poor, modest people, and don't want to be stared at."

"HACK" HAS ELABORATE PLANS FOR GOTCH BOUT.

George Hackenschmidt, the Russian wrestler, who is matched to meet Champion Frank Gotch in Chicago, on Labor Day, has made elaborate plans to complete his training. In a letter to his manager, Jack Curley, received yesterday, Hackenschmidt outlined his plans.

"Hack" will sail from Southampton, England, for the United tSates, on August 9, and will bring with him ten cases of a special spring water obtained in France. In the Hackenschmidt party bound for America, will be Dr. B. F. Roller, chief trainer; Johann Koch, German athlete; Masseur Colpeman, and a German chef, who will prepare all the food. At New York the wrestler will pick up Tom Jenkins, who will accompany him to Chicago.

Tennis for Coast Title.

Spring Lake, Aug. 3.—Following the play of the semi-finals in the tennis match for the championship of the North Jersey Coast on the Casino courts here yesterday, Fred Shaw, of Bayonne, a member of the Newark Bay Club, will play for the title on Friday against Collie Burgwyn, of Pittsburg, a summer resident at Bay Head. Shaw defeated F. W. Gibbs, the Philadelphia player in three well-played sets, 6-3, 3-6 and 6-3, and Burgwyn beat N. W. Swayne, of Westchester, Penn., 6-8, 6-3, 6-3. The winner will have an opportunity on Saturday afternoon to play Dean Mathey, the Princeton champion, for the Casino Challenge Cup, which he won last year and will have to win two more years to retain.

SPORTS

BASEBALL.

Insomnia dispeller for today—the Trinity ball players will sleep well tonight after their outing by the seashore.

"Chick" Boyd, the former Clinton avenue fielder, is holding down the right field position for High Bridge. "Chick" still has his old time speed in the field but his batting is rather weak.

It is reported that the McNulty Brothers, of New York city, are trying to land Otto Frederickson, the fast southpaw of the Scotch Plains team. "Freder" has made good with the 'Plains bunch and his feat of holding Somerville to four hits last Saturday proved his true worth. The McNulty team is short on pitchers now that Louis Slocum has gone with the Philadelphia Athletics and it is rumored that a tempting offer has been made to Frederickson.

Manager Joe Alberts, of the Scotch Plains team, is to be congratulated on the fact that he has developed two star pitchers and brought them into the limelight of fandom even if he has had to lose them. Slocum and Frederickson are both the product of Alberts' watchful care and coaching.

Can you beat that Walton quartet in any household? There's "Jab" at second, "Charlie" at third, and Elmer at short. They are the idols of the High Bridge fans at present At the beginning of the season Ephriam Walton played in the outfield but he has been unable to participate in the games of late and his place has been taken by O'Rourke. All the boys are good hitters but their long suit is snappy fielding and they do this to a queen's taste. Some of the plays, which they made in that seventeen inning fight with oBund Brook last Saturday were hair raisers.

The First Baptist team will be greatly weakened by the absence of Captain Carlton Smith during the next two weeks. Smith has been ill for the past week and his physician has advised him to quit the game for a while. Best wishes to you Smithy for a quick recovery for the Baptists need your speedy curves!

Westfield fans of course were happy after that game last Saturday and they were singing to their heart's content, "We'll do the Same Thing Over Again!" "But not if I have anything to say about it," quoted Brit Martin, as he left the dust diamond.

But Plainfield fans shouldn't be selfish—the enthusiasts in the other cities (that's just to make them feel big) want to have a little fun and rejoicing once in a while. There's pleasure in making others happy but nevertheless it's time for Plainfield joy Saturday.

Cheer up, Brit!

MAGEE'S SUSPENSION UPHELD BY LEAGUE.

By a vote of 3 to 1 the board of directors of the National Baseball League yesterday upheld President Lynch in his action of fining and suspending Sherwood Magee, outfielder of the Philadelphia club, for assaulting Umpire Finneran during a recent game with the St. Louis team in Philadelphia. The first announcement of the vote was unanimous, but President Murphy changed his vote in Magee's favor.

President Lynch fined Magee $200 and suspended him for the season. The directors in a lengthy opinion in which the constitution of the league on the power of the President to enforce discipline by imposing fines and suspending players as quoted, sustain President Lynch fining Magee and barring him from the game for the season.

NEW JERSEY AUTOIST AGAINST STATE POLICY

The New Jersey Automobile Trade Association, which has hitherto held itself aloof from the wrangles incidental to the administration of the present New Jersey Automobile Law, has come out squarely against the policy of J. B. R. Smith, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, and in a series of resolutions, requested him to recede from a position which the Association believes is inimical not only to the best interests of automobiling, but of the State of New Jersey at large. The resolutions which were unanimously passed at a meeting of the Trade Association held a few days ago, are as follows:

"Resolved, That in view of the fact that New York State has for all past years since automobiling began (this present year excepted) permitted all residents of New Jersey to enter and use her hundreds of miles of improved roads with the same freedom as her own citizens, provided only that they were duly registered in their own State, notwithstanding that New Jersey has compelled her(New York's) residents to submit to many indignities and to pay a tax; and the further fact that New York stands ready now to grant the free use of her roads to citizens of New Jersey should New Jersey grant her citizens the same privileges, it is the unanimous opinion of the New Jersey Automobile Trade Association that the action of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. J. B. R. Smith, in withdrawing from residents of New York the slight privilege which our State law concedes them now, shows a feeling of resentment which one State of the Union should not show to another, and is, in our opinion, very bad judgment; and it is further.

"Resolved, That the general principle of serving notice on residents of New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware in effect that they are not welcome to our State is going to do the manufacturing, hotel, real estate and all other business interests of New Jersey untold injury which will take years to make up for, in addition to giving our State a reputation for narrowness of which she is not deserving.

"It is further resolved, That a set of these resolutions be forwarded to Commissioner J. B. R. Smith with the request that he immediately reconsider his action."

The New Jersey Automobile Trade Association, which is composed of the leading dealers of the State. stands committeed to the policy set forth, and it is understood, will wage a vigorous campaign for the re-establishment of the eight-day touring privileges to non-resident motorists such as the New Jersey law provides, but which Commissioner Smith has abrogated in the case of certain States.

There was a record-breaking crowd at the Flemington fair yesterday, including a great mahy Plainfielders, who enjoyed all of the attractions especially the horse show. Thickstun, of this city, received second prize for his colt in the class for single road horse or mare; also in the single hackney class; also third in the class for single carriage horse or mare. Mr. Thickstun is especially proud of this for his entry is nothing but a colt and gives promise for better things.

George W. Endicott won first in the class for single carriage horse or mare and first in the class for general purpose stallion. There was an unusually large entry list ofr the show and the competition was keen throughout. Robert A. Fairbairn of Westfield, was one of the judges.

WOMAN ASSAILS TOWN OFFICER

An incident during the meeting of the Borough Council of North Arlington Tuesday night created more consternation than all other sensations which had broken out during the sessions of that body, and that is saying a good deal, when it is considered that some of the most bitter water fights ever waged in New Jersey had North Arlington as the scene of operations. Tuesday night's affair concerned Fred W. Riepe, borough marshal, truant officer, health inspector, mason and singer and Mrs. Mary Leahy, another resident of the borough.

Mrs. Leahy said that Riepe had uttered swear words adressed to her. Riepe said he hadn't. Mayor William Brandenburg, Jr., rapped his gavel until the splinters flew in order to preserve order and Mrs. Leahy "got back" at him by making some caustic remarks about his coming candidacy for Mayor.

At the July meeting of the Council a letter was produced by the clerk which had been sent to the Council by Mrs. Leahy. In it she rehearsed her version of a conversaiton which had ensued between her and Riepe a few days previously. The misunderstanding, it appears, grew out of a visit of Riepe to Mrs. Leahy's house, when he reminded her that her two boys had been absent from school more than three months since January 1. Mrs. Leahy declared the youngsters' illness with whooping cough and diphtheria prevented their attendance at school. Riepe on the other hand, was most positive in his statement that the children had played about the fields when they were able to go to school.

When the Mayor asked if any citizen had anything to say Mrs. Leahy arose. Walking to the table around which the councilmen sat, she commenced:

"Mr. Mayor, as long as nothing was done with my letter, I am here to make a statement about that man," pointing to Riepe. "He isn't fit to wear a badge on his breast. He came to my house and insulted me."

The woman then started in to repeat the language which she alleged Riepe used.

"Stop right there, Mrs. Leahy. We don't want that kind of language used at this meeting," shouted the Mayor.

"I will say it," declared Mrs. Leahy; "I am a decent woman, gentlemen. You who have wives and children wouldn't stand what I had to take from that man. Just see him laugh. That shows what he is."

"Mrs. Leahy," said the Mayor, "that letter, which was unfit to be read in public, and which no lady would have written, was referred to the Police Committee."

"You have no Police Committee," retorted Mrs. Leahy.

"Well, if you are so sure of things, go ahead and tell your story," replied the Mayor.

The woman then told of Riepe's visit to the house and reiterated what she had written in the letter. Just before finishinfi her story, she looked hard at the Mayor and remarked:

"You're going to run for Mayor this fall, aren't you? But you're not elected yet."

"I don't want your vote," said the borough Executive.

"BOB" COLE, NEGRO SONG WRITER, COMMITS SUICIDE.

Robert Cole, the negro song writer, and member of the vaudeville team of Cole and Johnson, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by drowning in a creek in the Catskills, where he was spending the summer. While out on a walk with some friends the creek was reached and without any warning he waded into the water after a remark that it looked inviting.

Cole swam out until the water was over his head and then before his companions realized that it was not one of his eccentric acts, he allowed his body to sink to the bottom. He did not come up, until brought up dead. The body was brought to his home in New York where the funeral will be held.

Pitched 75 Balls in One Game.

It was declared in Los Angeles last night by baseball reporters that "Flame" Delhi, premier pitcher of the Los Angeles Pacific Coast League team, had established a new world's record in the game Sunday with Portland. Delhi pitched only seventy-five balls for the nine innings as against 103, the former record. In the first inning he pitched just four balls and in the second five. His control throughout was perfect. Delhi goes to the Chicago Americans next year.

COMMISSION PLAN

S. S. Swackhamer Tells Why He Favors New Form of City Government.

INSPIRATION TO REFORMERS.

Says That Only Bi-Partisan Machines and Politicans Are Opposed to Making a Change.

Former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, who is an advocate of the commission form of government idea, has prepared some interesting data on the subject and in the following statement offers what he considers strong argument for its adoption by cities of the State. Mr. Swackhamer says:

"Notwithstanding the defeat of commission government in several cities, its victories will be an inspiration to the friends of the reform from Sussex to Cape May, and a millstone about the necks of thoughtless and selfish politicians everywhere.

"The character of the contest in most cases is significant. The bi-partisan machines, generally manned and managed by the politicians, stubbornly oppose the commission plan and fight every foot of the field in a desperate effort to save the old system behind which their power has become firmly entrenched, and by which they are often in absolute and undisputed control of municipal affairs.

"It is apparent that certain politicians have carefully analysed the commission plan of government—have taken it apart piece by piece, and examined its mechanism as narrowly and critically as a jeweler would examine the works of a watch, down to its finest hair-spring, with the hope of finding something therein to condemn.

"They know that this method of municipal government means death to their cunning schemes and hidden designs, and that any rascality in office can be reached by the three long, sharp, hooked tools called the initiative, the referendum and the recall.

"They know that, if a time serving set of men, acting as their pliant tools, refuse to pass a measure which would benefit the people, but which would displease them, by the initiative the people could make that measure a law. They know that if a time-serving set of men, acting as their pliant tools, made a bad law, by the referendum the people could unmake that law.

"They know that, if a time-serving official, acting as their pliant tool, put $1.00 of the taxpayers' money into the public treasury and $2.00 into his own pocket, by the recall he could be ousted from office forthwith.

"They know that a simple petition, signed by the required number of voters, puts in motion that power which passes a good law, vetoes a bad law, and drives from the public office the official imbecile or crook.

"They know that, with these rods of correction in the people's hands, the people, and not the politicians would rule. They know that, with these rods of correction held over them, they could not pad a bill or steal a Court House with impunity, even if so inclined.

"So the big boss, the little boss, and the middling sized bad boss are lined up in opposition to the commission form, but the people understand the situation and eventually will rule in their own affairs.

"As a citizen, you claim the right not only to engage, but to discharge your hired man when he disobeys your reasonable orders, or proves dishonest in the transaction of your business. Why should a city be permitted to employ but not to discharge its servants? By means of the recall, a city is simply put on an equal footing with an individual and, when its public servant betrays his trust, it can stop his pay and turn him out of its employment.

"It is safe to say that, under the commission form of government, and by the application of the initiative, the referendum and the recall, malfeasance in office will be reduced to a minumum; for even dishonest officials will obey the public will when a whip is held above their treacherous backs. No man would be so foolhardy as to commit a robbery when he knew an officer of the law stood watching him, armed with a loaded revolver.

"The recall is the sword of Damocles suspended over the head of the public servant, and he is seldom reckless enough to cause it to fall. The people will not use those weapons until they are driven to it, but they are good things to have lying around should a gang of crooks attemp to loot the treasury.

"The exercise of these political powers results in two important facts; responsibility is centered by the commission form upon those who

HENRY B. ELY DEAD IN LOS ANGELES

Henry B. Ely, nephew of Mrs. W. E. Lowe, of Park avenue, died Wednesday at Los Angeles, in his forty-fifth year. He was the eldest son of George W. Ely, secretary of the New York Stock Exchange and after graduating from Columbia in 1888, he studied law in the office of Carter and Ledyard until 1890, when he was admitted to the bar.

Nine years later he developed symptoms of tuberculosis and went to Redlands, Cal., where he founded a home for sufferers with this dread disease and who had not the means to care for themselves. This settlement has done great service to the poor and is still carrying on its work. Since locating in California, Mr. Ely became an associate editor of The American Catholic Church, which is qublished in that State.

GIVE ENTERTAINMENT FOR BABY CAMP FUND

While Dorothy and Mary Simons, children of Mr. and Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, are spending the summer at Moscow, Pa., having a good time, they conceived the idea of doing scmething for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp, remembering the poor sick babies, who cannot enjoy life as they do. With the assistance of Catherine Stout, also of this city, and Vernon Berdau, of Paterson, a fine entertainment, comprising three playlets, by Dorothy Simons, was given at Gaige Place, Moscow, Pa., this week, under the personal direction of the author, and as a result $7.25 was the net profit for the baby camp fund. A money order for the sum was received by The Daily Press today, and will be forwarded to Mrs. Anna Most, the treasurer of the order.

The Plainfield children were assisted by children from Moscow, Philadelphia, Stroudsburg and Paterson in making the affair a great success. The children did all the work in connection with the plays, also selling lemonade and cookies, and a silver offering was received. The efforts of the children were praised by all the summer boarders.

The three playlets and the cast of characters in each one are as follows:

Tom-Tit-Tot—"Old Woman," Mary Simons; "King," Dorothy Simons; "Princess," Katharine Kneidler; "Slave," Mary Posten; "Tom-Tit-Tot," Catherine Stout.

Between the acts specialties were introduced by members of the cast and altogether the affair was one of the most pleasant of the summer season at Moscow.

HIT BOY WITH STONE AND HAS DISAPPEARED

Fearing the police would arrest him because he hit a boy in the head with a stone, Edward Daniels, colored, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Daniels, of Filmore avenue, ran away from home Wednesday afternoon and has not been seen since. The parents of the young boy have been searching the city with the aid of the police but can find no trace of him.

The boy is only ten years old and his childish fear of being arrested is believed to be the cause of his running away. He had a habit of throwing stones at different objects and sometimes took pedestrians for his marks. On Wednesday afternoon he threw a sharp stone at one of his young friends and the missle hit him in the head. A scalp wound was inflicted and seeing the blood issuing from the boy's head, young Daniels started to run away.

Mrs. Daniels said this morning that the boy had struck an Italian with a stone sometime ago and ran away then. He returned after remaining away over night and said that he had been to Westfield where a man gave him 10 cents with which to return to this city. It is believed that the youngster has left the city and a lookout for him is being kept by the police of other towns.

Mrs. Ellen Mullen, of Westervelt avenue, has returned home after a month's stay, visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gorge Hughes, of Red Bank.

NEW ELECTION LAW

Information as to Dates of Registration Day, Primaries and Filing of Petitions.

MANY IMPORTANT CHANGES

State Conventions of Both Parties Must Be Held on Tuesday, October Third.

The first registry day under the new Geran election law will be Tuesday, September 12, for both cities, towns, townships, borough and villages having a population exceeding 5,000, and for all municipalities having less than that number of inhabitants. This population basis is one of the big changes made by the new Geran election law. Under the old law the division was on the basis of 30,000 inhabitants.

The primary election at which candidates for the State Senate will be chosen in Camden, Essex, Gloucester, Monmouth, Salem, Somerset, Union and Warren counties, nominees for the assembly in every county and for the various local officers will be held Tuesday, September 26. It is important to note that while September 26 will also be the second registry day, this registration will be for the general election in November only in municipalitites with a population exceeding 5,000. The Geran law says:

"It is the intention of this act that in cities, towns, townships, boroughs and villages exceeding 5,000 inhabitants, there shall be two registry lists—a primary registry list and a general registry list—and that the primary registry list shall consist of the names on the poll book of the general election of the preceding year, with the corrections and additions herein provided for." In other words, any voter may register on primary day for the general election in November, but may not register that day for the primary election, as formerly.

On the primary election day the polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m., instead of from 1 to 9 p. m., as formerly.

The third registry day in municipalities exceeding a population of 5,000 will be Tuesday, October 24, while in municipalities with a population less than 5,000 the final registry day will be Tuesday, October 31.

On or before August 20 the State Civil Service Commission must certify the results of the examination for election officers to the county judges and the county boards of election. On or before August 25 the county boards of election must select the members of the election boards from the eligible lists certified, as already mentioned.

Petitions for nominations for county officers must be filed on or before September 1. On September 5 the district boards of registry and election must meet for organization, electing one of their number as judge who shall be chairman and another as inspector. On or before September 6 petitions endorsing the candidates to be voted for within a single municipality must be filled with the municipal clerk. Petitions providing for a single borough, ward or township, and delegates to conventions, must be filed with the municipal clerks on or before September 11.

On September 15 the county boards of election must sit to revise and correct the registry list.

The State conventions of the political parties must be held on Tuesday, October 3. Here is one of the biggest changes effected by the Geran law. The law eliminates entirely the old-time State conventions, with their picturesque features, blaring bands, parading delegations and finally the hot political fights.

This year the State convention of each party will consist of the candidates nominated at the primaries September 26 for the State Senate and Assembly; Governor Wilson as a member of the Democratic State convention; members of the State Senate who are the respective holdovers of their party, and lastly, the members of the State committee. These State conventions will formulate the State platforms. Under the Geran law the members of the State committees are elected in the year in which the Governor is chosen, so the State conventions will have nothing to do with this matter.

Election day will be Tuesday, November 7, with the polls open from 6 o'clock a. m. to 7 o'clock p. m.

ELKS VICTORIOUS

Defeat Their Antlered Brothers at Burlington by Score of 13 to 6.

MAC LAUGHLIN'S GREAT WORK.

Plainfielders Given a Royal Reception Followed by a Love Feast—Other Games Scheduled.

The Plainfield Elks baseball team returned from Burlington, last night, with an additional prong on their antlers, denoting that another game had been added to the winning side of the list. The score was 13 to 6, and those who accompanied the invading mit-wearing Elks say that the game was a beauty, and would have been had the invaders met defeat.

Up to the sixth inning neither side scored. In that round the visitors got to Moran and belted his delivery to the four corners of the reservation, scoring four runs. In the next inning three more came across via the wallop route and just to make things more even for the two beatings handed the visitors by the Burlingtonites last year, six runs were hammered home in the last session.

"Warry" MacLaughlin had the hitsmiths of the local herd, backing away from his swerving shoots with lowered heads and clubs a-hanging, in all but the last two innings. A perceptible slowing down in his blinding speed let the locals jar loose a few bingles from the assortment and prevent a shut-out. After being "holed" a couple of times, Warry again played them safe and there was no more cantering on the pillow-studded lanes.

Individually and collectively the swatsmen from 885 fattened their averages at Moran's expense, nibbling away at his forbidden fruits for long and short, earthly and etherial bites. This sort of hitting coupled with reliability, agility and sureness in handling the sphere, while on defence, was a big factor and a delightful feature of the exhibition. The fragile and mediocre hitting by those whose glen was being turned into an arena, with them on the scratch, coupled with the scattered, and at times, loose work afield prevented the defence from being as obstinate as anticipated, except in the first five innings.

Aside from the pleasure of winning the visitors were treated and entertained most royally, not because it befitted them as victors, for the social side of the visit began immediately upon alighting at the station, where automobiles were in waiting and coveyed the team and rooters to the Burlington Yacht Clubhouse on the banks of the Delaware. Here a lunch was served and then the autos were again pressed into service to take the company to the Masonic Home at Mt. Holly. This was inspected throughout after which the party was taken to the ball field. After the game a dinner that was in reality a love feast was served in the clubhouse, where the evening was pleasantly passed, fraternizing with the vanquished but not annihilated.

On the twenty-fourth the Burlington balltossing "Bills" will make a visitation to the Plainfield reservation for the purpose of retrieving their lost belts. Next Thursday Brooklyn will be the visitors and the following week the Bridgeport Elks will play here.

Undergoes Operation.

Miss Anna Force, one of the waitresses of Timbo's restaurant was seized with acute appendicitis, while at work yesterday afternoon. She did not know at the time the serious nature of her illness and walked to her home on West Front street, where Dr. C. B. Lufburrow made an examination. This morning her condition was such that Dr. Murray was called in consultation and recommended her removal to the hospital where the patient was operated on this afternoon.

Claimed Neighbors were Noisy.

Elizabeth and Henry Doran, of Grove and Howard streets, appeared before Recorder Dolliver in the borough police court this morning, on the complaint of Mrs. Jennie Oesman, a next door neighbor. She alleged that the Dorans were disorderly in their conduct about the house to such a degree that it was impossible to get a minute's rest. After hearing both sides of the case Recorder Dolliver gave the offending parties a lecture and suspended sentence.

BETTER SERVICE

Police Board Order Ambulance Removed to Headquarters as Experiment.

REQUEST OF HOSPITAL BOARD

Police Pension Retirement Ordinance Recommended in Its Original Form—Other Committees Meet.

For the purpose of bettering the ambulance service when it is required in case of accidents, this conveyance will be kept at police headquarters in the future, if the plan as outlined at the meeting of the police committee last night works out effectively. This is a change that has been suggested in the past and will now be put into effect as an experiment. If it proves satisfactory and improves the service, the ambulance will hereafter be kept at the service of the police department. Another important matter discussed at the meeting was the patrolmen's pension retirement ordinance, which will now be recommended for passage in its original form.

The change in the stabling place of the ambulance was made partly at the request of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital. Heretofore the ambulance has been kept at the stables of the Plainfield Cab Company, in consideration of which, the company was paid $3 for every trip the conveyance was called upon to make. If no trips were ordered the cab company received no money. As there are days at a time when no calls are received, this arrangement was not very satisfactory to the cab company, but it is understood that no objection had been made on this account.

In addition to doing away with the $3 item every time the wagon is needed, it is felt that more efficient service can be maintained. It was not fair to suppose that the cab company would keep a horse in readiness at all times for the ambulance, when there was more porfitable work it could be doing. The same horse that is kept at police headquarters for the patrol wagon can be used for the ambulance, the committeemen feel, without any great amount of risk of being taken.

On numerous occasions in the past the patrol wagon has been pressed into service in place of the ambulance without any conflict and another feature that will be overcome is the fact that men are always at hand to accompany the wagon, which is not the case as at present.

Regarding the pension ordinance the word "shall" was re-written into the measure in place of the word "may", in the clause that says "A patrolman after serving twenty-five years in the service and having reached the age of fifty-five years or over, shall be retired upon application," instead of "may" be retired upon application. It was the sense of the committee that an officer even after reaching the required age, if still physically fit would prefer to remain in the department rather than to enter some other business with a pension of half pay from the city.

The finance and street committees also met, briefly discussing measures under advisement, but not far enough advanced as yet to make public.

CHARLES EARL ARRESTED; ON CHARGE OF THEFT.

Charles Earl, colored, who for some time resided on West Third street, was arrested in Orange, yesterday, on request of Chief Kiely, of this city, to whom complaint was made by Edward Lee, colored, of South Second street, charging the theft of a suit of clothes.

After taking the suit Earl left town and went to the home of his parents in Orange. He had sold the suit, valued at $20 for $3. It was recovered and will be returned to Lee. The hearing has been set for tomorrow morning.

Timbo Social Club Outing.

At the meeting of the Timbo Social Club held last night the committee appointed some time ago to make arrangements for an outing, reported that plans are under way to hold the annual outing August 27, at the Driving Park. The nature of the outing has not been determined, as there is a division of opinion as to whether it would be advisable to make it a clam bake or not. Each member will be allowed to bring one friend.

MISS SHRAGER WINS PEACE LEAGUE PRIZE

Miss Matilda Shrager, of this city, a graduate of the Trenton Normal School, has been notified that she won the first prize of $75 for her essay on "The Duty and Opportunity of the Schools in the International Peace Movement." The prize was offered by the School Peace League, and was open to the seniors of all the Normal Schools in the United States. Last year about seventy normal schools were represented in the entries, this year the number being larger.

Mrs. Fannie Fern Andrews, the secretary of the league, said that not only was Miss Shrager's essay the winning one, but that it was worthy of permanent preservation. The essay will be issued by the league as part of its propaganda.

TWO JURY TRIALS IN DISTRICT COURT

In the District Court this morning there were two jury trials. The first one called was the suit brought by George J. Finger against Mrs. Ruthetta Drake to recover $60 which Mr. Finger expended in preliminaries over the purchase of the property at 28 Howard street. He was given to understand that mortgages of $800 and $200 stood against the place and at the time the price was agreed upon it was understood he should assume them. Mr. Finger paid $25 to bind the bargain and in the search, which cost $25 it was discovered that the $800 mortgage had been foreclosed. Other items brought the amount of his expense to $60 the amount sued for. A verdict in his favor for the full amount was rendered. Robert Newton Crane represented Mr. Finger and S. S. Swackhamer defended Mrs. Drake.

D. Foster Updyke was sued by Charles J. McNabb for $10, part of a fee for searching a piece of property. The amount of the ordinary search was $25 which was paid, but owing to additional expense Mr. McNabb had been put to by reason of a Supreme Court matter in connection with the transaction, the total amount reached $35. Mr. McNabb was represented by Robert Newton Crane and Mr. Updyke defended himself. A verdict in favor of Mr. McNabb for the full amount was rendered.

Rev. C. J. Greenwood, pastor of the Westfield Baptist church, will occupy the pulpit at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday. There will be communion at 11 o'clock, following the Sunday-school session at 9:45.

ANOTHER HEARING

Borough Citizens Again Discuss Question of Widening Somerset Street.

SPECIAL ELECTION SUGGESTED.

Mayor Smalley and W. J. Conroy Engage in Debate—Ordinance Up Tonight for Third Reading.

Another large crowd of boroughites attended the second public hearing on the question of the widening of Somerset street, between Jackson avenue and Johnson's drive before the Borough Council last night. Many of the same arguments pro and con were again presented by the adherents to both sides of the proposition but Mayor Newton B. Smalley stated that the object of the meeting was to have the matter of the widening thoroughly explained to those who did not understand the intentions of the ordinance.

A hot debate was participated in by Mayor Smalley and W. J. Conroy during the meeting and the arguments continued for some time after the motion to adjourn had been carried. Mr. Conroy did not object to the proposed widening, but maintained that the present was not the time to do it, on the grounds that the street will have to be torn up again when the sewers are laid. The Mayor answered this statement by saying that North Plainfield was no nearer sewers today than it was when the question was first agitated. Mr. Conroy said he wished he had been a member of the sewer commission for he would have liked to have been able to serve in that capacity, and, that he would have given his whole heart and soul to the work. He did not criticise the efforts of the present administration in the direction of a sewer system, but continued to hold that the borough should consider the matter of a sewer before it spent money for widening a street.

In continuing his remarks, Mr. Conroy said that the cost of widening and ripping up the street for the sewers and repaving would be in the neighborhood of $30,000, or almost double the cost of the work which would be necessary if the improvement was potsponed until after the sewers were started. He pointed out that the only way to attract better citizens to the borough was by having a sewer system and not by widening the street. In speaking of the widening itself, he said that Mayor Smalley might not be Mayor forever, although some people say that he will, and some other Mayor might find the residents of the street crouching on the street line. "When the sewers are put through," he added, "our tax assessment will be increased one third. The borough is still an infant and needs a nurse. If we spend too much money we shall find that we have a sick baby on our hands."

To this speech the Mayor replied that there was no man in the borough who had done more toward a sewer system that W. J. Buttfield, the present chairman of the sewer commission, which has done all in its power. He said that the expense of widening the street will not be so great when it is stretched out over several years and that many of the people who now desire sewers will not want them when they receive their tax bills. "The character of the growth of the borough is an important thing," continued the Mayor, "and the present growth is dangerous to our tax rate. Small houses with large families are going up in North Plainfield and whereas we receive only $25 in taxes from a house, it costs the borough $150 to educate the children living there. We want to bring settlers to the borough who will build costly houses, if they are to have large families, or our tax rate will continue to be enchanced."

Dr. H. K. Carroll agreed with Mr. Conroy that the time for the widening was when the sewers were put through. He also agreed that the $30,000 necessary for the paving and repaving of the widened street be put toward a permanent pavement for the roadway. He said that the borough had as many natural advantages as Plainfield, but that the city's tax rate was lower because it could acquire money from the various industries located there and from the people direct. He complimented the present administration of the borough for what it had done and said that Mayor Smalley was better qualified to express an opinion on the street widening than any other man in North Plainfield but he held that the voice of the majority of the property-owners along the street should bear more weight than that of one man.

Dr. Carroll then suggested that the question of the improvement of Somerset street be submitted to the vote of the people at a special elec-

HEAR OF SON'S MARRIAGE AT SILVER WEDDING.

While celebrating their silver wedding anniversary in their home Wednesday night at 67 Henry street, Orange, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Coen were much surprised when their son John F. Coen, announced his marriage on May 23, to Miss Estella Whitford, of Hill street, Orange. He then brought the bride forward for the parental blessing. Among the hundred or more guests present few knew of the marriage of the son, and after the announcement the affair resolved itself into a double celebration.

Another son, James Coen, surprised his parents in April, by announcing that he and Miss Mary Dwyer, of 59 Ridgewood avenue, Newark, had been married last September.

The son John was married in St. John's church, Orange, by Rev. Francis Reilley, assistant rector. The witnesses, Bernard Burns and Miss Mary Burns were present at the celebration last night. The bridegroom is well known as the manager of the Orange A. C.

Dr. Meade is a writer of considerable note on financial works. He is the author of "Trust Finance" and a contributor to various financial journals.

A tourist was being conveyed through a rough country by a driver who boasted of his knowledge of all the roads, saying that he knew every stisk and stone along the highway. After they had passed over the smooth piece of road they began to go bumpity-bump for several miles. Just as the buckboard came out of a hole about two feet deep the driver turned and said: "How do you like riding on a buckboard?"

At that instant the tourist happened to be about six feet in the air, and remarked:

"I wouldn't miss it for the world."

ARREST ENDS POSSE'S HUNT

Following the fourth attack within the last two months upon girls in the outskirts of Milburn Township, an arrest was made early yesterday morning. The prisoner has been identified as the assailant by the victim and also by a woman witness of the last attack. He is Nicholas Peiocco, of Springfield avenue, Summit, who is already under bail of $500, charged with one of the other attacks.

The latest victim is Miss Lillian Evans, seventeen years old, of White Oak Ridge. She was attacked near her home Wednesday afternoon.

The arrest of Pelocco was made after a search of the vicinity of West Milburn and Summit for more than seven hours by a posse, headed by Chairman Henry S. Acken, of the Milburn Township Committee, and Police Justice William E. Summers, of Milburn.

Mrs. Patrick Ginty, who lives near the scene of the attack on the Evans girl, witnessed the affair, she says. She called for help and her cries caused the man to run away. The woman assisted the girl to the home of the latter's aunt, Mrs. James Henderson, about a half-mile away, where she became hysterical. The girl is now under the care of Dr. Wellington Campbell, of Short Hills.

The charge in the case in which Pelocco is already under bonds was preferred by a servant girl of Short Hills. The alleged attack took place early last month. Pelocco was arrested by Policeman Thomas Hurley, and identified by the girl as her assailant.

The others attacked are Helen Deubert, of Turnpike road, and Elsie Dengler, of Hillside avenue, Springfield. Both are school girls. The Deubert girl was in a hospital for some time after the attack.

BIRDMEN READY FOR TRANS-JERSEY FLIGHT.

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—Charles K. Hamilton, Lincoln Beachey and Hugh A. Robinson, the aviators who will tomorrow make the flight from New York to Philadelphia, competing for the $5,000 purse hung up by Gimbel Brothers for the first aeroplane race ever started in the United States, arrived here yesterday for conference with the race officials to perfect the details and examine the landing field on Belmont plateau. Hamilton made the New York-Philadelphia return trip on June 12 last year and is sure he can defeat his two rivals.

Speaking of the race Aviator Robinson said:

"In the flight from New York to Philadelphia, I don't anticipate any difficulty. I know what can be done with a Curtiss biplane. I have the greatest confidence in my new motor, and I expect to fly from Governor's Island to Fairmount Park without stopping. The speed made will depend somewhat on the air conditions, but it is possible that the cross-country race will be won in fast time. Of course, we mean to break the record if we can."

The annuonced route of the biers is from Governor's Island, New York Harbor, up the North River to the Gimbel store in Manhattan and thence over Jersey City. From Jersey City the fliers are to follow the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks to Trenton, from which point they will follow the Delaware river to Philadelphia.

MAN MISSING AFTER LEAVING PATERSON BANK.

Paterson, Aug. 4.—Last seen after he had drawn $1,885 from the Paterson Saving Institution, search is being made by the police for Edmond De Konning, a contracting builder, of 94 Highland avenue. As he is the owner of considerable real estate, it is feared that he may have been the victim of foul play. He disappeared last Tuesday morning.

The morning of that day, De Konning bade his wife good-bye before going to work. He had the contract for building a house for James Furry, at East Twenty-first street and Twenty-third avenue. This was so nearly completed that an order for $1,885, signed by Mr. Furry and payable to De Konning,, was given to the contractor.

Mr. De Konning left his work at 10 o'clock with the statement that he was going down town, and went, so far as known directly to the savings institution. There he presented the order, which was cashed. Mr. De Konning placed the money in his pocket and left the bank. So far as is known he was not seen again.

REV. G. S. MESSEROLL DEAD.

New Brunswick, Aug. 4.—Rev. George Story Messeroll, pastor of Pitman Methodist Episcopal church, died yesterday morning of Bright's disease. He had been in ill health since he came here last March and had been in bed for several weeks.

Mr. Messeroll entered the Methodist Conference in 1882, and had held charges at St. Paul's, Camden; Atlantic City, Trenton, Penn's Grove, Asbury Church, Long Branch; Trinity, Millville; Burlington, Lakewood, Glassboro and this city. His widow and several children survive.

F. F. PROCTOR TO BUILD A MILLION DOLLAR THEATRE.

Revised architect's plans for a million dollar theatre to be erected at Bijou Park, Newark, this fall have been approved by F. F. Proctor. Construction work will be begun in a very short time. This will make the twentieth important amusement enterprise owned and controlled by Mr. Proctor. It is proposed to make the Bijou Park house one of the most ornate and commodious theatres in the country. The services of a number of the highest class interior decorators of America and Europe have already been engaged and several special commissions have been given to celebrated artists to assist in the work.

Following the agreement entered into by Messrs. Proctor and Keith, which terminated their partnership dissolution suit last week, Mr. Proctor again became the leading figure in vaudeville managerial circles. He is now interested in more than 100 amusement properties, besides owning the twenty houses, a list of which follows:

Proctor's Albany; the Annex, Albany; Proctor's Bijou, Park Albany; Proctor's Troy; Proctor's Cohoes; Proctor's Newark; Proctor's Bijou Dream, Newark; Proctor's Lyric, Newark; Proctor's Bijou Dream, Elizabeth; Proctor's Broad Street theatre, Elizabeth; Proctor's Perth Amboy theatre; Proctor's Plainfield; Proctor's Opera House, Plainfield; Proctor's Mount Vernon; Proctor's Port Chester; Proctor's Twenty-third street; Proctor's Fifty-eighth street; Proctor's East 125th street and an equity in the Fifth avenue theatre.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald D. Davis, of Lakewood, who have been spending July in Plainfield, will motor today to Toms River, accompanied by Mrs. Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, for a week's visit at Pine Beach Inn.

must answer for their official action; and the voters must study the men and the measures to act with intelligence and effect. It thus puts the official on his best behavior and the voter into the best school of government. The commission plan has been thoroughly tested and has proved a complete success.

There are many honest men who are not in favor of commission government—possibly they have not read the article by Judson C. Welliver in the August number of Munsey's magazine, and in all probability, they have not stopped to think that united, dogged, persistent, determined bad boss opposition is argument unanswerable and reason irresistable for the reform. Investigators, probing deep into city slime and graft cry aloud for it, while the bad bosses, standing at bay, cry out against it. Let the bad bosses step down; let the people step up."

tion. If such a step was not taken he said that he would ask the Mayor and Common Council to use their best judgment in spending the borough money.

Arthur A. Cannon alleged that the Mayor and Mr. Williams were the only borough citizen who favored the widening at the last public hearing. He said that there was a natural drainage on the street and there was no need of storm sewers. He asked how many new buildings had been erected since the lower end of the street had been widened and said that as there would be no stores on the upper end, there was no need of any improvement there. In concluding his remarks Mr. Cannon alleged that the Mayor and several members of the council had been influential in circulating a petition for the widening of the street. To this the Mayor declared that such a statement was false and that he had never asked a man to sign a petition and his personal efforts in the matter had been slight. He was interested because he believed it to be a good thing.

In explaining the proposition to the objectors, the Mayor pointed out that the prime object in it was to establish a proper drainage for the street. He stated that the property values would be increased nearly 25 per cent. by the widening and that he had been authorized by a prominent citizen of the borough to say that the properties on the street would bring at least from $500 to $1,000 more after the improvement. He said that the curb would only be moved back five feet and in some cases the trees could be moved back too. There are only two or three places according to the Mayor, where the improvement would damage property and these are where the houses are at present too close to the street line.

Mr. Cannon in speaking again said that the street above the school house was at present better than it was in front of the school, where it had been widened, for there was a double trolley track there and above there was only a single track. Mr. Cannon then asked if there couldn't be some traffic regulations put upon the stone wagons at the upper end of Somerset street and the Mayor replied that Mr. Conroy had been one of the worst offenders in blocking the street with wagons.

John Steiner pointed out that it was only fair to move the curb back five feet from the legal width of the street, for in some places the roadway was wider than in others. J. A. Powlison stated that he did not believe the widening would increase the values at all and in many cases they would be lessened.

All the members of the council were present at last night's hearing except B. R. Waldron. The council chamber gallery was filled with citizens and the firemen's bedroom was again used to accomodate the crowd. The ordinance for the widening comes up for its third reading tonight at the regular August meeting of the Borough Council. It is expected that a large crowd will attend tonight's session although nothing will be done regarding the sewer question.

MOTORISTS' FOE TO BE QUIZZED BY GRAND JURY.

Atlantic City, Aug. 4.—Visiting and resident motorists, to whom Justice of the Peace Weeks, of Pleasantville, has been a terror, are keenly interested in a notification sent Weeks by Prosecutor Goldenberg, that he has acted without the formalities of the law in some of the cases against automobilists tried in his court and that complaint of his alleged actions will be lodged before the grand jury at the first opportunity. Another complaint, it is said, will be lodged with State Supervisor of Motor Vehicles Smith, at Trenton, because of many of the summary actions of the Pleasantville squire.

One of these complaints is to the effect that a broker residing in Philadelphia was practically convicted by mail. The man, it is alleged, received a letter from the magistrate informing him that his machine was seen going at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour on July 20, and also informing him that a fine of $15, with costs, had been imposed. The accused motorist contended that his car was not out of the garage on the date in question, and because of defense the magistrate is alleged to have reduced the fine to $10.

It has been the practice of Weeks, it is stated, to sit on the porch of his home with a pair of field glasses and a stop watch, and the evidence thus secured has resulted in the arrest and imposition of fines in several cases.

GOVERNOR HOLDS UP SULLIVAN RESIGNATION

Sea Girt, New Jersey, Aug. 4.—Governor Wilson stated yesterday noon that he had not yet acted on Judge Mark A. Sullivan's resignation, and that he will not act on it today. The Governor's failure to accept the resignation led to rumors that the Sullivan situation in Jersey City in the Democratic camp is still very much unsettled. The Governor refuses to discuss the mayorality for publicantion in any way. His attitude is that of absolute non-interference.

The gossip here is that Judge Sullivan's friends are not all convinced that he could beat Mayor Wittpenn for the nomination. Some of them doubt the wisdom of his resignation in view of the mixup in the Jersey City Democratic camp. It is rumored that some of the judge's friends are quietly exerting pressure against the acceptance of his resignation.

The Worst of It.

"I'm sorry you've got to leave Eden and go to work simply because I gave you the rest of the apple," said contrite Eve.

"Never mind," answered Adam. "The ultimate consumer always gets the worst of it."—Washington Star.

PLAYGROUND RULES ARE SATISFACTORY

While there may be some differences regarding the wisdom of adopting a regular schedule for the several playgrounds in the city, it is a little too early to pass final judgment on the plan as worked out by the playground commission. The schedule is one that has been approved for playground work in other cities and it is believed that it will prove satisfactory in Plainfield. Mrs. Elory G. Bowers, who is associated with the work here as general supervisory, has had an extensive experience in the conduct of playgrounds and the commission has been able to secure much valuable information and aid from her for the local work.

There seems to be a mistaken idea as to children from one part of the city being permitted only to go to certain playgrounds in various parts of the city for the purpose of taking care of the children in the several districts. There is no rule compelling children to attend any one playground, as reported, but the commissioners want the children to attend the playground in their own district and not flock to any particular one. If they go to one recreation spot, there would be no need for the other playgrounds. The commissioners want it understood that the playgrounds are for children up to the age of twelve years.

THE GOOD FISHING AT SEWAREN STILL CONTINUES.

Boats are still going to the red bouy and cinder fishing beds at Sewaren and are still bringing in the fish. Plainfielders have been extremely lucky this week and some of the other catches by out-of-town people are as follows:

Gusner, Newark, 18 weaks; William Webber, Rahway, 14 weaks; Detective Searg, George Conger, Rahway, 9 weaks, 2 blues; Chas. Segelhorsd, Jersey City, 9 weaks; Nelson Albertson, Port Reading, 8 weaks; B. Impastato, Elizabeth, 14 weaks, 1 fluke; Philip Bauman, Woodbridge, 19 weaks; Frank Bottler, Rahway, 19 weaks; Henry Turner, Port Reading, 16 weaks, 1 fluke; G. A. Ripp, Jr., Bayonne, 47 weaks.

Miss Louise Meyer, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at Muhlenberg Hospital Sunday night, is improving so well that it is expected that she will be able to return home next week.

Robert Walpole, the veteran fisherman, laid aside court duties yesterday, and enjoyed a fishing trip at the Passaic River. The result of the days' sport netted a big catch.

The work of finishing up the McVey double house on Front street is being rushed, as the work is to be completed by September 1st.

Mrs. Elliott T. Collins, of Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. William R. Buckley, of Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ward, of Grand street, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Marecia, of Brooklyn, for the week.

Miss Ruth Dunn has returned from a two weeks' outing, enjoying the breezes at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

New Market had a little burglar scare when an attempt was made to enter the home of George Corriell a few days ago. The intruder was seen climbing through the window of the house when he was discovered by Miss Margaret Corriell. She screamed and the and the man becoming frightened took to his heels. A search was made for him but after a long hunt it was found impossible to locate him.

The Dunellen Steam Laundry, which changed hands last week, was taken under control by its new owners, William Beiler and his son, George Beiler, of New Market, this week.

Adam Dealman and Charles Smith enjoyed a ride to Boynton Beach on their bicycles this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Carpenter, who were recently married, have returned from their honeymoon.

Mrs. William Ledden is entertaining friends from New York.

Miss Loretta Sofield has gone to Metuchen to visit friends.

Proctor's Big Bill.

"Bud" Fisher, the clever cartoonist, appearing at Proctor's theatre this week, is making a hit. He originated "Mutt" and "Jeff" now so well-known to everyone and he amuses everyone with his work. At each performance he sketches persons sitting in the audience. The Curtis Trio present one of the best acts seen here in a long time, the singing and piano feature being unusually good. George A. Clark & Co., in the Irish character sketch, "A Son of Killarney," is another hit, while the Original Kids in a comedy singing and talking act, are really funny. The whole bill is a fine one.

IDEAL WEATHER FOR TRINITY EXCURSION

The largest crowd of the season went to Asbury Park yesterday on the excursion of the Trinity Reformed, Netherwood Reformed and Marconnier chapel Sunday schools, there being nearly 1,400 on the two sections. Over 800 of this number were grown people, while about 600 were children. The first section of the train made a record trip to the Park, leaving this city at 8:20 and arriving at the Asbury station at 9:55. A delayed excursion train on the tracks caused the second section to be a half hour late in reaching the shore.

A better day for an excursion could not have been desired for although the clouds in the early morning were threatening and possibly caused many to remain in this city, the weather at the shore was ideal. The temperature of the surf was 75 degrees, many of the summer visitors there saying that the water was better than it had been at any other time this season. A cool sea breeze blew during the entire day and although it made the air a trifle chilly after bathing in the warm water, it prevented the excursionists from suffering an intense heat.

No accidents were reported to any of the Plainfielders but an absence of large crowds was noticed on the boardwalk. The reason for this was explained in that only one other excursion was at the Park yesterday. Both sections were late in starting for this city last night, the first section pulling out of the Asbury Park station at 7:30 and arriving in this city at 8:55. The second section came in ten minutes later.

MAJOR MARTIN TO COMPETE AT CAMP

Major William B. Martin left today for an extended trip the object of which is participation in the matches of the National Rifle Association to be shot at Camp Perry, Ohio, August 14 to September 1. Major Martin will be gone about a month, returning East in time for the Sea Girt tournament of the New Jersey State Rifle Association, which opens the first of September.

The first leg of the trip will be by motor to Meriden, Conn., where Major Martin will remain about five days, starting for Camp Perry on August 9. During the first few days at Camp Perry he will be a free lance in the carious matches, but will later be joined by the following as representatives of New Jersey for competition in several of the large National matches: General Spencer, captain; Lieutenant-Colonel William Libby, Arthur Rowland and William Tewes, Major Winfield Scott Price, Captains Adolph Pfiel, John Malcolm, William Higgins, Owen Smith and H. PAPUAN SAVAGES

The Most Treacherous of All the South Sea Natives.

A TRIBE OF HEAD HUNTERS.

The Solomon Islanders Kill and Eat Their Enemies as an Incident of Their Weird Religious Rites—Storming a House In a Treetop.

The name Papuan is that given to the dark skinned people who inhabit the greater number of islands in the part of the Pacific ocean known as Polynesia and Melanesia and whose headquarters, as it were, are in the great island of Papua or New Guinea. Under this description come the inhabitants of the Solomon islands.

So evil has been the reputation of the Solomon islanders that until quite recently they were carefully avoided, and very little was known about them. They have the name of being the most treacherous of all the south sea natives, yet, considering the treatment they have received in the past at the hands of white men, this is not to be wondered at. Indeed, the wonder is that they allow any white man at all in their country. But now that they have had a chance of seeing some more favorable specimens than the dregs of humanity who formerly drifted to the south seas they are much improved, and a man who treats them fairly may, as a rule, go among them without fear.

Still, even now there is a beautiful uncertainty about the life of a south sea trader. One day he may be surrounded by cringing natives who obey his every word. But some night, if he has cheated the Papuan too grossly, there is murder in the moonlight, and the trader is never heard of more. Often, however, there seems to be no reason for the natives turning against the whites. It is simply that they object to having a trader in their midst. So they burn his goods and end by killing him.

The Solomon islanders are as keen head hunters as the Borneans and every year, except where they are held in check by the British government, set out on head hunting raids pure and simple. Although cannibalism is still practiced in the wilder parts of the group, it is nowadays mostly a religious ceremony and not a matter of diet. The islanders do not generally kill and eat people for enjoyment, but either because their religion demands a human sacrifice or because a head is needed for some ceremony.

In Ysabel, one of the largest islands in the Solomon group, the natives build houses in the highest trees to escape from the attacks of head hunting parties, who sometimes come as far as 200 miles in their search for skulls. One of these houses was built in a tree 150 feet high. All the lower branches had been cut off, so that the stem was quite bare until the platform, some eighty feet from the ground, was reached. Access was had to the house by a rickety ladder composed of rungs lashed to a stout pole with rope of twisted cane. When an attack is expected the women and children take refuge in these houses, while the men keep watch. They warn each other of the approach of a fleet by a curious cry which once heard is never to be forgotten. These houses are substantially built, as often the inhabitants have to withstand a long siege in them. The floor is made of plaited bamboo laid on a layer of bark which rests upon the platform. The walls are of bamboo, and the roof is thatched with sage palm. The particular house to which I have referred measured 30 by 15 feet, and forty persons had been known to take refuge in it. If the attacking party land and the men cannot resist them successfully they, too, ascend to the tree house. A pile of large stones is always kept ready for emergencies outside the door of the platform, and these the men hurl down on their foes. Sometimes, however, the enemy construct a shelter beneath which they can work away and cut the tree down, and they have even been known to ascend the tree while the inhabitants were off their guard and set fire to the house.

Nowadays, however, head hunting is indulged in only on special occasions. Often, indeed, when a head is required the chief gives notice of the fact to the different tribes and offers a reward for one. The chiefs of the villages look around, and if in any of them there is a native who has made himself objectionable for any reason they decide that his head shall come off and the reward be earned. The victim is not told of his impending fate, but is carefully watched by a man who has been told to secure his head. He watches every movement of his victim and when a favorable opportunity presents itself quickly and remorselessly kills him, cuts off his head and carries it to the chief, who pays for it in shell money. This even happens to white men if they have made themselves unpopular. Money is paid over for the skull, which goes to join the chief's collection.—John Foster Frazer in New York Tribune.

Proud of It.

Buried In Secret.

Two ancient kings were buried in secret. Attila, king of the Huns, after his siege of Rome, died in Hungary A. D. 453. His soldiers, desirous of giving their great leader a right royal burial, inclosed his body first in a casket of gold, this in one of silver and this in one of lead, and transported it into a desert. There slaves were selected, and under the direction of men who were sworn to secrecy they dug the grave of the dead monarch. When this was accomplished no traces of the spot were left. The slaves were all cruelly slain.

Alaric, king of the Goths, the celebrated conqueror of Rome, died when with his army at Cozenza, south Italy. His men turned the course of a river, interred the body of their sovereign, with much treasure, in its bed and restored the stream to its channel.

No man has ever lighted on the resting place of either of these kings, who in this respect resemble Moses, of whom it is written, "No man knoweth of his sepulcher unto this day."

Died From Bad Writing.

German handwriting attains a degree of illegibility unknown in Latin script. A tragic instance of this fact was afforded by the death of Johann Bacher, an Austrian musicial of the last century. Bacher spent most of his leisure for fifteen years in compiling a history of the Viennese opera. When the manuscript was completed he submitted it to the Imperial academy, which had promised to publish it. In three months it was returned with a statement that no member of the academy could decipher it. Bacher then sought to have it copied, but no copyist capable of deciphering it was to be found. As a last resource he determined to dictate his work to an amanuensis only to discover that the greater part of the manuscript was illegible even to himself. The thought of his wasted years of labor unhinged his brain, and in a fit of depression he committed suicide.

Going Back a Long Way.

Pick up any peerage book and you will find it bristling with ancestral names whose presence is much more difficult to explain than that of the fly in the amber. And as you descend in the social scale the fictions multiply—from the pedigrees of the landed gentry to the family trees proudly cherished in hundreds of middle class homes. But these lineages, aspiring as they are, are of mushroom growth compared with many that are claimed with seeming honesty. At Mostyn hall you may see a vellum roll, seven yards long, headed by no less famous an ancestor than "Adam, son of God." Another pedigree at the college of heralds starts thus modestly with Adam and the garden of Eden, and Wales has many a family tree which traces descent with unerring hand from the same remote origin.

What Became of the Trousers.

Of Judge Parry's many stories of the Manchester county court that about the comedy of a man's Sunday trousers is one of the best. In the plaintiff's box was a woman, in the defendant's an elderly collier. The plaintiff stated her case: "I lent yon mon's missis my mon's Sunday trousers to pay 'is rent with, an' I want 'em back." The defendant at first replied, "There's nowt in it at all." Pressed for a more definite reply, he scowled at the judge and protested, "Why, the 'ole street knows all about them trousers." But Judge Parry was not the "'ole street," and he patiently encouraged the defendant to talk until he got the explanation, "Why, yon woman 'an my missis drank them Sunday trousers."—Westminster Gazette.

Catching Cuttlefish.

Cuttlefish require deft handling. The bait, which consists of a rough chunk of fish fastened to a hook or even tied to a string, is not dropped over the side to be swallowed, but to excite the gustatory organs of the cuttles and to be slowly pulled up until those mollusks have reached the surface in a vain attempt to embrace it with their long arms. Then in a moment a gaff is plunged into the leathery mantle of the would be diner, and the creature is unceremoniously flung into the boat.

His Qualifications.

Writing to the leader of a string orchestra, an aspirant for a position was requested to state his qualifications. Complying by mail, he said, among other things:

Yours req'd. I can play the fiddle and some on tromboan, also sillyfoan. Have played floot at parties, but prefer pickleos. Respt., O. M.

P. S.—Have taken twelve lessons on the gatar. Would be willing to teach myself the cornit. Terms, union raits. Respt., O. M.

—New York Press.

A Double Barreled Grievance.

"What is Smith's grievance against the railway company?"

"He has two grievances. One of them is that some of the trains don't stop at his station and the other that after he gets in the trains they lose time by stopping at other stations!"—London Telegraph.

Helping the Diagnosis.

Doctor—My dear lady, you are in perfect health. I can't find a thing the matter with you. Patient—I wish you'd try again, doctor. I do so want to go away to recuperate.—Century.

Candor.

Shopper—Can I hang this paper on myself? Salesman—Yes, sir, but it would really look better on the wall.—Harper's Bazar.

Discretion of speech is more than eloquence.—Francis Bacon.

NEWPORT Coal and Gas Range

—a modern kitchen convenience that housewives will be quick to appreciate.

Embraces every good feature of the regular single oven "Newport," with the added capacity of the gas attachment.

This is one of the greatest improvements ever brought out by the

BOYNTON FURNACE CO.

It nearly doubles the cooking capacity of the range, as both coal and gas may be used at the same time if desired. Besides, this handy range gives, in compact form, both a winter necessity and a summer convenience. It solves the "cook stove" problem. Ask your dealer to show you this best of all combination ranges—the "Newport."

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

THE CATSKILL GNOMES.

Legend of the Ugly Elves and Hendrick Hudson and His Men.

In the Catskill mountains, back of Grand Hotel station, is a large amphitheater where, Indian legend tells us, live the ugly little Catskill dwarfs with bushy beards and eyes like pigs who can do many marvelous things.

They work surpassingly well in metals, and it is from their forges that in autumn comes the haze of Indian summer.

But their most marvelous feat is the brewing of a liquor which shortens the bodies and swells the heads of all who drink it.

It was to their tender mercies that Hendrick Hudson and his men fell, having landed from the Half Moon and lost their way among the mountains. The gnomes held a mad carouse in their honor, capering and dancing around the amphitheater and bringing forth great flagons of their magic wine.

Hudson and his men drank freely and deeply, only to become misshapen, ugly dwarfs from that time forth. Since then they have wandered around the Catskill mountains, appearing to men once in twenty years.

The last time they were due to be seen was in 1909. So now they will not appear again until 1929, when any one daring enough can go up to the mountains to test for himself the truth of the legend.—Alice Phebe Eldridge in New York World.

EXQUISITE PAIN.

The Fifth and Dental Nerves Are the Most Agonizing Thrillers.

Which part of the human body is the most sensitive to pain?

A sharp definition must be drawn here between irritation and pain. Irritation is not pain, but only a frequent cause of it. Thus a crumb lodged in the larynx near the vocal cords produces violent irritation and prolonged coughing, which often result in actual pain. So, too, a fly or speck of dust in the eye sets up violent irritation and inflammation, followed by acute pain. Of the surface of the body the finger tips and the end of the tongue are most sensitive. For instance, a burn on the fingers is much more painful than one on the back would be, while one on the tongue would be more painful still.

Deep wounds are not painful, as a rule, save as regards the surface injury. Of pains not caused by external injuries neuralgia of the fifth nerve, the one which supplies the skin of the head and face, is the most intense. It has frequently driven people mad for the time being, and sufferers have been known to cut and even burn the flesh in desperate attempts to relieve it. The rupture of the branches of the dental nerve in tooth drawing also causes agony so intense that it has been stated that no human being could endure it for more than two seconds at a time.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Joy of Pockets.

The pocket has to be lacked before it is properly appreciated, the London Chronicle says. This writer had taken his pockets as a matter of course until one evening he attended a fancy dress ball in a costume which, he discovered when too late to remedy the defect, was absolutely pocketless. The question at once arose what to do with pocket handkerchief, money, cloakroom ticket and so on. The handkerchief, of course, went up his sleeve, but it took some minutes to devise receptacles for coins and other necessaries in the lining of the cap, the heels of the shoes and the cuff of the coat. All night long, however, he felt lost through having no place to thrust his hands into. Since then he finds himself frequently putting his hands into his pockets to experience the sheer joy of knowing that they are there.

The Canned Green Pea Bomb.

The innocent looking "canned green pea bomb" is, according to an expert chemist, "the most hellish affair invented." It was sent to a prominent Parisian hotel keeper as a sample. He suspected something and sent it to the government laboratory. It was found to contain a powerful explosive and belonged to the class called "bombe a renversement"—that is, a bomb the inversion of which causes instant explosion. It is fitted out with a straight or curved glass tube connecting two vials containing the necessary acids. A wad of cotton separates the fluids, and this wad in some instances serves in place of a time fuse. It was a bomb of this kind which caused the terrible loss of life in the central police station of St. Petersburg some time ago.—Chicago Tribune.

Understanding.

In its wider acceptation understanding is the power of perceiving and conceiving, exclusive of the sensibility; the power of dealing with the impressions of sense and composing them into wholes, according to a law of unity, and in its most comprehensive meaning it includes even simple apprehension.—Coleridge.

A Boomerang.

"So Miss Gummage got no damages in her breach of promise suit?"

"No; her lawyer proved the man to be such a low down, contemptible specimen of humanity that the jury decided he hadn't any value and congratulated her on losing him."—Baltimore American.

CHATTANOOGA

BY F A MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

"We ain't got our store clothes on, and don't want ter make no acquaintances," Jakey observed solemnly.

Mark had noticed Laura Fain's agitation when she caught sight of the officer at the gate, and knew there was good reason for it. He did not fear that she would betray him intentionally, but that she might be led to do so from her very anxiety to keep his secret.

"The first chance we get, Jakey, we'll take to the woods. We told them we were going to Chattanooga, and if this officer takes it into his aristocratic head to escort us with true southern politeness a part of the way he'll expect to find us on the Chattanooga pike."

"N' twouldn't be perlite fo' ter git in his way."

They had gone but a trifling distance when they came to a creek flowing—as a wayfarer they met told them—through Moccasin gap. The road crossed it by something between a hedge and a culvert. Mark let the way from the road up the creek and began to climb the hills, on which there was sufficient growth of timber to afford concealment.

At last they came to a hut occupied by an old negro.

"Good morning, uncle!" said Mark.

"Mornen, sah."

"Hev y' seen anything of a colored boy 'bout eighteen years old go by hyar this mornen?"

"No, sah."

"He's my boy Sam, and I'm a-hunten him. He run away last night. He'll git a hundred ef I ketch him."

"I ain't saw him, sah, 'n I tell yo' what, marst'r, ef I had saw him I wouldn't inform yo' ob de fac."

"Thet's the way with you niggers, since the Yankees turned your heads. But it won't last long. Our boys'll drive 'em so fur no'th pretty soon that your darkies'll hev to stop runnen away."

"Now don' yo' believe dat so sarten."

"Do you really believe the Yanks can whip us?"

"De Lo'd hes sent 'em to tote his colored people out o' bondage."

Mark was satisfied with this preliminary examination that he could trust the old man.

"Uncle, I'm no secesh. I'm a Union man. I want to stay with you today and travel tonight. Keep me all day, and I'll go away as soon as it is dark."

"Fo' de Lo'd. I knowed yo' wa'n't no south'n man all de time."

"How?"

"Yo' ain't got de south'n man's way o' talken. Yo' did hit well enough, but yo' cain't fool me."

"Well, will you keep us?"

"Reckon I will."

"What's your name?"

"Randolph's my name, sah. Jeff'son Randolph. My marst'r said he gib me a mighty big name, but hit didn't do no good. Dey always call me notten but Jeff."

"You're as well off as the president of the Confederacy in that respect," said Mark. "I guess we'll go inside."

"Yes, go in dar. Keep dark."

Mark and Jakey waited for the day to pass, and as they had no means of amusing themselves it passed very slowly. Jakey played about the creek for awhile, but both were glad when the darkness came and they could get away.

Before setting out on his expedition Mark had carefully studied a map of the region, preferring to fix it in his mind than to carry it about his person. Upon leaving Jefferson Randolph's hut he made direct for the Tennessee river. Once there, he knew from his remembrance of the map that he was not far from Chattanooga, and that between him and that place was Moccasin point, formed by a bend, or rather loop, in the river, the point putting out southward for more than two miles, with a distance of nearly a mile across its neck. But he knew the ground was high on the east shore of the peninsula, and he did not know the proper place to strike inland and cut off the distance around the river's margin. There was no one near to inform him, so he kept on by the river.

It was late at night when they reached a point where the river took a slight turn to the east, and about a mile from the quick bend around Moccasin point Mark was anxious to enter Chattanooga either late at night or soon after daylight, hoping to meet few people, that his entrance might not be noticed. He cast his eye about for some means of crossing the river Noticing a skiff moored just below a hut, he surmised that the skiff belonged to some one living in the hut Going to the door he knocked.

"Who's thar?"

"Do you uns own the skiff on the river below hyar?"

"Waal, supposen I does?"

"I want to cross."

"What d' y' want ter do thet fur at this time o' night?"

"Father dyen Just got word a spell ago."

"What'll y' give ter get over?"

"Five dollars."

"What kind o' shinplasters?"

"Greenbacks."

"Whar d' y' git 'em?"

"From some people ez got 'em traden with the Yankee sojers at Battle Creek."

"All right, stranger, but it's a sight o' bad times ter be called ter a man's door at night. You uns go down ter the river 'n I'll cover y' with my gun tel I know yer all right."

"I won't mind a small thing like that ef you'll put me 'n my leetle brother across."

Mark and his companion went down to the river. Pretty soon a wild looking man, with a beard growing straight out from his face like the spokes of a cart wheel, came cautiously down, covering them with a shotgun.

"Got a pass, stranger?"

"No."

"Reckon they won't let y' land when y' get over thar."

"These army fellers are like a rat trap," said Mark; "they ain't so particular as to goen in; it's the goen out they don't like. But y' better try to strike a point on the river whar ther ain't no guard."

"WHO GOES THAR?"

"Fur how much?"

"An extra fiver."

"Greenback?"

"You ain't very patriotic. Won't y' take Confederate bills?"

"Not when I can get green uns."

"Y' ain't a Union man, are y'?"

"No. But I know a valyble thing when I sees it."

They could see campfires of guards on the other shore. Once, getting too near a river picket, they were seen and challenged.

"Who goes thar?"

"Oh, none o' your business!" said Mark jokingly.

"Pull in hyar or I'll make it some o' my business."

"Oh, now, see hyar! We can't stop every five minutes to please a guard. How do you know but we're on army business?"

"Well, pull in hyar and show your papers."

Meanwhile the ferryman was keeping the oars moving gently, and the boat turned at an angle with the current, which was taking the boat toward the east shore. "Now pull away hearty," whispered Mark, and the boat shot out of sight of the picket in a twinkling. A bullet whistled over their heads, but wide of the mark.

"Golly!" exclaimed Jakey. "What a purty tune it sings!"

They were now off Moccasin point, and Mark began to look for a landing place. Just above he noticed a campfire, and above this was a place where the bank was low, with overhanging trees. Mark directed the ferryman to pull for these trees. He slipped a handkerchief in one of the rowlocks—the only one used in turning the boat into shore—so as to muffle the oar. The coast seemed to be clear for a landing, but as they drew near they proceeded cautiously and listened for the slightest sound. The boat's nose touched without noise.

Mark handed the wild whiskered ferryman the crisp ten dollar note, which he clinched eagerly.

"Yer purty well ter do, stranger, consideren yer close."

"Didn't y' hyar what I said to the guard 'bout business for the army?"

"Yas."

"Waal, don't say nothin' 'bout it. Th Confederate service pays ez it goes."

The ferryman cared little whom he pulled if he could make ten dollars in one night, and dipping his oars in the water rowed away from the shore.

Mark turned to look about him. His first move was to get under the trees From there he proceeded inland for a short distance, looking for something

"Ah, here it is!" he said presently "Now I know where I am."

He had struck the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, which runs close to the river bank for about a mile near where he landed. He knew he was about two miles from the town.

"Now, Jakey," he said, "we'll bivouac right here. As soon as it is light we must set out. Are you sleepy?"

"Am I? Reckon I am!"

CHAPTER V.

THE CAMPS AT CHATTANOOGA.

At the first sign of dawn Mark awakened his companion, who was sleeping so soundly that it required a good shake to rouse him.

After Jakey had completed his fist toilet—the only toilet either made—Mark led off on the railroad ties to Chattanooga. The railroad soon left the river bank, and they proceeded in a northeasterly direction, striking the town from the south.

A great many tents were in sight as they passed along, and Mark judged at once that there was a large force concentrated there. He was tempted to turn and retrace his steps, for he knew already what he was sent to discover, but to get out was more difficult than to get in, and he was not willing to risk an attempt in the daytime, so he entered the town in which citizen and soldier were alike asleep, and without meeting a soul walked about till he came to a hotel called the Crutchfield house. As he approached the door opened, and a negro boy with a broom in his hand stood in the opening.

"Can I git a room?" asked Mark.

"No, sah, not till de proprietor wakes up."

"My little brother is tired; he must go to sleep at once."

The boy's eyes opened wide at a dollar bill slipped in his hand. Without a word he took a key from the rack above a desk in the office, and in a few minutes both travelers were safely lodged, with no one but the negro having seen them enter the town or the house.

"So far, so good," said Mark. "Now comes the real racket. By this time tomorrow morning I shall be either safe across the river again, or I wouldn't give a Confederate bond for my life."

After a few hours' sleep he rose, and calling Jakey they made a toilet and went down to breakfast. Mark had purposely neglected to write his name on the register, and hoped that the landlord would not notice the omission. But he did, and the guest entered his name as Mark Slack, Jasper, Tenn.

After breakfast he took Jakey and strolled around the town, making purchases. He thought it prudent to get some of his greenbacks changed for Confederate bills. He followed the suggestion Jakey had made at setting out and bought some calico and tobacco and the squirrel gun Jakey had modestly suggested for himself.

Mark was astonished at the number of officers and soldiers he saw in the streets. He found a new general in command, of whom he had not heard as a prominent leader, Braxton Bragg. He made a circuit of the town and an estimate of the troops, but this was of little value, for upon the arrival of trains regiment after regiment marched into camp. Mark stood on the sidewalk holding Jakey by the hand, looking at the Confederates tramping along under the stars and bars, their bands, when they had any, which was rare, playing discordantly "Dixie" or "The Bonny Blue Flag."

"What regiment air thet 'ar?" asked Mark of a soldier standing beside him puffing at a rank cigar.

"Eighth Tennessee."

"Whar they all come from?"

"Tupelo. Come from thar m'self a spell ago."

"Whar y' goen?"

"Only old Bragg knows, and he won't tell. Reckon we're goen no'th to Knoxville ter foller th' two brigades es went up a spell ago."

"What troops air all these hyar and them es is comen?"

"Waal, thar's Cheatham's and Withers' divisions, and I reckon Anderson's. I saw Gineral Polk today, 'n they say Hardee's hyar. I'm in the Twenty-fourth Tennessee m'self, and thet's Cheatham's. Lay's cavalry brigade is hyar. That's all the cavalry I knows on."

Mark was amazed. A large southern force was concentrating at Chattanooga, and perhaps they would pour into Tennessee or Kentucky by one of the routes pointed out to him by his general. It was a splendid plan, provided the general who was to execute it could keep his enemy from knowing his intentions long enough to throw an army on his flank or rear.

Then in making a circuit of the town Mark was impressed with the natural strength of the position. He gazed over the plain eastward, his eyes resting on Missionary ridge, but did not dream of the soldiers' battle destined to take place there a year later, when the men of the Army of the Cumberland, disregarding the plans of their superiors, would start from the bottom of that mountain and defeat an enemy pouring shot and shell down upon them from the top.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEAMS TO PLAY FOR CHARITY

Provided the weather man gives clear skies for tomorrow afternoon there will be a contest for blood as well as for the King's Daughters' Baby Camp on Crescent Oval when the Park Avenue Baptist and the Monroe Avenue Methodist nines meet for the second time this season. Both teams are strong ones and have been playing great ball and a hard fought game is assured.

The Methodist Sunday school team is at present in the lead of the city league with a record of 4 games won and none lost. The Park Avenues have won the same number of games but have lost one. If the Baptist aggregation should win tomorrow's contest, it will lead the league whereas if the Methodists come out ahead they will have a firm grasp on the top position. Both sides realize the importance of the contest, which means much toward the winning of the coveted trophy at the end of the season.

It is expected that both teams will present their best lineups with VanArsdale on the slab for the Monroeites. He has twirled great ball so far this season and has been effectual against all the teams he has met. He pitched the Monroe Avenue school to victory against the Park Avenue nine in their first game and will try to repeat the trick tomorrow. Either Tom Ricketts or Hobson, who is regarded as some slab artist, will do the twirling for the Baptists.

The proceeds of the game will go toward the Baby Camp fund and as the cause is a worthy one a large attendance is desired. Lemonade, peanuts and score cards will also be sold to help swell the budget.

Another exciting game is scheduled for the Cricket field between the Trinity Reformed school team and he First Baptist nine, which is now playing without the services of its captain, Carlton Smith. Bert Trotter will undoubtedly go on the slab for the Baptists with Harry VanZandt opposing him.

The teams stand in the league as follows:

	W.	L.	Pc.
Monroe Ave.	4	0	1,000
Park Ave.	4	1	.800
First Baptist	1	4	.200
Trinity	0	4	.000

IMPRESSIVE SERVICES FOR GEO. HARPER JR,

Funeral services for the late George Harper, who died at Muhlenberg Hospital Tuesday afternoon, following an operation, was held at his late home in Scotch Plains last night. They were attended by many mourners, including business associates, neighbors, relatives and friends who had gathered to pay their last respects to a good citizen, a kind and sympthizing neighbor and loving friend. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Baptist church, of which Mr. Harper was a trustee, had charge of the sehvices. After prayer and the burial service, Mr. Mathiews spoke impressively and tenderly taking for his text: "He was a Good Man."

He said in part: "Few can be great, but all can be good. The greatest asset of any community is good men and George Harper was a good man. Every man, woman or child who knew him would say so, and so he was because he was a faithful husband, a loving father, a kind friend, and a sympathetic neighbor. He was upright in business, always ready to join in any movement that had for its aim the bettering of the community in which he lived. This is the kind of goodness that tells.

"Goodness is like gold, of several kinds, but George Harper was of the purest refined. He did not have the bad habits which are so easily acquired by some men. It may be that he was not tempted as some have been, but he understood and knew the goodness of God. Somewhere back in the years, no doubt at the mother's knees, he had learned of the Christ and followed His teaching so that when the end came he was not afraid to meet his God."

The floral expressions from sympathizing friends and associates were numerous, the casket being completely banked with many handsome set pieces from the board of trustees of the Baptist church, the Public Library, Excelsior Hook and Ladder Co., Fanwood Lumber and Supply Co., of which the deceased was a member, several from friends in Brooklyn, among which was one from his old schoolmates in the Brooklyn High School. Besides these there were many from friends who had known and loved him in life. Burial was made this morning in the family plot, Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Charles Wiegman, of Brooklyn, has returned home after a two weeks' stay with friends in this city.

BURIAL OF WOMAN DECLARED 'CRUEL'

Elizabeth, Aug. 4.—Declaring that the method of burial used by Morgue Keeper Engle, of this city, was cruel and inhuman a committee of the Board of Chosen Freeholders at the meeting held yesterday afternoon presented a report condemning him and requested that a copy of the findings of the committee be sent to Judge Edward S. Atwater, who appoints the morgue-keeper.

Engle got into trouble following the death of Mrs. Emma Best, of Rahway, who died in a local hospital and who was buried as an "unknown dead person." Later it developed that the dead woman had a daughter in Rahway and moreover had a life insurance policy. The body was exhumed and on investigation the casket in which the body was buried was found to be composed of very poor rough material and entirely too small for the body.

As the morgue-keeper had been receiving $25 for each burial of pauper dead an investigation was started by the Freeholders and Freeholders George S. Teller S. P. T. Wilbur and Thomas J. Pierson were appointed to hear witnesses.

Their report turned in yesterday showed that they found they had no authority over the morgue-keeper, but must pay all bills when properly audited. They reported, however, that they found no authority for the payment of any more than $15 for each burial and recommended that this sum be paid hereafter. They stated that they had taken this matter up with Mr. Engel and that he had offered to refund $15 on each burial he has conducted if he cannot show any authority for receiving the greater amount.

In the matter of the burial of Mrs. Best they stated that they had found the coffin too small and without lining or covering of any sort. This, they stated was manifestly improper as a coffin, complete with covering and lining could be had for $3. They also declared that his bill for the funeral would be disallowed, as Mrs. Best was found to have an insurance policy that would cover all expenses. The general opinion is that the entire matter will be dropped as Engel has promised to do better in the future.

Find Boy Lost at Seashore.

Elizabeth, Aug. 4.—Night Sergeant Kirkman, at police headquarters here, received a telegram early yesterday morning from the police at Asbury Park that a lost boy had just been found there wandering along the beach. He was about six years old and could not tell his name. It was supposed that the boy belonged in Elizabeth and had gone to Asbury Park on the asylum excursion. No missing boy had been reported to the police.

JOE HARTER LEADS THE PETS IN BATTING

There are three of the Pets who are clouting the ball thus far over .300, Joe Harter being the leading slugger of the aggregation with a mark of .423. The others in the .300 class are George and the old faithful Brit. Martin. Harter also leads in runs for in seven games he has crossed the rubber nine times. Eddie Stallings has the top notch in stolen bases with seven to his credit, while Harter is a close second with six on his list.

Cosgrove has done the longest swatting with five two baggers. Harter is the only man to have a home run to his credit this being made at Bound Brook. He also has made a three bagger and a two sacker. Brit Martin is not far behind with the long drives, having clouted out three two baggers.

The Plainfield team has garnered 61 runs to their opponents' 33 and the ratio of hits stands 80-67. Walter Nelson, the catcher, leads in fielding having accepted 73 chances without an error thus having an average of 1,000. Eddie Stallings, Hartman and Mullin also have clean slates in the field.

Rubber Game Tomorrow.

Dunellen will be the scene of excitement tomorrow afternoon when the team from that place crosses bats for the rubber game with Cranford. Each team has won one game, the first one going to the Dunellen boys after thirteen innings by a score of 5-4. the second game resulted in a victory for Cranford, 8-7. With the decision of the ability of the two teams at stake both sides will fight it out for blood tomorrow. Harney and Hand will be the battery for Dunellen and Coyle, who was recently tried out at short by Scotch Plains, will act in that capacity for the Dunellenites.

Trinity-Baptist Game.

Captain Harold Schenck announced this morning that the game between the Trinity Reformed school and the First Baptist nine in the City Sunday-school League tomorrow afternoon will be played on the grounds at West End avenue near Myrtle. All Trinity players are requested to be on the field by 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Henry Ryno and family, of Manning avenue, are spending a week visiting friends in Brooklyn.

DUMMY DEEGAN WILL PITCH AGAINST PETS

When the Pets public service to Scotch Plains tomorrow afternoon, they might find Dummy Deegan in the box against them. The old vet has been warming up his salary wing in Newark during the past few weeks and says that it is in the best of fettle. He has come back into form and will give the local boys a run for their money. Manager Joe Alberts will keep Warry MacLoughlin on the bench and he will be ready to take up the job in case Dummy's arm goes back on him.

Whether Deegan or MacLoughlin does the pitching, the game will be a good one although Scotch Plains was easy money for the locals when the first game was played in this city. "Red" Waller will be on the slab for Plainfield tomorrow afternoon and the remainder of the lineup is expected to be the same. No dope as to the second baseman has been sprung as yet and everyone is anxious to learn whom Manager Driscoll will select to cover the keystone sack.

The game starts at 3:30 and the trolley ride to the grounds takes only 15 minutes. The majority of the fans from this city will leave for the Plains on the 3 o'clock car from the Watchung avenue station. The other league games are sure to attract large crowds especially the High Bridge-Somerville contest at Somerville. From the rate High Bridge played last Saturday, there should be some classy ball on the Somerset county seat grounds.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

If the reports from the coast are true, another candidate for the Swedish Olympic team is lost to America, Jack Nelson, of the Seattle A. C., it is claimed, has signed a contract to coach a small technical school in Southern California, and efforts are now being made to match him with W. C. Yates, a well-known professional sprinter of Daveport, Wash., for $1,500 a side. Nelson is a graduate of Washington State College, completing his college career this last June, and in addition to coaching the various athletic teams will taech chemistry. He is a magnificent type of an athlete and is twenty-six years of age. His recent win at the national championships in the senior 220-yard dash around a turn in 21 4-5 seconds brands him as a wonderful runner.

Mike Murphy is recently credited with saying that we are badly in need of sprinters in this country at the present time, and with the addition of Nelson, if he really means business, things would look much better.

The Harvard-Yale athletes who competed at the Oxford-Cambridge games in England on July 11, are due to arrive here on August 10. It is indeed gratifying to receive the excellent reports regarding the treatment they received by their English cousins. Let us forget the 1980 Olympic and start over again.

When the Diocesan union holds its games in Newark, on August 12, the committee has promised to be on the watchout for those who enter in the various events. In past years New York crack athletes, posing as Jerseyites, have gone over to that city and participated in the guise of local entrants. They gave false addresses, and simply ran away with the valuable prizes.

LOCAL PARTY MADE BIG CATCHES AT SEWAREN.

All the firemen at the East Second street house are eating fish today and will continue eating them this week for several of the residents of that vicinity and Joseph Clarke, of the fire department, made a record fishing trip at Sewaren Wednesday. The party chartered the "Evelyn G." from Ackor's dock and went out to the fishing banks.

Within a few minutes after the first lines were dropped, the fish began to take the bait and the hooks and within two hours and a half, the party had pulled in 154 fluke, 2 bluefish and 3 weakfish. Those in the party were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. James McDonough, and Louis Sprague.

Kramer Beaten.

Alfred Goullett, the champion Australian bicyclist, defeated Frank L. Kramer, the American champion, in the one-mile open professional race at the Newark velodrome Wednesday night. It's getting to be the habit. Kramer gets beat every time he starts against an Australian. Goullett made his fight on the last lap and nipped Kramer at the tape, the latter letting down through the stretch. John Bedell finished third. Neither Kramer, Goullett nor any of the other back markers could get up in the two-mile professional handicap, which was won by Pedlar Palmer, another of the Australian group, from the 190-yard mark.

Frederickson to Pitch for McNultys.

Otto Frederickson, the star southpaw of the Scotch Plains team, has been signed by the McNulty Brothers and will pitch for them Sunday. Tom Durkin, the manager of the McNulty team closed the deal with the local boy this week and told him to come in Sunday when he would be given his first tryout. Frederickson will not twirl on Saturdays hereafter, but will concentrate his efforts toward a good showing in the Sunday games.

Nolen Out of Game.

Fred Nolan, who has been Bound Brook's best bet in the batting line, will be out of the game with Westfield at Bound Brook tomorrow. While practicing the other night the faithful slugger sprained his ankle and the injured member will necessitate his retirement for a day or so.

BOARD ORGANIZES

Union County Election Officers Meet at Elizabeth to Plan Fall Work.

WILL MEET AGAIN AUGUST 24.

Duties Are Much Heavier This Year But Compensation is Greater —Schedule of Pay.

The Union County Board of Elections is meeting today at the Courthouse, Elizabeth for the purpose of organizing for the coming election. Nothing further of importance will be done at this meeting, as the board will have to wait for the Civil Service Commission to send in its list of successful candidates for the positions of election officers. The commission has until August 20 and Judge Atwater has set August 23 and 24 as the dates upon which the lists will be acted upon by the Board of Elections.

The choosing of election officers and their duties under the provisions of the Geran law will be somewhat different from the method of procedure followed under the old election law. The duties of the election officers will be considerably heavier, though the compensation has been proportionately increased by the Geran law. The choosing of the election officers will be from the list of successful candidates turned in by the Civil Service Commision to the County Election Board. The selection will be made by the latter by lot. Four names will be drawn for each election district the names first having been placed in separate boxes for each political party.

The terms of the election officers will be two years or until their successors are appointed. Those chosen this year will serve for one and two years and in the future any election officer who has passed this year's civil service examination will be eligible for reappointment biennially for a period of six years.

"In municipalities and townships of over 5,000 inhabitants, eight dollars a day, except for primary election day, which will be fifteen dollars for the day. There is to be a further compensation of four dollars a day for the work of mailing the sample ballots to the voters, which is a part of the duty of the office. The pay for services at a special election will be ten dollars a day. In towns of less than 5,000 inhabitants the pay for registering voters and for the house-to-house canvass is four dollars a day down to the number of 200 voters, when the compensation is three dollars or less. The pay for primary day is nine dollars in districts of over 200 voters, and six dollars a day for mailing sample and six dollars in those having less; four dollars a day for mailing sample in districts of 200 voters, and six dollars in districts of less.

"The municipal clerks are requested to deliver to the clerks of the election board, at their offices, the day before the primary, the poll books of the last preceeding election, and also, the ballot boxes. The municipal clerks must also furnish the election board, a week before the primaries, sample ballots and one-cent stamped envelopes, which the election officers must mail to the voters who shall have registered for such primaries. The clerk of the election board shall post a sample ballot in the polling places, and also in five other prominent places in the district.

"The election officers are to count the ballots after a primary or an election, and deliver the returns, the poll books of the preceding general election, primary books and lists of voters who voted in the primary, to the municipal clerk, who shall certify the same to the county clerk."

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY ENDORSES NEW PLAYGROUND SCHEDULE.

At a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary last night at the home of Mrs. W. E. Gibbs, of Watchung avenue, the schedule adopted by the playground commission was discussed. The auxiliary members are actively co-operating with the commission and the meeting was made interesting by the enthusiastic reports given. A report will be formally made later and offered as a part of the auxiliary records.

A recommendation was endorsed upholding the schedule as planned as it is working out successfully, thus fulfilling the expectations of those having charge of the work.

—A bargain; Stevens Duryea touring car for sale. Standard Tire Vulcanizing Co., 118 Madison avenue.

WILL GRANT PERMIT TO STANDARD OIL CO

The request of the Standard Oil Company to erect two large tanks on North avenue, near Netherwood avenue, one for the storage of gasolene and the other for kerosene, will come up at the August meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, and it is said that it will be granted. If this is done, the building code will have to be changed a little, allowing the oil company to build two tanks of large capacity above ground. Each tank will be twenty feet in diameter and twenty feet high.

The committee in discussing the matter with the Standard Oil Company recognize the fact that the company must have some place to keep a quantity of oil for Plainfield and vicinity, and it has been agreed that if the permit is granted, the company is to remove its present storage tanks on East Fourth street, which are considered more dangerous than similar tanks would be on the outskirts. Every precaution would be taken against danger that might possibly arise from maintaining such oil tanks. The committee favors granting the permit and there is no question but what the Council will act favorably on the petition Monday night.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR EDMUND W. PACK

The funeral of Edmund W. Pack was held yesterday afternoon at the First Baptist church and was attended by a number of his relatives and friends. Rev. Franklin K. Mathiews, pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, officiated and interment was made in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery, where on Tuesday afternoon in a fit of despondency he had taken his life by shooting himself in the head with a revolver.

There was a number of handsome floral tributes to his memory including a pillow from Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., of which Mr. Pack was a member. The following fellow-lodge members acted as bearers; William C. Smith, E. H. Bird, Nathan Pennington, Charles DeGraw, Fred Becker, and Jacob Kettenring.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. DIRK BROEK

The funeral services of Mrs. Dirk Broek, mother of Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and Rev. Dr. Albertus T. Broek, of Newark, whose death occurred Monday, was held Thursday evening at the late home on South Lafayette street, Grand Rapids, Mich., at which her pastor, Rev. Henry Hospers, officiated, assisted by Rev. Edward Kelder, of Coytesville, N. J., a friend of the family, Mr. Kelder having accompanied Mr. Broek and his brother to Grand Rapids.

Another service was held yesterday afternoon at Holland, Mich., at the home of Dr. D. G. Cook, son-in-law of Mrs. Broek, and where Rev. Drs. Steffens and Karsten, life-long friends of Mrs. Broek, officiated. The burial was at Holland.

Mr. Broek in writing to a friend here, said that strange to say, although troubled with her heart, her death was caused by an acute attack of appendicitis and she suffered intensely the last few hours, until somewhat relieved by an operation at the hospital. Almost her last words were a beautiful testimony to her Saviour. Only the Friday before her death she enjoyed the day on the front porch of her home and felt so good that she made arrangements to attend church the following Sunday. This would have been her first church service since her illness last December.

Mrs. Broek was the wife of the late Rev. Dirk Broek, of Grandville, Michigan. She was one of the pioneers of Ottawa county, having come from the Netherlands in 1849, settling with the VanRaalte colony at Holland. She is survived by five children, Miss Christina S. Broek, of Grand Rapids; Mich.; Mrs. D. G. Cook, of Holland; Dr. J. D. Broek, of Grandville, Mich.; Rev. Dr. Albertus T. Broek, of Newark, and Rev. J. Y. Broek, of this city.

Held for Grand Jury.

Charles Earl, the colored youth arrested in Orange, where he had fled after taking a suit of clothes belonging to Edward Lee, of South Second street, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, and held under $200 for the action of the Union County Grand Jury. He was unable to secure a bondsman and was taken to the county jail.

HEALTH CONDITIONS REPORTED EXCELLENT

Reports presented at the August meeting of the Board of Health, last night, show the sanitary condition of the city to be excellent. Only six cases of communicable diseases were reported and at the present time there are no cases under quarantine. The registrar reported the following returns for the month:

Marriages, nineteen; births, thirty-eight; still-births, two; deaths, twenty-six.

The health officer's report showed that a total of 637 inspections had been made during July, as follows: Milk supply, 233; plumbing, 84; miscellaneous work, 320. Thirty-one samples of milk and one of cream were analyzed; forty rooms in eighteen houses were disinfected and fifteen communicable disease cultures were examined.

During the latter part of the month, notice was given to the local dealers in food products through the local newspapers that the work of enforcing the tSate law in regard to the protection of foods from dust, dirt, flies and other means of contamination, would again be taken up, after July 31. This has been done and the results are satisfactory. Mrs. Vestergurd, of Leland avenue, was granted a permit to sell milk.

OSCAR F. PEARSON'S PAINT SHOP DESTROYED

Fire, supposed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, distroyed a building on St. Mark's place, owned and used by O. F. Pearson, of East Front street, as a paint shop and storage place for his materials, late last night. The building was a one story frame structure and the quantity of oil, turpentine and other things of inflamable nature, fed the flames so that the place was a roaring furnace by the time the firemen arrived. They worked an hour before the blaze was extinguished. The loss is about $1,000, partially covered by insurance.

The fire was first discovered by Mrs. W. A. Lippencott, who lives on Netherwood avenue, near where the building stood. She was aroused by a small explosion and saw the reflection of flames on the walls of her room. She awoke her husband who 'phoned to the Netherwood fire house. While the apparatus was on the way, Patrolman Messler, on post in the East End, saw the flames and pulled box 18, summoning the truck from headquarters, No. 2 hose wagon and the steamer from Company No. 1. The water played on the flames seemed to spread the burning oil and make it burn more fiercely. The intense heat made it impossible for the men to stay long at the nozzle and the nauseating smoke added to their difficulty, but by sticking to their work the flames were finally gotten under control.

BOROUGH COURT BLOTTER.

John Higgins, of Stone street, who was arrested yesterday morning by Marshal L. A. Pope, was arraigned in the borough court this morning before Recorder Charles M. Dolliver. Higgins was charged with being drunk and disorderly and as he is an old offender, the judge sent him down the line to Somerville for 30 days.

Arthur Seidel, 14 years old, of Jackson avenue, was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver for stealing apples. He was fined $1, which he paid.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brown were arraigned before Recorder Dolliver this morning for disorderly conduct in their home on Duer street. After listening to their stories, the judge gave them a kindly lecture and suspended a sentence of $10 fine on both.

POSTPONE ACTION

Borough Council Defers the Third Reading of Ordinance On Street Widening.

TO BE VOTED UPON AUG. 5.

Question Over Legality of Matter Causes Delay—Three Who Favored Proposition Withdraw Their Names.

In accordance with a resolution offered by Councilman Alexander Milne at the regular meeting of the borough Council last night, action on the ordinance providing for the widening and improvement of Somerset street from Jackson avenue to Johnson's drive, was postponed until an adjourned meeting on Tuesday, August 15. The reason given for deferring the action was that of a question as to the legality of the ordinance as it had been passed on its first and second readings.

The ordinance providing for the widening was to have been brought up for its third reading at last night's meeting, the measure having passed on its first and second readings at a special meeting of the Council last month. On account of the presumption that action would be taken on the ordinance last night, a large crowd of boroughites filled the council chamber gallery, many coming to the room as early as 7:30 in order to get a seat. The audience was made up for the most part of the objectors to the widening, those living on Somerset street. All of the councilmen except B. R. Waldron, who is out of town, were present last night.

When the meeting was opened Frederick A. Martin, the borough clerk, read a petition from the objectors to the widening drawn up in legal form. In this communication it was pointed out to the Mayor and members of the Council that according to a borough ordinance, no improvement can be made to any street unless it is favored by at least ten freeholders along the line of said improvement, and these property-owners must sign their names to a petition requesting the improvement.

According to several of the objectors last night the number of signatures on the petition was reduced to less than ten when the names of W. J. Conroy, I. H. Boehm and Thomas Currin, Sr., were erased upon their request. Each one of these men sent in a petition to the Council asking that their names be withdrawn from the ordinance for the Somerset street widening inasmuch as they did not fully understand matters when they gave their consent to their names being used. They wished to have it understood, as did all the other objectors, that they were not opposed to improvements in the borough but they did not think that the widening of the street was necessary now.

The Council has the right to defer action on any question for any length of time and consequently the widening proposition was postponed. It was stated by one of the councilmen this morning that the delay was made so that a legal point could be looked up. Some of the objectors said that if more than half of the property-owners along the line of improvement objected to it, that it was illegal to proceed with the work. This point will be ascertained and the ordinance will be slightly changed, making the widening five feet from each curb along the whole length of the street instead of trying to straighten the roadway since several of the property owners objected to having an unfair portion of their land taken away in the widening.

Just after the resolution for the postponement of the action on the matter had been passed, Councilman L. B. Woolston made a suggestion to the Council. He said that perhaps it would be a good plan to lay the pipes for the proposed sanitary sewers along Somerset street when the road was widened. This would save considerable cost and a great deal of inconvenience from a torn up street.

Harry C. VanEmburgh, borough engineer, pointed out that the pipes for the sanitary sewers and the pipes for the storm sewers do not run in the same trenches, and the Mayor added that when the borough gets its sewers, the elevation of the pipes might have to be changed entirely.

BELIEVE C. C. WHEELER AN IDEAL CANDIDATE

C. C. Wheeler, of Johnston's Drive, who was unanimously chosen by the one hundred and fifty representative citizens of Somerset county as their candidate for the Assembly on the Republican ticket, at the meeting called in Somerville last Wednesday night by the Republican Executive Committee of Somerset county, to discuss candidates, has not as yet filed his petition. There is no uneasiness felt by his friends on this score as they are sure that Mr. Wheeler is not unconscious of the honor conferred upon him by the conservative citizen, from all parts of the county in selecting him as their candidate and the fact that he has yet four days before the time limitation for filling his petition.

While there were other names presented for discussion, Mr. Wheeler's was the only one seriously considered when the meeting became formal. The others for the most part were offered more in a complimentary manner than otherwise, as it was recognized some time ago by those who are close to the political situation in Somerset, that Mr. Wheeler was a strong and capable man and would command the loyal support of his party by sheer strength of fitness for the office and his intense personality.

PAINTER'S COLIC RESULTS FATALLY

After an illness of long duration, Albert Kurzhals, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kurzhals, of West Sixth street, died yesterday in the Neuological Institute, 157 East 69th street, New York, where he had been taken for an operation and treatment as a last resort to save his life. More than a year ago he was obliged to give up work on account of what was diagnosed as painter's colic and at that time his life was despaired of for several months. An operation brought relief and he was convalescing nicely when there was a relapse.

Mr. Kurzhals was born in this city thirty-four years ago and had always lived here. He was a painter by trade and was among the most popular young men in this city. He was a member of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kurzhals, of West Sixth street, a brother, Hugo Kurzhals, of Asbury Park, and a sister, Mrs. Arthur C. Adams, of Duer street. The funeral will be held privately tomorrow afternoon and interment will be made in Evergreen cemetery.

H. Jordan, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, New Market, will officiate. The burial will be at South Plainfield.

DE MOTT CAN BUILD

Borough Fathers Give Him Permission to Erect Two Houses in Prideville.

NOT A DISSENTING VOTE.

Twenty Other Building Permits Are Granted—Other Business of Routine Nature.

Not a resident of Prideville objected at the Borough Council meeting last night when the application for a permit to build two houses on Jefferson avenue was made by Henry DeMott. The application was made through Councilman Julius Stahl and immediately afterward Mayor Smalley had a question to ask. He inquired if the houses were to be like the others which Mr. DeMott had planned to erect against a storm of protest from fifty of Prideville's foremost citizens.

Councilman Stahl then brought forth the plans for the dwellings, which Mr. DeMott had given him and he explained that the new houses were to be much better in every respect than the ones which he proposed to build. The distances between them is to be fifty feet and they are to be far removed from all other dwellings. A feature of these new houses will be bay windows in each. Mr. Stahl said that upon investigating the plans, he had found that they were entirely satisfactory to him and no protest had been made against them. Mr. DeMott told the Council that he would keep his former promise to clean out the dump if the permit were granted and the application went through without a dissenting vote.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $1,078.13 for the month of July and bills to amount of $3,640.45 against the borough were ordered paid on a resolution presented by Councilman Alexander Milne. On another resolution offered by him, the borough treasurer was authorized to borrow $2,000 for current expenses. Councilman Julius Stahl reported $231.45 expenses of the fire and water committee for the month.

A petition from the Henry L. Rustle Company for a hydrant on Clinton avenue was referred to the committee on streets. A petition from the residents of Harrison avenue for sidewalks on that street was held over for a month so that the committee would have time to investigate the matter. Another petition from the residents on Harrison avenue for an extra electric light was presented by Mr. VanArsdale and carried.

Twenty application for building permits were passed by the Council, this being one of the largest number of permits ever granted at one meeting. The following received the permits: A. L. Cadmus for a dwelling on Willow avenue; Mrs. Brown Ralston for a house on Rockview avenue; Henry McGee for alterations to his house on Orchard place; Fred Sandford for a barn on Sycamore avenue; Lemuel Tunison for a barn between Greenbrook road and West End avenue; James Moore for a house on Mountain avenue near Westervelt; Joseph Kearn for a chicken coop on Dupont street; J. Genison for an addition to his house on Somerset place; Dr. J. P. Zeglio for repairs to his house on Pearl street; Mrs. Bremmer for an addition to her house on Greenbrook road; Henry L. Currin for an addition to his house on Grandview avenue; Henry Clinton for two family dwellings on Walnut street; William Parsch for a barn on Harrison avenue; C. W. Buckelew for a garage on Harrison avenue near Grove street; John West for a dwelling on Wilson and Chestnut streets; Gustav LaVer for an addition to his store on Duer street and also for a shed near his barn; E. F. Clymes for a garage on Mercer avenue; W. J. Conroy for a dwelling on Fairview avenue; and Henry DeMott for houses houses on Jefferson avenue.

POSTAL BANKS TO BE OPENED IN UNION COUNTY.

Postal banks will be established in Cranford, Westfield and Somerville, on Tuesday, August 22, but the new institutions will not be started in this city for some time to come. The United States government has issued an order for these banks in various towns whose postoffices are in the second class but few of the first class cities are included in it.

One of these postal banks has been started in New York city but as yet no word has been received from Washington to organize one here. It is expected that the new plan will be given a thorough trial in the smaller towns before it is started in the larger cities. The principle upon which these banks are run is that anyone can deposit any amount, even as low as 1 cent, in the hands of the government and receive a certain rate of interest upon it.

WHEN HER BACK ACHES.

A Woman Finds All Her Energy and Ambition Slipping Away.

Plainfield women know how the aches and pains make life a burden. Backache, hip pains, headaches, dizzy spells, distressing urinary troubles all tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the stealthy approach of gravel, dropsy and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used. Here's proof of their merit in a Plainfield woman's words:

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "You may continue to publish my endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills which I gave in August, 1905. I endured much misery from backache which was caused by my kidneys. Many nights I was unable to rest at all and when I arose in the morning, my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Whenever I caught the least cold, it settled on my kidneys and any strain in my back always made the aches and pains worse. I was treated by physicians but their medicine did not help me and it was not until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store, that I had any hope of getting rid of my trouble. This preparation made me feel like a different person and I have never had any serious trouble since. I use Doan's Kidney Pills once in a while however, and they keep my kidneys in good working order."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Oldest Wine Grower.

Mr. Speer has been long and favorably known as the first grape grower and wine producer in America. His 56 acres of the Oporto vines at Passaic, N. J., are trailed on three hundred miles of wire. Northern New Jersey soil abounds in iron the same as in the Port wine districts of Portugal. That is the reason Speer's Wine from the Oporto Grape grown here are so rich and valuable especially for the weak and debilitated.

CN RELATIONS BETWEEN MINISTER AND ORGANIST.

Ocean Grove, Aug. 5.—A plea for better understanding and a closer relationship between the minister and the organist was made at the national convention of organists yesterday. The organists' side of the discussion was led by Orwin A. Morse, of Sioux City, Ia. He declared that the theological schools have a department for the study of music.

"The great trouble between the organist and the minister," he added, "was that the latter thought the idea of music should come by instinct and not by training." Mr. Morse said that much of the friction between the organist and the preacher was the result of a lack of understanding. The reply from a ministerial standpoint was made by Rev. Dr. B. E. Dickhaut, of the First Presbyterian church, of Jamaica, Long Island.

"Neither the preacher nor the organist," he said, "has an intelligent knowledge of the work of the other. The minister should be the leader and the organist his assistant. The great difficulty is that both think they are leaders.

"If as you say the minister should understand music, why isn't it fair that the organist should have some knowledge of theology? I would also suggest a symapthetic co-operation between the minister and the organist."

Dr. Dickhaut's plan was that the two should get together early in the week, when the minister should give the organist an idea as to what he intended to preach about on the following Sunday. Then the organist could arrange his music to accord with the sermon.

WOMAN FAILS TRYING SUICIDE.

Millville, Aug. 5.—Said to have been jealous of her husband whose affections she feared had been alienated by another, Mrs. Thomas Pangborn, of Columbia avenue, attempted suicide by drinking poison Thursday night at her home. The screams of the woman attracted the attention of neighbors, who called physicians.

It was discovered that the woman had mistaken a bottle of liniment for laudanum. Emetics were administered, and, while the woman's mouth and throat are badly burned, she will recover.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

Massachusetts Autoists Barred.

The Bureau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America, the only official agency for the issuance of New Jersey licenses in the State of New York, has been instructed by J. B. R. Smith, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles for New Jersey, not to issue eight-day tourist licenses to the residents of Massachusetts. This action on the part of the Commissioner was taken because the Massachusetts Legislature had adjourned without according similar privileges to residents of New Jersey. This action places Massachusetts in the same class as New York, Pennsylvania and Delaware, these being the only four States whose residents are not accorded the privilege of an eight-day license in New Jersey.

$22,500 O'Toole Knocked Out of Box

St. Paul, Aug. 5.—Martin O'Toole, the St. Paul pitcher for whom the Pittsburg National League baseball club recently paid $22,500, was knocked out of the box yesterday by Minneapolis batters who made seven hits and seven runs off O'Toole in five innings. In contradistinction, Leverett, of Minneapolis, leading team for the pennant in the American Association, allowed one hit in nine innings, and that was a scratch. O'Toole gave three bags on balls and struck out four in five innings, while Leverett issued five passes and struck out seven in nine innings.

Nelson, Dartmouth, who won the match after losing the first two sets. The summary:

Singles, Finals—L. M. Martin, Lowell, Mass., defeated W. B. Cragin, Jr., Plainfield, 6-4, 10-8, 4-6, 1-6, 6-2.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Another champion athlete of the West is preparing for next year's Olympic games. He is Frank C. Irons, of the Chicago A. A., who scored five points for the Americans, by winning the board jump, at the 1908 London olympiad. He has already mapped out a strenuous campaign, which will keep him busy all of this year.

Irons was the National A. A. U. broad jump champion of 1909. He won that title at New Orleans, broad jumping 23 feet 5⅛ inches, nosing out Platt Adams, of the New Yorks, by ⅝ of an inch. In London he did far better, being credited with a jump of 24 feet 6½ inches.

Adams turned the tables on Irons at the recent Pittsburg national championships. In three trials Irons failed to qualify because of fouls. On that occasion Adams broad jumped 23 feet 4 inches.

Edwards, the wonderful Leland Stanford University hurdler, who was at the University of Pennsylvania last year, seems to have dropped out of sight entirely. Edwards came east with a wonderful reputation, he having beaten Forrest Smithson, the famous Olympic champion. At the New York A. C. games last winter Edwards was handily defeated by G. A. Chisholm, and has never run in championship form since leaving the coast.

Melvin Sheppard's heart and soul is in breaking the half-mile record of Emilio Lunghi. "I hold all of the world's records for the distances from 500 yards to two-thirds of a mile, with the exception of the half, and I believe, with proper training, I can beat Lunghi's 1.52 4-5 for that distance," said Shep. Mel will receive his first good chance at the record at the Canadian championships on September 2. These games will be held on the same track on which Lunghi succeeded in establishing his figures.

"I'm going to keep in condition from now on until the trials for the Olympic team comes off," was the assertion made by Ben Adams, the Newark athlete, the other day. He has high hopes of getting in on that trip to Sweden next year. Neither are his hopes entirely unfounded, for he is jumping almost as far as his brother Platt. Only two weeks ago Ben defeated Ahearn and Healy, two of the best jumpers in America.

According to reports from Europe, Emilio Lunghi, the holder of the world's half-mile record, will not take part in the Swedish Olympiad next year. Lunghi has encountered a few defeats lately and he has become dissatisfied with the running game.

William A. Larned, of Summit, the national singles lawn tennis champion, is suffering from a strained right arm that is causing him considerable trouble. This piece of news reached the East yesterday, upon the return of Henry C. Martin and Charles M. Bull, Jr., of New York, from their play in the preliminary national championship doubles at Chicago. Larned visited the tournament on the Onwentsia courts, and from the account of Martin was in bad condition. His right arm is so injured from a strain received in a practice match that it is with difficulty that he handles a racquet.

Madge—I hear that Charlie is an awful spendthrift.

Marjorie—I should say he was. He's trying to make two wild oats grow where only one grew before.—Puck.

FIFTH TO DIE OF AN UNFORTUNATE FAMILY.

Summit, Aug. 5.—"Well, Frank, you've been a good friend to me, but I won't trouble you much longer," said John Hand to his former employer, Frank Brenn, Thursday night. A few moments later Hand turned over in his bed and was dead.

Hand was twenty-eight years old and is the fifth member of the family that has died within the last two years. Two months ago his mother died. The physicians said her death was caused by a broken heart. A fourteen-year-old son died two weeks previously from alcohol which had been given him.

A year prior to the death of the boy, Gertrude, seventeen years old, died as the result of a criminal operation performed in New York. This proved to be the beginning of Mrs. Hand's decline and when her young son was brought home to die she collapsed. Shortly after his mother's death John took to his bed. The attending physician says worry over his mother's death caused the young man to develop hasty consumption.

The funeral will be held today from St. Theresa's church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Teresa's cemetery.

PIONEER FREIGHTER COMING TO THIS CITY

When A. C. Thompson, pilot of the "Pioneer Freighter," a five-ton Saurer Motor Truck, delivered a letter from Mayor McCarthy, of San Francisco to Mayor Gaynor, of New York city, it completed the ocean-to-ocean trip of this truck of which the Saurer Motor Company, of this city, are the American manufacturers. This truck will soon come to this city when the enthusiasts will have a chance to inspect it.

The truck carried a full load of three and one-half tons, and, in spite of the tremendous racking and straining involved in the progress, the mechanism and chassis structure came through unharmed except for the breaking of two leaves in a spring when the car struck an unseen obstruction in the dark. The car arrived in New York with the original set of tires throughout—Goodrich Wireless Motor Truck Tires, those on the rear wheels being dual. The fine condition of these Goodrich tires at the end of the 5,000 mile journey excited much interest among tire experts, as the service to which they had been put is admittedly as strenuous as a truck tire can be subjected to.

Apart from its value to the builders of commercial motor cars, however, the trip has been of no little general public service. For the United States Government sent a special representative of the office of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture to study road conditions between Denver and Los Angeles—a section of the country where the highways are of great importance to transportation because of the necessary large areas without direct railroad connection. A. L. Westgard, was selected for this work; and being not only a topographer but a motor car expert, too, he gathered a good deal of practical information as to the necessities of road construction for motor transportation service, and as to the imoprtant features of motor car construction for meet road difficulties.

It happened that the "Pioneer Freighter" was on its way during the army manoeuvres in Texas, and it was made very evident to observers that the motor wagon would crowd out the traditional "army mule" for military service as it is driving the hourse from draw service in the city streets. European governments subsidize tested makes of trucks that they may have them as army auxiliaries, and it is predicted that some such system as this is likely to be adopted by the United States.

The daring and "nerve" of A. C. Thompson and George McLean, who "spelled" one another at the wheel of the "Pioneer Freighter" is due much of the success of the ocean-to-ocean trip. These young men stuck to the big truck under trying ordeals that showed wonderful courage and endurance.

The "Pioneer Freighter" is so called because of the fact that it is the first heavy commercial vehicle of its kind ever making the trans-continental trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

COLORED WOMEN HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGES.

Long Branch, Aug. 5.—Esther Brown and Ella Mack, both colored, were held by Recorder Arrowsmith, in court yesterday morning to await the action of the grand jury without bail. The women were identified by victims of several hold-ups, who were in court to testify against them. The women pleaded not guilty and were given a hearing.

According to the victims, a couple of women would ask for a match and while one was receiving it the other would grab the victim from behind and rifle his pockets. The women in court yesterday were said to be two of a gang that have been operating along the shore resorts. The prisoners are powerfully built women.

Seven victims, who were robbed of sums ranging from $5 to $50 each, testified against the "match women."

Henry Pineal, who lives at 17 Long Branch avenue, was robbed of $52. Rogert Palmer, a young man, who lives in Third avenue, after being held up and robbed, was assaulted and left by the roadside.

The two women were arrested Wednesday at midnight by officers in automobiles. An effort is being made to locate the rest of the "match gang."

K. OF C. CONVENTION ENDS.

Detroit, Aug. 5.—The international convention of the Knights of Columbus here adjourned Thursday night following the selection of Combridge Springs, Pa., for the convention next year.

The delegates voted down a proposition that the order should affiliate with the American Federation of Catholic Societies. An amendment was adopted, however, providing that where the ordinary of any diocese requests it, a subordinate council may become a member of the federation.

Other resolutions adopted were: Protesting against the printing of details of criminal cases in the newspapers; urging all Catholic parents to send their children to Catholic schools; recommending the establishing of libraries in all Knight of Columbus club houses and giving boys between fifteen and eighteen years of age the use of the club rooms in order to interest them in god literture; recommending that Catholic books and magazines be placed in all the public libraries of the country and indorsing the University extension work of the church.

A proposition to appropriate $1,000,000 for the establishment of a national tuberculosis sanitarium was voted down, being opposed by the national physician and other delegates who insisted that such work belongs properly to the subordinate councils.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Washington avenue, in the vicinity of the New Jersey Central crossing, was the scene of a runaway accident yesterday afternoon. Benjamin Scribner, of Greenbrook road, was driving in that vicinity when his horse became frightened at a passing engine and started to back up. Mr. Scribner was unable to control him and before bystanders could come to the man's aid the wagon had smashed into a tree, completely demolishing it. Mr. Scribner escaped without a scratch.

The funeral of Fannie Hoysack, aged four years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hoysack was held yesterday morning at nine o'clock at her residence, Chestnut and North avenues. Four playmates of the little girl were pall bearers and the interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, Plainfield.

John Henry Taylor and associate players, of Plainfield, gave a very enjoyable entertainment in the Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall, last evening, which was largely attended. It started with a sketch entitled "A Bill of Separation," and concluded with dancing.

Goldsine Smalley, of Fairview avenue, was a visitor at the Flemington county fair this week.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:—

I wish to correct a fake statement made in the Courier-News of last evening. They stated that George Schlotterer, of Elizabeth, who is a candidate for sheriff on the Democratic ticket, was in the saloon business. He is not nor never has been in that business, but is in the carpenter and building business, is president of the Elizabeth Democratic Club, has served the city of Elizabeth, as councilman for the past ten years, serving on the most important committees and everyone speaks well of him. A pretty good record for a man holding office that long. I ask you to publish this letter as I believe it is justice to tell the truth about a person.

Yours truly,
F. J. SHATTLE.

BELIEVE FIRE IN BOROUGH WAS DUE TO INCENDIARISM.

Incendiarism is believed to have been the cause of the fire last night in a work shop on Amos Stites' property on Duer street at 11:30 o'clock. The borough fire department made a quick run to the scene of the blaze and put out the fire with a tank of chemicals. The damage to the shed amounted to about $15 while that to some tools will amount to several dollars more.

The fire was discovered by some one in Gustav LaVer's store nearby and a telephone message was sent to fire headquarters. Two residents of the neighborhood say that they saw a man running across the lawn near the shed just before the fire was discovered and it is believed that he set the blaze. The police have obtained no clue as to the identity of the supposed firebug.

REV. ERNEST BROWN THE SPEAKER AT NETHERWOOD.

Rev. Ernest Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Dunellen, will be the speaker at the service of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Robert Humpston, of this city, will be the soloist and there will be singing by the members of the children's choir. Everyone is invited to attend the meeting.

On Wednesday evening, J. D. Loizeaux will give a talk to the mothers, children and friends of the camp on the subject, "Floating Logs on the Kenebeksis." Miss Curry is still in need of clothing for the children and all contributions of the same will be duly appreciated.

JUDGE SULLIVAN TO STAY IN RACE

Jersey City, Aug. 5.—Judge Mark A. Sullivan, whose resignation from the Court of Errors and Appeals is in the hands of Governor Wilson, said yesterday that he would in a few days enter into an aggressive campaign for the Democratic nomination for Mayor. Discussing his interview with Governor Wilson at Sea Girt Thursday Judge Sullivan said:

"There is no possibility that I shall retire from the contest for the Democratic Mayoralty nomination. My decision to be a candidate at the primaries September 26 is unalterable. I so informed Governor Wilson at Sea Girt yesterday. I shall wait a reasonable time for the Governor to act, and I presume he will act on my resignation in a day or two. That resignation stands. It will not be withdrawn."

Mayor Wittpenn was also in conference with Governor Wilson. It is understood that because of the mixed political situation in this city Governor Wilson urged both Mayor Wittpenn and Judge Sullivan to retire from the contest, leaving the field to James F. O'Mealia, a business man who has never held office and who is thought to be without political enemies.

In the evening a large banquet was served in one of the club rooms there in honor of the Owls.

Fire in a Vacant Lot.

Shortly after noon today a 'phone message called the fire department to put out a fire in a place being used as a dump on a vacant lot at West Third street and Clinton avenue. The blaze was caused by a neighboring resident burning a quantity of old papers. This set fire to other inflammable material on the lot and Company No. 3 from the West Fourth street house was busy an hour and a half before the blaze was put out.

HIGH WINDS PROVE HANDICAP TO AVIATORS

A large number from this city had a long wait at Metuchen today for the airmen, scheduled to fly from New York to Philadelphia, and nearly missed the ball game. The three daring air navigators, Hugh A. Robinson, Lincoln Beachy and C. K. Hamilton, were to have left Governor's Island at 2 o'clock. One of them made an ascent promptly on the hour, but owing to the high wind blowing at that time, he immediately descended.

The other two watched his efforts with interest and listened to his reports on the breeze and advice against attempting further flight until the wind had settled. At half past two word was sent along the proposed route to the waiting multitudes that it was doubtful if the flight would be attempted, as all of the aviators hope to clip several minutes from the time made by Hamilton last year.

He covered the distance, 86 miles, in 110 minutes and said that the same rule he used last year, that of governing his altitude according to the wind currents, would be his guide this year.

MAYOR MOY WILL TAKE THE STUMP

Although no public action has been taken regarding plans for the fall campaign, it promises to be one of the most exciting in years so far as local offices are concerned. Mayor G. W. V. Moy, who has not been in harmony with the Council during the year, will take the stump in behalf of a movement to elect members of the Council who will be favorable to his policy. This fact is assured, although Mr. Moy has not outlined his plans as yet.

Thus far the members of the Council, whose terms expire, have not signified their intention of seeking a re-nomination, with the exception of W. L. Gloak in the First ward, who says that if his friends want him to run he will do so. F. E. Mygatt has said that he does not seek a renomination, but if his friends so desire he is willing to return for another year's service.

The other members who will retire are W. W. Wilson, George S. Clay, F. L. Montgomery and Herbert Buxton, but they have not declared themselves as yet. There is no doubt but that Mayor Moy and his political friends will make a determined effort to secure the election of such men as will be favorable to legislation that they want enacted next year. Mr. Moy has contended all the year that the Council has been making political capital for him and at the proper time he intends to make good use of it, he says. Thus far the regular Republicans have not signified their intentions regarding the campaign.

FORMER AMBULANCE SERVICE WAS ALWAYS SATISFACTORY.

Regarding the changes ordered by the councilmanic police board whereby the ambulance in the future will be kept at police headquarters instead of the Plainfield Cab Company, it should be stated that there was never any dissatisfaction over the service given by the cab company. At that time the ambulance could not go out, except on an order from the hospital, and this sometimes caused delays.

The price for sending the ambulance out was $2 and not $3 as stated, and the arrangements were very satisfactory to the cab company whether the ambulance was called out or not. There were always horses on hand for ambulance service. The board made the change more for the reason that calls for accidents, etc., usually are received at police headquarters.

TO PLAY OLD DUTCH GAMES.

Hollanders to Hold a Reunion in New Jersey on Their Queen's Birthday.

Preparations are being made for the reunion on Aug. 26, of the Hollanders of New York and New Jersey. The day is the birthday of Queen Wilhelmina, and the reunion will be held in Idlewild Park, Little Falls, near Paterson.

There will be patriotic speeches in Dutch and English, and some of the old games of Holland will be played as they were played on Bowling Green in the days of Peter Stuyvesant. All persons of Dutch descent are invited. There are many thousands of such in New York, and at least 75,000 Hollanders in New Jersey also, according to T. S. Fabry de Jonge, secretary of the Field Day Association. The proceeds of the celebration will be given to the Holland Home for Aged Dependents at Paterson.

"CAP" ANSON'S

FORTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

Dedicated to all my old comrades and lovers of the sport, who have made the game what it is today, and to all those who will continue to "play ball" after we old-timers have struck out for the last time.

ADRIAN C. ANSON.

(Copyright, 1911, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate in Great Britain and Canada. All rights reserved.)

"I don't care a continental what it is," I snapped rather savagely. "Besides, I wanted to take in the Alhambra tonight, but now—"

"Just the thing," she butted in. "I can't imagine anything more restful. I wouldn't miss going for the world."

She didn't miss going, nor did I.

Finally, the date of our first game was set for March 12. It might have been better for all parties concerned if we had played that game before a reception and luncheon given us by the Surrey Cricket club instead of after. The English luncheon is a pretty substantial affair, with no lack of mild beverages to wash it down. However, the fog was so thick that it didn't seem to matter much how we played, but after we had got out of our glad rags and into our uniforms the sun broke through and showed us that a crowd of fully 8,000 people had come to see if there was any good in baseball.

CHAPTER XXIX.

I Meet the Prince of Wales.

Just as we were playing the end of the first half of the third inning of that first game in England I discovered something of a commotion in the vicinity of the club house, and a few moments later the well-known face of the prince of Wales, afterward Edward VII., appeared at the window. I gave a signal to the boys and we assembled at the home plate and sent up three rousing cheers and a tiger for his royal highness. At this the crowd went wild and the prince disappeared.

At the close of the fifth inning we were informed that his royal highness would like to meet us, and we wiped the moisture from our brows and the grime and black, sticky mud off our hands and proceeded to the clubhouse. President Spalding introduced us one by one to the future king of England, and the prince shook hands with each of us in the most cordial manner, without a sign of the loftiness that had been such a prominent feature at our presentation to the American minister at Rome. His highness chatted very affably for some time, asking a lot of questions about the game, and even making some suggestions as to how, in his opinion, it might be improved. I didn't agree with him, but I managed to keep mum, although I could have put up a good argument against what he was saying. There is a newspaper story, which was circulated widely at the time, that I up and contradicted the prince right before the whole bunch. I want to say right here that I did nothing of the kind, although I admit that it was pretty hard work not to butt in and set him right.

As we left the prince he bowed to each of us pleasantly and took a seat in the window to watch the finish of the game. The fog had come back and the fielding of both teams was really remarkable when the fact is taken into consideration that a ball fifty feet in the air couldn't be seen at all. Healy and Mark Baldwin did the twirling, and they acquitted themselves nobly in spite of the luncheon they had taken aboard. There wasn't a happier man in the "tight little isle" than your friend Anson when the game, at the end of nine innings, resulted in our favor by a score of 7 to 4, and we had eaten every bit as much as the others, too.

The London papers devoted a great deal of space to the game, and took occasion to compliment every member of both teams. I remember that some of the attempts to speak familiarly of the game amused me very much. I don't think I should have recognized it from the description. Some of the journals professed to see great merit in baseball, but most of them agreed that it was vastly inferior to cricket.

Another story that has gone the rounds of the press is to the effect that after the game was over the prince sent for John Tener and requested him to explain the game of baseball to him. As the story runs, John labored with his highness for an hour, but didn't succeed in making him understand, and at the close of the confab the only thing the prince would admit was that it might be a good game, but wasn't in the same class with cricket. I've never heard Tener either affirm or deny this yarn—perhaps he didn't like to admit that he was so unsuccessful in making so simple a thing as baseball clear even to an Englishman. I'm inclined to think, however, that John did not have that private audience with the prince. He wasn't pitching that day, and I see no reason why he should have been singled out as spokesman for the great American game.

Next day we played a game on Lord's Cricket grounds, the finest in England at that time, and we gave the crowd of 7,000 a mighty good show for their money. The crowd must have thought so, too, for I never heard more bracing cheering even in Chicago. It was a close tussle until the last moment, when Baldwin and I made errors that gave the All-Americas the game, they winning by a single run.

The following day we played a game on the Crystal Palace grounds at Sydenham before a big crowd, and the All-Americas won it by a score of 5 to 2. The next morning we left London for Bristol, the home of the famous cricketers, the Grace brothers, who had given us a special invitation to visit them. Arriving there at noon, we were met by turnouts at the station and driven to the Gloucester Cricket grounds, brand new and about the best in England. The very first thing on the program was a hearty dinner, and, although we knew from experience that the game to be played immediately after would suffer in consequence, we did not let that interfere with our enjoyment of the sumptuous repast, for such it certainly was. The duke of Beaufort did the honors on that occasion, and although, as a general rule, I have mighty little use for dukes, I had to make an exception in favor of Beaufort, who was one of the jolliest and most democratic old sports I ever ran up against. He reminded me of my father.

Well, I leave you to imagine what that game was. I have no reason to kick, for we won, but I don't mind telling you that it wouldn't do to put up a game of ball like that in America. After the game was over the Grace brothers and some of the other crack cricketers wanted to try their hand at the American game, and the Chicagos took the field, while Ryan and Crane pitched. I wish you could have seen those big cricketers bat! They couldn't negotiate the quick delivery of the Americans and the twirlers had to slow down considerably before they managed to land on the ball, Doctor Grace making the only safe hit of the day.

We returned to London that night and next day played our farewell game in the big metropolis on the grounds of the Essex Country club before a crowd of 8,000 persons. Crane and Earl and Baldwin and Daly were the batteries. The game was chock full of hard hitting, and although the score—12 to 6 in favor of the Chicagos—wouldn't have pleased an American crowd a little bit, it tickled those Englishmen immensely, and next morning all the papers declared it the best game ever played on English soil. It had been arranged to pull off a throwing contest after the game between Crane and Connor, an Australian champion, but the latter backed out and Crane gave a solo exhibition, throwing a cricket ball 110 yards and a baseball 120 yards. That evening we were treated to a banquet and our fine old friend, the duke of Beaufort, "dropped in," as he expressed it, "to spend an evening with those splendid fellows from America."

It had been arranged that we should make a flying tour as far north as Glasgow before crossing over to Ireland. I wish you could have seen the special train in which we traveled on that trip. It consisted of nine cars, two of which were dining saloons, two smoking and reception cars and the balance sleepers. The exterior of the train was exceedingly swell, the body color of the coaches being white enamel with trimmings of gold and seal brown and the royal arms in gold and scarlet on the carriage doors, while in each side of the coaches was the inscription in fancy lettering, "The American Baseball Clubs." Talk about traveling de luxe! That train was certainly one of the de luxiest propositions I ever went up against.

The game we played at Birmingham that afternoon was one that would have delighted an American crowd. When it was called at the end of the tenth inning on account of darkness, the score was a tie, each team having four runs to its credit, Baldwin and Healy both doing themselves proud. Next day we played at Sheffield in a pouring rain and had to quit at the fourth inning on account of the mud. The day following we had a similar experience at Bradford and didn't succeed in doing much but spoil our uniforms.

CHAPTER XXX.

I Play Two Games in Ireland.

Did we play baseball in the Emerald Isle? We did, my boy, two mighty games, although the All-Americas won both of them. But first let me tell you about our game in Scotland and our last two exhibitions on English soil.

We arrived at the metropolis of the land o' cakes early in the morning of one of the chilliest days of the season, but it was neither too early nor too chilly to prevent one of the biggest crowds I ever saw from assembling at the station to welcome us. As I looked out on the vast multitude that crowded around our train I began to wonder if there was any cricket ground in the city that would accommodate the thousands that would probably go to see the game that afternoon. I remarked something to that effect to a Scotchman who had come to see Mr. Spalding on business connected with our coming, and I was surprised that he did not share my enthusiasm. Finally I asked him why he was so sceptical.

"It's just because ye don't know the Glesca folk as I do, Maister Anson," he replied.

When we got to the West of Scotland Cricket club's grounds I realized the truth of the Scotchman's remark. Barely 3,000 persons were present, although at least double that number were in the street outside to see us pass. It was so cold that we wore our overcoats, although after we got warmed up we didn't mind the biting wind. The spectators saw a very good game that day, lasting seven innings, the All-Americas winning by a score of 8 to 4.

Next day we played at Manchester, and the big crowd that passed in through the gates was treated to a rattling exhibition of "baseball as she is played." The score was tied twice during the progress of the game, but our opponents got it at last by a score of 7 to 6, Tener and Healy doing the twirling. That evening we were dined and wined at the Anglo-French club, and the great things that were said—and eaten—on that occasion still linger in my memory.

The following afternoon we played our farewell game in England on the Colice Athletic grounds at Liverpool. We were driven over to the grounds in great shape, in a coach with seats for twenty-eight persons, our mascot on the box alongside the coachman, decked out in a suit of scarlet with gold trimmings that would have done the lord mayor proud. We found a big crowd outside the entrance gate and a bigger one inside. There was such a jam that the main entrance gateway was wrecked and hundreds got in before the police could stop them. As the paid admissions after the game showed an attendance of 6,500 it is fair to assume that it was the biggest crowd we had drawn during our sojourn in Great Britain.

Five innings were played that game and the score was a tie, each team scoring but three, only one hit being made off Baldwin and four off Crane. It had been arranged that after the ball game was over an American eleven, with Baldwin and Earle as the battery, and with Tener, Wood, Fogarty, Brown, Hanlon, Pfeffer, Manning, Sullivan and myself in the field, should try our hand at rounders with a team from the local Rounders' association. Instead of being bags, the bases in this game are iron stakes three feet in height, the ball the size of the one used in tennis. The batting is done with one hand and with a bat that looks more like a butter paddle than anything else. A base runner has to be retired by being struck with the ball and not touched with it, and the batter must run the first time he strikes at the ball, whether he hits it or not.

Well, it wasn't exactly in our line and we got walloped by a score of 16 to 14. To get even we persuaded them to try two innings at baseball, and they found there was more difference between our game and rounders than they had dreamed of. The score stood at 18 to 0 in our favor, the crowd standing in a drenching rain to see the fun and apparently willing to remain a good deal longer than it did.

At nine o'clock that night we took the train for Fleetwood, on the shores of the Irish channel, and two hours later we were on board the little steamer Princess of Wales steaming across the "bit of silvery sea that separates the "land of the saints" from "perfidious Albion." I don't exactly get on to the point of that joke, but it's there somewhere. It was Sunday morning when we landed at Belfast, and I shall never forget the quietude of the place—a Quaker meeting-house on the First Day was the only thing I could compare it to. Certainly those North of Ireland folks do keep one of the Commandments.

The next morning was a puzzler in the line of weather, but toward midday it cleared up, and after luncheon we were off in drags for the North of Ireland Cricket club grounds, where we put up another great game in spite of the distraction caused by the presence of the biggest bunch of pretty girls we had seen since leaving America. At the end of the eighth inning the score stood 8 to 7 in favor of Chicago, but in the ninth singles by Wood and Healy and a corking three-bagger to left field by Earle sent two men across the plate and gave the victory to the All-Americas by a score of 9 to 8.

We were banqueted that evening at the club house, his honor the mayor of Belfast, presiding, and before the festivities of the night were over we understood why it was that Belfast was so quiet on Sunday—six days in succession of the kind we had experienced were the limit. Sunday was an absolute necessity.

Between Belfast and Dublin on our way to the capital we passed through a section of the most beautiful country I ever saw. It was a big surprise to me, for I had heard and read so much about the poverty of Ireland that I was prepared to witness some rather harrowing scenes. Instead of that, I saw only a constant succession of highly tilled farms and model villages. There may be starvation in the country, but I saw no evidence of it. Personally, I want to say right here that I never came up against better eating in my life, but of course we were company, and were treated accordingly.

Reaching Dublin about 11 o'clock, we took the rest of the day off. All the boys of our party who had Irish names went off in search of relatives and, judging from appearances on their return, must have found them in large numbers. Mrs. Anson concluded that my name wouldn't pass muster, even though I suggested hitching a "Mac" before it, and so she appropriated me for a day of sight-seeing. I am not a tiptop hand at the business of sight-seeing, but I don't mind telling you that I found that day in Dublin a very interesting one. We wound up at the theater, a burlesque called "Arabian Nights" being a headliner. At the close of the first act I asked Mrs. Anson if we hadn't better go, but she said she could stand it if I could, and so we stayed it out.

The game we played that afternoon was one of the best of the entire trip from an American baseball critic's point of view, although the score was too small to suit folks educated up to the big scores that are usually reached in cricket matches. Baldwin and Crane were both on their mettle, the fielding was of the nobblest kind and safe hits were few and far between. Up to the ninth inning my boys led by two runs, but Earle's three-bagger, Hanlon's base on balls, Burns' fumble of Brown's hit and Carroll's double settled our hash, the All-Americas winning by a score of 4 to 3.

The game made a total of twenty-eight we had played since leaving San Francisco. Of these the All-Americas had won 14 and the Chicagos eleven, three being tied. Now I don't care to do anything that would lead you to believe me guilty of falling back on the baby act, but I don't' mind saying right here that if it hadn't been for the accident to Williamson's knee in Paris the result would have been different.

CHAPTER XXXI.

I Am Loyal to the League.

We got back to God's country just in time for the opening of the baseball season of 1889. We did not have time to take our customary early spring trip to the south—Hot Springs, Ark., and San Antonio, Tex., were our favorite resorts—and of course we didn't need it, for we had accomplished the hitherto unheard-of stunt of playing ball for a year without a lay-off. We couldn't complain of lack of practice, although our physical condition might not have been just ideal owing to the continual round of good times we had experienced.

My team that year consisted of Tener, Dwyer, Hutchinson and Gumbert, pitchers; Farrell, Darling, Sommers and Flint, catchers; Pfeffer,

Burns, Bastian, Williamson and myself in the infield, and Van Haltren, Ryan and Duffy, outfielders. As usual, I was captain and manager. Owing to the accident to his knee that Williamson had received in Paris he was not able to attend to business until late in the season, and his absence hurt our chances very materially, as the old "stone wall" was left in a crippled condition.

When the season opened the Boston club seemed to be the biggest gainer in the deal for players, and a majority of the fans looked for it to carry off the pennant. Once more, however, the unexpected came to pass and the championship went to New York for the second time, that team winning eighty-three games and losing forty-three, while Boston came next with the same number of games won and forty-five lost, and Chicago stood third with sixty-five games won and the same number lost. Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Washington following in the order given.

That fall was an exciting one for the national game. What is known in baseball history as the "Brotherhood revolt" was sprung, and for a time it was pretty strenuous work for a player to find out where he was at. It was a movement that shook the old league to its foundations, robbing it of many of its best players and upsetting all its plans in general. I believed then, and I never had any reason to think otherwise, that the whole business was due to greed. The game had become such a money maker that its business end had put every other consideration into the shade.

It has been charged time and again that this brotherhood affair was hatched and put into working order by the ring-leaders during the round-the-world tour. It may or may not be true, but I want to say right here that I never heard a whisper of it until late in that season. The first I knew of it was when John M. Ward came to me with a proposition to unite with the seceders, an invitation I declined at once with thanks. I told Ward frankly that the league had always been perfectly square with me and that it would smack of treachery for me to leave it in such an underhand manner. He argued that the time had come to work a change in baseball matters, and I replied that I realized that the players had some reason to put up a kick, but didn't intend to let myself be used as a catspaw to help a lot of greedy capitalists pull the financial chestnuts out of the fire.

Now, originally, the Brotherhood was a secret organization formed for the purpose of protecting the players in their rights and not for the business of breaking up the old league and forming a new one in opposition. That came in as an afterthought. The order began to show its power in 1887, when it compelled the league to draw up a new form of contract, in which the rights of the players were more clearly set forth. When this new contract was adopted, the full amount of a player's salary couldn't be stated in it on account of the $2,000 limit clause of the national agreement, and as the American Association clubs wouldn't allow this to be stricken out the players were mighty hot over it. They had to sign contracts at $2,000 and make outside contracts for all they got over that amount.

At the annual meeting of the league in 1888, some of the clubs demanded a ruling that would limit players' salaries, which had grown to enormous proportions. The outcome was a classification rule which divided players into five kinds: Class A to receive $2,500; class B, $2,250; class C, $2,000; class D, $1,750, and class E, $1,500. It was agreed among the clubs that this classification should not apply to players then under contract or to those who were absent on the round-the-world tour. We were allowed two weeks after our return to arrange matters before being subject to classification.

John Ward, who was the Brotherhood leader, was abroad at the time this occurred, so no official action was taken by that organization. By the time he got home contracts for that season had been signed and nothing could be done. Ward favored a strike at the time, but he was outvoted by his followers. Just about that time the New York management agreed to release Johnny to Washington for the sum of $12,000, the biggest price ever offered for a player, but Ward spoiled the deal by declining flat-footed to be sold to the national capital club.

Then the kicking players appointed a committee to present their grievances to the league, and President Young named a league committee to confer with the other. Mr. Spalding was chairman and he declined to meet the Brotherhood folks until fall, although they wanted an immediate hearing. That refusal upset the teapot. The Brotherhood people began at once, though with the utmost secrecy, to plan secession.

When I was made wise to the business I tried my best to persuade my players to keep out of the muss, but I wasn't altogether successful. Some of them wouldn't listen to me, among them Pfeffer, Tener and Williamson, although they made no move until after the playing season was over. On November 4, 1889, the Brotherhood threw off the mask and announced the formation of the Players' league, which, as finally organized, took in the cities of Boston, Brooklyn, New York and Philadelphia in the east, and Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland and Pittsburg in the west.

On paper it looked to be a big scheme, but it lacked brains in its management. As a natural consequence its career was a brief and stormy one, with war to the knife and knife to the hilt between the two rival organizations. After four courts had decided that the players had a perfect right to leave the National league and join the rival body, each of the clubs belonging to the Players' league signed a compact to play with the new organization ten years. The National league then got out a schedule of playing dates that conflicted with that of the other body, and the public got so disgusted with the quarrel that it gave the game the go-by. At the end of the season the Players' league bought the Cincinnati club, and that left the old organization with but six.

At the close of the season a conference was held to smooth out the tangle, which was financially disastrous to all parties concerned. Secret meetings between the capitalists of the two leagues were held, with the ultimate result that the rival clubs in New York, Pittsburg and Chicago were consolidated. That deal broke up the Brotherhood scheme.

CHATTANOOGA

BY F A MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

"Why didn't our generals occupy this place when they could?" sighed Mark "Now it is too late."

While it was evident to Mark that the enemy were concentrating for a move against the Union lines, there was nothing to indicate where they would strike except the mention of the two brigades as having gone to Knoxville. He knew that they might strike any one of several points from Battle Creek to Knoxville, and eagerly sought for some indication where it would be. He strolled about with Jakey all the afternoon, the two sufficiently resembling country bumpkins to avoid suspicion. Passing a recruiting station, Mark went inside the tent, where an officer was writing at a pine table.

"Cap," he said, "I be'n thinken I'd like ter jine the army."

"You're just the man we want. You've got plenty of bone and muscle I should reckon you'd been in the ranks afore this."

"Waal, I don't want ter fight outen my state 'f I can help it."

"What state?"

"Tennessee."

"I reckon you'll have a chance to fight in it if you join the army."

"Reckon so?"

"Yas; I'm recruiten fur Cheatham's division. Thar all Tennessee rigements in our division except the artillery 'n a rigement o' Georgia and one o' Texas infantry."

"Whar is yer division?"

"Across the river. At Dallas or Poe's; somewhar up thar. Y' better let me put yer down fur my rigement, the ——th Tennessee."

"I mought hev to go way down south."

"No fear o' that jest now."

"What makes y' cal'clate on 't?"

"There's two divisions across now—ourn and Withers'. Y' don't reckon their goen ter cross the river fur the purpose o' marchen south, do y'?"

"Oh, I don't know nothen about military."

"Waal, will you join us?"

"Ef y' reckon all the sojers here is goen to fight in old Tennessee I reckon I will. The abolition army hez overrun our state, 'n I want ter see 'em driv out."

"The way to do it, my good man, is to take a musket and help."

"Do ye reckon th't's what we're goen ter do?"

"I tell you that two divisions are already across, and I happen to know that all the transportation in the shape of cars and locomotives that can be found are bein corraled hyar fur a further movement. Come, now, my man, stop talken and take yer place whar ye oughter be. What's yer name?"

The officer took up a pen.

"All right, cap, count me in. I'll jest go 'n git my bundle and be back hyar in half an hour."

The captain hesitated. Mark began to fear that he was thinking of using force rather than let so promising a recruit go.

"Are you sure you'll come back?"

"Sarten, cap."

Mark moved away, and it was not until he had got out of sight that he realized he had run a great risk, for he saw that the captain would have detained him had he not believed in his sincerity about enlisting.

Mark went straight to the hotel and paid his bill. He feared the recruiting officer might send for him or have him followed, so without waiting to eat his supper he made a package of his purchases. Jakey took his gun and slung his powder and shot flask over his shoulder. Then the two left the hotel to begin an attempt to leave Chattanooga. Their stay had been only from sunrise to sunset, but Mark had gained all the information he was likely to acquire and was anxious to get away with it. True, he did not know where the enemy would strike, but this he would not be likely to learn.

Going down to the ferryboat they found a boat which had all it could do to carry the soldiers and citizens who were crossing. Mark thought he would try what assurance would do in getting across without a pass. He found the guard more watchful than he expected.

"Can't y' pass me 'n my leetle brother, lieutenant?" he asked. "We be'n doen some traden in Chattanoogy and want ter git home. We be'n buyen some caliker for the women folks."

"Old Bragg himself couldn't go over without a pass," responded the officer.

"Whar mought I git one?" asked Mark.

"At headquarters, I reckon."

Mark turned away. He considered the expediency of going to headquarters and asking for a pass, but regarded this course fraught with too much risk. He determined to make an attempt to get out of town and across the river by the route over which he had entered. He knew the ground by this route, and that was a great advantage. If he could steal his way beyond the picket he could doubtless find a method of crossing. Perhaps he might make his way down the river and across to Shell mound, or, still lower, to the mouth of Battle creek, held by the Union forces.

Mark skirted the town on the west, and then took a course directly south till he came to the railroad. This he followed to a point near where he had bivouacked the night before. Crawling to a rise in the ground and motioning Jakey to keep back, he laid down on his stomach to make a survey.

It was nearly dark. Silhouettes of figures were passing between him and a campfire beside the railroad track. Beyond, the palisades of Lookout mountain stood out boldly against a streak of twilight in the west. Between the track and the river was an open space, over which he must pass to get by the picket. The river bank would afford some protection. Near where he was it was steep, and the current set directly against it, but lower down by the picket there appeared to be places where a man could walk under the low bluff.

The moon was about three-quarters full, and the night was clear except for clouds that would float lazily over Lookout mountain and across the moon's face, so that at times her light was partly obscured.

Calling Jakey, he gave him an account of what he intended to try for, and told him that if it should be necessary to run under fire the boy was to lie down, and, if advisable, give himself up, but on no account to risk being shot. Jakey only half promised, and Mark was obliged to be satisfied with this. Then, waiting for a cloud to obscure the moon, he led the way to the river bank, which he proposed to skirt. He left his bundle, but took Jakey's gun, loaded and capped, in his hand. They soon gained the point where they had landed the night before—nearly opposite where Mark had seen the silhouettes on the railroad. Treading as noiselessly as possible, they passed along the river margin under the overhanging bank until they came to a place where the bank was low. Stooping, they proceeded for a short distance till they reached the root of a tree that had been felled long before. Here they paused and listened.

Suddenly they heard what sounded like a musket brought from the shoulder down to the hollow of a hand, and a voice:

"Who comes thar?"

"Corporal of the guard, with relief."

"Advance, corporal, and give the countersign."

Then there was some muttering and footsteps tramping away.

Mark peeped between the roots of the stump toward the point from which the sounds had come. He saw, not a hundred feet away, a man sitting on a log with his musket resting against his shoulder, the butt on the ground. He was looking listlessly up at the sky. Presently he took a clay pipe out of his pocket, which he filled, and touching a match lighted it.

"He's the river picket," said Mark to himself.

The sentinel sat smoking while Mark meditated. His first thought was, Why did I bring this boy? The situation was perilous enough without an encumbrance. The guard was facing the space over which they would have to pass to escape; there might be a slight chance for life to make a dash were he alone, but with the boy it was not to be thought of, and Mark was unwilling to leave him. He looked back with a view to retracing the route over which he had come. He was horrified to see a sentinel pacing a hundred yards above. He had been placed there by the relief.

The only hope was to wait for the man nearest him to relax his watchfulness, and attempt to pass him. The sentinel up the river was not to be feared except by going back, for from the nature of the ground the fugitives would be hidden from him if they should go forward.

Mark resolved to wait and watch.

The minutes seemed hours, the hours days. The soldier still sat on the log, though now and then he would get up, and leaving his musket leaning on it saunter back and forth on his beat. He well knew there was no enemy to fear; his duty was little more than a form.

He began to hum a few strains of "The Suwanee River."

"Poor devil," said Mark to himself, "he, too, is thinking of home. What a cursed thing war is! If ever I get out of this I'll do no more such duty. Give me an enemy face to face, bullets before me and no gibbet behind me."

But he had said this many a time before.

"My good man," talking to the soldier, but without making any sound, "if you will go far enough from that musket you'll never get back to your Suwanee river."

"Nonsense, Mark," the sentinel seemed to say to him; "a shot would arouse the whole picket post. Besides, if that's your game, why don't you riddle me with Jakey's shotgun?"

Then the stillness was broken by the sound of oars out on the river. How Mark longed for the boat to come and take him from his terrible position! But whoever was working those oars pulled on, unmindful of the man who so keenly envied the oarsman's freedom. The sounds became fainter and fainter till Mark could hear them no more. He sighed as if he had lost a dear friend.

"Jakey's comfortable, anyway," he said, looking down at the boy. He had dropped asleep, and Mark for the first time in his life envied a human being the protection of weakness. There was innocent childhood, unconscious of danger, sleeping sweetly, the boyish face lighted by the moon.

At last Mark heard the relief coming. The sentinel took his gun and began to pace his beat. The usual form was proceeded with, and the relief marched to the sentinel up the river. Mark observed the man that had been left on post

"I hope this fellow will be more inclined to rest," he mused.

But he was disappointed to see the man begin to pace his beat energetically. He seemed to fear that if he did not keep moving he would get drowsy. A half hour passed with scarcely a rest, then another half hour. It was tramp, tramp in one direction, turn and tramp, tramp back again.

The clouds which continued to pass over the moon became heavier. If the sentinel would only relax his vigilance, these periods of comparative darkness would be favorable to flight. But if the soldier was to keep a proper watch the clouds might die away. Then there was the morning to come. Mark began to lose that coolness which thus far had characterized him. It was the waiting that was wearing him out.

In perhaps an hour after the sentinel came on picket he yawned. This was the first sign of hope for Mark. After awhile he sat down on the log and yawned several times at intervals. He got up and paced for awhile, but at last sat down again. This time he sat longer and his chin sank on his breast. He roused himself and sank away again. He would not go to sleep comfortably in accordance with Mark's muttered prayer, but took short naps. Mark considered the feasibility of an attempt to escape between these naps. Without Jakey he could do it; with Jakey it was too hazardous.

At last the soldier slid down on to the ground, stretched out his legs and rested his back against the log.

Mark's heart went up into his throat with a sudden joy.

As near as he could guess there remained a quarter of an hour till the next relief would come. He looked at the moon, which was now shining with provoking brightness; he looked at the man and tried to make sure that he was asleep. It was impossible to tell with any certainty.

"I'll risk it," he said.

He took Jakey up in his arms very carefully, hoping not to waken him, fixing the boy's limp body in the hollow of his left arm. In the right hand he took the squirrel gun, cocked and capped, using the arm at the same time to hold the child. When all was ready he rose slowly and fixed his eyes on the soldier.

The man did not stir.

Mark moved slowly forward, his eyes riveted on the sentinel. A few steps convinced him that the man really slept. Mark turned his back on him and walked a dozen steps noiselessly, picking a place to plant his foot at each step.

Halt!

Was it the soldier's voice? Should he turn and shoot him?

No, only an explosion of a burning brand in the campfire at the picket guard on the railroad track.

He turned to look at the sentinel. The man sat there gazing straight at him; at least so he appeared to Mark. The figure was as plain as day in the moonlight, though too far for Mark to see the eyes. He cast a quick glance down into Jakey's face. He, too, was sleeping peacefully. While these two were in slumberland Mark felt himself suspended between heaven and hell. And how still it was. Even the hum of insects would have been a relief.

All this occupied but a moment. Mark turned his back again and moved cautiously forward. Suddenly he trod on a rotten branch. It cracked with a sound which seemed to him like the report of a pistol.

Grinned Into Matrimony.

That grinning matches were an accepted form of sport in early English days is shown by an advertisement announcing a gold ring to be grinned for by men on Oct. 9 at the Swan, Coleshill heath, Warwickshire, which appeared in the Post-Boy of Sept. 17, 1711. Addison gives a detailed account of one of these "controversies of faces," telling us that the audience unanimously bestowed the ring on a cobbler who "produced several new grins of his own invention, having been used to cut faces for many years together over his last."

His performance was something like this: "At the very first grin he cast every human feature out of his countenance, at the second he simulated the face of a spout, at the third that of a baboon, at the fourth the head of a bass viol and at the fifth a pair of nut crackers." Addison adds that a comely wench whom he had wooed in vain for more than five years was so charmed with his grins that she married him the following week, the cobbler using the prize as his wedding ring.

Powerful Bulls.

During a debate upon the second reading of the Irish land bill in 1896 Lord Londonderry concluded a period with: "This is the keystone of the bill. Are you going to kill it?"

Sir Frederick Milner, speaking on the budget, said, "A cow may be drained dry, and if chancellors of the exchequer persist in meeting every deficiency that occurs by taxing the brewing and distilling industry they will inevitably kill the cow that lays the golden milk!"

Lord Curzon—"The interests of the employers and employed are the same nine times out of ten—I will even say ninety-nine times out of ten!"

Discussing Mr. Asquith's licensing bill at a meeting at Shoreditch, a member of parliament roused the audience to a frenzy of enthusiasm by declaring that "the time has come to strip to the waist and tuck up our shirt sleeves!"

What Is Electricity?

Many persons young and old often wonder how the modern electric cars, trains and locomotives are operated and what electricity is. No one knows what electricity is. We know some of the things that it will do. We have to a certain extent learned how to control it and for want of a better name call it a fluid. We have discovered, too, that it is one of the most important forces, if not the most important force, of which we have any knowledge. We are almost as ignorant of many other great forces of nature—as, for example, the attraction of gravitation. For the present we must be content to observe such forces in action and to devise the best methods to control them. In this knowledge mankind has progressed wonderfully within a few years.—St. Nicholas.

Fishing Without Bait.

On the Nadoo creek, at Hukow, we saw a novel way of fishing. Two small boats were moving parallel with each other about thirty feet apart. The ends of a line about sixty feet long to which small unbaited hooks were attached about four inches apart to two sticks were held respectively by a man in each boat. As the boats moved slowly along first one man and then the other would give his stick a jerk. Immediately that the hooks struck anything the line was gradually hauled in and invariably with success. We saw fish struck four out of five times, many of them running apparently from half a pound to two or more pounds. It may be that China is the only place in the world where fish are caught with unbaited hooks.—North China News.

Custom House Humor.

Two Germans who were crossing the Luxembourg frontier declared to the customs officials: "We have with us three bottles of red wine each. How much is there to pay?"

"Where is it?" was asked.

"Well, inside us."

The official gravely looked at his tariff book and read: "Wine in casks, 20 shillings; in bottles, 48 shillings; in donkeys' hides, free. Gentlemen," he added, looking up, "you can go."—Der Guttemplar.

Not on His Tombstone.

"What did he die of?"

"A slight difference of opinion, as near as I can find out."

"Oh, a fight?"

"Not at all."

"What, then?"

"Doctors disagreed, and he died before they settled it."—London Tit-Bits.

A Memorable Occasion.

There should be order in all things. For instance, on one occasion we discovered that the proper method is to hook her party gown first and fix the furnace afterward. Reversing the order cost us $32.50 for a new gown and spoiled her whole evening besides.—Detroit Free Press.

The Poor Doctors.

"When a man dies, is an inquest always held?"

"Oh, no! If a doctor has been in attendance the coroner is not supposed to have inquired into the cause of the death."—Toledo Blade.

Not Nowadays.

"Polonius was a very wise man. Just consider his advice to his son."

"Reads well. But would a really wise man attempt to tell his son anything?"—Washington Herald.

There is nothing so easy but that it becomes difficult when you do it with reluctance.—Terence.

WALL STREET.

The Human Side of New York's Great Financial Quarter.

To the man who looks from without upon Wall street it seems a place of deep and dangerous mystery, a region of dens and caves and labyrinths full of perils which threaten loss and perhaps ruin to him who enters there. And such in too many instances it has proved to be. But nevertheless there is a decided human side to Wall street. It is perhaps the most "two faced" street in the world. Here men who occupy the highest pinnacle of financial success and who are powerful kings, in fact, daily brush elbows with office boys and bank messengers, "get-rich-quick" highwaymen, silly and pretty girl stenographers, curb brokers and curb merchants and sharp tongued and ready witted "newsies"—with all the motley tide that flows into "the street" each morning and ebbs back again at night.

Wall street may be said to be the most democratic street in the world, for all its vast wealth. There is no street where a crowd will gather more quickly than there, even upon the smallest pretext. It may be a street faker selling some newfangled toy or a man gliding the ball on a flagpole 500 feet up in the air. A suffragette making a speech would transfer practically the entire population from a dozen skyscrapers to the "standing room only" in her immediate vicinity. But unless one hurries he will not get a good view of the fair creature, for soon she is lost from view in tangles of ticker tape tossed in reels from the nearby office windows, a favorite sport among the brokerage house clerks.

This sort of thing usually takes place during the noon hour, and at that time all work is suspended at the first sound of a band in the distance. Everybody flies to the curb. Business can wait in this busiest of streets for most anything before 2 o'clock, when the chimes of Trinity sound the afternoon session and "the street" settles down to its serious business of making financial history.

Such is the everyday "outside" little crooked street, "with the river at one end and a cemetery at the other," which has sent scores upon scores to one or the other—the street with a destiny.—Strand Magazine.

Ghosts Without Heads.

Speaking of ghosts, the London Chronicle says that "headless coaches" are fairly numerous in England. The most famous is the one that drives once a year, on the anniversary of Anne Boleyn's execution, up the avenue at Blickling, her Norfolk home. The coachman and the four horses have not a head between them, and Anne's own is not upon her shoulders, but she holds it in her lap as she sits in the coach all in white. At the hall door the whole apparition vanishes. Anne's father, Sir Thomas, also rides in a coach drawn by headless horses once a year, and his ride is much more exciting than his daughter's. He has to cross forty county bridges during the night and a company of yelling demons pursues the coach to keep the horses going. But how do the horses hear the noise if they have no ears?

A Shadow Fifty Miles Long.

The peak of Tenerife projects a huge shadow stretching upward of fifty miles across the deep and partly eclipsing the adjoining islands. Exaggerated shadows of immense size are commonly seen in many other places. On the Harz mountains the so called Specter of the Brocken throws gigantic shadows of mountain climbers into the sky, repeating every movement made by them. The same occurs on the summit of Pambamarca, in Peru.

On the tops of Alpine peaks and on the summit of Ben Lomond, in Scotland, mists in one case and rarefied air in the other explain these optical illusions. The same causes produce also colored shadows, varying at each hour of the day and traceable to the dispersion of the solar rays.—Scientific American.

As to the Fireplace.

The sides of a fireplace should be well splayed or beveled in order to reflect the heat, says Arts and Decoration. The back should lean forward at the top for the same purpose, and the fireplace should not be too deep. A projecting chimney produces an effect of pushing the guest away, whereas a receding one beckons him nearer to enjoy the hospitality of the open fire. For this reason the inglenook—that is, the fireplace built into the wall of the room—is especially cozy and attractive.

A Bird Mystery.

After years of study devoted to the topic Professor Alfred Newton of Cambridge stated that without doubt bird migration is the greatest mystery in the entire animal kingdom. "a mystery," he added, "that can be no more explained by the modern man of science than by the simple minded savage of antiquity."

Inquisitiveness.

"One half the world doesn't know how the other half lives," quoted the wise guy.

"That's right," agreed the simple mug. "Men are not so inquisitive as women."—Philadelphia Record.

One Want.

"What the world is waiting for," said a man whose garments glistened, "is some sort of a simple, easily applied and inexpensive preparation that would give a dull finish to shiny coats."—New York Sun.

BASEBALL.

Consolation thought for today—there is one person in Scotch Plains, who will not have anything to say at that game this afternoon.

Keep your optics peeled when you are at Scotch Plains this afternoon for one happy yet pessimistic individual named Jack Dingwald. He likes the 'Plains aggregation and he has no use whatsoever for the Pets. You can't miss him if you look for a creature handing out the Union County Heralds with all the latest sporting scoops.

The New York Evening Mail regards Frederickson, the Plainfield southpaw, who recently signed with the McNulty Brothers, as a phenom. And so do we!

There is one thing that will prevent Brit Martin from worrying himself thin—he is one of the three Pets batting in the .300 class.

Hope will try to repeat his Plainfield trick for the Westfield team at Bound Brook this afternoon. Those Bound Brookers can stay with almost anything now after their seventeen inning scrap with the High Bridgeites and it looks as though Mr. Hope would have to do some pitching.

The Detroit Tigers and the Pets might be favorably compared. They both started the season by winning a straight set of games and they both began to lose ground until pressed closely by the second team. They both have a Ty Cobb, Harter playing that role for the Pets, being a center fielder, the leading slugger and run getter and a few other titles combined.

Manager Harvey C. Robins, of the Westfield club, has signed practically the entire South Orange Field Club team for the remainder of the season. Frank Quimby, the former Yale captain, will lead the Mt. Ararat nine.

Daily Press vs. Lawyers.

Both teams will not use any outsiders for this would be known in legal parlance as getting honors under false pretences.

HOLY CROSS CHOIR BOYS IN THE ADIRONDACKS

Holy Cross Choir Boys in Camp.

The Holy Cross church boys have had a most enjoyable camping trip this year at Camp Comfort on Hedges Lake in the Adirondack mountains. Twenty-five boys from the choir under the direction of Will S. O'Brien, the organist of the church, were in the party. All of the boys will have returned to this city before the end of next week, a large number of them being home at present while the remainder of the party stayed at the camp for another three weeks of outdoor life.

The weather during the vacation has been unusually pleasant for camping and everyone of the campers has a heavy coat of tan. A feature of the life was the excellent swimming, which was enjoyed every day at least once and sometimes twice when the weather was warm.

Baseball was the popular game with the boys and the Holy Cross team made an enviable record for itself among the nines from the other camps in that vicinity. Several of the members of the North Plainfield High School championship team of this year were among the campers at the Holy Cross camp and their services on the nine were greatly appreciated.

Will S. O'Brien, the director of the camp, said that everything has gone smoothly at the lake and that no accidents of any kind have been reported. None of the delegtion was ill and all are greatly refreshed by the outing for their school work this winter.

CLEVELAND LOVED HIS BIRTHPLACE

A letter from Grover Cleveland, written in 1884 to the Rev. Charles L. Berry, who was at that time pastor of the Presbyterian church at Caldwell has been given out by Dr. Berry and has done much to solve the wounded feelings of the natives of Caldwell.

Grover Cleveland was born in the frame white house that stands on Bloomfield avenue. Recently there came to Caldwell an editor, an outsider with no love of the place, and in his paper he printed a month ago a story to the effect that Cleveland would never go back to Caldwell because of the treatment his father received when he was pastor of the Presbyterian church. This story was copied and gained considerable circulation throughout the State and caused feeling among some people in Caldwell. In the letter to Berry, President Cleveland said:

"I have your letter informing me that on the seventh of the present month (December, 1884) the Centenary of the church at Caldwell, in which my father once preached, will be celebrated. Though I remember almost nothing of the village where I spent a few early days I can sincerely say that the spot is dear to me. The place of his birth should be dear to every man. The name brings to mind scenes in the family circle when the incidents of Caldwell life were dwelt upon with pleasure and gratitude and I remember that there my sainted parents had their home and there my godly father wrought and struggled in his Heavenly Father's mission; the place to me seems hallowed and sacred. The Caldwell church built up and prospered by the labors of such pious men as have been its pastors has much in its centennial year to chasten and consecrate its history. In the days to come may it always remain true and steadfast in the work committed to its charge faithfully teaching the pure doctrine of the gospel and avoiding all malice and unchartiableness. Yours very truly,

"GROVER CLEVELAND."

It is proposed to preserve the Cleveland home as a memorial to the great citizen to whom a greater memorial will soon arise at Princeton. The Caldwell editor's story was brought out after this fund was started with a view of defeating its object. Mr. Cleveland, who is not now able to refute calumny, has been represented as cherishing a rancor against his birthplace.

The letter to the Rev. Dr. Berry disposes of the story, which, however, received no credence from Mr. Cleveland's friends.

—Michael Sando was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning, charged with disorderly conduct. He was allowed to go under a suspended sentence after a reprimand.

GOVERNMENT REQUESTS A REPORT ON SUNDAY CLOSING.

The postal authorities at Washington have requested from Postmaster Bird a report on the Sunday postoffice closing. This system of closing the carrier's and other windows on Sunday morning was inaugurated about three months ago as an experiment. It has, however, proved satisfactory and the report which the postmaster will send to Washington will be a favorable one, and one that will advocate a continuance of the plan.

Mr. Bird, in an interview this morning, said the only way he could learn the sentiment of the people in this respect was by the complaints received. Only one man made any protest at all, and he was a traveling man, who was a little perturbed because he was unable to secure any mail on the Sabbath.

This idea has been tried in various cities of the country but it has not been as successful as here. However, it would seem to be a good plan because it relieves the clerks in the postoffice of working on the Sabbath thereby making Sunday a day of rest rather than one of work and rest combined.

Democrats to Meet.

The Plainfield Democratic Club will meet Monday night, when the campaign committee will begin its preparations for work. A full attendance of members is desired as there will be a number of important matters up for discussion.

Mrs. Joseph Ferguson and daughter, of Arlington avenue, leave tomorrow for Moscow, Pa., where they will remain two weeks.

ALLEGED PRIZE DOG WAS "DOPED" FOR EXHIBITION.

Morris Plains, Aug. 5.—Complaint has been made to the American Kennel Club that a Pomeranian dog, "Terkeyswell," of the Carteret Kennels, this place, exhibited at the Monmouth County Kennel Club show in Long Branch, July 22, was 'doped." The Carteret Kennels are owned by Mrs. Alfred R. Conkling, who has a large estate here. Mrs. Conkling has denied the charge.

According to the story there was an unusually close competition at Long Branch in the class for "Special Poms." A dozen or more of the fluffy pets were trotted into the ring by admiring mistresses and put through their best paces, all be-combed and be-ribboned. After long looks from all angles the judges took Mrs. Conkling's Terkeyswell aside and awarded him the blue ribbon, chiefly because of his long, lustrous black coat.

Then—the story of the losers has it—some of the officials chanced to fondle "Terkeyswell" in a side room, making a particular visit there because they wanted again to admire his beauty. They chanced to look at their hands when they were through fondling and after that look were unable to tell whether they had been judging dogs or heaving coal. They ran in dismay for soap and water, for their palms and fingers were stained.

The American Kennel Club will meet Thursday, when the charges will be investigated.

Mrs. Conkling seemed much annoyed yesterday morning when asked about the charges. "I don't care to discuss the matter," she said, "but I will say that if my dog was doped it was not done by me. Falsehoods have been circulated about me in this connection, and I don't wish to get into any discussion."

"Do you think some enemy dyed your dog?" She was asked.

"I presume so," was the reply.

IGNORE COUNCILMAN BOSTWICK

Rahway, Aug. 5.—When the Board of Water Works met Thursday night both Councilman William S. Martin and Councilman C. W. Bostwick were present, the latter appearing to take the place of Mr. Martin, whom the Common Council tried to depose as a member of that body. The Water Board refused, however, to recognize Mr. Bostwick and Mr. Martin participated in the proceedings, as usual.

Supreme Court Justice Kalisch in Newark Thursday afternoon set August 17 as a return day for a writ of certiorari against the five councilmen who tried to oust Mr. Martin. This action was taken Thursday afternoon when John A. Bernhard, counsel for Mr. Martin, informed the court that the Council had done nothing after being informed that the court had ruled that their action had been illegal against Mr. Martin and should be rescinded.

DISCOVERS CAUSE FOR THE CHESTNUT BLIGHT.

Philadelphia, Aug. 5.—Thomas Davy Candy, of Langhorne, near here, declares that he has discovered the cause of the blight which is withering chestnut trees in the Middle and South Atlantic States. A boring bettle one-sixteenth of an inch long, black in color, which lays its eggs between the outer and inner barks, is the primary cause, he says. Grubs are hatched from the eggs, and these penetrate the soft inner bark, following its course around the tree trunk. Above the path of the borer occurs the blighted appearance. Myriads of the tiny worms were found upon the single tree upon which Mr. Candy has concentrated his search, and the total result of their depredations was so extensive that the tree, he says, appears to have been scorched by fire.

The blight has become so serious in Pennsylvania that the Legislature appropriated $275,000 to a commission appointed by the Governor to investigate the cause of the disease and to devise ways for exterminating it.

TO ENTERTAIN GOVERNOR ON ASBURY PARK VISIT.

Asbury Park, Aug. 5.—Colonel John W. Aymar, the president of the Carnival Association, will entertain Governor Wilson at luncheon on the occasion of his visit here August 31, when with his staff the Governor will review the annual baby parade. The luncheon will beheld at Hotel Brunswick, and besides the Governor, there will be present his staff and about fifteen other guests.

Only two maids as attendants to Queen Titania XI. have been chosen. These are Miss Marie Winsor and Miss Harriet Smock, both of Asbury Park. Six more are to be selected. Then the queen will be appointed from among the number.

It was said yesterday that the queen this year might come from Newark, inasmuch as that city had more entries in the parade than any other place in the country. Hundreds of young women from Newark are spending the summer here, but no intimation has been given as to who the lucky person will be.

High Bridge	4	7	.364
Bound Brook	2	9	.182

Westfield continued its fast pace in the Central New Jersey League Saturday afternoon, easily defeating the Tail-enders 13-2, while the Pets came back into their winning stride and took a loosely played game from "Dummy" Deegan's delivery for Scotch Plains with the figures 9-4. The fight for the first position was made keen when High Bridge failed to check Somerville and the Somerset county boys are now right on the heels of Dorflinger's Darlings, one game separating them from the lead for the pennant.

The appearance of "Dummy" Deegan in the local baseball league caused quite a sensation at the 'Plains and the old vet pitched good ball but was accorded poor support. Hogarty was on the mound for the Westfield team in place of Hope and he was invincible to the Bound Brook batters.

The heaviest batting in any of the league games this season kept the fans on edge at Somerville where four home runs were made during the nine innings. Two were scored on both sides, the circuit clouters being Wolfe, Clinton, Leid and Elmer Walton. All the drives went over the fence.

Dissatisfaction was again expressed by fandom over the work of the umpires at Bound Brook and Scotch Plains. The trouble on decisions was always smoothed over satisfactorily and nothing serious resulted. The attendance at the games was smaller than usual, the crowds at Bound Brook and Scotch Plains being particularly diminished.

PETS WIN EASILY

"Dummy" Deegan's first assortment of curves and the spasmodic jeers of Scotch Plains proved no terror to Plainfield's Pets in the eleventh Central League game at the 'Plains Saturday afternoon and they came back into their winning streak with an easy 9-4 victory. Deegan was good and the Scotch Plains team was worse although "Red" Waller was better. It was a case of a clever pitcher coming back to his own but his own did not back him, and consequently Dorflinger's Darlings recovered from their recent sting of defeat and took a firmer lease of life in the top position.

Despite the comments of the Scottish clans on his salary question, "Red" Waller proved conclusively that he is still the peerless slab artist in the Central organization although several, including Jack Dingwald, would have it otherwise. During the series of proofs, however, the other pets were right on their jobs and Tommy Mullin and Dave Driscoll brought the peaceful fandom of Scotch Plains into cheers which echoed on the hillsides and rebounded on the flats.

Plainfield did not delay in getting a lead for when Deegan passed Cosgrove in the opening round, the scoring began. Driscoll surprised everyone by singling to left, thus bringing Cosgrove home after he had pilfered the second sack. Harter struck out amid a series of Plainfield groans but Eddie Stallings walloped a safe one to center scoring Driscoll. He took third when Henry Alberts overthrew second in an attempt to check a steal and scampered across the rubber when his brother Bill clouted a liner past short. The next two men were easy outs but three tallies had been made.

Joe Alberts brought Scotch Plains money to par value when he clouted the first ball over the pan for a three bagger into deep left and Gray helped him over the tallying rubber with a neat sacrifice to short stop. Baldwin and MacLaughlin went out on flies and the agony was suspended.

The local sluggers increased their lead by scoring two runs in the next inning after two men were down. Cosgrove singled, reaching second on Deegan's error and Driscoll was passed on balls. A double steal of the

LETHA FLETCHER HAD TO BE SHOT

Letha Fletcher, a valuable hourse owned by W. R. Hutchings, of Westfield, was the victim of an unfortunate accident yesterday afternoon. The equine had been at Flemington participating in the races, and had been put in a box car enroute to the races at Parkaway track, New York. The door of the box car was left open and in the vicinity of Somerville a fast express passed in the opposite direction. The momentum caused the door to shut and the roller to fly off, hitting the horse between the eyes.

At South Plainfield the train was stopped and Dr. L. S. Pocock, of this city, was called. He saw that the injury was serious and had the horse removed. Later a van from this city was summoned and the horse was taken to Westfield. The horse became frantic from the injury. Dr. Butler, of that city, and Dr. Pocock, worked over the animal sometime, but is was finally found necessary to shoot the beast. The animal was in charge of Charles Brower, of this city, and was valued at $2,000. It had been entered in a 2:15 pacing race for a $1,000 stake at the Parkaway races in New York this week and the loss is a heavy one to the owner.

G. O. P. OUTING TO BE BEST EVER

The annual outing of the Union County Republicans on Saturday will doubtless be one of the biggest affairs in recent years. There is unusual interest in the trip on the part of Republicans in all parts of the county, and a record-breaking crowd is expected. The announcement that there will be several notables aboard the Steamer Isabel, when she leaves Elizabethport, at 10 o'clock, has served to arouse the interest. Former United States Senator John Kean is among those expected to attend, and of course, all the county officials will join in the outing.

The point of destination will be Far Rockaway, considered one of the finest pleasure resorts in the vicinity of New York, and ample provisions have been made for the large crowd. There will be plenty to eat, drink and smoke on the boat, both going and coming, and no end of attractions at Far Rockaway.

This will afford the first opportunity the county have had to get together and discuss the political situation in the county. That a determined effort will be made this fall to be successful at the polls goes without saying. The Republicans have not been saying a great deal, but this much is known that they will wage a lively campaign in every city, town and village, under the leadership of County Chairman Frank H. Smith. Some surprises are looked for and the outing may serve to develop them and make things interesting.

WIFE'S TRIP WITH BOARDER RESULTS IN LIVELY SCRAP.

When his wife returned from Newark yesterday, where she had gone with a boarder, Tony Seleca, of Cottage place, the latter started a quarrel with the boarder, and ordered him out of the house. Mrs. Seleca took a hand in the disturbance that followed and the noise soon attracted a large crowd. The house became too small for the desired action, so the belligerents went into the street. Patrolman McCarty happened along, when the trouble was at its height and placed Seleca and his wife under arrest. The boarder made his escape.

This morning in the city court Judge William G. DeMeza fined the man and his wife $5 each with the alternative of twenty days in jail. After the hearing Frank Fiasca, the boarder presented himself, but as all the witnesses had left the court, he was placed under $100 for his appearance Wednesday morning.

"Stag" Party for Thos. Cross.

The Plainfield Association Football Club gave a successful "stag" party Friday evening in honor of Thomas Cross, who left Saturday to visit his home in Oldham, England. Thomas Douglas, on behalf of the club, presented Mr. Cross with a handsome badge. A pleasant evening was spent and an informal program was presented by the following members: J. Faunton, J. Page, W. Cook, J. Jamieson, R. Hennesey, J. Henderson, W. Strachen, G. Pearson, W. Spalding, T. Douglas, C. Priaulx, E. Roxburg, J. Craig, J. Brown, J. Ludgate, F. Cross, S. Sutton, A. Campbell and F. Kenny.

SIN VS. SALVATION

That is the One Problem Before the World, Says Rev. John Snape.

DISTINCTION OF THE CHURCH.

Preacher at Union Service Says It Lies in Its Service in the Master's Name.

An unusually large congregation attended the union services of the First Baptist, First Methodist, First Fresbyterian and Trinity Reformed churches in the First Baptist church last night. Rev. John Snape, of Utica, N. Y., who was the supply at the First Baptist church in the morning, was the preacher. The singing was led by William Holmes, who also sang the offertory solo.

Mr. Snape took for his text, Matthew 20-28, "Not to be ministered unto but to minister," and treated the subject in a forceful address. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Snape pointed out that the ministers of congregations were not the only ministers in the church for if they were, it would be a sad thing. Every son of God and every follower of His teachings should be a minister.

"Religion," the speaker declared, 'is not a Prince Albert coat, to be worn on Sunday and special occasions and then put away for the remainder of the time, nor is it a uniform of any one distinction. And religion is not a method of life but it is rather life of God in the soul of man, overflowing and flowing into every moral activity."

The speaker continued to say that we are all bond slaves of sin and then when we are converted, we become the bond slaves of Jesus Christ. Christ taught that true greatness lay in being a servant and not in being served. The Roman in his time could not understand this for they were kings and aristocrats and counted their power in having people serve and obey them. They could not understand how Christ, who had the power to make himself an earthly king and be served by everyone, did not exercise this authority. Consequently these Romans were trying to crowd Christ in, whereas the world of today, far more enlightened than it was at that time, is trying to crowd Christ out.

When we are praying, according to Mr. Snape, if our prayers are not answered, there is either something wrong with the prayer or with the prayer—It is never the fault of God. By ministering, Christ did not mean that we should not receive service for the hardest thing to do is to accept the Divine Forgiveness and hold nothing against ourselves. Christ's platform was that while others accepted service, they must accept service at his hands.

The supreme distinction of the church does not lie in its authority, nor in its doctrine, nor in its creed, nor in its influence but it does lie in its service in the Mastor's Name. God wants comradeship, our hearts and ourselves.

There is but one problem before the world today and that one is "Sin vs. Salvation." When this one problem is settled all the others will take care of themselves in a correct manner. The man who says, "My country, right or wrong" is no patriot but the true patriot is the man who says, "My country and if it's wrong I'll try to make it right."

Christ was cosmopolitan in his views and this is the greatest argument in favor of foreign missions. Mr. Snape then told of a member of a Baptist church near Utica, who was receiving a salary of $100,000 a year and gave but $5 a year for missions. "Such a man," declared Mr. Snape, "is not a Baptist—he's an anarchist."

"Christ was a personal worker and the world today is waiting for the ministry of the personal touch. The path of service begins at the heart of Christ and ends at His throne."

REV. JAMES T. SHOCK PREACHES EXCELLENT SERMON.

Rev. James T. Shock, of Albert street, occupied the pulpit at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. Y. Broek. He preached an excellent sermon to an attentive congregation, who was much impressed by the many helpful lessons brought out in the discourse.

Mr. Shock took his text from 1st John 5:11-12, and the chief thoughts presented by the preacher were "Jesus is the Son of God and is able to save us." In a plain and simple way he impressed his hearers with the importance of these words.

V. W. Nash, Jr., of North avenue, spent the week-end at Lake Hopatcong.

John Kenney, Jr., of Sandford avenue, has returned from a pleasant sojourn at Manasquan.

WM. R. TOWNSEND SERIOUSLY INJURED

As the result of being struck with a piece of stone or crockery insulation, that came in through the window of a New York Cenrtal train, Saturday afternoon, Tax Collector William R. Townsend is detained to his home on Gresham road with a badly lacerated left eye. The sharp edge of the missile gashed the eyeball and made several cuts on the eyelid and nose.

Mr. Townsend was returning from Charles J. Fisk's camp at Upper Saranac, where he had spent several days. The accident happened between Utica and Schenectady and medical treatment was not secured until Albany was reached, the train crew meanwhile giving first aid treatment. A doctor was secured at Albany and he accompanied Mr. Townsend to New York, where he was removed to the emergency hospital at the Grand Central station. From there he was brought to his home in this city, where he is under the care of Drs. A. F. Van Horn and P. J. Zeglio.

Owing to his injury Mr. Townsend was unable to see what it was that hit him, but several other passengers said that it appeared to be a piece of the material used for insulation. It is a sort of terra cotta. How the missile happened to find its way through the window is not known. Unless some unforseen condition develops, the doctors have hope of saving the eyesight.

REV. ERNEST BROWN AT FRESH AIR HOME

Rev. Ernest Brown, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, had charge of the gospel meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, yesterday afternoon, and the attendance was unusually large. He took for his subject, "The Good Shepherd," and he held the close attention of both the children and older ones throughout his talk. Mrs. Robt. Humpston sang several pleasing solos, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Humpston. The children's choir also sang a number of selections to the delight of all.

The meetings this week will be in charge of the various Christian Endeavor Societies of the city. Tonight the society from Hope chapel, will be in charge. Tomorrow night J. W. Gavett will give an informal talk; Wednesday evening, J. D. Loizeaux will speak on "Floating Logs on the Kennebec River;" Thursday night the Epworth League of the First M. E. church, will have charge and on Friday evening the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel will conduct the service.

EMIL FLAORS HAD TROUBLE IN BEING UNDERSTOOD.

The appearance in the city court this morning of Emil Flaors, of Newark, a native of Switzerland, who was taken from a main line car last night in an intoxicated condition, for refusing to pay his fare, gave the linguists a chance to try their efficiency. Flaors said that he could speak German and Italian. These were tried on him but did not work.

The "parlant" of the land of lillies and also of Poland and Switzerland had no better results, so Judge William G. DeMeza by the exercise of considerable patience, elicited enough information from the eloquent shrugging and gestures of the prisoner to learn that the man was guilty as charged and fined him $5.

KATIES AND JAMES WALSH GET LOST IN THIS CITY.

Katie and James Walsh, aged 11 and 9 respectively, children of Mr. and Mrs. James Walsh, of New Brunswick, came to this city Saturday night to meet their father. In the crowd they missed him and after wandering about town several hours admitted that they were "losted" to Patrolman Kelley on West Front street.

The officer took the children to police headquarters and the New Brunswick police were communicated with. They notified the children's parents. Mrs. Walsh came after them at 11:30 and took them home.

Funeral of Albert Kurzhals.

The funeral of Albert Kurzhals was held privately yesterday afternoon at the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kurzhals, on West Sixth street. Rev. C. F. W. Attlee conducted the services and the burial was in Evergreen cemetery. The bearers were Louis Hall, Roy DeCamp, Charles Wilson, Frank Legge and Frank Platt.

Miss B. Jarvis, of East Front street, left today to spend a couple of months at her home in London, Ontario.

MUREROUS ATTACK

Joseph Firsco Assaults Warren McCawley Following Argument on Trolley Car.

ASSAILANT'S ARREST FOLLOWS.

McCawley's Finger Almost Severed and His Clothing Slashed in Encounter With Italian.

Warren McCawley, of Scotch Plains, was atacked by Joseph Firsco, also of the place, last night, and narrowly escaped being severely slashed with a razor which Firsco weilded with murderous intent. Both men were passengers on a main line trolley and each were accompanied by two companions. On the way from this city an argument was started between them and, when Firsco alighted at Hunter avenue, it is alleged that he struck McCawley and invited him to get off the car and fight.

McCawley was restrained by his companions and when they left the car at Park avenue, a few blocks further on, they stood on the corner talking of the incident, when Firsco with his two friends, ran out of the darkness and without a word began the onslaught. In disarming the Italian one of McCawley's fingers was nearly severed and his clothing gashed in several places. One swing of the razor cut through his coat and shirt making a rent more than a foot long, but just scratching the flesh. He finally managed to break the blade loose from the handle.

As soon as he was disarmed Frisco took to his heels calling his friends who had been engaging McCawley's companions. They ran towards the Italian colony on Hunter avenue, with McCawley and his friends in close pursuit. As soon as the Italians had sought shelter in one of the houses, McCawley and his companions looked up Marshal O'Loughlin. A search through the house entered by Firsco and his friends, revealed them in hiding. They were placed under arrest and taken to the Scotch Plains lockup, where they will be kept until this afternoon, when they will be arraigned before Justice Toucey.

All of the men rode from this city to Scotch Plains on the rear platform which was also occupied by a number of other passengers. The car was well filled and those on the inside knew nothing of the argument which is supposed to have started over one of the Italians jostling against McCawley or his friends. Arguments under like conditions are frequent, and as the feeling in Scotch Plains against Italians is strong any of their acts, whether intentional or not, are not easily overlooked. Just who died start the argument is not known. The P. S. C. employes and officials do all in their power to prevent these occurances, but as long as this feeling exists their efforts at times are of no avail.

Roberts, of Duer street, Mrs. Hattie VanNest, of Martinsville, and Mrs. Lake, of East Second street, formed a party that left this morning for Delaware Water Gap, where they will spend a week.

He is now improving slowly and his physician feels confident of recovery, although owing to the nature of the disease, it will require a long time.

Robert H. McAdams has been elected chairman of the Union County Board of Elections; George J. Stewart, secretary, Peter Tillman; clerk; Oliver Conlen, marshal. The other member is Ralph L. Morrow, of this city. The board will hold a meeting sometime prior to August 23 to prepare for campaign work.

Mrs. J. M. Martin and F. L. C. Martin, of this city, are stopping at Mudlavia Hotel, Mudlavia, Kramer, Ind.

MRS. AUG. FEIRING SR; AGED 64; DEAD

After an illness of about a year, Mrs. Anna Feiring, wife of Augustus Feiring, Sr., died last night at her home on Harrison avenue, in her sixty-fourth year, from complications. The funeral will be held from her late residence Wednesday afternoon at half past 2 o'clock and will be conducted by Rev. Elory G. Bowers, rector of St. Stephen's church. Burial will be made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Feiring was a native of Germany, but had been a resident here thirty-five years, coming from Somerville, where she was married. Mr. and Mrs. Feiring first resided in this city, but later removed to the borough and have made their home there since. She is survived by her husband and the following children: Louis, George, William, Edward Augustus Feiring, Jr., and Mrs. Harry Kesselring. Also a number of grandchildren.

During her life in the borough Mrs. Feiring had made the acquaintance of a large number of friends, largely through her numerous acts of neighborliness that won for her the gratitude and respect of all who enjoyed her acquaintance. During the time that she was a sufferer, the fortitude she at all times maintained earned their admiration as well.

YOUNGSTERS GIVE MINSTREL SHOW

The youngsters at the Bryant School playground, under the direction of Miss Harriett Moe, held a merry frolic in the school yard Saturday afternoon when an entertainment and party was given by them. Several of the parents of the children and two members of the Playground Commission attended the affair, which proved to be most enjoyable and instructive to old and young alike.

The feature of the program was a minstrel show, which was arranged and given by the older boys. Although Miss Moe had drilled them for the affair, they produced acts of their own invention and sprang many impromptu jokes. All the members of the minstrel troupe were blacked, George Jackson being dressed to represent Lew Dockstader, Vincent Smith was interlocutor and Daniel Keily and Howard flung back their cross fire from the end positions. Robert Bowers and Richard Cleighton made up the rest of the company.

Before the minstrel show, a vaudeville entertainment was produced on the small platform, which serves as the sewing circle on every day occasions. Dorothy Stengele and Dorothy Adelberg sang solos and a recitation was given by Marion Sorenson. Folk dances, including a dance of greeting and a Hungarian dance, were then given by several of the girls. Dorothy and Corinne Helstrom, two little girls less than five years of age, made the hit of the performance with their clever folk dances. They did the Carrosel, the Shoemaker's dance, and a Swedish dance in costume.

After the entertainment, the playground games were enjoyed and lemonade and cake was served. One girl made three pounds of cocoanut kisses for the occasion while the other children brought the remainder the eatables. During the entertainment, Ely was seen in his airship and the children greeted it with a joyous shout when it was pointed out by Harry Marshall, who remarked after the children had quietly returned to their seats that it was a surprise which Miss Moe had on the program for them.

Henry Held for Grand Jury.

Percy Henry, the colored youth arrested on complaint of Moses Schloss, of Scheurer & Co., for passing a worthless check several months ago, entered a plea of not guilty through his counsel, Robert Newton Crane, in the city court when arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza this morning. Henry waived a hearing and bail was fixed at $200 for his appearance before the Union County Grand Jury. Oscar Green, of Fourth street, qualified as bondsman.

Railroad Ties in a Blaze.

A pile of blazing railroad ties under the trestle at the Hygeia Ice Company's building on North avenue, called out the fire department this morning at 2 o'clock and gave it an hour's work. The fire was discovered by a milkman while on his route and he pulled box 63. The damage was slight, but had the fire not been discovered at that time it would soon have spread to the trestle and building.

Raymond Hodge, of Grant avenue, spent the week-end with his parents at Asbury Park.

TO FIGHT MACHINE

Mayor G. W. V. Moy Preparing to Conduct a Lively Campaign.

RECALLS EVENTS OF THE YEAR.

City Executive Says He Promised to Enforce Law If Elected and is Trying to Keep His Word.

"Whether I am again a candidate for Mayor or not, I will continue my fight against the Republican machine of Plainfield," declared Mayor George W. V. Moy in the first statement he has ever given out concerning his fight against the Republican machine of this city.

"I am not a politician," Mayor Moy said, "but I know the game thoroughly. I did not take up politics for the love of it, although the political game is very interesting, but because there were men holding office whom I wanted to see removed and replaced by the right men. When the final test came I could find no one who would run for office and was finally forced into the race myself. For the past five years I have been actively fighting the machine and will continue to do so.

"The opposition which I have encountered since I became Mayor I consider due to my opposition to the machine. I expect a hot political fight in Plainfield this fall, the air is already warming up, and considering things which have happened since the beginning of the year. I will be in the battle with a vim, despite the fact that I wished to leave politics alone.

"Last fall," continued Mayor Moy, "I charged that I had been defeated at the primaries, and by the way, this is a little rap at your prosecutor. R. H. McCready, speaking at a meeting during the campaign, said when referring to me, 'He has charged that he was beaten by corruption, why doesn't he produce the goods?' I produced the goods the very next day and succeeded in having two men, whose names I forget, summoned before the Grand Jury. Then, although myself and two important witnesses were subpoened, none of us were called to the jury room.

"The council, with the exception of one man, Frank L. Holt, has opposed every suggestion I made. They have passed resolutions that I have vetoed and have without exception, passed over my veto. They have not furnished me with legal counsel, but have been very free themselves to go to Jersey City and they seem able to get legal counsel to assist them in carrying out all of their desires.

"Early in the year I endeavored to name Mr. Lovell, a citizen practising law in this city, and a fine character; corporation counsel. As had been my method, I sent the name in under seal, and he was voted down. Later I offered the name of Walter L. Hetfield. Before the meeting members of the council, in conference, got me to divulge the name of the man whom I had chosen. Then they refused to have the communication read to the council, inflicting on me one of the worst insults ever offered a Mayor. The name of Hetfield was held up for some time, and finally Mr. Hetfield, who knew that I had offered him the position, asked me to withdraw his name. The council some time ago asked me to draft a resolution for the appointment of a temporary corporation counsel, which I did, the resolution being offered by Mr. Holt, but since then no attention has been paid to it.

"The council has failed to adopt a single suggestion offered in the Mayor's message. Assisted by Mr. Holt, I tried to get through an ordinance regulating the trolley car system, but as yet, our efforts have been without success. By the proposed ordinance I asked the council to place it within the Mayor's power to have removed from the street, cars with flat wheels and any others that are unfit for service.

"Another question which has caused considerable trouble is the office of the overseer of the poor, now held by a man named Ayers, a hold-over from the last regime. Since the beginning of the year I have named four or five able men for the office, but all of them have been refused by the council.

"One radical change that has been made in Plainfield is the method of handling funds. It had always been customary for the mayor to pass on bills prior to their going to the council. This was changed when the council notified the clerk not to deliver any bills to the mayor until after the council had voted that they be paid. The next move was that on my refusal to approve of certain bills, among them one for the payment for a dead horse, they went to legal counsel who worked out an ordinance doing away with the necessity of the mayor's signing of checks and mak-

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The brand of ball put up against Plainfield Saturday afternoon would not win a game in a schoolboy league. The only redeeming feature of the game is the fact that "Willie" Deegan "has come back" and is able to deliver the goods, but to do so will have to have better support than he received Saturday.

A stage load of children from the Netherwood Fresh Air Home spent Saturday afternoon with the members of the baby camp on Johnston's Drive. Games were enjoyed and refreshments served and a good time was had.

Mrs. George Randolph, of Grand street, who recently underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, is improving nicely, being able to sit up in bed now for a short time each day.

The game of ball between the locals and Hyland A. C. team, of New York, yesterday on the home ground, was a one sided contest, the 'Plains winning by the score of 11-1.

The smoked and dusty globes of chandeliers can be nicely cleaned by soaking them in hot water to which a little sal-soda has been added, then put some ammonia into the hot water, immerse the globe and scrub quickly with a stiff brush. Rinse thoroughly and wipe dry.

Bronze may be plunged into boiling water until warm, then cleaned with soapsuds and dried with old linen cloths. It this is ineffective, try beeswax and turpentine, rubbed on and off with a clean soft cloth. Sweet oil and polishing with a chamois is another remedy.

COMMUTERS TO GET BIG GAIN

That the recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the commutation rate cases goes further than has been supposed toward lowering commutation fares is the opinion of Wiliam L. Ransom, of New York City, attorney and counsel for the New Brunswick Board of Trade and the Commuters' League of Metuchen, New Brunswick and adjacent points, in their successful fight against the advanced rates of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Mr. Ransom, in a statement made public Saturday, expressed the opinion that property owners, as well as commuters on other roads besides the Pennsylvania, would find the decision of early benefit to them, and that it would pave the way for the early recovery, by commuters who have paid the rates now pronounced excessive and unlawful, of the difference between the rate which has prevailed since July 20, 1910, and the "standard zone rate" approved by the commission.

"A distinction is to be drawn," said Mr. Ransom, "between what the Interstate Commerce Commission has so far ordered, and what it has unanimously decided it will order, if need be. The commission's order was directed only against the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the impression was conveyed by the press dispatches that the decision was operative only against that carrier. As a matter of fact, the commission made a thorough and scientific zone, and fixed therefor a definite and radical policy, which it announces its willingness to enforce by order, if need be. Because the Pennsylvania's offense against that policy was the most flagrant, a drastic order was made against that carrier, the others being left meanwhile to free their own traffics from the condemnation pronounced by the commission on all rates varying substantially from the standard approved by the commission.

"'Taking the general scale of the Lehigh Valley and the Central of New Jersey as a general measure and test of the fares on the other lines,' the commission finds the Pennsylvania tariff to be so radical and flagrantly at variance and so unreasonable and excessive in the charges demanded for the service rendered, that an immediate order is made requiring the Pennsylvania to desist, on or before September 1, 1911, from charging its present commutation rates from any points on its lines within the State of New Jersey, and to put an entirely new schedule in effect from all points and keep it in effect for not less than two years such schedule to be made up in conformity and on an identical basis with the commission's action in reducing the monthly rate from New Brunswick from $12 to $10, or $1 lower than the monthly rate which has prevailed for upwards of thirty years.

"The tenor of the opinion leaves no room for doubt, however, that the commission will make any order found necessary for the enforcement of the entire decision."

Mr. Ransom was asked whether repayment to the commuters who have paid the excess rates was to be procured, and he replied that in his opinion the commission's decision paved the way for the doing of this, by the appropriate proceedings, for the Pennsylvania commuters and probably also for the commuters on other roads who have been paying rates which fall within the ban of the present decision.

CLEANING HINTS.

Many a housekeeper doesn't know the best way to clean ever so many of her belongings. Yet these articles require constant refreshing. In some houses they are very poorly cleaned, and in some others they are very well cleaned, but with many times the necessary work.

To brighten gilt picture frames, take sufficient flour of sulphur to give a golden tinge to about a pint and a half of water, and in this boil four or five bruised onions or garlic, which will answer the purpose. Strain off the liquid and with it, when cold, wash with a soft brush any gilding which requires renewing, and when dry it will come out bright and new.

Former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, of Elizabeth, as special Master in Chancery, began taking testimony Friday in the divorce suit brought by Patrolman Frederick Skillman, of Roselle, from his wife who was formerly Mrs. Gertrude Schessler, of this city.

After their wedding, which took place here in 1892, they moved to Roselle where they have since resided. They have one child. The taking of testimony was not concluded, but it is said that a Newark man has been named as correspondent.

LIVELY SCRAP FOLLOWS ARGUMENT

South Plainfield is agog over the tale of an encounter that took place there Saturday evening between T. A. Lindaburry, station agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad, at that place and one of his subordinates, a Mr. Wright. In the fight Mr. Lindaburry is said to have been the aggressor and was badly worsted by his antagonist who is much smaller. The trouble is said to have been caused by Mr. Lindaburry attempting to remove Mr. Wright from the tower where he was sending a telegraph message.

Mr. Wright was to have been transferred to another station because Mr. Lindaburry and he was unable to get along together. Mr. Lindaburry ordered Mr. Wright out of the tower and because he did not go the former attempted to put him out. At that Wright, it is said, became aggressive and retaliated by hitting Mr. Lindaburry with a baseball bat. Justice Rogers, of New Market, to whom Mr. Lindaburry applied for a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Wright, said that he could not issue a warrant to Lindaburry because he was the aggressor, although worsted.

WOMAN TO SELL FINGER FOR BENEFIT OF CHILD.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Mrs. Minnie O'Herrin says she will glady sacrifice the index finger of her right hand in order to give her six-year-old daughter Isla, a musical education.

The buyer of the living finger, if the transaction is consummated, will be Mrs. Reginald Waldorf, of Philadelphia. Recently Mrs. Waldorf cut the index finger on the right hand with a rusty nail. Blood poisoning resulted and the finger was amputated.

"There is but one thing that can restore your hand to its former condition," said the surgeon who amputated the digit. "Some other woman whose finger will fit and who is willing to sell her finger must be found. The new finger can be amputated and grafted on." So an advertissment was published in the Philadelphia papers, inviting proposals for a finger.

Mrs. O'Herrin saw the advertisement and yesterday wrote that she would make the sacrifice.

"Are you willing to have your finger cut off to buy the education for Isla?" was asked.

"Why, certainly," answered Mrs. O'Herrin. "Haven't I made every other sacrifice a mother is capable of making for her? I will be the happiest person in the world if this can be done."

OLD SCHOOL MAY CLOSE.

Branch Mills School, one of the oldest schools in this part of the State, will probably be discontinued. It has for many years been supported by Westfield and Springfield jointly. The Westfield Board of Education, however, has notified the Springfield board that the pupils living on the Westfield side of the line will be taken care of in the Westfield schools. This will leave but fifteen pupils to betaken care of at the Branch Mills School.

It is not known just when the school was first started, but it was more than 100 years ago, when Westfield was set off into a township of Union county. Branch Mills was once the centre of a flourishing farming community and took its name from the two grist mills that in the past stood beside the stream flowing from what is now called Echo Lake.

Before the bonanza farming of the West and the Western milling methods supplied the East with flour, these mills did a large business and were valuable properties. Both have been idle for many years and the stream that once kept their wheels moving has dwindled to almost nothing.

EXECUTOR WAITS LONG.

Trenton, Aug. 7.—That the family tie binding the affections of Daniel J. Logue, his brother Alexander and their sister, Miss Annie Logue, is strong, is demonstrated by the fact that although more than eleven years have passed since the three inherited their mother's property, it was not until Friday that Daniel J. Logue, who was named in his mother's will as executor of the estate, qualified.

Mrs. Sarah A. Logue, the mother, died in 1900, bequeathing her properties to her three children, July 5 of the same year, the late Judge Robert S. Woodruff filed the will. No further action was taken until Saturday, when Daniel J. Logue, a former freeholder, went to the courthouse and told Surrogate Bullock he desired to qualify as executor.

Cholera Infantum Fatal.

Mrs. William Jeffery, of Berkeley Heights, left home this morning in an automobile to bring her sick baby to the office of Dr. Albert Pittis for treatment, and on the way to this city the child died. Cholera infantum was the cause assigned. The infant had been sick for some time, but its condition was not such as to occasion alarm. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

January 8, 1874.

A little girl at Mount Bethel, named Mary Harris, fell into a deep well a few days since and was drowned.

There are 1,400 children in New Brunswick between the ages of five and eighteen who do not attend school. The total number of children in the city between those ages is 5,676.

Our young friends Daniel and Dave Smalley are now located in their new meat market corner of Somerset and Race streets, North Plainfield, where they are serving to the public choice meats at reduced prices. They guarantee to sell prime rib roast beef at 20 cents per pound. Give them a call.

The carrier of The Constitutionalist returns thanks to our patrons for the liberal manner in which they "remembered" him on New Year's Day. Our worthy friend, Charlie Hodge, being of the mind that it was "better late than never" sent his acknowledgements to "Cookie" on Tuesday last, in the shape of a fine, fat chicken.

January 22, 1873.

Accident—On Tuesday morning last, while a number of the boys were engaged in playing "shinney" on the ice on Tier's Pond, two of them endeavored to gain possession of the ball which had rolled near the edge of the dam,. One of them losing his balance, fell over the edge and in falling caught hold of his comrad, dragging him over also. Both fell a distance of ten feet, landing on the planks beneath the dam, just missing the jagged rocks which line the edge of the same. One of the lads, Frank Ianson, received severe injuries, the other David Bush, escaped with slight bruises.

ing it the duty of the auditor instead of the mayor. They haven't been able to get away from the mayor's approval, because the law provides that they go to the mayor. I approved the auditor ordinance because it saved me the necessity of signing my name so many times, while it still reserved for me the power of passing on all bills.

"Councilman Herbert Buxton came to my office some time ago and endeavored to get, under false pretenses, a paper which he wanted to sign. After getting hold of the paper he refused to give it back but before he could leave the office I appointed Howard Williams, who happened to be present at the time, a special officer and instructed him to get the paper, which he did.

"I am not surprised at the treatment I received, I rather expected that the wheels would not run too smoothly and am threfore not disappointed. During my campaign I never asked a man to vote for me, but I did say, 'if I am elected I will enforce the law and if you don't want that kind of a man don't vote for me.' I am trying to do my duty and stand by my oath of office and I propose to do it until the last horn blows, and that is not mere bombast nor fine talk. The happenings of the year will put me in the political fight this fall against the machine, although I had wished to let politics alone."

Mayor Moy, in speaking of commission government, said: "I believe in commission government and expect to have it in vogue here, as I believe the majority of the people want it." Mayor Moy also said that he had been in communication with Governor Wilson and expected to have him speak before a Plainfield audience on commission government some time in the fall.

DEMOCRATS' BIG OUTING.

Elizabeth Committee Expects 1,500 at College Point.

Elizabeth, Aug. 7.—One of the largest gatherings of politicians that has ever congregated in this city will sail on August 16 on the excursion of the Elizabeth Democratic Committee to Witzel's Grove, College Point, L. I.

Nearly all the tickets have been disposed of by the committee and what few remain are being eagerly bought up by the late comers. It is expected that fully 1,500 people will go on the excursion. The steamer Sirius has been chartered by the committee and it is expected that a fine time will be had by all.

Among the prominent people who have been invited are: overnor Wilson, United States Senator John Kern, of Indiana; Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi; United States Senator James E. Martine, New Jersey; Congressman Ollie James, of Kentucky; Congressman Martin Littleton, of New York, and Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr.

Joseph Corrigan, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. John Corrigan, of West Orange, formerly of West Third street, died at his parent's home yesterday morning, aged 12 months. The burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery, this city, tomorrow at 12 o'clock noon.

WILSON FAVORS MUSEUM PLANS

Governor Wilson has given his indorsement to the plan under way in Caldwell for the purchase of Grover Cleveland's birthplace as a permanent memorial and museum. It is proposed to raise $50,000 by national subscription, $25,000 to be devoted to the purchase and repair of the property, and the remainder going into a fund for its maintenance. Caldwell plans to raise $5,000. The land adjoining the Cleveland birthplace is to be acquired by the town as the site for a new Carnegie library.

The Governor has addressed the following letter to Leon A. Carley, chairman of a committee of Caldwell citizens:

"I learn with great interest that your committee has actually undertaken to raise $50,000 by popular subscription for the purpose of preserving the birthplace of Grover Cleveland in a way which will properly express the esteem with which he is held by the country. I need not tell you that this has my most cordial indorsement.

"This opportunity to acquire ownership of the birthplace of Mr. Cleveland will probably not reoccur in the near future, and it seems to me that the purchase and preservation of the birthplace would be the most interesting and best expression of the veneration in which the memory of the man is held. Mr. Cleveland was a great man and a great statesman, and I think that nothing ought to be easier than to raise the amount you are seeking to obtain."

The committee had visited the Governor and laid the plans before him. He spoke at the Cleveland homestead October 12 last, the occasion being the pilgrimage of Democrats to the birthplace.

MARK SULLIVAN OPENS CAMPAIGN

Jersey City, Aug. 7.—Judge Mark A. Sullivan, who resigned last week from the Court of Errors and Appeals to enter the race for the Democratic nomination for Mayor, has opened headquarters in the Lincoln Trust Company building, 76 Montgomery street. Mr. Sullivan expects to receive today from Governor Wilson an acceptance of his resignation. He will then enter upon a vigorous campaign.

John Milton, a lawyer, who resigned the office of assistant corporation attorney because he could not see his way clear to support Mayor Wittpenn for a third term, will be in charge of the Sullivan headquarters. The Mayoralty campaign promises to be the most interesting in recent years. Mayor Witpenn has managed to build up a formidable machine. He has not abandoned hope of obtaining the indorsement of the Democratic organization. Some of those leaders do not take kindly to Sullivan's candidacy because of the knowledge that it has the approval of Governor Wilson. Representatives of the Mayor have been in conference with members of the so-called "Big Six" in an effort to induce them to join the Wittpenn forces. The overtures have been rejected, it is said, and the impression prevails that if Sullivan does not get the organization indorsement it will be given to James F. O'Mealia, who is seeking the nomination on a business man's platform.

PLAINFIELD'S FIRST GLIMPSE OF BIRDMAN

The residents of Peaceful Plainfield were startled at 3:15 Saturday afternoon by the noise of a large humming bird and when they turned their eyes skyward they saw a white object skimming through the realms of azure blue directly over this city. The white object was Eugene Ely's aeroplane, with Ely at the helm, and was the first heavier than air machine to ever pass over this city. The nervy aviator had lost his way at Elizabeth in the race between New York and Philadelphia for the $5,000 prize, which was offered by the Gimbel Brothers' Company for the aeroplane driver making the best time between these two cities.

Ely had become confused at the crossing of the Central and Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at Elizabeth and followed the wrong ones when he passed over that city. His intention had been to continue along the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad all the way to Philadelphia and consequently many Plainfielders journeyed to Rahway and Metuchen to witness the machines in their flight, little realizing that they could see one at home.

The birdman, who passed over Plainfield, came from the direction of Westfield, having taken the course of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. When the machine was above Richmond street, Ely changed his course from West to South and flew over the Plainfield High School building in the direction of New Brunswick. The noise of the whirling of his motor gave the alarm of the machine's approach to the unsuspecting citizens of Plainfield and a full view of an aeroplane over this city was obtained before it had vanished from sight. It is said that Ely was at least 2,000 feet in the air when he passed over Plainfield but nevertheless the noise of his engines' exhaust could be heard distinctly in the quieter sections of the city.

When Ely was approaching New Brunswick, he noticed that his engine was not working correctly and so he landed his machine in a large field on the R. W. Johnson estate, which is being occupied this summer by Mr. and Mrs. George Eaton, formerly of this city. The birdman made arrangements for the care of his machine in the field and then went back to New York by train, where he was to secure the necessary repairs for his engine. Ely was not injured at all in the descent and it is said by witnesses that he made a most graceful landing.

Although Beachey reached Philadelphia first, he is not the winner of the race until the time for Ely'sflight is recorded. Ely has until this noon to complete the trip and if his time should exceed that made by either Beachey or Robinson, he will be given the $5,000 prize.

This race was the only one of its kind ever held in this country for never before have the navigators of the blue atmosphere pitted their skill against one another in such a contest.

Passed His Examination.

Albert V. Utzinger, who is employed at L. W. Randolph's drug store as clerk, has successfully passed the State Board of Pharmacy examination. Mr. Utzinger is at the present time spending his vacation at Selkirk Beach, Pulaski, N. Y., and he was notified today of his success.

CLOTH IN THE MAKING.

The Way the Uncouth Product of the Loom Is Finished.

Every woven fabric is made by crossing or interlacing two distinct series of threads together. When the yarn comes from the spinner it is mounted upon the loom in spools, writes Rupert Bowers in Harper's Weekly. So wonderfully automatic are these modern looms that when a bobbin is emptied it is forced out and a full spool is put in its place without stopping the loom. There are all classes of looms for all classes of material, from the thinnest fabrics up to the thickest felts. To attempt to describe one of them or the principles on which they are constructed would involve the reader in a wilderness of technicalities. The power loom is one of the most remarkable and complex of mechanical products, the growth of many years of experience and ingenuity and the crystallization of the inventive genius of many minds.

The cloth in the shop window resembles the cloth as it comes from the loom so remotely that there would seem to be no relationship between them. The first product of the loom is usually uncouth, harsh and anything but inviting in appearance. It has to pass through many processes before it is finished and made ready for the market. It is first mended so as to correct weaving faults as far as possible. Then it is scoured and thoroughly cleansed. Again it is looked over and mended before it passes to the fulling or milling machine which, with soap and fuller's earth, produces the finish that is required. Then it is scoured again.

Tentering is the next process. This sets the cloth at a satisfactory width and straightens it for the operations that follow, the first of which is called raising. The millions of tiny hooks on the gigging machine raise up the fibers on the surface of the cloth and leave them in an upright position. The pile or nap is the result. This produces a remarkable change in the appearance and condition of the fabric. Shearing is the next thing. This cuts off all the raised fibers, leaving them of a uniform length. The required gloss and solidity are obtained by the pressing which follows.

A JOLLY TIME AT HOME.

Advice to the Man Whose Wife Is Away on a Vacation.

During any time when your wife is on an extended visit with her relatives you can save money from your board allowance by keeping house for yourself. You may find the following suggestions helpful:

If you forget to order ice you can render the butter serviceable in the following manner: Take a cut glass finger bowl and fill it with cool water. Scrape the butter into the finger bowl. When ready to spread your bread extract your butter in quantities as needed with the cucumber lifter. That's that flat silver spoon with holes in it.

If you smell smoke you will doubtless find the lamp is smoking and the room is covered with soot. First turn the wick down to save oil, then get a damp cloth and go over everything carefully, rinsing out the cloth from time to time. When cleaning the walls use only a downward motion, so that the streaks will all run vertically.

Not having your wife's social charm, you will doubtless be given tough steak by your butcher. One way to make steak tender is to run it repeatedly through the sewing machine. Use a coarse needle, but no thread. The bobbin trough will catch the juice, which can be used later for gravy. If you take out the bobbin first you will have more room for the juice.—Walter A. Dyer in Delineator.

A Washless Washboard.

"Women haven't the artistic temperament," complained the orchestra musician to the Cleveland Plain Dealer. "That's why I am unmarried. Oh, yes, I was married once. I thought to acquire a woman who could take care of my home, make a little domestic place of refuge for me and all that, but the dream soon fled.

"A few days after I was married my bride came to me and said: 'Dear, that new washboard you got for me is no good at all. I can't wash your socks on it.'

"'Washboard!' says I. 'Why, I never bought you a washboard.' But she led me out into the kitchen and showed me what she'd been scrubbing away on all the morning. Great heavens! It was my new xylophone."

Rebuking an Emperor.

Once, so the story goes, Emperor Nicholas of Russia asked Liszt to play in his presence. The musician complied, but during the performance the czar started a conversation with an aid-de-camp. Liszt stopped playing at once. The czar asked what was the matter. "When the emperor speaks," said Liszt, "every one must be silent." The czar smilingly took the hint, and the playing proceeded.

Didn't Have To.

"Did you hear the rain in the night?"

"Yes."

"Pleasant music, wasn't it?"

"I didn't notice the music. I was too busy hustling around closing the windows. Didn't it keep you busy too?"

"Oh, no! We rent a furnished house, you know."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Her Concession.

"How do you know she's older than you are?"

"Why, she admitted it herself."

"Honestly? What did she say?"

"She said, 'You and I are just the same age, dearie.'"—Toledo Blade.

Murat's Daring In Battle.

I have read that my grandfather's three distinguishing characteristics were high chivalric courage, great skill as a general and almost unparalleled coolness in the hour of danger. His form was tall, his tread like that of a king, his face strikingly noble, while his piercing glance few men could bear. He had heavy black whiskers and long black locks, which contrasted singularly with his fiery blue eyes. He usually wore a three cornered hat with a magnificent white plume of ostrich feathers. This plume, with many other relics, is now in the possession of my eldest brother, Prince Murat. My grandfather's dazzling exterior made him a mark for the enemy's bullets. The wonder is that, being so conspicuous, he was never shot down and was rarely wounded. I have read that at the battle of Aboukir he charged with his cavalry straight through the Turkish ranks, driving column after column into the sea.—Princess Murat's Memoirs.

Passed the Bottle Too Quickly.

Will Low, the painter, told this story of the Latin quarter days of Robert Louis Stevenson. Low and Stevenson were great friends in their youth. Their friendship indeed continued up to the time of the writer's death.

"Louis," said the artist, "was no less diplomatic than brave. He could be fiery, and he could also be gracious and pacific. One night, I remember, we sat in a garden in Montmartre. The red wine had been flowing pretty freely, and one member of our party got heated and aggressive. Finally some one said a thing that this fighting chap disliked. As soon as the words were spoken he grabbed up a bottle and hurled it at the other's head. It was a strong, true shot and would have hit the mark had not Stevenson sprung to his feet and caught the missile.

"'Tut, tut, George,' he said to the thrower—'tut, tut! If the bottle is passed so quickly none of us will be able to stand out the evening.'"

Poor Thackeray.

Sir William Howard Russell's diary for April 1852, has this amusing glimpse of Thackeray:

"The sportsmen among whom I had the honor to be numbered were of the Winkle order. Thackeray, Dickens, John Beech, Jerrold, Lemon, Ibbotson, were invited, and carriages were reserved to Watford. As we were starting a written excuse was brought from Dickens to be conveyed to Mrs. X. by Thackeray. The party drove up to the house, and after compliments Thackeray delivered the billet. The effect was unpleasant. Mrs. X. fled along the hall, and the guests heard her calling to the cook: 'Martin, don't roast the ortolans; Mr. Dickens isn't coming.'

"Thackeray said he never felt so small. 'There's a test of popularity for you! No ortolans for Pendennis!'"

Hiring a Mother-in-law.

In Marseilles the salary of a mother-in-law hired to fill the position for a few hours is quoted at 1s. 6d. It was a case of separation of the girl's parents. Custom decreed that the mother-in-law must be present at the marriage ceremony, so the obliging matron agreed to go to give her consent on condition that a carriage be sent for her, and if not, said she, she would stay at home. The hour for the wedding came, but the carriage did not, so the mamma stayed at home. The bridegroom in desperation when she did not appear ran out into the street and hunted up a promising looking woman, who agreed to come and act mother for the sum named. So she gave consent and blessing to the daughter whom she had never seen in her life before.—Buffalo Express.

The Nile or the Sky?

The barge sped like an arrow over the water, leaving behind it a silver wake that soon was effaced. A few frothy bubbles breaking on the surface alone testified to the passage of the craft, already out of sight. The river banks, yellow and salmon colored, unrolled rapidly like papyrus bands between the double azure of the heavens and the water, these so alike in tone that the thin tongue of earth which separated them seemed a causeway built across an immense lake and made it difficult to decide whether the Nile reflected the sky or the sky reflected the Nile.—"One of Cleopatra's Nights," by Theophile Gautier.

Confirmed His Suspicion.

Ben Nathan, the English humorist, on returning home from a visit to this country was expatiating to a friend upon the glories of California. After listening patiently the friend said:

"But there must be some disadvantages in living there?"

"No," said Mr. Nathan, "it is a perfectly ideal place. For any man who will work"—

"Ah," broke in the friend, "I knew there were some disadvantages!"

Eyes of the Giraffe.

The giraffe, which is a very timid animal, is approached with the utmost difficulty on account of its eyes being so placed that it can see as well behind as in front. When approached this same faculty enables it to direct with great precision the rapid storm of kicks with which it defends itself.

Castles In the Air.

If you have built castles in the air your work need not be lost. That is where they should be. Now put foundations under them.—Thoreau.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

THE KING CAN DO NO WRONG.

Neither Can He Ever Die, According to British Law.

It is a curious point of British law that the king never dies, or, to put it in another way, it would be useless for any barrister to argue that the ruler's predecessors have really died, since the utmost the law will admit is that there may be a "demise of the crown," meaning, of course, simply that there has been a transfer of the royal authority from one person to another.

It is a maxim that "the king can do no wrong," and under the law he would not be held personally responsible for any crime or "tort" that he chose to commit at any time. At any rate, we are assured by high constitutional authorities that the law should actually and literally be so construed and that the statutes hold that any injury his majesty might inflict upon a subject must be ascribed to the king's advisers. One thing seems to be certain, and that is that his majesty can under no circumstances whatsoever be arrested. Nor, moreover, could his goods be distrained or taken in execution should he fail to meet his liabilities.

A quaint feature of British law is that in theory the king is present at the law court at every sitting, though he might in point of fact actually be on the continent or elsewhere. It follows, therefore, that it is impossible to nonsuit him as plaintiff should he not put in an appearance when his case is called, since the law specifically states that the king is there. In a similar sense the king is always constructively present in parliament, though he be in fact thousands of miles from his shores.

His majesty is under the law the nominal guardian of all infants, idiots and lunatics, and to him is granted the sole right to print the Bible, the Book of Common Prayer and all acts of parliament in the United Kingdom. It has been stated, furthermore, that should he so desire the king could forbid the printing of any or all of them anywhere within his dominions. —Harper's.

MINED THE ROAD.

The Volunteers Wiped Out the Foe, but It Was a Sad Story.

"I can tell you the saddest thing that happened during the whole war," said an old negro to a group of listeners. The story was this. One night it was reported that the town was in peril of attack from the enemy, and the fighting forces were quickly mustered. One of the volunteers conceived the idea of mining the road and touching the fuse in time to annihilate the foe. There was plenty of powder, and the scheme was adopted. The rest of the defenders stood some on one side of the road, some on the other, ready to discharge their rifles into what might be left of the assailants.

The day passed without incident, but as the night wore on the strain of the situation began to tell on the nerves of the defenders. Presently, however, there was the sound of hoofs on the highway, approaching rapidly. Such was the state of mind of the defenders that the sounds appeared to indicate the coming of a mighty cavalry force. It was a terrifying moment. A vivid flash lighting up the scene as the first horseman reached the spot told that the mine had been exploded and it had done its work. There was not a vestige of an army to be seen when the smoke cleared away excepting the scattered fragments of a big black mule.

The party laughed as the old man concluded his tale. "That's a good enough story," said one of them, "but what was there so sad about it?"

"It was my mule, sah!" was the old negro's pathetic reply.

A Battle of Languages.

Three or four languages strove for mastery in ancient Gaul, which is now France. German was spoken by the 12,000 Frank invaders. Popular Latin was spoken by 6,000,000 Gallo-Romans. Literary Latin was the language of the church and of literature. Low Latin was afterward the language of the administration. German was the first to succumb. In four centuries it ceased to be understood by the soldiers, and in seventy years more it had become an object of ridicule. But it survives in more than 900 words, expressing the things of government, law and war, and thus forms no insignificant part of the French language.

Corpse Rings.

The sailor of the old fashioned, shellback class always wears a corpse ring. This is a plain band of silver or gold, inscribed within with the sailor's name and port. Corpse rings are worn for the purpose of identification in case of death by drowning through shipwreck, etc. The shellback sailor can never swim, and he looks forward calmly to dying suddenly beneath the sea. Indeed, he usually prefers such a death to a lingering one in hospital.—Buffalo Express.

How He Got Out.

"No," said Woodby, "I don't see Wiseman at all any more. He has dropped out of our social set."

"He tells a different story," remarked Sinnickson.

"Indeed!"

"Yes; he claims he has climbed out."—Catholic Standard.

The Optimist.

"You're looking blue, doc. What's the matter?"

"Well, I'll tell you. A patient I began to treat died this morning."

"Ah, cheer up. He might have died even if you hadn't been called."—Toledo Blade.

A FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY
BY F A MITCHEL.

Again he paused and turned. He saw the sentinel motionless. He had slipped farther down, and his hat had fallen farther over his forehead.

Thank God!

He moved backward, his eyes fixed on his sleeping enemy, occasionally turning to see where he stepped. He was getting near to cover. In this way he passed to within a few steps of concealment. How he coveted the overhanging bank near to him, yet far enough to be useless should the sentinel awake too soon!

Cachew!

This sound was real; it was a sneeze from the picket.

Mark knew that it was a signal of awakening. He darted behind the bank and was out of sight.

He heard the sentinel get up, shake himself, give a yawn, a grunt, as if chilled, and begin to pace his beat.

Mark moved away cautiously, a great flood of joy and thankfulness welling up through his whole nature. After going a sufficient distance to be out of hearing, he awakened Jakey.

"Jakey! Wake up!"

The boy opened his eyes.

"We're beyond the picket."

"Whar's my gun?"

"Oh, blessed childhood," thought Mark, "that in moments of peril can be interested in such trifling things!"

"I have your gun here in my hand. It's safe. Stand on your legs, my boy. We're going on."

Jakey stood on the ground and rubbed his eyes with his fists. Once awake he was awake all over.

They moved on down the river toward the base of Lookout mountain, soon leaving the river margin and striking inland behind some rising ground. Finding a convenient nook in a clump of bushes wherein to leave Jakey, Mark told him to lie down and stay there while he reconnoitered to find a way to get down the river and to cross it.

Mark hunted nearly all night. He could find no practicable route. He did not know how to proceed around Lookout mountain, and could find no means of crossing the Tennessee near where he was. At last, looking down from a knoll, he could see the margin of the river at a place where the bank concealed the shore between the base of the bank and the verge of the water. But what he saw especially, and which gladdened his heart, was a boat moored to the shore and in it a pair of oars.

Going back to the place where he had left Jakey he wakened him, and together they returned to the knoll. The boat was still where he had seen it. Leading the way Mark descended to the bank. So intent was he upon seizing the boat that he did not think to approach cautiously. He forgot that where there was a boat with oars in it the oarsman would likely not be far away.

He jumped down to the slanting ground below and landed in the midst of a party of Confederate soldiers.

CHAPTER VI.

A DESPERATE SITUATION.

NEVER was there a more surprised look on any man's face than on Mark's at the moment he discovered the men into whose midst he had fallen. He knew the range of the Confederate picket line, and was unable to understand how this party could be a part of it. The men looked equally surprised at his appearance. Indeed they seemed more disconcerted at his sudden coming than he was at their being there. When he made his leap among them they were about to get into the boat, and one of them held the painter in his hand. Mark in a twinkling made up his mind that they were not pleased at his appearance. He determined to play a bold game. He had no defined plan when he began to speak to them—it came to him as he proceeded.

"What are you men doing here?" he asked in a tone that none but a soldier knows how to assume.

No one answered.

"What regiment do you belong to?"

No answer.

"Is there a noncommissioned officer among you?"

There was so much of authority in Mark's tone that it compelled an answer, and a respectful one.

"No, sir."

"You men are away from your commands without permission. I can see that plainly."

The men looked guilty, but said nothing.

"You evidently don't know me. I am an officer of General Bragg's staff on an important mission of secret service."

He waited a moment to discover the effect of his words and then proceeded:

"It is a matter of the greatest moment that I get across the river at once. I want you men to pull me over and then report immediately to your colonel. Give me your names. What regiment do you belong to?"

"The ——th Tennessee."

"The old story," said Mark severely. "You men are doubtless from east Tennessee. You are deserters trying to get back to where you came from."

Mark had hit the nail on the head. The men looked terror stricken. He knew, when he ordered them to pull across the river, that they would obey him gladly.

"Get into the boat, every one of you."

Every man got into the boat, and one of them took the oars.

"Now if you will get me over quickly I'll see what I can do for you with your commanding officer when I return."

Jakey was standing on the bank with his eyes wide open at this scene. Mark had been a hero with him; now he was a little less than a god.

"Do you want to get across the river, my little man?" asked Mark, as if he had never seen the boy before.

"Does I want ter? Course I does."

"Jump in then, quick. I've no time to lose."

Jakey came down and got in with the rest.

"Give way," cried Mark, and the boat shot out from the shore.

Not a dozen strokes had been taken before Mark, who was delighted at the success of his assurance, saw a sight that made his heart sink within him. A boat shot around Moccasin point from the eastward. It was full of armed men.

As soon as they saw the skiff with Mark and the deserters in it—for such they were—they pulled straight for them. In five minutes they were alongside.

"I reckon you're the men we're looking for," said an officer seated in the stern.

"Who are you looking for?" asked Mark, with as much coolness as he could assume.

"Deserters from the ——th Tennessee."

Mark knew it was all up with him. His assumption of being on General Bragg's staff, which had been so successful a ruse, suddenly appeared to him a halter about his neck.

"Hand over your guns," said the officer.

The guns were handed into the boat, all except Jakey's shotgun.

"That other one too."

"That's only a shotgun, captain," said Mark.

"Well, never mind the popgun."

Every moment the deserters looked for Mark to declare his exalted position on General Bragg's staff, but no such declaration came. It seemed possible to them that perhaps he would not wish to disclose his identity to so many. At any rate they said nothing. Had it not been for his assumption Mark would have applied to the captain to let a poor countryman and his little brother pass. Had he done so it is quite possible that the men he had deceived, surmising that he was a refugee like themselves, would not have betrayed him; but Mark knew that besides this danger the officers, having found him in such company, would not let him go.

Mark's heart was heavy as the boat in which he sat was pulled slowly against the current to Chattanooga. He realized that there was now no opportunity for his wits, on which he usually relied, to work. He was in the hands of the enemy; he would not be released without a thorough questioning, and he could say nothing that would not tell against him.

On landing all were taken to the provost marshal's office. The soldiers acknowledged that they were members of the ——th Tennessee regiment, but stoutly denied that they were deserters. They were Union men, some of the northerners who had been impressed into the Confederate service, or had enlisted for the purpose of flying to the stars and stripes as soon as they could get near enough to warrant an attempt. They were sent to their regiment under guard. As they were leaving one of them said to Mark:

"I hope you'll keep your promise."

Mark did not reply; he had cherished a hope that they would be taken away before anything would come out as to his assumption of authority.

"What promise?" asked the provost marshal quickly.

"He's an officer on General Bragg's staff. You ought to know him, colonel."

"The devil!" exclaimed the colonel.

"Oh, I saw the men were doing something they were ashamed of, and I bluffed 'em to row me across," said Mark with assumed carelessness.

"Who are you?"

"I belong in east Tennessee."

"You don't belong to any such place. You're not southern born at all. You are a Yankee. I thought you were only trying to get north with these men; now I believe you are a spy."

"I'm a southern man, sarten," said Mark, with such coolness that the officer was for a moment in doubt as to his surmise.

"Let me hear you say New York."

"New York."

"New York," repeated the colonel ironically. "If you were a southern man you'd say New Yawk. I shall have to hold you for further information."

"I would like to go to my home in Tennessee. I came here to buy a gun for my brother. But if you won't let me I'll have to stay with you, I suppose. Only I hope you won't separate us. Jakey's very young, and I don't want to turn him adrift alone in a strange town."

"I shall have to hold you till I can report the case to headquarters," said the officer, and Mark and Jakey were led away to a room in the house occupied by the provost marshal for prisoners temporarily passing through his hands.

The reply that came to the announcement of the capture of the citizen and the boy was to hold them under vigilant guard. It was reported that Mark had been personating an officer of the staff, and this looked very suspicious; indeed quite enough so to warrant their trying him for a spy by drumhead court martial and executing him the next morning.

Mark was searched and everything of value taken from him. They went through Jakey's pockets and felt of the lining of his coat, but as he was a child the search was not very thorough, or they would have found the bills in his boot. They took his gun, but by this time Jakey realized that there was something more momentous than a squirrel gun at stake, and parted with it without showing any great reluctance. He realized that Mark, for whom he had by this time conceived a regard little short of idolatry, was in danger, and the boy for the first time began to feel that his friend could not accomplish everything.

Jakey stood looking on stolidly as Mark was searched till he saw a soldier take Souri's red silk handkerchief. He had produced the impression on the searchers he had at first produced upon Mark—that he was stupid beyond his years. As the man grasped the handkerchief and was about to put it in his pocket Jakey set up a howl.

"What's the matter, sonny?" asked one of the soldiers.

"My hanchikuff," he whined.

"Is it yours?"

"Yas."

"Give the boy his wipe," said the man to the would be appropriator. "Don't rob a child."

So Jakey preserved his handkerchief.

Then they were marched away together to a small building used for a negro jail. It was two stories high, though the lower story had no windows. The upper part was reached by a long flight of steps outside the building. The lower part was a dungeon, and though used to confine negroes there had been a number of east Tennesseeans imprisoned there. The place was kept by an old man and his wife named Triggs. Mark was put into a room in the upper story. A guard was stationed at the door, and the only window was barred. Had Mark been arrested with definite proof that he was a spy, he would doubtless have been put in the dungeon.

As it was, he was only guarded with ordinary caution. This, however, seemed quite sufficient to prevent his escape. Jakey was put into a room by himself, but he was not required to stay there. He was suffered to go and come at will, except that the guard at the gate was ordered not to let him leave the yard.

"Well, Jakey," said Mark, when they were together in their new quarters, "this looks pretty blue."

"Reckon it does."

"You'd better not stay here. Go out in the yard and I'll try to think up some plan. But I must confess I don't see any way out." and Mark rested his elbows on his knees, and putting his face in his hands thought upon his perilous situation.

"Jest you don't worrit," said Jakey. "sumep'n'll turn up sho."

"Well, go out into the sunlight. Don't stay here. If they sentence me to hang I'll try to get them to send you home."

CHAPTER VII

THE RED SILK HANDKERCHIEF.

GREATNESS underlying an uninviting exterior is often called out by circumstances. President Lincoln would not have been the "great emancipator" had he not been born in the nick of time. General Grant would not have become prominent as a soldier had the civil war occurred before or after he was of [illegible]e to lead the Union armies, and Jakey Slack—well, Jakey would not have developed his ability as a strategist had it not been for his friend, Mark Malone, and the negro jail at Chattanooga.

Jakey was as incompetent to sit down and think out a plan for his friend's escape as he was to demonstrate a proposition of Euclid. He could neither add columns of two figures nor spell words of one syllable; indeed he could neither read, write nor cipher, the want of an ability to read or write being a great disadvantage to him in his present responsible position. But the desire to help his friend out of a bad fix having got into his brain, from the nature of the case it simmered there, and then boiled a little, and simmered and boiled again. Like most people of genius, Jakey was unconscious of his own powers, but there was one person in whom, next to Mark, he had great confidence; that was his sister Souri. Then came the thought that if Souri were only there "she mought do a heap." This led Jakey up to the problem how to get her there. The problem was too difficult for his young brain to solve, so he got no further until circumstances came to his aid, or may be not have had the germs of reason within him to go further without being definitely conscious of them?

When he left Mark he went out into the jailyard and began to stroll about with his hands in his pockets. To a casual observer he was simply a boy with no playmates, who did not know what to do with himself. Occasionally he would wander near the fence, first casting a sly glance at the jail. There were cracks between the boards, and Jakey was looking out for a good wide crack to spy through. At last he found a place to suit him and hovered about it listening for a footstep, and occasionally getting a quick glance through the opening by putting his eye to it. But Jakey knew well that if caught at this he would be called into the jail and forced to stay there. At last an old negro woman passed with a basket on her arm, smoking a short clay pipe.

"IS DE ANGEL OB DE LO'D SPEAKEN TO HIS SARVENT?"

"Auntie!" called the boy.

"Lo'd a massy! Is de angel ob de Lo'd speaken to his sarvent from de clouds?" said the old woman, starting and dropping her basket.

"Auntie, hyar at the crack!"

"Who is yo' callen? Yo' mus' be a chile from yo' voice."

"Put yer eye close up to de fence and y' can see me at the crack."

The woman drew near and put her eye to the crack. Jakey stood off a little way, and she could see him plainly. Meanwhile he pretended to have lost something on the ground.

"Why bress my po' ole heart, honey, ef y' ain't nothen but a leetle boy in de jailyard. 'Taught t' be nuff to keep dem po' misable po' white east Tennesseeans dar what dey had in de cellar widout keepen a chile."

"My brother's a prisoner, 'n so air I," said Jakey in a melancholy voice.

"Climb ober de fence, honey, and run away."

"The fence air too high, 'n I ain't a goen fur to leave my brother anyway. See hyar, auntie, air you niggers Union or secesh?"

"Why, honey, do you t'ink we turn ag'in ou' own folks! Ain't de Yankee sojers comen down fur to gib us liberation?"

"Ef y' c'd save a Union sojer from hangen, w'd y' do it?"

"Fo' de Lo'd I would!"

"Then send this hanchikuff to Souri Slack."

"Who Souri Slack?"

"She's my sister. She lives at Farmer Slack's."

"Whar dat?"

"On the Anderson road, close onter the Sequatchie river."

While this conversation was going on Jakey continued his efforts to find something at his feet. He picked up a stone, rolled it in the handkerchief and threw them over the fence.

"What good dat do?" asked the colored woman, picking up the missile of war.

"When Souri gits it she'll know."

"Will dat sabe de Union sojer's neck?"

"Mebbe 't mought, 'n mebbe 't moughtn't."

"I cain't go myself—I'm too ole—but I'll start hit along. Reckon de darkies'll tote it."

She picked up her basket and was moving away when Jakey called to her.

"Auntie!"

"What, honey?"

"Yer mought git some un to tote hit ter an old nigger named Jefferson Randolph, ez lives up a creek 'bout five mile from hyar, near the pike runnen that a-way. Mebbe he'll pass hit on."

"Sho nuff."

"Yo' boy, thar!"

The jailer's wife was standing in an open window regarding Jakey severely.

"Come away from that ar fence!"

Jakey skipped along toward her, doing a little waltzing as he went.

"Ef that ar boy wasn't sich a chile, I'd think he'd b'en up to sumep'n."

"What war yer a-doen by that ar fence?" she asked when he came up.

"Nuthen."

"What war that y' throwed over?"

"Oh, I war only throwen stones."

"What yer throwen stones that a-way fur?"

"Fur fun."

"Well, y' just keep away from th' fence er y' shan't play in th' yard at all. I'll shet y' up with thet big brother o' yourn."

"Waal, I won't go thar no more." And Jakey took a top out of his trousers pocket and began plugging imaginary tops on the ground.

Mark hoped that the preparations the Confederates were making for the expected move would cause them to forget him. He was not destined to be so fortunate. The second day after his capture he was taken before a court martial held in a house occupied by the staff department, to be tried on the charge of being a spy.

Reciprocity Sale

Reciprocity is in every mind in every city and hamlet, and on the farms in Canada and throughout the States. Reciprocity is on every tongue. Reciprocity is the thought that is dominating all others—not merely the very praiseworthy effort to establish reciprocal trade relations 'twixt Canada and this country—but to establish 'mongst men of all nations, of all states, and in all communities a brotherhood, a community of interest that will make life more worth living for all humankind.

THE PLAINFIELD TRUST COMPANY

SPORTS OF TODAY

third and second hassocks was then executed and Joe Harter came to the bat. The best that he could do was to send an easy pop fly to right but Baldwin muffed it and the Plainfielders cantered leisurely down the Gay White-chalked Way.

In the fourth spasm the Thistles looked dangerous again when H. Alberts got a birth on Cosgrove's muff of his easy fly and came home when Goodwill doubled to left. The "Goodwill" toward Scotch Plains did not continue, however, for he was nabbed between second and third on the return throw from Eddie Stallings to his brother. Mullin then made a wild throw to first on Gillow's easy grounder and he reached second on the infield swat. Frentz scored him on a single to center, but was tagged out trying to reach the keystone sack. This ended the 'Plains sunshine until the eighth, which Gray opened with a single and reached home on two sacrifices by Lidgate and MacLaughlin—but that was all.

Driscoll made his second safe hit of the day in the opening of the fifth round and then stole second. Harter flied out but Eddie Stallings produced the necessary bingle to score Dave. Two fielders' choices put Bill Stallings and Martin on the bases but Eddie Stallings was caught at the plate and Tommy Mullin couldn't show the goods. A double by Cosgrove and another single by Driscoll gave the pets their seventh run in the next round after two were down.

Harter made his hit in the ninth, the clout going for two bases, and he advanced another peg on Eddie Stalling's sacrifice. He slid home when Bill Stallings hit a sharp one to short, which gave him a berth. Singles byMartin and Nelson shoved Billy home with the ninth tally.

In the fourth inning Tommy Mullin made the sensational play of the game with a somersault catch of MacLaughlin's fly back of third and Dave Driscoll added to the glory with a sliding putout of Gillow at first in the last inning. "Red" covered himself with honors in two innings by retiring Scotch Plains on strikes so that proves the proposition with the aid of this:

BOUND BROOK BUMPED

Not satisfied with having taken a fall out of the leaders in the Central New Jersey League, a week ago, Westfield went to Bound Brook, Saturday and jammed the tailenders further down in the standing, using as a ram a 13 to 2 score. The game Bees made not a peep at the rough handling and for the most part accepted philosophically the crude decisions of a raw volunteer umpire substituting for R. B. H. Dalley, who is rusticating.

The game up to the sixth inning was not as cruel an affair as the score would seem to indicate. At that period it was 4 to 2 in the visitor's favor. After that, it was 13 to 2, which remained unchanged at the finish. The primary cause of the nine runs coming across was the plucking of nine bingles, three of which were for two cushions. Every Mountaineer made a run and the three to bat for the second time in the inning were retired in order.

The score at the beginning of the round should have been a tie, and would have been had Wiltse received the support his work deserved. Worthley made three lurid errors that, aided and abetted by a decision at the plate by his umps, let in two runs. At that the umpire did not apparently show favoritism, but seemed to lack proper discrimination and its exercise in rendering his decisions.

Hogarty went to the mound instead of Hope and the support given him throughout the game was the most desirable. Pokes that would surely have bred tallies were smothered by the prettiest exhibition of sureness and agility in handling that the Tail-enders nave been treated to in a long time. No doubt a number of the stops were pure luck, but the deadly throwing was not and blighted in the bud many a blooming hit.

SOMERVILLIANS WIN

The hills and dales in the environs of Somerville certainly did reverberate with the volleys of home runs and other hits in the diamond battle there on Saturday afternoon, when the wearers of the green were the conquerors by the score of 6 to 4. But it was a very hotly contested battle; the fortunes of war at first smiling on High Bridge, and then again upon Somerville, and it was not until the fourth inning that the tide of battle turned in Somerville's favor.

Clinton for Somerville and Randolph for High Bridge were the opposing pitchers. Both were hit quite hard and both issued passes, but Clinton was able to keep his free passes scattered, whereas Randolph gave his in a bunch; still in spite of the hits and passes they both pitched good ball.

High Bridge scored at the outset. C. Walton, the second man up, landed on the ball for a nice bingle, then started upon a pilfering expedition in which he was successful in getting second and third, and on Swanson's error crossed the coveted home plate. Somerville, not to be outdone, also scored in the same inning. Gordon commenced by eliciting a pass; the next two up were easy outs; but then Somerville's hefty first sacker let loose with a nice one to center field Grimes and McCarthy were given passes causing the bases to overflow and Gordon was forced to tally. In the fourth both side were able to see one of their men put a figure in the run column. It was at this juncture that High Bridge crowed very loud for Leid came across with a home run.

Somerville, undaunted, squeezed over one in this inning and according to the Hilltoppers it was "squeezed in." It was a close decision yet "his umps" was better able to see the play. Not to be outdone in the matter of home runs the Somerset county boys annexed one in the fifth and forged ahead. Again in the seventh they brought in another home run; and also one of the variated kind came sailing over the home port. High Bridge evidently were not going to allow Somerville to carry off the honors in the home run getting, for in the eighth E. Walton landed on the horse hide for another, making the honors in that line even for the day. This ended the scoring and the sides were retired in short order.

PLAINFIELD ATHLETICS LOSE A CLOSE GAME.

The Plainfield Athletics were defeated by the Watchung A. C. Saturday afternoon by the score of 6-5. Although outbatted and outfielded the Watchungs managed to squeeze in a run on a wild throw, which proved to be the winning tally. Jim Scott, the pitcher for the Athletics, was in great form and outpitched Demler, yet lost the game.

Waller Pitches No Hit Game.

"Red" Waller pitched a no hit game yesterday against the Bronx Athletics, who won the contest from the Hoboken team, 2-1, despite their inability to connect with the Peerless One's curves. Hoboken made four hits yet could not win the game. 'Red" struck out 6 men and did not give a free pass although he made two wild pitches.

The Monroe Avenue Methodists took a firm grasp on pennant aspirations by winning a close game from the Park Avenue Baptists in the city Sunday School League Saturday afternoon on Crescent Oval. A large crowd attended the contest, which was played for the benefit of the Kings' Daughters' Baby Camp, and enjoyed one of the closest struggles yet witnessed in the league. When the ninth inning ended the score stood 5-3 in favor of the leaders.

Trinity Reformers were dropped still further in the cellar of the race by the First Baptists, who clouted the ball hard on the West End avenue grounds and scored 13 runs to their opponents 4. Interest in this game was intense on the part of the Trinity boys, who realized that it was their only chance for some time to avoid a goose egg record in the league.

MONROE AVE, 5; PARK AVE, 3.

In one of the closest games yet played in the city Sunday School League the Monroe Avenue Methodists took the measure of the Park Avenue Baptists on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon by the score of 5-3. Upon the result of this game depended the leadership of the race for the cub, but the Monroes maintained their clean record despite the efforts of the Baptist team. A large crowd attended the contest which was played for the benefit of the King's Daughters' Baby Camp and the interest shown in it exceeded that of any of the other league games.

The Monroeites took advantage of the Park Avenue errors at the start and scored five runs in the first three innings. After this the Park team steadied and Van Zandt was invincible. Errors were prevalent on both sides but the inability of the Baptists to hit VanArsdale when hits meant runs was largely responsible for their defeat. The features of the game were Van Arsdale's and Van Zandt's pitching, Doane's playing on first base and Grisley's work on second.

TRINITY GOES DEEPER.

Despite the efforts of Chauncey Field Colthar and Harold Schenck, who went on the slab to stem the tide of victory, the First Baptist defeated the Trinity Reforms(or rather the Deforms) in a lopsided game on the West End avenue grounds Saturday afternoon the score being 13-4. The Baptists clouted the ball at will, gathering in all 15 hits and these, combined with the errors by the supporters of old Trin, made the game an easy one for Carlton Smith's aggregation.

Pierson Bailey pitched good ball for the Baptists, Smith being unable to play on account of illness. The Trinity boys could do nothing with his curves until the last two innings. The feature of the game was a home run drive by Harriman, the ball going into some thistles and no one would pick it up. Colthar took the slab for the Trinity team in the last two innings and was invincible, but the necessary runs had been scored by his opponents in the early stages of the contest and his work went for naught.

DUNELLEN WON RUBBER GAME FROM CRANFORD

Amid the frantic cheers of a large number of fans, Dunellen won the rubber game in the series with Cranford on the Dunellen grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 5-4. The Dunellen boys fought an uphill game and finally won out in the eighth inning. Harney made good as a slab artist again, holding his opponents to 4 hits with his speedy straight ball.

Dunellen scored one in the second and Cranford came back with four in the fifth when the Dunellen infield took an aeroplane trip with Ely. A passed third strike started the trouble and a few errors and hits completed the merry-go-round. The score was tied in the sixth when two men were hit by Palmer and Barnes, Hand and Elliott clouted out singles.

The winning run came over in the eighth, being made by Barnes, who got a berth on a passed ball and romped all the way home on Hand's two-base slam to deep center. Lindbloom and R. Harsell carried off the batting honors for Cranford, while Hand and Harney acted in that capacity for the Dunellenites.

PLAN FOR SEWERS

Several Matters of Minor Importance Considered at August Meeting.

SEWER EXTENSION PETITION

Plans for Installing Another Pumping Station—Police Pension Ordinance Laid Over for Hearing.

Considerable business of a routine nature engaged the attention of the Common Council at its August meeting last night, while there were a few matters of greater importance to be disposed of. The members present were President R. I. Tolles, and Councilmen Taylor, Gloak, Buxton, Holt, Wilson and Montgomery, Councilmen Mygatt, Clay, Randolph and Dunn being out of the city.

The ordinance providing for the repair of sidewalks was adopted on final reading, after a public hearing was granted. There was no one present to speak for or against the ordinance. This provides that where property-owners fail to comply with the ordinance, the city will do the work and charge it up to the property.

Clifford A. Braider, of Putnam avenue, complained about the diliatory way in which two blocks of that avenue was being repaired, wanting to know if it should take two years to complete the job. He said that he had written to the street committee and had received no reply, and had decided to communicate with the Council. Mr. Gloak explained that the work had been held up owing to the delay in receiving oil, but that it would soon be completed. The city clerk was instructed to inform Mr. Braider to that effect.

Residents of West Eighth street petitioned for permission to lay 350 feet of sewer pipe to connect with the sewer in Monroe avenue, and the matter was referred to the sewer committee. Residents of Woodbine avenue asked for three electric lights and that matter was referred.

Mobus & Burke, contractors, who at present are doing work on the city streets, communicated with the Council that a clerical error had been made in their bid for the work of excavating on Leland avenue, the figures being ten cents a cubic yard, whereas it should have been forty cents. Mr. Gloak offered a resolution, correcting the error, and it was adopted.

M. F. Gano and others complained of the condition of South Second street and Evona avenue particularly as to drainage. Mr. Gano and others are engaged in developing some land in that vicinity and requested the city to provide proper drainage of surface water. The matter was referred to the street committee.

E. H. Sterrit, who has succeeded the late P. H. LaTourette, in the second-hand furniture business as well as that of auctioneer, made application for a license, and the matter was referred to the license committee. Mr. Sterrit explained that he had purchased the business from the LaTourette estate.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett reported the granting of nineteen sewer permits last month and Building Inspector T. O. Doane reported that he had granted fifteen permits during the same time. Horace G. Adams, clerk of the District court, reported receipts of $163.41 for the past month and expenditures of $70.51, leaving a balance of $92.90.

Resolutions by Mr. Buxton which were adopted provided that the city treasurer borrow $2,500 on account of the fire fund, and that $2,500 be transferred from the general fund to the street fund; also that the city clerk be authorized to furnish the Union County Tax Board with certificates of the amount of money to be raised in this city for 1911. The supplment to the tax ordinance, including the school budget, was adopted on final reading on motion of Mr. Buxton.

Councilman W. L. Gloak, chairman of the sewer committee, presented maps, plans, ordinances, etc., for the extension of the sewer system to include Lenox and Cameron avenues and Laramie road, which has been petitioned for. This will require a separate pumping station. The ordinance was adopted on two readings and ordered advertised. A public hearing will be granted on Tuesday evening, September 5.

Another ordinance offered by Mr. Gloak and adopted on two readings, provided for establishing the grade on Stanley place, between West Four thand Sixth streets; also for opening and laying out that street, and a public hearing will be granted prior to the final adoption of the ordinance on Tuesday evening, September 5.

On motion of Mr. Holt the list of detectives employed by the Lehigh Valley railroad, furnished to the

CITY JUDGE DE MEZA HAD BUSY QUARTER

There was a total of 270 cases before him, of which number forty-five were fined, twenty-three committed; sentence was suspended on 166; one was placed under bond for non-support; eleven cases were dismissed; four were not tried; fourteen were turned over to the probation officer and six were turned over to other departments. The total amount collected in fines was $322, of which $254 was turned over to the city treasurer, the balance being paid officers as their share in certain cases.

WANT A.H. ATTERBURY FOR STATE SENATOR

Local political circles were interested today in a rumor to the effect that Albert H. Atterbury, of West Seventh street, is prominently mentioned for the nomination for State Senator to succeed Senator Ernest R. Ackerman. It is understood that a quiet boom has been started for Mr. Atterbury and it is said that if the nomination should come to him in the right way that he would not be adversed to accepting it. While no public announcement has been made concerning the possible candidacy of Mr. Atterbury, it is said that at the proper time he will be waited upon and requested to enter the race.

Mr. Atterbury has been prominent in local affairs for several years, and has always been a follower of the Jeffersonian doctrine. He was an enthusiastic supporter of Governor Wilson in the campaign last fall and worked for the success of the ticket, including the election of United States Senator James E. Martine. For a time he gave a series of talks on the tariff which interested a great many citizens. Mr. Atterbury came out strongly for the direct nomination idea, because his party had adopted that principle in its platform. He is prominent as a lawyer and his friends believe that he is in every way fitted for the office of State Senator.

MERCHANTS ORGANIZE FOR CREDIT PROTECTION

Representatives of the Merchants' Mercantile Agency, publisners of the Credit Experience Guide, are in this city, and with the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce, will organize the business and professional men in an association to be known as the Business Men's Association, for the purpose of getting the credit standing of the entire population. What Bradstreet and Dunn is among the merchants of the country, this association aims to serve a similar purpose among the consumers for the protection of the merchants.

The system to be introduced here has been in effect for twenty-one years and is said to prove satisfactory. By the system each individual is put on record, showing how many places they trade, what amount of credit they obtain and how they pay each firm with which they have had credit dealings and are rated prompt pay, fair pay, slow or no pay. The book is now published in every county in this and adjoining States and renewed every eighteen months. People removing from one place to another are followed by special reports, showing whether they are good or bad risk for credit and for what amounts.

Supplements to the Credit Experience Guide are furnished every sixty days in the form of a secretary's report, keeping the rating book up to date. The association when formed here will have all its own officers from president down. Each subscriber is furnished with letters to send delinquent debtors that he may have on his books, giving them due notice to adjust their accounts, so that no person can claim that there was an injustice done him after the book is published and distributed. Each subscribing merchant will be known by a number and in this way strict secrecy is maintained. A meeting for organization will be held in the near future.

AMEND FRANCHISE

New York Telephone Company Limited to 25-Year Term by Dunellen Council.

RESULT OF CITIZEN'S PROTEST.

The Ordinance Passed on Second Reading After Lively Debate —Other Business Transacted.

Several breezy disputes and words were heard at the August meeting of the Dunellen Council in that borough last night, when the ordinance for the franchise of the New York Telephone company came up for second reading. After a few changes were made in the document it was adopted on its second reading.

When the ordinance was passed, the question was asked Mayor Sanford by one of the residents of Dunellen, who was among the large number of interested spectators present, "Now that you have given to the telephone company everything for which they asked with only one exception, what are you going to give the people of Dunellen?"

One of the councilmen then answered that he would like to know what the people wanted. With this opening a dispute arose between the individual citizen and several of the members of the Council and even personalities were brought into the discussion.

A petition was presented to the Council and Mayor from many of the property-owners in Dunellen and signed by them. It was pointed out in this communication that a period of fifty years for a franchise with a public company of any kind, especially with a telephone company, is too long a time, although it is the longest period allowed by the laws of this State. On account of the fact that no one knows what the size of Dunellen will be in fifty years or even in twenty years, it was stated in the petition that a contract for a space of any more than twenty years would be inadvisable.

The opening sentence in the document stated that the objection to the ordinance was made because as it read it contained provisions which were unfair and unreasonable to be imposed upon the borough and failed to contain reasonable protective provisions.

It also pointed out to the Council that the fundamental question in relation to franchisees is not compensation to the municipality, or even reduced rates or better service to the consumer, but rather the important matter of maintaining the municipality's control over its streets and to readjust from time to time, the relations between various holders of public service franchises and the municipality.

The Council was also informed that it did not include in the ordinance the right to regulate the removal of poles at any time, the height of poles in the borough, the right to remove discarded ones from the streets, and the provision for the extension of lines for the service of a few citizens living at a far distance. An opinion on these subjects of Professor Delos F. Wilcox, the franchise expert of the New York City Public Service Commission was then quoted in the remonstrance.

When the matter was considered the ordinance was changed to reduce the period of the time of the franchise from fifty to twenty-five years. This, however, did not satisfy some of the interested citizens.

Last night's meeting was one of the most exciting, which has ever been held by the Dunellen Council. All the councilmen were present and Mayor Sanford conducted the difficult procedure in the franchise question in a most satisfactory manner. Routine business was transacted, the outstanding bills against the borough were ordered paid, and the meeting was then adjourned until Tuesday, August 14, when the annual tax budget for Dunellen will be fixed.

YOUNG WOMEN CAUGHT STEALING APPLES IN BOROUGH.

Three young girls were arrested this morning in the borough by Chief Weiss for stealing apples from "Tunlaw," the estate of the late John F. Wilson. The girls gave their names as the Misses Hull, Berry and Bergen. They all reside in the vicinity of Greenbrook road and Grove street. They will be arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the borough court tomorrow morning.

Netherwood Trolley Jumps Track.

A Netherwood trolley ran off the track on the Putnam avenue switch yesterday morning and before it could be replaced on the rails, traffic was interrupted for more than an hour. A defective flange is thought to have caused the trouble.

GRANTED PATENT ON AIRSHIP DEVICE

V. M. Kutscha, of Scotch Plains, has been granted a patent on a balance controller for aeroplanes which he claims will greatly reduce the risk now taken by aviators in the event of motor trouble or anything else that would cause the machine to lose its propelling power. The controller not only holds the planes in a horizontal position while it is in flight, prevents it tipping or upsetting and in case the motor stops, the machine will gently glide to earth in an upright position.

Should the aeroplane alight on the water, its equilibrim would be maintained the same as if it was in the air. Mr. Kutscha has experimented with his patent on twenty-seven different styles of air machines and in each case he says his patent fulfilled every claim of the patentee.

GILBERT COLLINS TO REPRESENT THE CITY

Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City, who has been engaged at various times this year to give the city legal advice in the absence of a corporation counsel, has been retained by the Common Council to defend the city in the certiorai proceedings instituted by Howard H. Williams in the matter of the proposed extension of Kensington avenue. This action was taken last night in accordance with a resolution offered by Councilman Herbert Buxton, chairman of the finance committee.

It is not known definitely just when the matter will be argued in the court, but it will probably be early in the fall. The question of extending Kensington avenue has been considered for a long time and despite the vigorous protest of the property-owners on that street the Council went ahead and adopted the ordinance calling for the improvement. Howard H. Williams then, on behalf of the objectors, secured an injunction from the courts and the matter has been held up since that time.

BROOKLYN ELKS PLAY 885 HERE THURSDAY

One of the best lodge ball games that has ever been played in this city is scheduled to take place on Crescent Oval Thursday afternoon when the local Elks crossbats with Brooklyn lodge, No. 22, in their second game of the season. The boys from 885 were the victors in the first contest, which was played on the Prospect grounds in Brooklyn during July and are looking for another triumph over their city brothers Thursday.

The team from Brooklyn 22 is one of the strongest lodge nines in this section of the country and until the Plainfield team took it's measure last month, it had had a clean record of victories for two years. The last game was an easy win for the Plainfield Antlered Ones but the Brooklyn team has been strengthened considerably since then and a fast contest is predicted.

885 will present its usual lineup with Arthur Smith, a former star on the Rutgers varsity nine several years ago, in right field. Fred Nolan will be back in the game again and all the other members are reported as being in fine fettle.

The batting order of the local Elks for Thursday's game will be as follows: Flannery, lf; MacNaughton, 1b; Evans, ss; Nolan, cf; Craig, 3b; Torpey, c; MacLaughlin, p; Smith, rf; Hoyt, 2b.

Watchung Firemen Meet.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chemical Engine Company, of Watchung, was held in the engine house last night. A large number of the members of the organization were present. Routine business was transacted and nominations were made for the annual election, which will be held at the next regular meeting in September. The baseball committee reported the completion of a new diamond at the head of Watchung Lake, where games will be played by the firemen's team every Saturday afternoon. The entertainment committee reported that a festival and old fashioned dance will be held August 23.

—Women's 50c Turkish slippers, 33c; all colors. VanArsdale's August shoe sale.

Danish Lutheran services will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Swedish Pilgrim church, West Sixth and New streets, with preaching by Rev. N. H. Nyrap, of Brooklyn.

M'CAWLEY REFUSES TO PRESS COMPLAINT

When Joseph Firsco, of Hunter avenue, was arraigned before Justice Toucey, at Scotch Plains, last night, charged with having made an atrocious assault on Warren McCawley, Sunday night, McCawley refused to press the charge. Justice Toucey evinced surprise and explained to McCawley that the charge was of a very serious nature as there seemed to be little question that Firsco wellded the razor with murderous intent with which he was armed when the attack on McCawley was made.

F. J. Blatz, counsel for Firsco, had fully expected that the complaint would be pressed and had arraigned bail for the accused man in the event he would be held for the grand jury. In view of McCawley's refusal to do so, Justice Toucey discharged the prisoner, but hinted that the matter would not end with last night's dismissal.

T. R. CROSSLEY DEAD AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

Thomas R. Crossley, for many years a resident of North Plainfield, and one of the best known justices of the peace while he lived here, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Scudder, at West New Brighton, S. I., yesterday morning. He had been ill for some time, and owing to advancing years was unable to baffle disease.

Mr. Crossley for a number of years was employed as a marble cutter by the late firm of L. L. Manning & Son, which business is now conducted by the son, Walter Manning. He was an artist in his line and some of the finest work sent out by the firm was executed by Mr. Crossley. He was also for many years a teacher and class leader at the First M. E. church, always taking an active part in the religious work of his church. Mrs. Crossley died several years ago, and there survives one daughter, Mrs. Scudder, wife of Rev. Charles E. Scudder, who is a Methodist minister, being a member of the Newark Conference.

The funeral services will be held in Trinity M. E. church, Staten Island, Thursday, and the burial will be in the Methodist cemetery, this city, at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, officiating.

DESCENDANT OF ELISHA BOUDINOT IS DEAD

Rev. Dr. William Wallace Atterbury, one of the oldest Yale graduates, and an uncle of Albert H. Atterbury, of West Seventh street, died at Bennington, Vermont, on Sunday, aged 87 years. Dr. Atterbury had been at Bennington for about two weeks, and death was due to the infirmities of advancing age.

Dr. Atterbury was the last one of his generation. He was a direct descendant of Elisha Boudinot, his mother being a Boudinot. He received the degree of Bachelor of Arts from Yale in 1843 and entered the Presbyterian ministry in 1848. For many years Dr. Atterbury chiefly interested himself in advocacy of Sunday observance. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, the National Geograhpical Society and the Century Club. He had not been active in the ministry for many years. He retained his residence in New York and was a regular attendant at the Brick Presbyterian church, where the funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Suspend Adoption of Minutes.

Because Mayor G. W. V. Moy, according to a statement by Councilman Herbert Buxton, has not returned all the resolutions sent to him by the Common Council, the adoption of the minutes at last night's meeting was temporarily suspended. One of the resolutions referred to was that pertaining to the appointment by resolution of the Council of William A. Coddington as counsel to the Board of Health.

Will Meet August 14.

The Common Council at its August meeting last night voted to adjourn to Monday, August 14, at which time bids will be received for the sale of municipal street bonds to the amount of $34,000; also school bonds to the amount of $40,000.

QUESTION OF FEES

Councilmanic Finance Committee Objects to Methods of Mayor Moy.

SAY IT IS NOT AUTHORIZED.

Correspondence Between Mayor and Committee Received at August Meeting of the Council.

Further evidence of the strained relations between Mayor G. W. V. Moy and the members of the Common Council was shown at the August meeting of the Council last night, when Councilman Herbert Buxton, chairman of the finance committee, called attention to the fact that Mr. Moy had been collecting license money from dances, shows, etc., and holding the same for a certain length of time before turning it over to the city treasurer, W. F. Arnold.

Mr. Buxton stated that Mr. Arnold had spoken to him about the matter, and then the finance committee took it up with Mayor Moy. On June 26 last, the committee wrote to Mr. Moy, and received a reply on July 1. The Mayor's letter was answered on July 17. The correspondence is herewith published and explains itself:

"Hon. George W. V. Moy, Mayor:

"Dear Sir—Our attention has been called to the fact that various licenses have been issued for circuses, etc., during the current year. Under the ordinance, such licenses are to be signed and issued by the Mayor upon presentation to him of the receipt of the City Treasurer or Chief of Police for the amount of the license fee. We are also informed that neither the City Treasurer or the Chief of Police have received any such license fees, or given any receipt therefor. Will you kindly inform us whether such fees have been collected, the amount thereof, and what disposition has been made of the same since their receipt.

"Yours very turly,

"Herbert Buxton, chairman; Frederic E. Mygatt, George S. Clay, Duncan W. Taylor, finance committee."

June 26, 1911.

"To the Finance Committee of the Common Council:

"Gentlemen—I beg to inclose herewith report of licenses issued for which fees were received by me for the six months ending July 1, 1911. I note that you state that the ordinance provides that the money be paid to either the Chief of Police or the City Treasurer and their receipt be furnished to the Mayor who shall thereupon issue the license. The objection to this plan is that in many instances the application is not made until the last moment, and that it requires the applicant to first appear before the Mayor with his application, and have the fee fixed. He is then required to report back to either the City Treasurer or Chief of Police the amount of the fee fixed by the Mayor to be paid; pay the same to either of these parties taking their receipt therefor and then make a second journey to the Mayor and get his license. The former Mayor left the license book with the Chief of Police, who, apparently had charge of the entire matter. This practice I have discontinued preferring to sign and issue all licenses. It was then my purpose to make a report either quarterly or semi-annually, turn over the fees collected to the City Treasurer, taking therefor and file the report and receipt with the City Clerk. If you discover any objection to this method, I would be glad to know it.

"G. W. V. MOY, Mayor."

"Hon. George W. V. Moy, Mayor:

"Dear Sir—The receipt of your letter of July 1, 1911, addressed to the finance committee of the Common Council is hereby acknowledged, also the report of licenses issued for dances, concerts and circuses for which fees were received by you for the six months ending July 1, 1911, enclosed with such letter.

"In our letter to you of June 26, we called your attention to the fact that under the ordinance, licenses for circuses, etc., are to be signed and issued by the Mayor upon the presentation to him of the receipt of the City Treasurer or Chief of Police for the amount of the license fee, and in your said letter to us you refer to that statement, but with regard thereto you state as follows: 'The objection to this plan is that, in many instances, the application is not made until the last moment, and that it requires the applicant to first appear before the Mayor with his application and have the fee fixed; he is then required to report back to either the City Treasurer or Chief of Police the amount of the fee fixed by the Mayor to be paid, pay the same to either of these parties taking their receipt therefore, and then making a second journey to the

SOMERVILLE.

Mrs. L. G. Ayers has purchased a residence at Washington, and will go there to reside about October 1. Mr. and Mrs. Ayers have resided in this borough for twenty-five years.

Shermer D. Brunt is at Camp Leisure, Lake Hopatcong, for two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvah S. Amerman and daughter, Dorothy, are at Ocean Grove for August.

Mrs. William W. Brokaw has been entertaining her mother, Mrs. John Rockafeller, and her sister, Mrs. William Rowland, of Centreville.

Mr. and Mrs. William Parry and Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Kline are in camp on the Millstone River, near Weston.

Miss C. M. LeFevere and Miss Amelia Porter are attending the convention of church organists at Ocean Grove.

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Stryker, of New York, are guests of Mr. Stryker's mother, in East Somerville.

Mrs. H. Newton Amerman and daughter, Miss Blanche, have returned from a visit in New York.

E. J. Wilson and family, formerly of Chicago, have taken up their residence in East Somerville.

Mrs. Henry H. Hoagland and daughter are spending two weeks in the Pocono Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Force, of Jersey City, are visiting Deputy Sheriff Frank Ross.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Dunellen baseball team continued its winning streak on Saturday afternoon by defeating the strong Cranford nine, by the score of 5 to 4. The residents feel proud of the ball tossers, because up to date they have played some of the strongest teams in this vicinity, and have been most successful. Robert Bogardus, the manager, deserves much credit for the work of the team and the fans should give the boys loyal support.

Miss Helen Millar has returned to her home in Philadelphia, after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. William Shively, of Whittier avenue.

Mrs. Mary Hunt, and daughter, Miss Francis Hunt, left Saturday for Asbury Park, where they will spend a two weeks' vacation.

Richard Brakeley has returned from a four weeks' sojourn at Hedges Lake, N. Y.

Lee Logan is enjoying a two weeks' vacation.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

A happy party of young men from here and Plainfield left yesterday morning to enjoy camp life for two weeks at "Camp Restless," Lake Hopatcong. The party consists of Frank Lee, George Clark, Frank Coombs, Max Saunders, Krith Saunders, Robert Ianson, Edward Meyers, Walter Demarest and John Britton.

Eugene Lidgate has resigned as change catcher for the local baseball team. Lidgate has several offers to catch regularly and will no doubt keep in the game with one of the teams nearby.

The regular monthly meeting of P. & E. Co., was held last night in the company's rooms, only the regular monthly routine fire business was transacted.

Mrs. William E. Clark, who has been spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walsh, of Prospect avenue, has returned to her home in New York.

Frank Abele, who has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. M. A. Corrona, of Stanbury avenue, has returned to his home in New York.

Mrs. Augusta Miller and daughter, Mrs. George L. Dunn, of Front street, spent yesterday at Bellewood Park.

DOGS IN SOMERVILLE MUST WEAR MUZZLES.

Because of an epidemic of rabies in Somerville Mayor Charles C. Kenyon has issued a proclamation that all dogs must be muzzled under pain of being impounded and killed.

The streets of the borough are overrun with dogs that wear neither muzzle nor tags. Many of these are strange animals, unfed and uncared for. A tramp dog, which suddenly developed rabies three days ago, is reported to have bitten seven dogs in the borough. Only three of the animals bitten have been discovered and shot. The police are now searching for the others believed to be at large.

A dog owned by Robert Bowlby, of Somerville, developed rabies Sunday while being led by a rope by Bowlby's fourteen-year-old son, Oswald, who was riding a bicycle. Young Bowlby managed to place his "bike" between himself and the animal until he succeeded in tying it to a fence by the roadside, after which he ran to a nearby farmhouse for a gun. When he returned the dog gnawed the rope which held it to the fence and escaped. It is still at large.

PRIEST'S COMMENT ON HOBBLE SKIRT AMUSES.

Asbury Park, Aug. 8.—Laughter and giggles punctuated a short sermon delivered by Father Drumm, of the Apostolate Fathers, at the 9 o'clock mass in the Church of the Holy Spirit here Sunday morning. The laughter came when the priest made reference to the "hobble skirt," and the giggles followed at frequent intervals. The church was crowded with summer residents.

Father Drumm compared three rules of a well regulated trolley company to three rules of the church. "These rules," he declared, "were, first, enter the car before it starts; second, pay your fare before entering and take a seat away up front; third, don't leave the car before it stops."

As people are expected to be on time to catch trolley cars and trains, they are also expected to be on time to attend mass, the priest said in referring to the first rule. Continuing, he added:

"Any woman wearing a hobble skirt living in any part of Asbury Park or Ocean Grove ought to be able to walk to the church in ten minutes. Those that can't are lazy loungers."

In regard to the second rule, Father Drumm declared that some of the people who visit the summer resorts believe that the churches are self-supporting and labor under the impression that they are not expected to contribute for the maintenance of the church. Speaking on the third rule, the priest said.

"When people fall off trolley cars usually they get hurt. Members of the congregation leaving the church before mass is ended will get a call down and their feelings might be hurt."

BELMAR MAYOR ASKED TO QUIT

Belmar, Aug. 7.—The newly organized Belmar Taxpayers' Association has started in on a general municipal housecleaning and as a starter has demanded that Mayor Coleman Gibbs resign his office within ten days. The demand was made on the Mayor Saturday afternoon by the law committee of the board, which consists of Major Carl Lentz, of Newark; I. Newton Williams, George Hall, Abram Rothchild and Richard Stoyle. If the Mayor refuses to quit the office it is likely that the court will be invoked.

The taxpayers allege that the affairs of the borough have been run in a slipshod manner; that money has been expended unwisely; that the borough is not getting the full value for the money spent and that in general a condition exists which warrants the election of an entire new set of local officials.

After the taxpayers' board had stated their errand to the Mayor that official declared positively that he would not resign and he added that he intended to be a candidate for re-election next fall. He predicted that he would be elected notwithstanding the opposition of the taxpayers and denied that there was any mismanagement so far as the affairs of the borough were concerned and otherwise defended his administration.

NEWS OF THE WORLD FOR THE BUSY MAN

Stocks were strong in New York yesterday.

Four persons are dead as the result of a train hitting a wagon near Utica, N. Y.

Chief Justice Marcus P. Knowlton, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, resigned because of defective eyesight.

The Pope's physicians announced their patient's condition to be satisfactory, with a hope of his complete recovery in a few days.

Physicians attending John W. Gates expressed the opinion that the patient's chances of recovery were good, provided the heart action did not grow worse.

Rioting and violence were less in evidence in the trolley car strike in Brooklyn, and conferences looking to arbitration led to expectations of an early settlement.

A paper on "Wanted—A Constructive Natural Policy," by George W. Perkins, of New York, was read before the Michigan College of Mines, at Houghton, Mich.

The British armored cruiser Cornwall was refloated from the Cape Sable ledges, and, proceeding to Clarke's Harbor, took the Niobe in tow, bound for Halifax.

Colonel Strong, of Fort Totten, began an unofficial inquiry into the charges of an Indianapolis girl that George Petre, a private, is a spy for the Austrian government.

A bitter fight in the building industry was looked for as the result of the strike of the Whitestone Association of Marble Polishers and Cutters in New York city.

In the ice inquiry Wesley M. Oler, president of the Knickerbocker Ice Company, New York, said the profits of the business were small and that no combination of companies could control the price in that city.

A motion of censure on the British government for the means taken by it to secure the passage of the veto bill was lost in the House of Commons by the majority of 119; the ministry's supporters numbered 365.

General Leconte made a triumphal entry into Port-au-Prince and took up residence in the national palace of Hayti; General Firmin also arrived at Port-au-Prince from Porto Rico, and, by Leconte's order, was permitted to land.

President Taft made an appeal for the ratification of the French and British arbitration treaties and the treaties with Honduras and Nicaragua before the Mountain Lake Park Chautauqua of the Methodist church, at Mountain Lake Park, Maryland.

The Albany County Savings Bank began suit against the administrators of the estate of Senator John Raines, alleging that the defendants had failed to comply with the terms of a bond and mortgage issued on the dead man's holdings of real property.

Congress.—Senate: Messrs. Root and Borah spoke against the recall of judges clause in the Arizona constitution, but no vote was taken on the bill; no agreement announced on wool or free list bills in conference. Representative Beckmeyer, a witness before the Lorimer investigating committee, asserted that he received $1,000 for voting for Lorimer and frankly admitted that he lied when he denied bribery before the Cook County Grand Jury. House: Anderson pension bill shelved by Democrats by parliamentary ruse; baseball score: Democrats, 12; Republicans, 9.

Consolating thought for today—the Pets do not belong to the "Can't Come Back Club" anyway!

Now, really, do you think that Scotch Plains has any right to kick? But you know the same old story!

As Jack Dingwald would have it, it was weeps my dear for those Scotch Plainers Saturday afternoon.

Treasurer Charles Eller, of the Scotch Plains club, certainly deserves a vote of thanks from the newspaper men for he has provided a press box on the ball grounds. The compartment is protected by a screen and serves its purpose. Now this is just a suggestion to Ernest Dorflinger to follow suit and provide a comfortable place for the best friends of the Plainfield club — the newspaper scribes. Catch the drift, Mr. Dorflinger?

That catch by Tommy Mullin Saturday afternoon was the cleverest bit of fielding that has been exhibited around these parts for many innings. The snappy Plainfield short stop was obliged to run back of third base after MacLaughlin's short fly and then make a dive for the ball just as it was about to connect with Mother Earth. Had Tommy slid for the pill, he never would have mitted it but instead, he plunged headlong and caught the ball while turning somersault. And then to make the play even better, he completed the acrobatic stunt by landing on his feet as neat as you please.

All of those who doubt "Red" Waller's ability should just try his Sunday performance over in their pianoed brains. The sandy haired one pitched the Pets to victory on Saturday and then held the Bronx Athletics, which is really Somerville in its Sunday clothes, to no hits the next day.

That Somerville-High Bridge game Saturday afternoon broke all records for long hitting in the Central League thus far. Four home run clouts in one game is just going some but the Somerset county seat grounds is the place to get them. Any batsman who drives a smash for the circuit on Crescent Oval certainly earns all the bases he makes.

It was quite a surprise to see Nolan back in the game Saturday afternoon for the Bound Brookers. He injured his ankle in the Elks' game Thursday and it was believed that he would be layed up for some time but the fears of the Bound Brook fans were set at naught when their idol appeared as usual. And he made his hit, too!

But while we are on the subject of airships, how about the playing of Bound Brook in that sixth inning with Westfield. Their playing was certainly not of the heavier than air variety.

Lou Slocum was rather bumped in his first tryout game for the Athletics who loaned him to a semi-pro nine Sunday. The Plainfield boy lost his game 4-2, but nevertheless did good work.

Otto Frederickson seems to be a popular hero with the McNulty fans and like all cereals (oh, slap me, Myrtle!) there's a reason. He held down the Fort Washington team Sunday to four hits and won the game 6-5.

Who said that Dave Driscoll was a dead one? Perhaps he was at the beginning of the season but he certainly was alive Saturday. Three hits, three runs, and two stolen bases together with a thrilling play was his work in the Scotch Plains game. That drive into first, which headed off Gillow and another run for the 'Plainers, was a nervy bit of headwork and physical skill.

And Eddie Stallings should come in for his share of the bacon, too.

AL GOULLET LOSES BIKE RACE TO KRAMER

Frank Kramer's skill as a match rider was never better illustrated than in his contest with Alfred Goullet at the Velodrome Sunday afternoon. The national champion captured the match in two straight heats and did it with the finesse of the past master that he is. He won from in front and from behind and used his head as much as his heels in bringing home the victory.

Goullet was no mean foeman, however. The Australian displayed a gameness such as is seldom witnessed on the part of a youngster when pitted against a veteran of the game and a ten times champion. Goullet fought every inch of the way in both heats and showed that he has all the speed of a top notcher. His inexperience was a handicap to him and Kramer played on this to the limit. Yet in the last twelfth of a mile, and with both under full headway, Kramer came from behind and pushed his wheel all the way around Goullet until he got his front tire ahead at the tape.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

In the despoilment that has been wrought in the ranks of the Long Island Athletic Club, comes an authenticated report to the effect that William Kramer, known as the king of cross-country runners, will hereafter compete for the Irish-Americans. Within a very short time the great middle distance speed artist will apply for his release from the Long Islands, and then sign with the East Fifty-ninth street organization.

Kramer has held so many titles in but four years of activity on the cinder path that it has been a big job for him to keep track of them. And you ought to see his collection of medals and trophies stowed away in his beautiful Brooklyn home.

Melvin Sheppard, champion middle distance runner of the New York Irish-American Athletic Club, and Ira Davenport, star runner of the University of Chicago, will be matched in a special 880-yard race to be held in conjunction with the national A. A. U. all-around track and field championships next Saturday, on Marshall field, Chicago, if plans now on foot materialize.

The fastest mile paced over a half-mile track this season was made at Findlay, O., Saturday, by Nutmore in 2.06¾ during the closing meet of the Ohio racing circuit.

New York athletes will journey to Long Branch next Saturday to take part in the annual track sports, which are to be held under Amateur Athletic union sanction, with prominent men of the union as officials. A most exhaustive program has been arranged.

$11,800 is the known amount McGraw has paid out within the past two weeks for fresh talent. Maxwell, the Baltimore pitcher, cost $4,800, and Pitcher Ferrell, of the Spartansburg club, of the Carolina association, brought his owners $3,000 more. What was paid for Outfielder Jacobson, of the Rock Island, and Pitcher Munsell, of Dallas, has not been made public.

Mayor and get the license.' The provisions of the ordinance with respect to the issuance of licenses for circuses, etc., are very explicit.

"Under that ordinance the Mayor is authorized to determine whether or not a license shall be issued and the amount of the fee to be charged therefore; and upon payment of the fee to the City Treasurer or the Chief of Police and the production of his receipt therefor to the Mayor, the Mayor is then authorized to issue the license.

"We know of no provision which authorizes the Mayor to receive such fees, which are by law required to be paid to the City Treasurer or Chief of Police.

"While the procedure which you term an objection may require some effort on the part of the applicant, the committee is of the opinion that the only proper procedure is that laid down in the ordinance.

"You further state in your letter that it was your purpose to make a report either quarterly or semi-annually with regard to licenses and to turn over the fees collected to thte City Treasurer, taking his receipt therefor, and file the report and receipt with the City Clerk. And you state that you would be glad to know if we discover any objection to this method.

The objection we find to this method is that, it is not authorized by the ordinance, and that it contemplates the receipt by you of moneys belonging to the city, which you are not authorized to receive.

"Yours very truly,

"Herbert Buxton, chairman, Frederic E. Mygatt, George S. Clay, Duncan W. Taylor.

Lesson in Good Manners.

When the "Boy Scouts" movement was at its height three of the youngsters journeyed from Baltimore to Washington to be introduced to the President. When Mr. Taft shook hands with them one of the little fellows stuck out his left hand.

"Why do you give me your left hand?" asked the President.

"That's the way us boy scouts shake hands," said the boy with pride.

"Well," commented Mr. Taft dryly, "the sooner us boy scouts learn better the nicer us boy scouts will be."—Popular Magazine.

VanArsdale's Oxford Sale

$3, $3.50, $4, $4.50, $5 and $5.50 Value Reduced.

We started this sale on Saturday last and it went way ahead of our expectations. We just advertised it the day before, which proves that the mass of the buying public read our advertisements.

VanArsdale does'nt wait until the end of the selling to clean up seasonable footwear. It's VanArsdale's rule that the bulk of Oxfords bought in the spring must be sold that summer.

The people learned this some years ago—and when we mention our Annual Cash Clearance they know it means VanArsdale's shoes way below their value.

Any man who wants an Oxford Tie, Tan or Black for $2.48, $2.98, $3.33 or $3.98 will make no mistake to load up with four or five pairs.

The same bargains will be found in the Women's, Misses', Children's and Boys' Department.

Come early while the sizes run good.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

January 29, 1873.

The population of our beautiful city is increasing rapidly, judging from the fact that the senior member of the enterprising firm of Messrs. Wind & Acor was presented by his spouse on Monday morning last with a pair of bouncing girls. We learn that the happy father is as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

H. P. Bronk, Esq., arrived home in this city, Thursday evening last, after a five weeks' visit in the South. The Squire looks a little tanned, says he is enjoying good health from his trip, but has seen no place that he likes as well as Plainfield even if a portion of it is "fenced in." We return thanks to friend Bronk for the gift of several oranges of delicious flavor which he brought home with him.

February 5, 1873.

The macadamized portion of Somerset street, North Plainfield, two miles in length, on the "boulevard" as it is more generally termed, is thronged with fast stepping horses attached to handsome cutters since the recent fall of snow. The level condition of the street affords opportunities for our owners of blooded stock to test the merits of the same without fear of the "law" laid down by our City Fathers regarding fast driving, the locality being out of their jurisdiction.

Mr. A. A. Ward, Warden of the County Jail, has made his quarterly report to the committee on Jail Inspection. We gather from it the following facts: Number in Jail Nov. 1st, 31; number received during quarter ending Jan. 1st, 151; present number in jail, 29; average number per day, 39; expenses for prisoners, $670.33, expenses for prisoners per day, 18 4-10 cents; wages per day per prisoners, 12 4-10 cents, all other expenses, including doctor's fees, soap, etc, 7 6-10 cents; making at total expense per day per prisoner, 38 4-10 cents. The jail is clean and healthy, and the prisoners fare as well as circumstances will allow.

No Alleviation.

Senator Bankhead, in a recent address in Fayette, Ala., said of a bill he disliked:

"It seems to offer you some rehress and satisfaction; but consider it closely and you'll find that it gives you nothing at all. It is like the remark of the waitress in the cheap boarding-house."

"'Mamie,' a boarder protested to her, 'this roast beef is overdone.'"

"'No, it ain't, sor,' she replied; 'it's done over. It's the same roast you had yesterday.'"

New Section of the Brain.

Henry Miller, the actor-manager, is always dreadfully in earnest when he is rehearsing a play, and he frequently makes remarks which sink deep into the sensative souls of the peolpe in the cast with him.

Not long ago he was greatly incensed by the inability of an actor to read a line according to instructions, and this is what he said to the delinquent:

"My dear sir, you ought to go down on your knees and scrub out the cellar of your intellect."—Popular Magazine.

R. A. BOYCE'S HOTEL HAS CHANGED HANDS

Announcement was made today of the purchase of Boyce's Hotel on Somerset street by William Feister, this city, who will take possession of the place next week. The price of the property was not stated. The transfer was made direct.

The hotel has been a landmark in the borough for many years, having been owned until today by Richard A. Boyce, who has conducted the business for the past twenty years. It was formerly owned by John Hughes and upon his death Mr. Boyce continued the business. A few years ago Mr. Boyce sold the property to Joseph Genisman, of Somerset street and then bought it back shortly after the deal was consumated.

Mr. Feister is well known in this city, having come here from New Brunswick eleven years ago. He has been employed at the Hotel Waldorf all that time. He said this morning that he will take possession of his property next week and that before very long he plans to remodel the place. It is his intention to make a thoroughly modern hotel there and conduct a transient and family business, up-to-date in every particular.

HOWARD CARVER LOSES FAITHFUL OLD HORSE.

An old bay horse belonging to Howard Carver, of Cedar street, was unable to get up this morning and was shot by Chief Weiss, of the borough. The horse had served numerous masters faithfully and well many years and when put up for the night seemed to be as well as usual. He laid down after eating his oats and this morning when Mr. Carver went to feed the animal the faithful servant tried to reach it, but was unable to do so. A bullet was his entrance into the pasture of long rest.

BOOM R. H. M'ADAMS FOR STATE SENATOR

Since the declaration by Assemblyman Calvin E. Brodhead that he would not be a candidate for renomination this fall, there has been considerable talk about the possibility of Robert H. McAdams, of Elizabeth, entering the race. Mr. McAdams is chairman of the Elizabeth Democratic Committee, and the County Board of Elections, and for many years has been prominently identified with Democratic politics in Elizabeth.

Another report has it that Assemblyman Brodhead has a little leaning toward accepting the nomination for sheriff. John J. Collins, George H. Schlotterer and J. Logan Fay have also been mentioned for the nomination for sheriff. With Brodhead in the field the contest would grow interesting.

EXPLAINS NEW JERSEY LICENSE TROUBLE

Trenton, Aug. 8.—Asserting that the spirit of the letter and resolutions he had recovered from the secretary of the New Jersey Automobile Trade Association, containing condemnation of his action in refusing short term licenses to residents of New York, was deliberately and unnecessarily offensive, J. B. R. Smith, the State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, yesterday declared that he must decline to answer the communication or have any correspondence with its authors until suitable apologies had been made.

Mr. Smith said, however, that inasmuch as the author of the resolution had seen fit to give them general publicity, he thought it might be well if the public understood who these authors really are and what their motive, or rather lack of motive, is. In the first place, he said, the resolutions did not come from the trade association at all, and the rank and file of that organization ought not and would not be held responsible therefore.

They did not even come as the unanimous vote of the Executive Committee. That vote was far from the unanimous expression even of those present at the time. The secretary's statement to that effect, he says, is a deliberate mistatement. There was a strong protest from leading members, who refrained from voting for the express purpose of preventing further discord.

The voting was done by a few men who were affiliated with the New Jersey branch of the American Automobile Association and who are trying to use the local trade association as a catpaw to pull the rapidly burning chestnut of the parent association out of the fire.

This parent association Mr. Smith describes as a national body composed mainly of non-residents of New Jersey, which has been the leading propagandist of the free privilege without registration policy throughout the country. As one of the means to secure the adoption of that policy in New Jersey the association has not scrupled to hold up to ridicule and persecution New Jersey automobilists, including members of their own association, while touring in other States.

RAILWAYS IN JAPAN.

Filthy Cars and Dirty Stations In a Land of Cleanliness.

"The railway journey from Kioto to Yokohama, despite the fact that most beautiful country is traversed, is not the pleasantest of experiences," declares a writer in the Wide World. "One buys a railway ticket in Japan in installments.

"The ordinary ticket only enables one to go by a train covering the minimum distance in the maximum time, so an extra express ticket is purchased, which means that the engine moves a little more quickly toward its appointed goal.

"Next a platform ticket must be procured to enable one to board the train, and finally one has to fight one's way into a first class carriage. Why do all the passengers in Japan take their luggage into the already painfully small carriage instead of leaving it in the van? And why, again, does a nation that is a password for cleanliness the world over possess a train service so shockingly dirty in every detail?

"We once in a weak moment looked into a station master's room at a large station, and for pure dirt it could have given points to a dust heap. In the train carriages the floors are covered with the dirt of ages, cigarette ends, orange peel, sandwich papers. At intervals a porter saunters in with a brush and leisurely sweeps all the refuse into a corner, having first carefully closed every window, so that no atom of discomfort or infection shall be lost.

"Finally he departs, leaving behind him the rubbish and an atmosphere charged with germs and angry words. Truly a Japanese porter's definition of clearing up is removing rubbish from one place to another."

A TURKEY FEAST.

General Lee Showed His Officers the Way to Enjoy It.

General Lee in the drawing room was a dignified and quiet gentleman, very kindly and gentle, especially with women and children. "On the field," says Major Ranson in Harper's Magazine, "he was the general, the commander in all essential points. But in other points he could be as sympathetic and considerate as he was at home.

"In the latter part of December a barrel was delivered at our camp marked 'General Lee and Staff.' We opened it and found it was packed full of turkeys. We sent word to General Lee, and he rode over to our camp. There was snow on the ground, and we had laid the turkeys out on a board on the snow, the biggest in the middle and the others tapering off to the smallest at each end. There were about a dozen of them.

"General Lee dismounted and joined the group gathered round the present, carrying his unslung and undrawn sword in his hand. He was told that the big turkey in the middle was his. He stood looking down at the turkeys for a moment and then said, touching the big turkey with the scabbard of his sword:

"'This, then, is my turkey? I don't know, gentlemen, what you are going to do with your turkeys, but I wish mine sent to the hospital in Petersburg so that some of the convalescents may have a good dinner.'

"He then turned on his heel and, walking to his horse, mounted and rode away. We looked at one another for a moment and then, without a word, replaced the turkeys in the barrel and sent them to the hospital."

Gilbert's Witty Comment.

Sir W. S. Gilbert's wit and humor were always ready. He was a fine raconteur and a good after dinner speaker. Rutland Barrington, the old Savoyard, said that "staying in Gilbert's house was like living in a literary fireworks factory."

Barrington played the Captain in "Pinafore." At rehearsal one day Gilbert, who was an autocratic and magnificent stage manager, told him to cross the stage, which represented the deck of H. M. S. Pinafore, and sit on a skylight "in a pensive attitude." Barrington obeyed orders, but unfortunately the skylight had only been rigged up temporarily, and the portly Barrington crashed through it.

"That's an ex-pensive attitude," said Gilbert in a flash.

Wanted to Convert Utopia.

When the "Utopia" was first published it occasioned a pleasant mistake. This political romance represents a perfect but visionary republic in an island supposed to have been somewhere in the Atlantic, near these western shores.

"As this was the age of discovery," says Granger, "the learned Budaeus and others took it for genuine history and deemed it expedient to send missionaries thither to convert the people."—"Book of Queer Things."

Chattel Mortgages.

A man who gives a chattel mortgage should always examine it carefully to make sure it is not "on demand." Sharp money lenders who loan funds on chattel mortgages often try to have this clause inserted, and when it is the borrower may expect to part with his chattels at almost any moment. It is a trick by which advantage is often taken of the unwary.

On the Fence.

"Are you an optimist or a pessimist?"

"Both. I hope for the best, but I don't bet on it as a sure thing."—Exchange.

To live long it is necessary to live slowly.—Cicero.

TREE TRUNK CANNON.

Wonderful Wooden Hide Wound Guns of the Antilles.

The mention of wooden guns suggests a company of boy soldiers commanded by a captain who wears a tin sword. The revolutionary soldiers of Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic, however, have from time to time made cannon from trees and applied them to practical purposes. In the Antilles there grows a peculiar tree with a winding grain, so tenacious of fiber that to split it by ordinary means is almost an impossibility.

When wanted for artillery purposes the tree is felled, a section some five feet in length and one foot in diameter is selected and cut, the bark is removed, and uneven places on the surface are dressed down.

The embryo cannon is then placed on rude trusses and a bore burned in it, a process that serves further still to harden the wood. While the bore is being burned green ox hides are cut into long strips by beginning in the center and working toward the outer edge as one would peel an apple.

When all is in readiness one end of this rawhide band, which is about three inches in width, is spiked to the wooden cannon near the breech. A lever or bar is attached to the butt. Two or three negroes grasp the arms of the bar and slowly turn the hollowed log on its supports. The band of green hide is kept under a strain, and in this way the core of the cannon is wound with one of the toughest materials, wire excepted, in the world.

The first layer of hide is tightly wound to the muzzle of the growing gun and back toward the breech again until a number of layers have thus been wound on and the promising piece of artillery has grown several inches in diameter.

It is then placed in a draft of dry, hot air and allowed to harden. When the hardening and curing process is complete the persevering inhabitants have a really serviceable weapon.

One of these homemade wood and rawhide cannon used during the last Cuban insurrection is said to have withstood 104 charges of powder before becoming useless. The projectiles for it were made of scrap iron, broken stone and fire hardened clay balls.—St. Louis Republic.

REAL JAVA COFFEE.

You May Get a Cup Almost Any Place Except In Java.

It seems strange that in the far east, where tea and coffee come from, it is very difficult for the traveler in nearly all places in India, the Straits Settlements and elsewhere in the orient to procure a cup of really good tea or coffee. This, says Sir Frederic S. Isham, the novelist, although seemingly paradoxical, is only on a par with conditions in so many of our little American hamlets and villages where good butter, rich cream and good chickens for the residents are practically nonobtainable, all of them having been "sent to town."

In Calcutta I heard an American in the best hotel there say to the waiter: "If this," indicating the contents of a cup before him, "is tea, bring me coffee. If it is coffee, bring me tea." And the waiter (an Eurasian), who had no sense of humor, took away the drink and phlegmatically brought something else—equally bad, no doubt.

So after India, Burma and the Malay peninsula we waited with bated breath for the coffee of Java. "Java coffee!" The excellence of it was a childhood tradition. The coffee "mother used to make" was compounded of real Java. In Java surely we should find a nectar of the gods. What did we discover? An extract of coffee served in little casters! It would have made the gods fill. Another illusion gone!

Don't go to Java for real Java coffee. You may find it in Ypsilanti, Mich., or Paris, O., but you won't unearth it in Java—not for money.

Too Much For Him.

Voltaire could not speak much English. The reason why he refused to study the language is this: It was drilled into him that "plague" was pronounced "plaig," which he thought very pretty and acceptable. But right on top of it he was introduced to "ague," which his teacher said must be called "a-gue." Finding it impossible to reconcile the difference, he went off into a philosophical tantrum and dropped the study.

A Bit of a Brag.

Lawyer—Are you acquainted with any of the men on the jury? Witness—Yes, sir; more than half of them. Lawyer—Are you willing to swear that you know more than half of them? Witness—Say, if it comes to that, I'm willing to swear that I know more than all of them put together.—Milwaukee Journal.

Deserving of Pity.

"There goes Roxham. Every time I think of that man's financial embarrassment it makes me yearn to help him."

"Financial embarrassment?"

"Yes. He's got so much money he doesn't know what to do with it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Main Thing.

Political Leader—How does Bump stand? Henchman—All right, I guess. He belongs to the same political party as we do. Political Leader—Confound it! That's no sign. Is he with us or against us?—Puck.

About the Same Thing.

Scribbler—Can you suggest a simile for giving advice? Scrawler—How would pouring water on a duck's back do?—Philadelphia Record.

Making a Home Run.

Augie Moran, ex-ball player and umpire, was telling a story to a group of fans.

"There was a time when I played in the state league, and at that time on the Hazleton team there was a noted eater, "Kid" Jordan. Well, the year that Hazleton won the pennant nothing was too good for the boys, and a number of business men arranged a banquet for the team and a few of the dyed-in-the-wool rooters. Everything went off well, the courses were arranged temptingly and called 'innings,' and the table was decorated to represent a baseball field.

"We had everything there was to eat, and one of the innings was roast squab. This was served on a platter and the vegetables arranged in the shape of a diamond. The base lines were made of creamed potatoes, and at every base there was some vegetable cooked and cut in the shape of a base.

"This dish was a hit with the boys, and we all commented on it. I turned to Jordan, who wasn't saying much, but was industriously paying attention to the dish, and asked him how he was getting along.

"'Fine,' he said. 'I'm eating 'em up around third base.'"—Philadelphia Times.

Poisoning as a Diversion.

Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 331, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence, which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave girl gave information to the authorities, and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty matrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisonous, but, being compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further informations followed, and 170 matrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.—London Chronicle.

A Dream and Its Result.

In 1720 a terrible epidemic decimated Marseilles and Provence, and Sardinia owed its escape to a dream. At this period the viceroy of Sardinia dreamed that the disease had invaded Sardinia and that the ravages were frightful. When the viceroy awoke he was deeply impressed by his dream, and a little later a merchantman put in its appearance at Cagliari and demanded a place to berth. The Sardinia refused, and when it was hinted that the merchantman wanted to land some sick the viceroy threatened to train the guns of the forts upon the vessel if the captain did not depart instantly. The people of Cagliari thought that the viceroy was mad, but great was their joy later when they learned that this very ship, which went on to Marseilles, was responsible for introducing the plague into the famous port.

Roads of the Olden Time.

A curious illustration of the lack of any systematic authority over the roads in England, even as late as the fifteenth century, is preserved in the records of the manor of Aylesbury. A local miller, named Richard Boose, needed some ramming clay for the repair of his mill. Accordingly—we learn from "Old Country Inns"—his servants dug a great pit in the middle of the road, ten feet wide and eight feet deep, and so left it to become filled with water from the winter rains. A glover from Leighton Buzzard, on his way home from market, fell in and was drowned. Charged with manslaughter, the miller pleaded that he had no place wherein to get the kind of clay be required except on the highroad. He was acquitted.

English Surnames.

The following list of surnames actually extant in England today was composed by a Mr. Buggey, an official in Doctors' Commons, who had his own name changed by law: Asse, Bub, Boots, Bones, Beast, Cheese, Cod, Cockles, Dunce, Demon, Dam, Drinkmilk, Fatt, Frogge, Goose, Ginger, Ghost, Gimlet, Gready, Hugg, Hump, Headach, Jug, Jelly, Kneebone, Kidney, Leaky, Lazy, Mug, Monkey, Pighead, Poker, Radish, Rottengoose, Snags, Swine, Vittles.

The Reason.

"How did you ever happen to call your little daughter Dagmar?"

"My wife found after careful inquiry that it was about the only thing we could call the little one without running the risk of naming her after some relative of mine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Thoughtful Lad.

Voice From Below — Harold, you mustn't interrupt the plumbers at their work, dear. Harold — It's all right, mother. I'm only talking to the man who sits on the stairs and does nothing.—London Punch.

A Proverb Spoiled.

"Dearest, if I were far, far away could you love me still?"

"Why, Reggie, what a question! I'm sure the farther you were away the better I should love you."

He Was Wise.

Her—What, going already? I don't suppose it would be any use to ask you to stay a little longer? Him—Not in that tone of voice. — Milwaukee News.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

TAP DAY AT YALE.

What It Means to the Juniors Who Have "Made Good."

The three great senior societies of Yale—Skull and Bones, Scroll and Key and Wolf's Head—choose on tap day fifteen members each from the junior class, the fifteen members of the outgoing senior class making the choice. Each senior is allotted his man of the juniors and must find him in the crowd at the tree and tap him on the shoulder and give him the order to go to his room. Followed by his sponsor, he obeys, and what happens at the room no one but the men of the society knows. With shining face the lad comes back later and is slapped on the shoulder and told, "Good work, old man," cordially and whole heartily by every friend and acquaintance—by lads who have "made" every honor possible, by lads who have "made" nothing, just as heartily, for that is the spirit of Yale.

Only juniors room in Durfee hall. On tap day an outsider is lucky who has a friend there, for a window is a proscenium box for the play—the play which is a tragedy to all but forty-five of the three hundred and odd juniors. The windows of every story of the graystone facade are crowded with a deeply interested audience. Grizzled heads of old graduates mix with flowery hats of women. Every one is watching every detail, every arrival. In front of the hall are a drive and room for perhaps a dozen carriages next the fence—the famous fence of Yale—which rails the campus round. Just inside it, at the northeast corner, rises the tree. People stand up in the carriages, women and men. The fence is loaded with people, often standing, too, to see that tree.

All over the campus surges a crowd—students of the other classes, seniors who last year stood in the compact gathering at the tree and left it sore hearted, not having been "taken;" sophomores who will stand there next year, who already are hoping for and dreading their tap day; little freshmen, each one sure that he at least will be of the elect, and again the iron gray heads, the interested faces of old Yale men, and the gay spring hats like bouquets of flowers.

It is perhaps the most critical single day of the four years' course at the university. It shows to the world whether or no a boy, after three years of college life, has in the eyes of the student body "made good." It is a crucial test, a heartrending test for a boy of twenty years.—Mary R. S. Andrews in Scribner's Magazine.

They Were All "Pills."

One of the fashionable east side churches recently witnessed a funny incident at a choir rehearsal. They were preparing for the following Sunday morning a beautiful selection, the first words of which were, "I am a pilgrim." It so happened that the music divided the word "pilgrim" and made a pause after the syllable. The effect was most amusing. The soprano sang in a high key "I am a pil" and then stopped. The tenor acknowledged that he was a "pil," and when the bass came thundering in with a like declaration, "I am a pil," it was too much for the gravity of the singers, and they roared. No amount of practice could get them past the fatal pause without an outburst, and the piece had to be given up.—Musical World.

Clever Dwarfs.

Richard Gibson and his wife, who flourished in the seventeeth century, were a remarkable pair of dwarfs, quite apart from their inches, which combined barely made up seven feet. Both were clever painters of miniatures, and Gibson was drawing master to the daughters of James II. At their wedding, which was arranged by Henrietta Maria, Charles I. gave the bride away, the queen placed a valuable diamond ring on her finger, and Edmund Waller, the court poet, wrote a poem in honor of the occasion. Gibson was seventy-four when he passed away, while his widow died at the advanced age of eighty-nine years.

Madagascar's Two Climates.

The island of Madagascar has two distinct climates, two classes of fauna and flora. The island is about the size of France. Along the coast it is tropical and malarious, and the natives are darker than in the interior. The interior is a high tableland and mountainous. There the climate is cooler and the natives smaller and lighter in color than on the coast. But in the interior they are more intelligent, and they rule the island.

Obliging.

Excited Author (rushing behind the scenes)—Why are you cutting out the second and third acts of my play? Manager—I am not cutting anything out. I'm merely varying the order of the acts. Several influential persons in the audience have asked me if it would not be possible to have the hero die in the next act.—Chicago Tribune.

Philosophy.

Learn to be pleased with everything—with wealth, so far as it makes us of benefit to others; with poverty, for not having much to care for, and with obscurity, for being unenvied.—Plutarch.

Her Own Introduction.

"When did you first become acquainted with your wife?"

"The first time I disagreed with her after we were married."—Puck.

There's beggary in the love that can be reckoned.—Shakespeare.

BY F A MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

Mark looked at him with astonishment. In the tall, straight soldier, with black hair and eyes, mustache and goatee, bearing about him that something which indicates "to the manor born," he recognized the officer who had called at the Fains' on the morning he had left them—Captain Cameron Fitz Hugh.

As soon as he entered he beckoned the prisoner to follow him to a corner of the room apart from the others for consultation. It was not a convenient place for such an important interview, but one charged with being a spy was not likely to get many favors, and the exigencies of the case did not admit of aught except the bare forms of justice.

"Will you give me your confidence, my man, or shall I proceed at random?"

"At random."

"If you think it best to trust me, I give you the word of a Virginia gentleman that I will not betray you, and I will do all I can for you. I am a Fitz Hugh."

He said this unconscious of how it would sound to a northerner. To him to be a Fitz Hugh was to be incapable of a dishonorable act. Mark understood him perfectly; indeed his counsel inspired him with every confidence.

"I would explain everything to you, captain, but my secret is not all my own. I would be perfectly willing to trust my fate in your hands if I could honorably do so. You will doubtless fail in your defense, but I thank you for the effort you will make."

The trial was of brief duration. The soldiers in whose company Mark was taken were called and testified to his having masqueraded as a staff officer. Knowing now that he was probably a Union spy, they would have shielded him, but they had already given up the secret. Mark was asked where he lived.

He had entered his name at the hotel as coming from Jasper, so he gave that place as his residence, but when asked what county Jasper was in he could not tell. The maps he had studied, being military maps, did not give the counties. Then some Tennessee soldiers were brought in—the town swarmed with them—who testified that they lived at Jasper and had never seen the prisoner there. The closing evidence against Mark was given by the recruiting officer with whom he had promised to enlist. Hearing that a spy had been taken, and suspecting it might be his promised recruit, he went to the courtroom and there recognized the prisoner. His testimony was sufficient. The court had made up its mind before the prisoner's counsel had said a word.

Captain Fitz Hugh seemed distressed at not being able to bring forth any evidence in behalf of the prisoner. When he arose to speak in Mark's defense the court listened to him with marked attention and respect—indeed they were as favorably impressed with the accused's counsel as they were unfavorably disposed toward the accused. The captain was obliged to content himself with warning the court against convicting a man of being a spy because his identity was not satisfactorily explained and on circumstantial evidence. He asked that the prisoner might have more time than had been given him in which to gather evidence in his behalf.

The court denied this request and proceeded with a verdict. In forty minutes after Mark entered the courtroom he was found guilty of being a spy.

"Have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?"

"No, sir."

Captain Fitz Hugh interposed once more for delay.

"I would suggest," he said, "that inasmuch as some explanation may come to hand bearing on the case the court fix my client's punishment to take place on a day not nearer than a week from today."

"I had intended to fix it for tomorrow morning at sunrise," said the president, "but in deference to the prisoner's counsel I will compromise with him midway between a week, as he desires, and tomorrow, or allowing three days. The sentence of the court is that the prisoner be hanged by the neck until he is dead on the twenty-seventh day of August, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, or three days from today."

Before Mark was led out of the courtroom his counsel approached him. Considering the prejudice against the prisoner, another man would have suffered him to go without a word. Not so Captain Fitz Hugh. He strode up to Mark, the officers and soldiers present making a way for him, leaving him alone with the prisoner by withdrawing to another part of the room, and extended his hand.

"One thing is plain to me," he said, "whoever you are, you are a gentleman, and I believe you have sacrificed your life to your sense of duty. I am sorry that you did not trust me with your secret. Then I might have done something for you. As it is, I have done nothing."

"It would have availed nothing," said Mark. "You have done all you could under any circumstances. Besides, had I told you who I am, you might have felt it your bounden duty to your cause to make known the facts."

"Never," said Fitz Hugh proudly. "I owe more to myself, more to my sense of honor, more to my birth and breeding, more even to my state than to the Confederacy."

"Captain Fitz Hugh," said Mark with a voice in which there was a slight tremble, "you are of too fine grain. You are too frank, too truthful. Do not feel a moment's regret at not having been able to save me. Mine is but one of thousands of lives that must go out in this great struggle for human liberty. Mine is an ordinary nature. You are fitted for nobler work than war. I trust you will be spared to become an honor to your state and a reunited country. From the bottom of my heart I thank you."

The men clasped hands, and Mark was led away between two soldiers.

CHAPTER VIII.

DE CAUSE OB FREDUM.

On the morning after Jakey's interview with the colored woman through the crack in the jailyard fence Souri Slack was washing dishes by an open window in the kitchen, an addition built of pine boards to one of the united houses which formed the Slack dwelling. The sun was shining brightly, and a morning glory she had trained up to grow about the window was fresh with dew. Souri's heart felt unusually light. The air was so fresh; the sun was so bright; the morning glory flowers had such a companionable look in them that Souri was very happy.

Suddenly there came to her a quick sinking away from the pleasurable sensation. A sense of danger rushed in to take its place. Surely something horrible was about to happen.

In a moment she heard the clatter of horse's hoofs coming at a gallop. Looking up the road, of which she had a view from the window, she saw a horse covered with foam tearing toward her, with a negro boy on his bare back. In a moment the rider was at the fence and had reined in his horse. Wild with haste and excitement, seeing Souri at the window, he called:

"Am dis Slack's place?"

"Yas."

"Whar Souri Slack?"

"Hyar."

"You?"

"Yas."

The boy held up a red handkerchief, and then jumping off his horse threw the reins over a picket in the fence, which he vaulted, and running up to the window poked the handkerchief at her. Souri at once recognized the handkerchief she had given Mark. Sewed on to a corner she noticed a piece of dirty cotton cloth on which some one had written with a pen:

"Whar'd y' git this?" asked Souri, her face white as ashes.

"Who tole y' ter tote hit hyar?"

"Ole nigger what leabe hit."

"What'd he say?"

"Nuffen." And the boy pointed to the corner as if that was sufficient explanation for any one.

Souri could not read what was written there, but she knew Mark had been captured, and it was fair to suppose that he was at or near Chattanooga.

"Waal," she said, "y' niggers hev passed this ter me; reckon y' ken pass me back; I'll go 'th y'. Air y' hungry?"

"I'ze rid since one o'clock dis mawnin."

"Waal, take yer horse round ter the barn fur a feed, and then come in hyar."

The darky showed his white teeth and did as he was bidden. When he came in Souri placed something to eat before him, and then went in to inform her mother of what had happened.

"Maw," she said, "Jakey's tuk."

"La sakes!" exclaimed the mother with a scream. "Air they goen ter hang him?"

"Don't know. The sojer's tuk, too. Reckon they'll hang him, sarten."

"How'd y' know?"

Souri told her about giving Mark the handkerchief and its return "in de cause ob fredum."

"What shall we do?" moaned the mother, rocking in concert with her feelings.

"I'm goen ter Chattanoogy ter find out."

"They'll hang y', too," whined Mrs. Slack.

"Reckon not. I mought find a way ter git Jakey outen jail."

"'N th' sojer too?"

"Mebbe."

"Air y' goen jest's y' air?"

Souri thought awhile without replying. She would go with the colored boy of course. He could show her the way, and she might pass for some relative. But that would not do. She was white, and the boy was black. Why not darken her face? The idea was a good one.

"Maw," she said, "I'm a-goen out ter find some berries to make me a merlatter," and before her mother could reply she was off. When she returned the negro boy had finished his breakfast. She told him that she would be ready to go back with him in half an hour. While she was talking to him he fell asleep.

It was about four o'clock in the afternoon when Souri awakened the boy. Seeing a mulatto girl standing by him in an old calico dress and a sunbonnet on her head he was astonished.

"Who yo'?" he asked.

"Don't y' know me?"

"Sho nuff!"

"What's yer name?"

"Julius."

"What's yer t'other name?"

"Ain't got none!"

"I'm goen with y' t' where y' started from; then I reckon I'll have ter go on alone."

"Ole man dar; he tote y' furder."

"Waal, come along. Eat a snack 'n then we'll go."

When Julius had eaten his fill they mounted the horse, the girl sitting straddled behind him. Souri, in a common calico dress and a very large sunbonnet, looked for all the world like a negro girl. Julius took her over hills innumerable, and at midnight drew rein near a large plantation. There they both got down, and Julius, who had surreptitiously taken one of his master's horses, returned it to the stable. Then he led the way to a row of negro cabins. Going to one of them he knocked on the door. It was opened by the negro with whom Mark and Jakey had staid on the creek between the Fains' and Chattanooga.

"Dis de gal," said Julius.

"Goen to Chattanoogy?" asked the old man.

"Reckon."

"I show yo' de way. Go righ' off?"

"Yas."

"Hab t' foot hit. Ain't got no horse."

"I can do hit."

The negro was evidently ready and expecting them, for without going back into the cabin he led the way eastward.

Souri tramped in his company the rest of the night, and at daybreak they were at his cabin on the creek. There she took a few hours' rest, and after the sun was up ate a breakfast which the old man prepared for her. After this he set out to show her the way to Chattanooga. He asked no questions. All he knew was that his efforts were in "de cause ob fredum," and that was quite enough. The old woman who had brought him the handkerchief had told him where her cabin was in Chattanooga, and he seemed to understand that he was to guide Souri there.

They crossed the river by the regular ferry, having no trouble in doing so, for citizens and negroes were passing all the while. About ten o'clock in the morning they reached the cabin of the old negress who had started the handkerchief.

"Fo' de Lo'd!" exclaimed the woman. "How'd yo' git hyar so quick?"

"Trabel all night," said the pilot.

"Who dat yaller gal?"

"I'm Souri Slack. Whar's th' jail?"

The woman led Souri out to show her the way, and the man left the cabin on his way homeward. Souri was taken to a place where she could see the jail, and the woman told her where to find the crack through which Jakey had conversed with her.

Souri went to the place alone, and going to the fence hunted till she found the crack. She peeped in, hoping to see her brother, but Jakey was not there. She waited an hour or more, but he did not appear.

"Reckon I'm wastin' time hyar," she said at last. "I'm goen right in ter git round th' ole woman, ef there is one." And she went to the gate and presented herself before the sentinel.

"What d' y' want?" he asked.

Souri didn't know whether the jailer had a wife or not, but she hazarded the reply:

"De jailer's wife tole me to come in 'n tote de washen."

The soldier looked at her doubtfully but suffered her to pass in.

She had scarcely entered before she saw a party of soldiers conducting a man from the jail. They passed near her, and she recognized Mark. He was going to his trial. Jakey followed his friend and was going to pass out with him, but was stopped by the guard.

Souri saw tears trickling down the boy's cheeks as he went back and strolled about in the yard. She longed to take him in her arms, but did not dare to even make herself known to him. She did not know where Mark was being taken, so going back to the guard she asked with apparent idle curiosity:

"Whar dey goen wid dat man?"

"Reckon thar goen ter try him."

Souri determined to attempt to get service with the jailer's wife. She went into the jail and found a woman, whose hair was streaked with gray, sweltering over a cooking stove.

"Y' ain't got no washen ner nuffin fur me, hab y'?" said Souri, suddenly appearing before her.

"No! Git out o' hyar."

"Any cooken?"

"Cooken? Can yer cook? I don't want no nigger to cook fo' me, but there's niggers in the 'black hole' I wish I had some un ter cook fur."

"I'll cook fo' 'em."

"Who owns y'?"

"I'ze a free nigger."

"Waal, I ain't got no money ter pay fo' a cook, and I reckon I'll hev to sweat it out. Git 'long."

"I don't want nuffin but sump'n ter eat. I can sleep at my aunt's, ober de hill."

"Waal, take hold hyar fur a spell; I'm boilen." And she drew away from the stove and mopped her face.

Souri took hold and showed a pleasing aptitude at baking corn bread and boiling some coarse meat which simmered in a pot on the stove.

Presently the jailer came in, and taking some food lifted a trap door and lowered a meal to those below in the black hole.

"Hyar's a gal," said his wife, "ez hankers ter do some cooken fo' me."

"Ain't got nothen ter pay with."

"Don't want no pay," said Souri. "I'ze starven. Want sump'n ter eat."

"Waal, y' won't git much hyar," said the jailer, "but I reckon it's good nuff fo' niggers."

So Souri was allowed to help, but there was no understanding that her services should extend beyond the present moment.

She was leaning over the stove when Mark was brought back. He had just been sentenced, and there was a haggard, hopeless look on his face as he passed the girl without noticing her.

In the afternoon Souri saw that she must make work for herself or there would be no excuse for her to stay about the place. So, without saying a word, she took a pail of water and a scrubbing brush and began to scrub the floor. Then she suggested to Mrs. Triggs that she sweep her bedroom. The woman concluded that, as it had not been swept for more than a month, Souri "mought's well" do it, especially as the girl seemed to be willing to do all this work for a little boiled meat and corn bread.

"Ye' don't look right smart, Miss Triggs," said Souri, after cooking the supper and eating her share, "'n I don' know whar I gwine t' git any breakfast less I come 'n cook fur y'."

Mrs. Triggs succeeded in getting her husband's consent to Souri coming back in the morning, and the man went out to the gate with her and told her if the guard did not pass her in to send for him.

She was at the jail bright and early and got in on telling the sentinel that she was Mrs. Triggs' servant. She cooked the breakfast, and when she saw Triggs about to carry Mark's meat and corn bread into him she offered to do it, but Triggs paid no attention to the offer and carried it in himself.

Then she asked Mrs. Triggs when she did her washing, and as the old woman had no regular time and not many clothes Souri offered to do what there was. When she went out to hang up the clothes to dry Jakey was in the yard. She called him to her and in a whisper made herself known. Jakey, who was wondering what had become of the message he had sent, was both overjoyed and astonished. He turned two or three somersaults on the ground and otherwise demonstrated his childishness to Mrs. Triggs, who at that moment appeared at a window, but not before Souri had told Jakey to inform Mark of her presence.

Again at noon she offered to take in his dinner, but without success. She was at her wits' end for an excuse to stay about till supper time, but thinking that Mrs. Triggs' wardrobe might need mending she offered to undertake the task, and spent the afternoon over the old woman's threadbare garments.

All this while Souri was thinking of a plan for Mark's escape. She learned that he was to be hanged in a few days and knew there was little time. The most natural plan under the circumstances occurred to her—a plan by which more prisoners have made their escape than any other one method—walking out before the guard in women's clothes. Souri determined, if she could secure an entrance into Mark's room at any time after dark, she would give him her dress and sunbonnet and leave him to make an attempt. Then she began to think over a plan to gain an entrance at a specified time.

JUDGE HUDSPETH PRAISED BY GOVERNOR WILSON.

By making public a letter which he had sent to Colonel William C. Liller, of Indianapolis, Governor Wilson, of New Jersey, replied yesterday to charges made by Robert S. Hudspeth, formerly Senator from Hudson county, that the latter had been dropped by the Governor after election. Governor Wilson says, in part:—

"The letter from Judge Hudspeth really distresses me. I, of course, know of and deeply appreciate the great service he rendered in the campaign last autumn, but I distinctly remember getting the impression from conversations with Judge Hudspeth himself that he had had enough of active participation in politics.

"When the question of the election of a Senator arose, Judge Hudspeth was perfectly frank, and I honored the position he took very much. He frankly said that he would like to be left out of the matter entirely, because of his lifelong friendship with Senator Smith, although his personal judgment was that Mr. Martine ought to be returned to the Senate. I interpreted this to mean that he would rather not appear, at any rate during that season, as a supporter of my administration. Certainly he was not, by any act I was conscious of, 'dropped' or slighted.

FELLS HUSBAND WITH A HAMMER AND CLOCK.

Summit, Aug. 8.—Because he protested against the abuse of his seven-year-old son, William Diabold, of Summit avenue, was badly beaten by his wife Sunday night, according to the story which he told the police this morning. Diabold's wife first struck her husband over the head with a hammer and later in the fray felled him with a clock, he says. Diabold had a bump over his right eye almost as large as an egg as evidence of the encounter.

It is claimed that Mrs. Diabold, who is Diabold's second wife, kept her stepson locked up in a small room for about a week, giving him nothing but water and dry bread. After the woman had made the attack Diabold went to the police station to make complaint against her. Patrolman William Kelley and John Gannon went to the home of the Diabolds and the woman was brought to the police station.

Proctor's Popular Program.

The lives and habits of yeggmen, crooks, etc., are usually interesting reading. At Proctor's theatre this week there are five perfectly harmless specimens, recently captured and tamed to eat out of one's hand and trained to sing. Mattie Boorum & Co., offer this novelty. "The Tuner," with Sophie Everett & Co., is a funny sketch. Tom and Edith Almond offer a novelty dancing and musical act, while Gladys Wilbur, a charming singing comedienne, is popular.

E. LLOYD BROKAW BREAKS HIS ARM

E. L. Brokaw, of West Front street, sustained a fracture of the right arm between the wrist and elbow, at Ocean Grove, yesterday afternoon, while out motor-boating. He was brought to his home in this city last night and will be incapacitated from work for sometime.

Mr. Brokaw was employed as a chauffeur by his brothers, who are proprietors of the Brokaw garage, in this city, and had been at the shore driving for Robert Rushmore, of this city. A friend asked him to go for a ride in the motor-boat and young Brokaw accepted the invitation. After they had been out for a while something went wrong with the engine and in cranking it, the premature explosion of gasolene caused a "back fire" that broke his arm.

NAME WOODHOUSE FOR THE ASSEMBLY

The Plainfield Democratic Club, at its monthly meeting last night adopted a resolution recommending the candidacy of Robert C. Woodhouse, for the Assembly nomination, although not endorsing the same, which is against the policy of the club. The meeting was largely attended and much enthusiasm was shown in the work and progress of the club. LeRoy J. Ellis, president, was in the chair.

The club appointed Edward Lynch, Frank J. Shattle, LeRoy J. Ellis, Patrick J. Reville and John Connolly as a campaign committee, it being understood that any candidate can feel at liberty to make use of the committee if it desires, if not he can make any other selection he chooses. It was also decided to hold a picnic at Wayside Park, Dunellen, on Wednesday, September 6, and the following were appointed as a committee to arrange the details for the same: John Caulfield, chairman; Edward Lynch, Frank J. Shattle, Daniel J. Couraine, John Connolly, J. T. McCarty, William Connolly, James McCann, Patrick J. Reville and James Frindle.

The club adopted a resolution commending President Taft for his efforts in behalf of the adoption of the Peace agreement, which the members declared to represent a great Democratic principle. The resolution recommending Mr. Woodhouse to the voters as a candidate worthy of support, is as follows:

"We the members of the Plainfield Democratic Club, in regular session assembled, understanding our fellow-citizen, Robert C. Woodhouse, is a candidate for the office of the Assembly, wish to recommend him to the voters of Union county, as a man of sterling character, a staunch Democrat, and well fitted for the office, and if nominated and elected, will prove of great assistance to our honored Governor, Woodrow Wilson, in completing his grand administration, which he has so ably started."

BOROUGH YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY MOUNTAIN PICNIC.

Fourteen young people from the borough, together with Mrs. James R. Blair, Mrs. Ernest Park and Mrs. H. C. McVoy, who acted as chaperones for the party, spent yesterday in outdoor life on the Watchung mountains. Luncheon was eaten near the Groszmann School on Watchung Crest, one of the features of the repast being a delicious watermelon.

Those in the party were the Misses Madeline and Marion Blair, Marguerite Barkalew, Blanche and Dorothy McVoy, Elizabeth and Ethel Hilpot, and Jack, Robert and Fred Hebert, Ronald Schenck, Harold Woolston and Robert Blair.

PLAN SYSTEMATIC SEWERAGE DISPOSAL

Tentative plans for facilitating the cleaning of vaults and cesspools in the borough, were discussed at a meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health last night. Since the vetoing of Senate Bill 301 by Governor Wilson, thus delaying indefinitely the installation of a sewage system in the borough, the Board of Health has realized the necessity of having the sewage disposed of regularly and systematically for the best interest of general health conditions, and to this end a system is to be established; or an ordinance passed, that will put absolute control of this matter in the hands of the board.

Another question of importance, and one that has caused the board and the borough merchants no small amount of inconvenience, was satisfactorily adjusted. It is in referrence to the recently passed State law prohibiting the open display of food stuffs. Several merchants have not construed the law to mean that it was necessary to protect potatoes and other vegetables, watermelons, cantelopes and any such other raw food stuffs, either eaten raw or prepared, but if eaten raw having a natural protection against germs. The State board upheld this contention and interpreted the law showing that it rigidly applies to berries, peaches, pears and food stuff eaten raw in their entirety.

NUGENT WON'T QUIT AS ASKED

Having apparently made up his mind what course he will pursue in the situation, Democratic State Chairman James R. Nugent yesterday mailed a letter to each of the members of the State committee who signed the Sea Girt letter asking him to resign the chairmanship or call a meeting to have that question considered.

The letter of Mr. Nugent was of the same general tenor as the statement he gave out at the time of the publication of the episode at the Neptune Heights restaurant where he offered his "ingrate and liar" toast to Governor Wilson, in the presence of several militia officers.

While refusing to act in compliance with the request of his fellow-committeemen to call a special meeting to consider his retirement from the chairmanship, on the ground that the Neptune Heights incident was a personal matter, Mr. Nugent announces that he will call a regular meeting of the committee at an early date to take up questions of party importance. He has not named the date or place of that proposed meeting, but informs his fellow-members that he will see that they receive due notice of that meeting.

Two letters were received yesterday by the State chairman in connection with the late situation. One was signed by William K. Devereux, secretary of the committee, announcing that he was directed by several members of the committee to ask Nugent to call a special meeting next Thursday at the Coleman House, Asbury Park, to consider the matter submitted to the chairman at the Sea Girt informal meeting.

The second letter came from Williams H. Davis, member of the State committee from Camden. He denied that he either took part in or sent a representative to the meeting last Saturday at Asbury Park.

FALL THROUGH TRAP DOOR PROVES FATAL.

Elizabeth. Aug. 8.—Fatally injured by a fall at his home, 416 Chilton street, Louis Heise, for the past fifteen years proprietor of the Clover Leaf restaurant and cafe, in Morris avenue, died at his residence Sunday.

Mr. Heise had gone into the pantry Saturday afternoon to get some fruit and tumbled through a trap door into the cellar. When found he was unconscious. Two physicians were summoned to attend him but he remained comatose until death.

Mr. Heise was born in Germany and was fifty-eight years old. He had lived in Elizabeth the greater part of his life and was a member of several German organizations. Besides his widow, he is survived by one unmarried and one married daughter, the latter being Mrs. Joseph Lowden, of Roselle Park.

OPEN NEW EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Asbury Park, Aug. 8.—The new $65,000 Trinity Episcopal church at Grand and Asbury avenues, was used for public worship Sunday for the first time. The edifice is one of the most imposing of its kind along the shore. Bishop John Scarborough, of the Diocese of Trenton, congratulated the parish on possessing such a building and also praised the rector, Rev. William N. Bailey, for his efforts in behalf of the new church. The bishop said:

"I will not say that this is the finest church in the State, but I will say truthfully that it is one of the finest in my diocese."

The bishop spoke in a reminiscent vein, recalling the early days of the shore and mentioning particularly when he came here by stage from Long Branch, thirty-six years ago. The sermon was preached by the rector.

PRIZE CORN IS BEING RAISED ON CITY POOR FARM.

Councilman F. L. Montgomery, as chairman of the alms committee, informed the Common Council at the August meeting last night, that he paid a visit to the city farm on Sunday for inspection purposes, and thought that praise was due for the good condition of the poor farm. He doubted whether there was another such crop of corn to be found even in Kansas or Iowa.

These remarks led Mr. Holt to move that a committee of two be appointed to pat Mr. Montgomery on the back. The little sally produced much laughter on the part of the other members of the Council.

—William Parker, colored, was arrested at noon today in the borough by Chief Weiss for being drunk and disorderly at Manning avenue and Somerset street. He will be given a hearing tomorrow morning before Recorder Dolliver.

PLAN FOR CAUCUS

Somerset County Democrats Are "At Sea" Over the Senatorial Situation.

WANT A NEW CANDIDATE.

Leaders Will Meet at Somerville Soon to Discuss Probable Ticket for Approaching Campaign.

Since the caucus of the Somerset County Republicans at Somerville, last week, it is understood that the Democrats of the county are considerably "at sea" regarding the political situation, especially regarding the making of the ticket for the fall campaign. There is a well defined rumor to the effect that the Democrats believe that with a new candidate for State Senator, it would be easier sailing. Several names have been mentioned, but those who are endeavoring to direct the affairs of the party in Somerset county, are not yet ready to divulge them.

Thus far two names have been prominently mentioned for the honor, that of former Assemblyman S. S. Swackhamer, of North Plainfield, and that of Assemblyman LaMont, of Bound Brook. Their friends have been leaving no stone unturned to advance the interest of their candidacy, and both men have felt confident of securing the nomination for the coveted position.

However, other members of the party have their doubts as to the wisdom of selecting either one as a candidate for State Senator, but favor an entirely new man. There is plenty of good material in the county, they assert, and while they do not want to give their reasons at present for advocating a change, they declare that they will do so at the proper time.

There will be a conference of the Democrats of the county at Somerville within a few days, when the situation will be thoroughly discussed and plans for the campaign will be decided upon and further action taken. The leaders believe that great care should be exercised in the selection of candidates this fall, and declare that if this is done the party stands an excellent chance to elect its ticket.

Mr. Swackhamer has many friends at this end of the county who are working in the interest of his candidacy, while Assemblyman LaMont is said to be equally strong at the other end of the county. It may be that for the sake of harmony, it will be necessary to pick another man for the race. At all events the contest promises to be one of unsual interest.

REV. DR. W. J. SWAFFIELD TO PREACH IN THIS CITY.

Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swaffield, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Lawrence, Mass., who will be the supply at the First Baptist church, on Sunday morning, will also preach at the union service to be held in Trinity Reformed church in the evening. Dr. Swaffield is known as one of the strongest and most eloquent preachers in this State. He was pastor of the Summit Avenue Baptist church, of Jersey City, for several years and afterwards succeeded Rev. Dr. Chalmers, at the Lexington Avenue Baptist church, of New York city.

Dr. Swaffield left there at the time the church united with the Baptist church of Washington Heights, to his present charge at Lawrence, Mass. His ministry has been remarkably successful and great congregations have always attended the services wherever he has preached.

A Record Sized Cucumber.

J. W. Klein, of 325 Central avenue, has made a record for small garden farming in this vicinity. Today he picked a cucumber from one of the vines in his garden, which was one of the largest ever grown in Plainfield. The green vegetable is 12 inches in length and weighs 2¼ ponds. Mr. Klein is an amateur in the garden business and is consequently exceedingly proud of this record breaking garden product.

Henry Meullen.

After a lingering illness, Henry Meullen, for a number of years an inmate of the Industrial Home, died last night at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was taken several months ago for treatment. He had made his home in Plainfield for many years and when reduced in circumstances, over which he had no control, friends were instrumental in having him committed to the Home, as a worthy man. No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral.

—Neuman Bros. will receive for tomorrow's trade a large and choice assortment of fresh vegetables. They have been selected with great care. The prices are right.

MEET FOR FIRST TIME IN 27 YEARS

John Wierenga, of this city accompanied by his daughter, Miss Margaret Wierenga, has been visiting in Michigan for the first time in twenty-seven years and on August 3 he had the pleasure of meeting his sister, Mrs. Theodore Vander Ploeg, who resides at Holland, Mich., for the first time in that period. Mrs. Vander Ploeg was so surprised that she could scarcely believe that it was her brother.

The Holland Daily Sentinel, under date of August 3, has the following to say concerning the incident:

"Today John Wierenga and daughter, Margaret, of Plainfield, came to Holland and sprung a genuine surprise on Mr. Wierenga's sister, Mrs. Theodore Vander Ploeg, mother of Henry Vander Ploeg. Mr. Wierenga and Mrs. Vander Ploeg had not seen each other for twenty-seven years and Mrs. VanderPloeg was so astonished when she first saw her brother that for a minute she could not make up her mind who her visitor was.

Mr. Wierenga is 75 years old and Mrs. Vander Ploeg is 85. During the past fifty-seven years they have seen each other only twice. Mr. Wierenga came to America before the Civil War. He went down south and was in charge of a negro plantation for awhile and later came to New Jersey and has lived there ever since."

GRACE CHURCH BOYS HAVING FINE TIME

Reports from Manasquan, where the choir boys of Grace church are camping, indicate that they are thoroughly enjoying their outing. The eight boys who went down for the first two weeks returned yesterday and their places were immediately taken by eight others who will stay two weeks.

Those returning were Thomas Fitch, Raymond and Irving Manley, Benjamin Cooley, Fred Mizner, Eugene Martin, Raymond Hansen and Clide Wright. Those arriving for two weeks were William Whelan, Daniel McNamee, David Fitch, Garret DuBois, Harold Williams, John Cottrell, Albert Huelson and Edward Ryder. Alfred Manley went down with the first party and remained over.

The boys are housed in "Hadherway" cottage, but spend most of the time fishing and bathing. In the evening they have beach bonfires and marshmallow roasts. Mr. and Mrs. S. Frederick Smith and Mrs. M. L. Devine are in charge of the boys and say that aside from cases of sunburn all of them have been enjoying the best of health and are much benefitted by the outing.

A great time is is looked forward to Saturday which is "Great Sea Day." The folk from miles around the countryside come to the shore to spend the day. It is said that it is like a country fair only held on the beach.

REQUEST PROPERTY OWNERS TO NUMBER HOUSES PROPERLY.

In order to have the residences and business houses of the city properly numbered, notices are being sent to those whose dwellings or stores have no numbers, wrong numbers, or numbers that cannot be read from the street and it is hoped that property owners will give the matter their attention. These notices will be followed by a call from a police officer, if after a sufficient length of time the order has not been complied with, further failure may result in the offender being arrested and fined.

It is as much to the interest to the property owners as it is to the city to have all houses correctly numbered and the receipt of the notice should be sufficient to have the matter promptly corrected, is the opinion of the city authoritfes.

Will Hold a Clambake.

After the regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus last night, the Columbus Club held a meeting for the purpose of arranging for an outing. A clambake was decided on and a committee of which David Doyle is chairman, was appointed to complete the arrangements. The bake will be held on the mountain back of Mt. St. Mary's College on Labor Day.

Receiving Congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Coward, of Union street, are receiving the congratulations of their many friends over the arrival of an eight-pound girl born to them yesterday. Mrs. Coward is a graduate of the training school for nurses at Muhlenberg Hospital, and Mr. Coward holds a responsible position with the City National Bank.

PLANS FOR PARK

Wealthy Residents of Bound Brook Will Lay Out Fine Pleasure Grounds.

400 ACRES ARE AVAILABLE

Since Defeat of North Plainfield's Sewage Scheme, Property-Owners Have Been Considering Extensive Improvements.

Since the defeat of North Plainfield's plans to locate sewage disposal beds in North Plainfield township, in the vicinity of Bound Brook, there has been considerable talk regarding the possibility of several wealthy residents of Bound Brook and vicinity providing a handsome park on the land adjoining that proposed for the sewage beds. It is said that recently more property in that vicinity has been acquired and that the whole will be turned into a park.

Owing to the natural lay of the land it is argued that it is ideal for such a purpose. There are about 400 acres available for a park, and if the plans now being considered are carried out, it would rival Duke's famous park at Raritan. At the time the citizens of Bound Brook and vicinity were fighting North Plainfield's efforts to establish sewage beds in the township, it was hinted that the land would be used for park purposes. Several tracts were purchased by wealthy New Yorkers and not a few handsome dwellings were started there.

These same citizens went so far as to lay out a road which extended through the site where it was proposed to establish the sewage beds, believing that this would effectually put a stop to North Plainfield's plans. Governor Wilson after a time vetoed the bill which would give the borough certain rights in sewer matters, thus temporarily at least blocking the scheme.

Thus far it has been impossible to learn what the borough proposes to do. Plans are under consideration, but nothing as yet has been revealed. As often stated, it is only a question of time when North Plainfield must have sanitary sewers to provide for its growing territory, but the solution to the problem does not appear to be very near. There are still many people who are hoping that the borough and Plainfield as well as other nearby towns will be able to join in one large sewage disposal plant, which was seriously talked of at one time, but no progress has been made along that line recently.

Street Commissioner A. J. Gavett is now preparing plans for the improvement and extension of Plainfield's system to provide for the increased amount of sewage, and it is expected that Plainfield will be obliged to spend a large sum of money to make these improvements if it intends keeping up the present efficiency of the system. Bound Brook and Dunellen are agitating the question of sewage dispocal, while it will only be a short time when Scotch Plains and Fanwood will have to provide some means of disposing of its sewage.

With a capital of $10,000, $1,820 of which is paid in, and the privilege to do business anywhere in the world, the Cements Products Company, of Plainfield, was incorporated yesterday, in the office of County Clerk James C. Calvert. The offices of the concern will be at 652 North avenue, and the agent will be Marshall E. Tilton. The other incorporators are Joseph F. Sheppard and Mabel S. Tilton.

Free Outing for Local Poor.

Following the usual custom, Captain and Mrs. S. A. Hewitt, of the local Salvation Army corps, have arranged for a free outing for the poor of this city at Wayside Park Labor Day. Poor families will be taken to the amusement spot opposite the Dewey Park car barns and everything will be done to make the day a happy one. Funds are necessary for the outing as ice cream, lemonade and cake and lunches are to be served by the Army, and the swings are to be hired for the free use of the children. Contributions should be sent to Captain or Mrs. Hewitt at the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street.

Mrs. E. D. Moffett and niece, Miss Lulu Stryker, who have been visiting Mrs. Moffett's daughter, Mrs W. H. Tams, of Trenton, have returned to their home in this city.

WILL CELEBRATE

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, Planning For Observance of October 12.

IN HONOR OF COLUMBUS DAY.

Knights From All Parts of the State Will Be Invited to Join in Street Parade and Banquet.

A monster celebration for Columbus Day, October 12, is being planned by Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus. At the meeting last night the arrangements were informally discussed and resulted in tentative plans being made. It is the purpose of the Knights to invite all the other councils of the State to come to Plainfield on Columbus Day, and join in a grand street parade to be followed by a banquet.

Columbus Day was fittingly celebrated here last year with a banquet, which was the most pretentious affair, marking the explorer's birthday, yet undertaken by the local Knights. It met with such gratifying success that the idea was conceived of doing something larger and better. Last year the clubhouse of the Columbus Club was not complete. This handsome building has since then been finished and furnished, comparing very favorably with the homes of Columbus clubs in other cities, where at different times the local members have been entertained.

The fact that visiting Knights can be entertained here now is acting as an incentive to the celebration as the local members with pardonable pride want to show what they have accomplished in Plainfield. Then, too, the idea of marking each Columbus Day with a public celebration is fast taking hold of the order throughout the country and each year there are public celebrations in cities where heretofore they have been confined to the lodge rooms.

The concensus of the members is being learned and those fostering the idea are optomistic in their statements regarding the success of the proposed celebration. If it can be carried out as planned, there is no doubt that it will be one of the biggest affairs of the kind in the city and will arouse a new interest that will prove beneficial to the order.

BUSY SESSION IN BORO POLICE COURT

Recorder Charles M. Dolliver held a busy session in the borough court this morning when five cases were brought up before him. All the cells in the jail were occupied by the prisoners last night.

Martha Bergen, 12 years old, of DuPont street, Anna Barry, 13 years old, of Howard street, and Edna Hull, 13 years old, of Howard street, were arraigned on the charge of stealing apples from the property of Mrs. J. P. Truett yesterday morning. All the girls said that they were unaware that they were trespassing and after a severe lecture and reprimand from the Recorder, sentence was suspended.

William Parker, colored, of New Brunswick, was fined $2 for being drunk and disorderly yesterday morning at an early hour. He was arrested by Chief Marsal George Weiss.

John Casey, of Brooklyn, was arrested by Marshal Herrmann yesterday afternoon for being drunk and panhandling. Upon his promise to leave town immediately, Casey received a suspended sentence. James Fallard, of Newark, was also arrested on a similar charge by Marshal Keller and sentenced was suspended upon him when he promised to leave the borough.

Lotta Johnson, colored, who was released from the Union county jail, where she has been serving a fifty day sentence, yesterday morning, was arrested by Marshal Pope last night, on complaint of her husband, William Jonnson, who claimed that she was drunk in their home near Hand's brick yard. The officer brought her to the borough jail, where she spent the night in a cell. She and her husband appeared in court this morning and Recorder Dolliver thought it best for them to settle their dispute themselves so he suspended sentence.

CHARITY ACTIVITY

Summer Months Have Been Unusally Busy Ones For Organized Aid.

EXCELLENT REPORT OF AGENT.

Urgent Appeal Made for Help and Contributions for Aid of Worthy Poor in This City.

Scarcely anyone in town, is the cry heard about the city, yet the month of July was a particularly busy one for the Charity Organization Societ, and thus far August has been just as busy. Unfortunately some Plainfielders are not as happily situated as others, and are not in a position to defend themselves against the discomfits and dangers of the warm weather. The playgrounds are keeping hundreds of children employed and off the streets, and the local charities are busy.

Acording to the report of Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, of the Charity Organization Society, the hospital wards are full, the King's Daughters' Baby Camp has its quota of twenty to thirty a week of mothers and children, and the two nurses of the Charity Oragnization Society's new bureau of nursing are busy nearly all of the time.

The rooms of the Charity Organization Society in the Babcock building are the clearing house for these and other activities working to make Plainfield a more comfortable place than ever. Through this clearing house $357.13 was expended in material relief during July, the largest items being for clothing, $59; for milk, $54; for rent, $53; for medical supplies, $50, with seventeen prescriptions filled gratuitously by durggists, and $47 for board. Of the total amount, $166.74 was obtianed from outside sources showing the interest and co-operation given by the citizens of Plainfield to those in distress.

Altogether nearly one hundred families were known to be in financial distress in this city last month. In twenty, tuberculosis was a potent factor. Eighteen other persons were ill and without the means of securing remedies. The society placed twenty-two in institutions and nine in private country homes, finding work for ten applicants. The remaining time of the society's staff was taken up in receiving 327 office calls and 156 leters, writing 286 letters and making 360 visits.

Those in the mountains or by the seashore who read this report will find their pleasure doubled by remembering some one of the hundred needy families at home. Those comfortable at home will have still more comfort for lending an automobile for the afternoon to a tired mother with delicate children. The nurses can use delicacies. Every charity in the city can use more money and needs it now especially. Telephone 103 and find out how far $5 will go in providing health and happiness. Ten cents will purchase something considerable in the same line.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS PLAN FOR GREAT DAY AT SEASHORE.

From present indications the Knights of Columbus excursion to Asbury Park tomorrow will carry a record crowd. This has always been one of the largest excursions to leave this city for the shore and it is safe to say that tomorrow's exodus will not fall short of previous years. The train leaves the North Avenue Station at 8:15. Stops will also be made at Grant and Clinton avenues. For the comfort and convenience of the excursionists, Shirley & Johnson have donated a thousand drinking cups, to be used on the train and the the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, through its manager, P. H. Burns, has donated a thousand fans.

John Crowley, of Ann street, and Barnet Ogens, of West Third street, were arrested yesterday by Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, agent of the S. P. C. A., for driving horses with sores on their shoulders. Both men entered please of not guilty and the hearing was put down for Friday morning by Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning.

GRANT HART FINED $25 FOR CARRYING GUN

Two gun "toters" were arrested by the police yesterday. The first to be brought in was Joseph Gapompo, a Scicilian, who was arrested by Patrolman Bader, on complaint of his employer, P. J. Cerussi, a contractor. The boss noticed a cartridge lying on the floor of a house he has the contract for building, and in the same room noticed Capompo's coat with the butt of a revolver peeping from one of the pockets.

Cerussi is from Rome and fearing that the Scicilian was armed for no good purpose, 'phoned the police to arrest his employe, whom he was afraid to discharge for fear of being shot. Capompo pleaded not guilty and the hearing was set for Friday morning, he being released under $500 bail.

The other arrest was Grant Hart, of Woodland avenue, an employe of the Quaker Hill Farm. When arrested Hart was under the influence of liquor and had been flourishing the revolver making threats. He admitted having it in his possession to Judge William G. DeMeza, and explained this fact by saying that the roads to the farm are lonely and that he often has a large amount of money in his pockets. Roundsman Higgins made the arrest. Hart had no permit to carry a revolver and to break up the habit a fine of $25 or 30 days in the county jail was imposed.

ANOTHER CONTRIBUTION SWELLS CAMP FUND

Isabella Smith contributed $5 to the King's Daughters' Baby Camp fund today, thereby swelling The Daily Press Fund to a total of $179. According to the report from the baby camp there are on an average of between twenty and thirty babies and mothers at the camp on the mountains and this means considerable expense. Just think how much good a contribution from you will do toward relieving the sick babies and possibly bring them back to health and strength.

MOY STARTS SUIT

City Executive Begins Action For Libel Against Courier News Publishing Co.

STATE OF DEMAND IS $10,000.

Bases Claim for Damages on Story Published in Local Newspaper Said to Be Libelous.

Summons has been drawn against the Courier-News Publishing Company, in an action for libel, by Mayor George W. V. Moy, of this city, who claims that a story, published in yesterday's issue of the Courier-News was libelous toward him in its intent. The amount of damages for which the Mayor has started suit is $10,000 and the case will be heard in the Supreme Court.

In an interview with a Daily Press reporter this morning, Mayor Moy said that his attention was called to the libelous attack upon his character in the Courier-News by a friend, who stopped in his office this morning. After investigating the matter, Mr. Moy drew up the summons in the legal action. The Mayor said that the headline of the story in the Courier-News—"Fees in Bank in Moy's Name" was an absolute misstatement as he had taken out the account in the name of George W. V. Moy, Mayor, and he produced the bank book to prove his assertion.

Mayor Moy also stated that the line in the Courier-News story—"Has Changed Usual Custom and Makes Collections Himself"—is erroneous as well as the sentence "He did not include any interest, which the city is accustomed to receive from its own bankers," which Mr. Moy says is libelous in its meaning. The Mayor opened the checking account for the receipts from show licenses in the State Trust Company, which follows the custom of the other banks in this city of not paying any interest on checking accounts under $500. "Accordingly," said the Mayor, "there was no interest to be included in my report to the finance committee of the Common Council."

With regard to the fact that the State Trust Company is not a city depository and that depositing city funds in it was contrary to the city ordinance, Mayor Moy said that City Judge William G. DeMeza deposits the money which he collects from fines with The Plainfield Trust Company.

Continuing, Mayor Moy said, "I opened an account with the State Trust Company in the name of George W. V. Moy, Mayor, in order to keep all license receipts separated from my own accounts. I have found that in looking over the record book of the licenses granted to shows and amusements in this city that receipts for moneys turned over to the city treasurer have been recorded at intervals of as much as six months whereas licenses were granted during these times. There is an interval from February 7, 1909 to June 22, 1909, when no receipts were issued by the city treasurer. On June 22,1909, a receipt for $50 was recorded and from June 22 no receipts are given until December 21, 1909, when $56 is signed for. From July 28, 1910,a receipt for $54 was signed by the city treasurer and no others were made until December 15, 1910.

"I have also noticed in looking over the license book that one of the former mayors signed blank licenses, leaving it for some one else to issue the permit, presumably.

"In regard to the $25 which was charged the Frank A. Robins circus, I would say that it is the same amount charged the same circus when it showed in Plainfield a few years ago. The Forepaugh show was only charged $35 for I was given to understand that it was only one third as large as the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' show which paid $100 to the city for a performance here two or three years ago. I have the right, by ordinance, to fix the charges for show licenses.

"I did not turn in my report to the finance committee of the Common Council because it had specially asked me to do so. I made my semi-annual report, which was due on July 1, and before the finance committee had written me. Prior to this date I told William F. Arnold, the city treasurer, that I had opened an account for the moneys received from show licenses with the State Trust Company and that I would make a semi-annual report to the finance committee on July 1, accompanied by a check for the amounts received, which I did. I think that this is the first report which has ever been made for the receipts of license fees.

"Shortly after July 1, when the finance committee had criticised me for my action in collecting fees, a manager of an amusement came into my office requesting a license, the fee for which was $2. I told him that

WOMAN MAYOR IS DISGUSTED.

Hunnewell, Kan., Aug. 9.—"Politics is not a woman's game." This is the decision of Mrs. Ella Wilson, Mayor of this town, who since her inauguration has had a continuous fight with the male City Council. They have not confirmed her appointees for city marshal or city clerk, and she has not signed any of the ordinances they passed.

After the close of Monday night's session, when the Council refused to act on her appointments or recommendations, Mrs. Wilson telegraphed to Governor Stubbs to begin ouster proceedings against the members of the Hunnewell Council.

Mrs. Wilson for the first time admitted that she would quit if she could, saying politics is not the place for a woman; but, at the same time, she turned on the members of the City Council and forced the members to listen to her. She will not quit unless forced to do so, she said.

During the last week Mrs. Wilson conferred with Governor Stubbs, and he told her, she says, that if Monday night's meeting of the City Council was not satisfactory he would aid her in having members of the Council ousted. It was on the strength of this that she wired the Governor. On the other hand, the element which is fighting Mrs. Wilson is talking of bringing proceedings to force her out of office.

WOULD EXTEND SEWER ERE SUIT IS DECIDED.

Phillipsburg, Aug. 9.—Town Attorney Reilly at a meeting of Council Monday night, reported that a representative of the State Board of Health had been in Phillipsburg since the last meeting of Council and investigated the town's plan for a new sewer to connect the new plant of the Cameron Pump Company with the present sewage system, which empties into the Delaware River.

The attorney explained that in view of the fact that all the evidence in the case of the State Board against the municipality to stop polluting the Dalaware River had been submitted to Chancery and that final argument in the case would take place next month, it might be wise to go a little slow in defying the State body by constructing additional sewers without first securing permission from the State authorities.

The law giving the power to the State to prohibit the construction of such sewers, after a notice such as was seryed on Phillipsburg, was read, after which a resolution was adopted instructing the attorney and the Mayor to petition the State Board for permission to extend the sewage system to accommodate the new industry.

Uhlan Equals Lou Dillon's Record.

Cleveland, Aug. 9.—Uhlan, the champion black gelding belonging to C. K. G. Billings, of New York, equaled a world's record at the North Randall Grand Circuit races yesterday by trotting a mile to wagon in 2 minutes flat. C. K. G. Billings, his owner, drove him. Lou Dillon established the record of 2 minutes flat at Memphis, Tenn., on Oct. 28, 1903.

WOMAN BURGLAR JAILED, BONDSMEN SURRENDER.

After enjoying three months of liberty from the Somerset county jail under $500 bail, Mrs. Lena Blew, the woman burglar, who robbed the homes of a number of New York business men in South Somerville, has been surrendered by her bondsman and is now back in her old quarters in the prison, where she is likely to remain until the Somerset county grand jury meets in September. She has made a confession.

Charles Levey, a local merchant, was Mrs. Blew's nominal bondsman, but Mrs. Annie E. Neville, the accused woman's friend and neighbor at South Somerville, was instrumental in securing her release by giving Levey a $500 mortgage on her farm, after the court refused to accept her bond because she was a married woman. Mrs. Blew went to the Neville home to live after her release, but differences are said to have arisen between the women, and Mrs. Blew left the farm a month ago.

According to the statement made by Mrs. Neville, Mrs. Blew broke her agreement to remain with the former and proved to be an ingrate and for this reason she caused her bond to be surrendered. Before her arrest for burglary Mrs. Blew was a highly respected resident of South Somerville, where she resided with her husband and eight children. Since her arrest five of the children have been placed in a charitable institution.

Catherine, her fourteen-year-old daughter, who had assisted her in the robberies, has been committed to the State Reform School and according to her statement her father, Abram Blew, had deserted and disappeared from South Somerville.

WEDDING UPSET BY AN UNBIDDEN GUEST.

Bayonne, Aug. 9.—Because he forced his way into the home of Alexander Zukofsky, at 569 Avenue A, as Miss Sarah Zukofsky was about to be married to Jacob Schniper, and kissed the bride, Martin Shallow, a young man, was sent to prison for ninety days. Shallow gave no explanation of his peculiar conduct except to say that he must have been "dopey."

The minister was about to tie the knot, and the couple were surrounded by friends when Shallow entered the room, brushed by the guests, embraced the bride and kissed her several times. He was pulled away by Schniper and the male guests and booted out of the house. A score of men chased him, and, fearing for his life, Shallow ran to a pier and jumped into Newark Bay. He was fished out, and after getting a second trouncing was handed over to the police. The wedding proceeded, but the bride was much upset over her experience.

RUNAWAY DRAGS WOMEN IN SWAMP; HORSE KILLED.

Newton, Aug. 9.—Two women, driving near the Sussex Railroad tracks at Whitehall, were thrown into a muck hole and their horse drowned after the animal took fright at a passing train. One of the occupants of the buggy was extricated with difficulty from the mud. The victims disappeared after the accident without disclosing their names and the ownership of the horse has not been learned.

At the point where the accident occurred the highway runs very close to the railroad. The horse became unmanageable and dashed through a fence into a swamp. The women were rescued by men working on the road nearby, who tried to save the mired horse, without success.

NEW JERSEY FARMERS GAINS AND LOSES SINCE 1900.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Census Director Durand issued the first official statement from the census bureau relative to the agricultural statistics for the North Atlantic Division of States, collected at the thirteenth decennial U. S. census, April 15, 1910. The North Atlantic Division includes the New England States, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The report shows that New Jersey, within a decade, has lost four per cent. in number of farms; ten per cent. in total farm acreage, and nine per cent. in improved acreage. It gained thirty-one per cent. in total of farm values, a like percentage in value of farm buildings and thirty-nine per cent. in value of farm implements.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hiner, of East Fourth street, are parents of an eleven-pound boy, born to them on Monday.

Bresnahan's Foot Not Broken.

An X-ray examination was made yesterday of the right foot of Roger Bresnahan, manager of the St. Louis National League Baseball Club, and the plate showed that no bone in the foot was broken. The bruise, however, is a severe one, and it will be several days before he will be able to play again. Bresnahan's foot was hit by a foul tip in Monday's game. The foot swelled to double its usual size, and Bresnahan was not able to walk from the clubhouse.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The victory of Abel Kiviat, the national one-mile champion, over Mel Sheppard, the national half-mile champion, in a three-cornered match race at Sheppard's favorite distance, last Saturday, was a big surprise. The race was the feature of the track meet of the Knights of Columbus, held at Sacandaga Park, New York. Jack Monument, of Kearny, was the other starter in the race, and he finished a good third.

Pat Ryan, the big weight man of the Irish-American A. C., who is out after John Flanagan's hammer record, has been suggested as the pugilistic "White Hope."

Martin Sheridan, of the Irish-American A. C., is being hard pressed by Jim Duncan, of the Mohawks, in the discus lately. Sheridan is very fat at present and he will have to train hard and reduce considerable if he hopes to win in the senior championships.

W. Newburn, who was the first athlete in the world to clear twenty-four feet in the running broad jump, has taken to throwing the hammer, and with his height and reach he should have a big advantage over his rivals.

Bud Goodwin, of the New York A. C., has again won the A. A. U. outdoor half-mile swimming championship.

"Mel" Sheppard is doing a great deal of running these days. Saturday he made his appearance in a match race with Kiviat in New York State, and on the following day he ran in Chicago. The "Peerless One" is scheduled to appear next Saturday again at the all-around championships, which will be held at the Marshall Field, Chicago.

"They never come back," proved to be false in the case of Lawson Robertson, who has charge of the Irish-American athletes. Robertson won the 100-yard dash in 10 seconds flat at the games of the Edison company, at Edison Oval, Brooklyn, Sunday, and then followed this up by capturing first prize in the hop, step and jump.

MOY STARTS ACTION

he could have the license as soon as he obtained a receipt from the city treasurer for the amount of the fee. He said that formerly he had paid the money to the Mayor. He went to Mr. Arnold and told me that the city treasurer refused to accept the money or give the receipt, and that Mr. Arnold said, 'Pay the Mayor the money.' Consequently I took the $2 and deposited it in the account which I had opened.

"I believe that the cause of the trouble over this matter dates back two years when Mr. Arnold was criticised for keeping the city's moneys in the City National Bank, of which he was cashier and a director. I upheld this criticism and I believe that Mr. Arnold has resented my action ever since.

"A peculiar fact concerning the publication in last night's issue of the Courier-News is that I was the counsel for that company when it was involved in a $10,000 libel suit with Andrew McCardell, of this city, who received 6 cents damages. I charged nothing for my services to the Courier-News Company, believing that it was right in its attempt to crush machine politics in Plainfield. Now this same newspaper, which I defended, publishes a story which would tend to ruin my reputation as an honest man."

CHRISTOPHER POPE ROBBED WHILE ASLEEP

After being befriended by Chris. Pope, of Pearl street, to whom he told a hard luck story, saying that he was broke and had no place to sleep, Charles Hill, formerly of the borough, robbed his benefactor of $18 and decamped. The money was the balance of Pope's pension which he received several days ago. Pope lives in two rooms on Pearl street and after hearing the story that Hill was down and out, hungry and tired, the invitation to stay at Pope's home for the night was gladly accepted.

Early this morning Pope woke up and discovered that Hill was gone. Further examination of the rooms showed that he did not go away empty handed as Pope's clothing had the pockets turned inside out. After court this morning Pope told of the occurrence to Chief Weiss who called Justice Snape's attention to it and communicated with the Dunellen police, where Hill has several relatives. On the description Chief Weiss was able to furnish, Hill was arrested. Chief Weiss went to Dunellen with Pope this afternoon and brought Hill to North Plainfield police headquarters. He will be arraigned for a hearing before Justice Snape this evening.

A large collection of floral tributes attested the esteem in which the deceased was held by all who enjoyed her acquaintance and on every side were heard expressions of deep sympathy for the bereaved husband and family.

Albert Cook Arrested.

Albert Cook, colored, of West Fourth street, who until some time ago was in the employ of Spencer Conway, but who was discharged because he took one of Conway's horses to go for a drive several weeks ago, was arrested yesterday on Conway's complaint, charging that Cook had collected certain money for which he had not made an acounting and that he had represented himself as Conway's son. Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court this morning set the hearing down for Friday morning.

A Question of Time.

"What did your wife say to you when you got home last night?"

"You may have time to listen, but I haven't time to tell you. I've got to catch a train in two hours."—Houston Post.

BEHIND THE TIMES.

"Ah, our day is over!" sighed the family ghost.

"Nonsense!" retorted the skeleton, rattling its chain cheerfully. Never say die!"

"It isn't nonsense!" answered the ghost, softly shaking its pale head. "I tell you, these modern ideas are killing us! Why, only last night, when I wanted to give my great-great-grandson a harmless little fright, I slid through the window of the old home, glided down the hall, and slipped into the library.

"My descendant was just sitting down to play cards with two friends But did they take any notice of me? No! Not the least. So I crept silently forward, touched my great-great-grandson's cheek with an icy finger, and said, 'Booh!'"

"Ah, I'll wager that woke him up!" chuckled the skeleton.

"Yes, but not in the way I expected," sighed the ghost disconsolately. "He merely turned around in his chair, and exclaimed, 'Hallo, what luck! We're one short for bridge. Do you play?'"—Answers.

Umbrella Language.

An umbrella placed in the club rack indicates that it will soon change owners.

An umbrella carried over a woman by a man who gets nothing but the drippings of the rain is a sure sign of courtship.

When, on the other hand, the man carries the umbrella so that the woman gets the drippings, it is a sign of marriage.

A cheap cotton umbrella placed beside a fine silk one means "Exchange no robbery."

To buy and umbrella means, "Not smart but honest."

To carry an umbrella to work in the morning means, "It is bound to clear off."

To lend an umbrella means, "I'm a fool."

To return an umbrella—but, never mind what that means, for it is a thing that nobody ever does.—New York Tribune.

Simple Rules for Summer.

A few rules for the care of children in summer have been suggested by a local physician who is very successful in treating tiny patients:

First—Give them mother's milk if possible. If not, insist that the milk given them be fresh and clean and kept cool till used.

Second—Avoid unnecessary clothing and exposure to heat.

Third—Give plenty of pure water to drink.

Fifth—Don't handle too much.

Sixth—Keep the baby absolutely protected from flies and mosquitoes.

Seventh—Call the doctor at the beginning of any trouble, and don't wait till two days later.

The main matter is the matter of feeding. Few babies die that are properly fed; but in the summer time it is of special importance that they be fed nothing that is overheating or stimulating.

Not So Far Astray.

A party of Manila army women were returning in an automobile from a suburban excursion when the driver unfortunately collided with another vehicle. While a policeman was taking down the names of those concerned an English-speaking Filipino law student politely asked one of the ladies how the accident happened.

"I'm sure I don't know," she replied. "I was asleep when it occurred."

Proud of his knowlegde of the Anglo-Saxon tongue, the youth said:

"Ah! Then, madam, you will be able to prove a lullaby!"—Pupular Magazine.

An Important Distinction.

"I thought there would be trouble when you discovered that those two poker players were in collusion."

"Yes," replied Three-finger Sam. "It looked dangerous till they explained that they weren't cheating, but were merely operating under a gentlemen's agreement."—Washington Star.

SAY THE HENS LOAFS IN MATTER OF LAYING EGGS.

Denver, Aug. 9.—The American Poultry Association Monday went on record as denouncing the hen as a loafer. It was declared that the average hen now lays only eighty eggs a year, while she should be made to lay at least 150. Five hundred delegates are deliberating and by the time the convention is over the word will go out that it is up to the hens of this country to increase the nation's yearly production of wealth by $400,000,000. Sounds mighty big, but it all lies within the power of the hen, according to the estimate which Grant Curtis, a member of the executive committee of the national organization, has made.

SAYS WOMEN CONVICTS MUST WEAR OVERALLS.

Iola, Kan., Aug. 9.—The sentiment that a woman convicted of an offense of a vicious nature should not be compelled to don overalls and work out her fine in default of payment is a mistaken sense of delicacy, according to Judge D. B. Smeltzer, of the Iola Municipal Court, who put his theory into practice by sending a woman to work out an unpaid fine on the streets.

If he can find no prohibiting statute, all women hereafter convicted will, in default of payment of the fine be required to don bloomers and take their place in the "chain gang" with male prisoners.

BUT THE BEER FLOWED ON.

New Brunswick, Aug. 9.—Prosecutor Booream will bring to the attention of the grand jury the selling of beer at Washington Park, South River, Monday, where there was a celebration. About three thousand persons were there and Detective Ferguson and Peller were sent there by the prosecutor, who was notified that beer was to be sold. They found about two hundred persons drinking. The detectives purchased beer and then arrested the bartender, Edward Bailey, and the president of the Middlesex County German Society, Justus Kaltesch, for selling without a license.

The selling of beer was continued as if nothing had happened, the persons arrested giving bail. Mayor Richter, of Milltown, at the request of the prosecutor's office, prevented the sale of liquor at the firemen's parade there on Saturday and he informed the prosecutor as to the proposed sale at the picnic.

"SKUNKS" CHEAP AT $15.

Rahway Man Fined for Decorating Editor's Window.

Judge Buckley set the value of the privilege of calling a man a "skunk" at $15 when he fined Frank Cladek that amount on a charge of having written the objectionable word on the window of James B. Furber, editor of the Rahway News-Herald. The defendant paid the fine under protest, but afterward declared ot was worth it. The writing of the word followed a quarrel between Cladek and the editor.

Jersey Wedding on Horseback.

La Faucherie, pustice of the peace, officiated. The ceremony took place in Hillside Park. Charles Aldrich acted as best man and Miss Lottie Aldrich was maid of honor.

BELIEVE BUG MAN ATE CAUSED DEATH

William Thompson, thirty-four years old, of Roselle, died Monday night at a New Jersey sanitorium after suffering for years from a disease that baffled medical skill. Mr. Thompson had lived for ten years in Roselle.

He was seized with a serious illness about seven years ago after a trip to California, where it is thought he swallowed a Porto Rican bug which gradually ate his intestines away.

Mr. Thompson underwent two operations seeking relief, but his case was finally diagnosed by a specialist, who told him there was no cure possible.

He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen of the Central Railroad and of Washington Lodge, F. and . M., of Elizabeth. He is survived by two sisters and a brother.

DEFIES BLACK HAND.

Asbury Founder Will Keep After Beer Arks.

Asbury Park, Aug. 9.—Founder James A. Bradley will not be deterred by anonymous threats from trying to break up the beer ark trade. To a letter signed "Black Hand" and intimating a dire fate for him, he has published a reply, in part as follows:

"I have placed your letter in the hands of the police department and if you are discovered you will be punished according to law. If your threat is carried out I hereby instruct my executors to spend some of my hard earned money to have you hung or electrocuted according to the laws of New Jersey. I will continue to follow up the 'beer ark" pirates."

INVITING THE BURGLAR.

Closely shut windows and drawn blinds immediately proclaim that there is no one at home, as do also the advertising bills which are indiscriminately scattered on the doorstep. And when papers are tucked under the door knob and bulging out from the letter-box it is easy to see that no one is in the house.

Should the enterprising burglar have any doubt, however, he watches the tradesmen and knows when he sees them knocking vainly that all is safe for him. Sometimes the presence of an empty milk can on a doorstep warns him that the absence is only for a day. There are a great many little precautions which may be taken.

The most important thing is not to attract attention to the house. Tell the tradesmen when you are going away, so that they will cease to hammer uselessly at the door. Also, should they see anything suspicious happening, they may investigate. The police have a real grievance against the public in this respect.

The attention of burglars should never be drawn to a house by letting the blinds right down. If they are lowered a little less than half way the house will not be so noticeably empty. Leave one or two windows open at the top. This not only ventilates the house, but deceives the casual glance of any would-be marauders.

When this is done the windows can be secured by putting a couple of long screws through the styles of the shashes and screwing them firmly together. The only possible way of entering a window thus secured is to remove the whole of the glass, as it would be impossible to work a screwdriver backwards, even supposing that the heads of the screws could be found.

The windows in my house are never shut. The lower ones are screwed as mentioned above to leave an opening of three inches at the top and two inches at the bottom. Upper windows should be secured by thumb screws turning into brash bush, fixed on the upper sash. Carpenter's screws should not be used for these, as in the case of fire it would take too long to remove them. All screws and fittings can be obtained at any ironmongers.

Stitch Stockings.

Stockings must be frequently changed to wear well. To prevent dropped stitches, or "laddering," stitch twice around the top of each stocking on the machine, just below the hem, stretching the stocking as wide as you can while stitching.

ELIZABETH TAX RATE TO BE 1.66

That the rate of taxation for Elizabeth for the ensuing year will, on a safe estimate, be 1.66, or an increase of six points over that of last year, is the opinion of City Comptroller John S. Sauer as expressed by him yesterday. This depends, of course, on whether the city assumes the same amount of county and school tax as it did last year.

According to the figures completed by the assessors yesterday and submitted to the county board the total amount of taxable property in the city amounts to $56,999,761 and with an approximate State valuation of $2,371,528 on second-class railroad property totals $59,371,289. The State has not completed the railroad valuation for this year and the figures used in approximating the total are those for 1910. The amount of property exempt from taxation for some reason or other this year is $5,032,350, leaving a taxable total of $54,338,938.

The budget of the city expenses this year is $645,599.92, and assuming that the State and county tax will be about the same as last year the total amount of money to be raised is $985,830.60.

MONEY ENOUGH FOR NEW STREET LIGHT.

Additional subscriptions aggregating $174 for increased illumination in Broad street, between the Central Railroad arch and West Jersey street, Elizabeth, were reported at a meeting of the Broad Street Improvement Association held last night in the Board of Trade rooms. President Albert C. Stein presided.

With 75 per cent. of the Broad street business men as members the association has now pledged $1,924, sufficient to warrant the placing of the contract for better lighting.

George L. Hirtzel, Jr., for the lighting committee, offered a petition to be presented to the City Council, under the terms of which better lighting can be secured at a lower cost than was at first contemplated.

It is proposed that the municipal body order the Public Service Corporation to install twenty-seven new 2,000-candle-power electric lamps known as commercial standard arc lamps. These, it is planned, will be swung from the existing trolley poles on ornamental iron brackets. It is proposed that the city stand a share of the costs. It was decided unanimously to present the petition to the City Council at its meeting next Tuesday night when a large delegation from the association will attend.

Meanwhile different councilmen will be interviewed in an effort to secure their support.

IRON FALLS ON HIM.

Thomas Flannagan Sustains Fracture of Thigh.

While unloading heavy scrap iron at Hyman Isaac's junk yard on Grand street, Elizabeth, late yesterday afternoon, Thomas Flannagan, 31 years old, of 299 Pine street, slipped and fell.

A heavy piece of iron he was carrying fell on his leg, fracturing his thigh and he received several severe contusions which necessitated his removal to the General Hospital.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 13, 1911.

Topic.—Small beginnings of intemperance.—Prov. xxiii, 29-35. (Temperance meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

In the familiar passage selected for our study Solomon sets forth in a most striking picture the manifold evils of the great curse of intemperance. In a few strokes he brings before us most of its pitiable and painful consequences—woe, sorrow, strife, poverty, personal disfigurement and deterioration, impurity and mental confusion and debasement. These are the ripened fruits of intemperance, the deadly final results of drunkenness. And how many countless thousands have experienced the awful effects of intemperance that are here so vividly set forth, and yet how slow the world is to learn by experience! The mere reading of the category of consequences, it would seem, should be enough to keep men from the temptations of this great evil, and yet it does not do so. In spite of all warnings the ranks of the intemperate never seem to grow less. But the final consequences of drunkenness are no less awful to each victim because of the great numbers of those who follow in this way. Let the young be warned and let the life of each one be of such a character that the ripened fruits of this gigantic evil will never be possible to them.

The supreme reason why men are so easily led into the dangers of drunkenness undoubtedly lies in the fact that its worst consequences are often so long delayed. The beginnings are small and hence the consciences of men are lulled to sleep and they have a sense of safety, although it is false. "Who hath woe" and all the other horrors of this evil? "They that 'tarry long' at the wine, they that go to seek mixed wine," they that go to places of revelry, who "hunt out where carousals are taking place!" But the "beginners" in the use of intoxicating drinks never expect to "tarry long" at the wine. They never intend to become drunkards and to spend the nights in drunken revelry and debauch. They expect always to be moderate drinkers, to be able to take a glass or to let it alone. But, alas, how often they are deceived. They may think that they may mock at the perils of wine, but in the end they find that it is wine, as Solomon says, that is the mocker.

If drunkards were made in a day men would probably take warning from the consequences of intemperance, but because they are not how many are deluded and deceived. But we should not be. Delayed dangers are little less desirable than immediate ones. The results, if slow, are sure. "At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." The wise man considers the final consequences of his acts. The danger of beginning lies in the fact that the probability of continuing until "the last" is so great, and therefore the smallest of beginnings should never be made.

The only sure safety from drunkenness is total abstinence. No man knows when he takes the first glass what the final result will be, but every man knows that if he never takes the first glass he can never become a drunkard. Why, then, begin at all? Why run the risk perhaps of awakening a latent appetite that may all too soon produce direful evils or of forming a habit that in the end can only mean suffering and sorrow? Solomon's rule for safety still holds good, and it is the only one that does—"Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright." He who never sees an adder can never be stung by one. He who absolutely avoids strong drink can never taste its woes. Let us, therefore, avoid its use altogether. If tempted by friends let us have the courage to refuse. Let us avoid the places where it is sold; discourage its use in the home and in social circles, where so much danger lies and so much harm is done.

BIBLE READINGS.

Lev. x, 9, 10; Isa. v, 11; Joel i, 5; Prov. xx, 1; xxiii, 20, 21; Rom. xiii, 12-14; I Cor. vi, 9, 10; Gal. vi, 19-26; I Pet. iv, 1-5; Rev. xxii, 12-15.

THINGS PROVED BY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR'S FIRST THIRTY YEARS—

That young people can be trusted.
That prayer meetings pay.
That promises educate.
That system succeeds in religion as in business.
That folks all over the world are pretty much alike.
That the differences between the denominations are not worth fighting for.
That young people can be loyal to their denomination without being shut up in it.
That young people enjoy Christian service.
That missionary meetings can be made fascinating.
That in union there is strength.
That little things count—little pennies, little sentences, little prayers, little deeds.
That young people will be just about what you expect them to be.—Arrow in Christian Endeavor World.

RADIUM SAFES.

Lead Cases Used to Protect the Rays of the Strange Substance.

Radium is such a strange substance that but few persons in all the world are perfectly familiar with it and its peculiar properties.

It throws off a peculiar ray of light, and if not protected it will in time exhaust itself, going no one knows exactly where.

Its emanations are such that there is but one known substance through which it cannot pass, and that is pure lead.

For some time the problem of complete protection against its own loss through emanations and the possible loss by burglars was a puzzle to scientists and mechanics, but finally a safe was constructed in London with an inner cell of lead about three inches in thickness, surrounded by a specially prepared outer safe, which is said to be a perfect safe for radium.

The strange stuff is stored in those safes and guarded with extreme care, as it is of great value.

The safe door is round and so adjusted as to make it possible to disclose any slight defect that might be caused by the use of the opening, and in the inner portion of the door are openings through which tubes containing mercury can be placed to collect any emanations resulting on the interior during the confinement of the curious substance. Mercury collects the emanations and prevents loss in that direction.—Los Angeles Times.

PROGRESS AND MISERY.

The Progress Must Go on, and the Misery May Be Modified.

Many of the inventions of civilization have their unhygienic side. The invention of houses has enabled mankind to dwell in all parts of the world, but it is responsible for tuberculosis, especially after glass was devised, which, while letting in the light, keeps out the air. The invention of the alphabet and printing has made possible the accumulation of knowledge, but it has produced eye strain, with all its attendant evils.

The invention of chairs has added to human convenience, but it has led to spinal curvature and abdominal congestion. The device of a division of labor has added to wealth, but has destroyed the normal balance of mental and physical work, recreation and rest. Similar fault may be found with clothing, especially corsets, shoes and hats, and with numerous other contrivances.

Yet it would be foolish, even if it were possible, to attempt to "return to nature" in the sense of abolishing civilization. We must not go backward, but forward. The cure for eye strain is not in disregarding the invention of reading, but introducing the invention of glasses. The cure of tuberculosis is not in the destruction of houses, but in devices for ventilation.—Dr. Irving Fisher in New York Christian Advocate.

Scottish Pearls.

A number of people in Scotland make a livelihood by searching for the precious stones which are occasionally to be found ensconced in the interior of fresh water mussels. To a lesser extent it is also carried out on some English and Welsh streams, but none of these is so prolific in pearl bearing as the northern rivers. There are authentic records of Scottish pearls being found which rivaled any the orient has produced so far as translucency and flawlessness are concerned. A writer of the eighteenth century states that £20,000 was a moderate estimate of the value of pearls then fished annually from Scottish rivers, while it is a matter of history that a German who formed a syndicate of fishers in 1865 acquired stones to the value of £12,000 in that year alone. But the industry is not so remunerative nowadays.—London Standard.

Feared Burial Alive.

The dread of premature burial haunted Harriet Martineau, who would certainly not be classed as a fanciful person, and she bequeathed £10 to her doctor to see that her body was decapitated before burial. Edmund Yates in his will stipulated that his jugular vein should be severed and left £20 to pay for the operation. Lady Burton took even stronger precautions. She enjoined that her heart should be pierced with a needle before any steps were taken to certify her death and that her body should afterward be submitted to a postmortem examination.—London Chronicle.

Lucky or Not.

"Eve was really a very lucky woman," remarked Mr. Henpeque. "She didn't have any woman to criticise her clothes."

Mrs. Henpeque's eyes snapped.

"On the other hand," she retorted, "she didn't have any woman around to envy the first gowns a woman ever had."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Life.

Life is the finest of the fine arts. It has to be learned with lifelong patience, and the years of our pilgrimages are all too short to master it triumphantly.—Drummond.

Her Sacred Word.

"Not going to Alice's luncheon? But you gave your sacred word!"

"So I did, and I'd go in a minute if my dress had come home."—Harper's Bazar.

We must laugh before we are happy or else we may die before we ever laugh at all.—La Bruyere.

Paint that Stays Painted
That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

TRADITIONS.

Their Absence Was a Serious Handicap to Adam and Eve.

The great drawback to the garden of Eden was the lack of traditions. There was no history to serve as a guide to legal, moral or social rectitude. There was neither Baedeker nor Ridpath, neither Macaulay nor Gibbon, neither Homer nor Vergil. Adam and Eve could not go to the library, haul down a book and see how somebody once did something or other. There were no daughters of anything to set the standards of social eminence. There were no old families. There were no descendants of anybody to talk big, look wise and draw pensions. There were no forefathers who had laid down inviolable laws, contracted debts, given away franchises and established constitutions for posterity, aye, even unto the third and fourth generation. There were no historic statesmen who had handed down orations for Adam and Eve to learn and recite at high school commencements and church socials. There were no dates for them to learn and remember. There was absolutely no past for them to revere; nothing that had stood the test of time.

If they wanted history or tradition they had to go ahead and make it themselves.—Ellis O. Jones in Judge's Library.

TABLE KNIVES.

Incident That Changed Them From Pointed to Rounded Ends.

Table knives are invariably made with rounded ends. Did it ever occur to you to wonder why they are of this shape instead of pointed, like any other knife blade?

Perhaps you may imagine that the ends were rounded as a protection to life and limb in those turbulent days when men drew their swords or any other available lethal weapon at the very slightest provocation.

But this is not the case. The story goes—and it is fairly well substantiated—that the great Cardinal Richelieu had a guest to dinner whose manners at the table were very far from being all that could be desired.

The climax was reached when the fellow, after finishing the meat course, began to pick his teeth with his table knife, at that date made with a sharp point. The guest being a man of birth and importance, the cardinal could not openly remonstrate, but next day he gave orders that the point of every knife in the establishment should be rounded off.

Before the end of the century his example was universally followed, and the pointed knife at table had disappeared.—London Answers.

Swimming Ghosts.

Lecturing before the Camera club, Dr. Francis Ward said that in an attempt to photograph fish in their natural surroundings he had constructed a pond with an observation chamber let in at the side below the surface of the water. Through the window of this chamber unseen by the fish he could watch and photograph their movements. He discovered by this means that the protection of fish when in their natural state is much more thorough than is generally supposed. All silvery fish were in reality merely mirrors in the water, reflecting the tone and color of their surroundings so as to appear to their fellow fish gray, unsubstantial, swimming ghosts, hardly to be distinguished at all. It was only when the dace, for example, rose to the surface, causing its body to reflect light, that the pike at the bottom of the pond could see and go for its little victim.—London Graphic.

England's Cream Ponies.

The famous cream ponies which are used to draw the king's carriage on state occasions are the sole survivors of a breed of horses which has otherwise passed out of existence. They are the direct and only pure bred descendants of the famous horses of Hanover, which George I. brought with him to his new English kingdom two centuries ago. The once famous white horses and black horses of Hanover have died out, and now the creams alone survive, and only in England, for when Queen Victoria sent to Hanover about 1890 to procure fresh stock for the royal stud not one was to be found.—London Answers.

Reputation.

Reputation is one of the prizes for which men contend. It is, as Mr. Burke calls it, "the cheap defense and ornament of nations and the nurse of manly exertions." It produces more labor and more talent than twice the wealth of a country could ever rear up. It is the coin of genius, and it is the imperious duty of every man to bestow it with the most scrupulous justice and the wisest economy.—Sydney Smith.

A New Interpretation.

History Teacher—What conspicuous feature figured in Harrison's campaign? Pupil—In the long procession they had a log cabin with a colored man tied on top. History Teacher—A what? Pupil—Well, my history says there was a live coon fastened on the roof.—Lippincott's.

Good Suggestion.

"Sometimes," said Uncle Eben, "a man kin build up a mo' valuable credit by keepin his promises dan he kin by boldin' on to his money."—Washington Star.

It is not our wrong actions which it requires courage to confess so much as those that are ridiculous and foolish.—Rousseau.

A FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

BY F A MITCHEL.

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.

In the evening her patience was rewarded. Mark's supper was standing on the stove. Triggs was not in the jail, and Mrs. Triggs went down the stairs outside to get something she wanted in the yard.

Souri caught up the supper and walked straight past the guard into Mark's room with it. Mark, who had been informed of her coming by Jakey, was expecting her. When he saw the mulatto girl he grasped her hand.

"Souri! God bless you!" he said in a low tone.

"I ain't got no time ter talk. I'm watchin fur a chance ter give y' my clothes ter go out with."

"But what would you and Jakey do?" he asked hurriedly.

"Th' ain't goen ter hang a boy or a gal. Pertend ter be sick termorrer 'n ask fur some medicine. Mebbe they'll send me ter git it."

With that she went out. When Mrs. Triggs came in she was bending over the stove.

"Whar's the Yank's supper?" she asked.

"Oh, 'twar gitten cold, 'n I toted hit in ter him."

Souri made herself so useful that she was permitted to stay about the jail the next day. She managed to keep an indifferent mien to all about her, but within there was a tempest. The next morning Mark was to swing, and preparations were being made for the purpose. "If there war only time," thought Souri, "I mought help him away, but tomorrer!" and no one being near to see her she wrung her hands. There seemed but little chance that, having only one evening to effect her plans, she would succeed. It could only be by good luck.

In the afternoon Mark began to moan Triggs went in to see him and asked what was the matter. Mark told him that he was ill. As the afternoon wore away the prisoner groaned and moaned till Triggs went back to him, and Mark told him that he thought he was going to die. Mrs. Triggs carried in his supper, but he refused to eat.

"What y' got?" she asked.

"Cholera, I reckon."

"Good Lord!"

"I want some medicine," said Mark. "If you'll send the black girl for it I'll pay you and her well."

"Y' ain't got no money."

"Yes, I have, but y' don't know whar it is."

Mrs. Triggs reported the matter to her husband, who, fearing that the prisoner would not be in condition for the hanging which was to occur the next morning, consented. Mark was furnished with a scrap of paper and a pen, and wrote the name of a mixture he remembered for cholera morbus. Souri was furnished with money extracted from Jakey's boot and hurried to town.

When she came back it was quite dark. Only a faint line of light was left in the west. As she entered she met Triggs going out of the gate. She went as quickly as she could go without being heard to the prisoner's room.

"Medicine," she said to the guard and passed in without waiting permission, leaving the door partly closed behind her.

"Here, quick! A burnt cork. Rub 't on yer face," she whispered.

Mark seized the cork and applied it. Souri stood in the corner with her back to him, and taking off her dress threw it to him. Mark took off his outer clothes and threw them to her. Each put on the other's garments, Mark inclosing his head in the sunbonnet.

Looking the gratitude he did not dare to speak; pressing her hand and carrying it to his lips, Mark passed out.

The guard wondered why Souri looked so tall and strapping.

Going out of the door and down the stairs, Mark went to the gate and walked by the sentinel posted there, as Souri had often done.

The guard also noticed how tall she looked and called to her; but by this time Mark was well out of his reach and pretended not to hear. The sentinel, not thinking it worth while to follow and leave his post unprotected, let him go and thought no more about the matter.

CHAPTER IX.

FLOATING FOR LIFE.

MARK had very little idea how long a time would elapse before it would be discovered that Souri was in his place and he had escaped. It might be a few minutes, it might be half an hour, it might possibly be not till morning, though of this he had little hope. He believed that within half an hour he would be pursued by bloodhounds.

He had been about the town enough to know the direction of the river and started toward it. He was at home in the water, and determined that he would not attempt to find a boat, but would plunge in and swim for his life. The width of the river at Chattanooga was only about three-quarters of a mile, and Mark did not regard this a great distance for a good swimmer. Once across the dogs would have to pick up the scent on the other side, and if he should permit the current to carry him far down the stream the difficulty in doing so would be greatly increased.

It was a soft summer evening, and the larger stars had already begun to shine. Casting a glance to the right he saw a streak of light over Missionary ridge and knew that before long he would be at a disadvantage from the rising of a full moon. He walked briskly whenever any person was in sight, and when he thought that he was unobserved he ran.

No one of the few people who passed the strapping negro girl, whose face was hidden within the blue check sunbonnet, dreamed that a Union soldier was passing; that the scaffold was being cheated; that a messenger with the secret of one of the most important moves any Confederate general had made or was destined to make during the war was on his way north in the person of the negro woman hurrying on toward the river.

He sped onward, running and walking briskly alternately, till he came to a place where a board fence was capped by a narrow strip. He mounted it and walked as far as the fence extended, perhaps a hundred yards, hoping by this means to throw the dogs off the scent for a few minutes, and thus gain a little time. Then he jumped down and hurried forward. A man passed and called to him, but he paid no attention to the call, and the man stood looking after him, doubtless suspecting that the girl was a runaway slave.

At last the grateful sight of the river met his gaze. It cheered him and seemed to beckon him on to rest upon its bosom, or, as an alternative with the dreadful tragedy of the morning, to find oblivion beneath its surface.

He stood for a moment beneath a low clump of trees on the bank listening and looking up and down the river. A boat was passing, and he felt it necessary to wait for it to go by. He lost five minutes, but it seemed half an hour. Then taking off his dress and shoes and bonnet he put the dress and the shoes in the bonnet and tied the strings around his neck, resting the bundle on his back. Going down to the margin, and again listening a moment to make sure he was not observed, he waded out as far as he could touch bottom, and then began to swim.

As it was midsummer he had expected to find the water warm. His expectations were realized to a reasonable degree, and he felt that he could remain in it a long while without being chilled. His plan was to drift down a considerable distance. He might be expected to swim across as rapidly as he could, and the current in this case would land him perhaps a mile below the town. Those who would follow him with dogs would doubtless track him to the river margin, then take the dogs across and endeavor to pick up the scent some distance below on the other side. Mark had weighed all these circumstances, and determined to drift down as far as possible, land at the mouth of a creek if he could find one, enter it and swim or walk up it in the water, thus rendering it difficult for the dogs to track him.

He swam slowly till he reached the middle of the river; then, floating with scarcely any motion of his hands and feet, he permitted himself to drift down with the current. A favorite way with him, when a boy, of resting in the water, had been to float on his back. Unmindful of the wetting he would give the clothes tied around his neck, he turned over and drifted with his arms spread beside him, his eyes turned directly to the sky.

In the position on his back he could only look upward at the stars. There was the great dome above him spangled with myriads of bright points and spanned by the "milky way." He had always been fond of the stars, and in order to divert his mind picked out some of his favorites and traced a few constellations with which he was familiar. In this way he diverted his mind until his nerves became quite steady.

His observations were suddenly checked by a sound. It was very faint, but enough to freeze the marrow in his bones. It was the distant bark of a dog. He listened and presently could hear more. Evidently there was a pack. They drew nearer. Then they ceased for awhile. Perhaps they had come to the place where he had walked on the fence. Then the barks began again, growing only slightly louder as they came, for Mark was floating rapidly from the point where he had entered the river.

He involuntarily turned over on his chest and struck out lustily. The current was swift; swimming would not add to his safety—it would only tax his strength and render him more liable to recapture on the other shore. But swim he must. With the terrible sound of those dogs in his ears he could not lie idly on the water and leave the current to bear him onward.

Soon there came another cessation of sound from the dogs far above on the shore, and Mark judged that they had lost the scent at the place where he had entered the water.

Then he began to think of Souri and Jakey. What had they done to Souri when they had discovered her trick? Would they punish her? Would they treat the boy harshly? He was comforted with the thought that there would be nothing gained by this—it would not bring the prisoner back—but he muttered a prayer for the girl who had placed herself behind those prison bars, who had incurred the rage of his jailers to save him.

He heard no more of the dogs and floated on, swimming and resting alternately. The high bluffs of Moccasin point were before him on his right. An owl on their summit, watching the rising moon, occasionally gave a dismal hoot, the intervals being supplied by the melancholy whippoorwill. The current bore him on around the point, carrying him in near the shore where he had passed the picket with the sleeping Jakey in his arms a few nights before. So close was he that he could see a man walking back and forth on the very beat of the one he had passed. As he drifted away he saw the relief approach and the picket changed.

He was borne directly under Lookout mountain, and on down for a mile to a point where the river makes another bend. Here the bank was low, and as Mark was getting chilled he swam to the southern bank for rest. He laid himself down for a few moments on the dry ground, and then getting up walked back and forth rapidly, swinging his arms at the same time to restore circulation and fit him to endure a longer stay in the water. He looked about for some piece of wood on which he might float farther. There were logs of various sizes scattered around, but most of them were rotten. He was so much at home in the water that he was not disappointed on failing to find one suitable to his purpose.

Plunging in again he moved on down past the bluffs at the foot of the Raccoon mountains, swimming on his chest most of the time and keeping a lookout before him. He had not passed any boats, at least none near him, and did not fear this danger, but he wanted to keep his surroundings well in view in order to know his location. The moon was now well up, and he could see quite distinctly. Below and to his right a boat was putting out from the east shore. It was larger than an ordinary skiff, but as it was in a shadow he could not tell what kind of a craft it was. As it came over the river at right angles with the shore, and Mark was drifting toward it, he soon found that he was in danger of meeting it in the middle of the stream. The current was quite rapid, and before he was aware of it he was close to the boat. It was evidently a ferryboat, and Mark, who knew the location of Brown's ferry from the maps, judged that it was the boat belonging there.

But Mark was concerned with other considerations besides his location just then. He was too late to get out of the way unobserved by swimming aside. He made up his mind in a twinkling what to do. Drawing several long breaths he filled his lungs with air, and then putting his head down and his feet up he threw himself under water. He had often been beneath the surface for a considerable time, but never as long as now. He remained under as long as he thought he possibly could, and then staid awhile longer. When he came to light again the boat was a hundred yards above him and to the west of him.

Another mile brought him to an island. He remembered it on his map as William's island, and knew that it was about two miles long. He recalled the fact that the only creek flowing into the river in this vicinity entered it midway between the north and south end of this island, and on his right, if he remembered aright. He had about a mile to go to reach the mouth of this creek.

Striking out, he directed his course to the eastward of the island and swam very near to the east bank of the river. Along this he floated with scarcely a stroke, except to keep in close to the shore, watching eagerly for the mouth of the creek. Fortunately when he reached it he discovered it, and where he had supposed he would find it. With a few lusty strokes he was in it and soon at a place where he could rest in the water with his feet on terra firma.

But the knowledge that the dogs would soon be upon him prevented a rest of long duration. Perhaps a party would cross the neck of Moccasin point, thus cutting off a greater part of the long distance over which he had floated. The thought added new terror, and he began to wade and to swim alternately, as was necessary, up the creek. Presently he came to the crossing of a road. He drew himself up on to it and looked around. As a scout he had long been accustomed to keep his mind fixed on points along the paths he traveled, in order that he might know them again. As soon as he saw the little bridge—if it could be called a bridge—he knew that he was on the Chattanooga pike, over which he had passed a few days before, and at the junction of the creek running near the Fains' plantation.

Mark had not considered what he would do in case he should succeed in getting safely across the river. While in jail he felt that once out and across the Tennessee he would feel assured of safety. Now this had been accomplished, he began to realize that but half the battle had been won. Indeed there were more chances that he would be retaken than that he would ever reach the Union lines.

He wrung the water from his clothes and put them on, shielding his face with his sunbonnet, for, though he had no mirror to inspect his features, he fancied they must be streaked with burnt cork softened by water. Then setting out toward the Fain plantation he deliberated what he should do.

It was now between eleven and twelve o'clock—so Mark judged by the moon being on the meridian—and he knew that all the Fains were asleep. He reached the corner of the yard and was about to enter it when he heard a clatter of hoofs behind him. He had hardly time to vault the fence and crouch behind it when a troop of horsemen crossed the bridge over the creek. They drew rein on the hither side not a hundred yards away from him. Mark heard a voice:

"Lieutenant, take ten men and scour the bank of the river from this on to the next creek, where I will make another detail."

The lieutenant with his men broke away from the column, which moved forward, passing within fifty feet of where Mark lay crouching.

Mark was for a few moments so completely overcome by the narrowness of his escape that he seemed to have no power to move. If he had been five minutes later, his capture would have been almost certain, for they would likely have discovered him between the road and the river, which space they were evidently intending to scour.

He got up, and getting on the outside of the fence walked beside a portion of it which led back from the road, designing to enter the negro quarters in the rear. He feared that the dogs were loose in the yard, and that he would have trouble with them; he therefore stole along till he came to the nearest point to one of the negro cabins. A dog sleeping in the moonlight near the house gave a low moan. Mark paused a moment and listened; then entering the grounds he walked in a stooping posture, keeping one of the cabins between him and the dog. He wanted to reach the rear door.

Mark felt assured that unless he could be concealed in some place where searchers would not be likely to intrude he would be lost. He well knew that every foot of ground within five or ten miles of Chattanooga would be alive with people hunting for him. The negro cabins would not be safe, for no searching party would respect them. There was but one chance for him. He must effect an entrance into the Fain house, and that with the knowledge as to his true character of but one person—Laura Fain.

He reached the negro cabin and knocked.

"Who dar?"

"Whar Uncle Dan'l sleep?"

"Nex' to de lef'."

Mark went as directed and called up Uncle Daniel. He heard a movement as of some one getting up, and presently the old man stood at the open door.

"Uncle, I'ze got a message fo' yo' young mistress."

"Who from?"

"De po' white man what war hyar las' week wid he little brudder."

BASEBALL.

Consolation thought for today—there's a game in this city during the week for the Elks play on Crescent Oval tomorrow.

And what are the local Elks but almost as good as any of the teams in the Central New Jersey League for there are many of the Central stars who wear the 885 uniforms when the name and fame of their lodge on the diamond is in danger. Torpey is a High Bridge catcher, Warry MacLaughlin is the slab artist for Scotch Plains, Nolan is the chief slugger of the Bound Brook Tailenders, Craig is the popular hero for Westfield, Flannery is a Scotch Plains "vet," while Evans warms the Pets' bench on Saturdays. No wonder they can play ball!

Perhaps Joe Harter will not try any more one handed catches after that muff, which he made Saturday in the game with Scotch Plains. The Plainfield swatfester tried to mit a ball with one lunch hook but the pill rolled out and an error was chalked agaist the speedy fielder. Two hands for a beginner, although Joe does know the game from Alpha to Omega oil right. (Once more the needle!)

There is certainly something wrong with the umpires in the Central League. It is not that they are unfair or biased in their decisions to any team but their eyes must be affected or something of that description. At every game Saturday, the officials were severely criticized and even Mr. Stockdale was called a robber and a "bone head." The work of Degnon at Scotch Plains was way off on two occasions and although it was unintentional it made the Plainfield players feel more or less sore.

Remember lawyers, The Daily Press team is only waiting for you to set the date for the awful diamond struggle. So hurry up and summon your players!

Harry Van Zandt has changed his Sunday-school religion in view of the fact that the Trinity team was not making good. Harry is a good pitcher but the Reformed idea of playing didn't suit him so he now drops his collection in the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school basket. He twirled for the Parks Saturday against the Monroes but again his team was defeated. He will show them yet, however.

The Pets had their hooks out on the sack Saturday afternoon and pilfered evelen bases. The Stallings boys each captured three from Henry Alberts and Driscoll and Cosgrove took two apiece. The 'Plainers stole four times on Nelson's wing but that was good considering.

Bill Doane is the comic opera star of the Sunday-school League and fills his position nobly. Bill covers first base for the Parks and doesn't hesitate to say a few coaching words per game and also to deliver lectures and expressions of love on the umpire. He is a fireman when he is off duty in New York City and is always on the alert while covering the initial sack for the whistle to blow. In case such a calamity should occur, Bill says that he wouldn't even stop to tag out a runner for property is more valuable than a baseball game. Now isn't that patriotic?

Remember the Pets play in Somerville Saturday and not in this city!

GUARD IMPROVES

Detail of Regular Army Officers Proves a Benefit to the State Militia.

NEW JERSEY'S APPROPRIATION

Adjutant General Wilbur J. Sadler, Jr., Secures Increased Amount of Instruction—Encampment to Close Soon.

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, Aug. 9.—As the time for the closing of the annual encampment of the New Jersey guardsmen draws near the officers are making comparison between the work done by the various commands this year and that done in previous years, and the opinion is practically unanimous that never before in the history of the guard has such efficiency been developed in so short a time as has been the case during the last three weeks. The great change comes largely because of the increased amount of instruction received from men of the regular service and the additional money now being allowed the State by the National government for the maintenance of the guard, New Jersey receiving in the neighborhood of $100,000 each year.

To Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., is due much of the credit for the increased amount of instruction by regulars. He made several visits to Washington to urge upon the division of militia affairs there the necessity of greatly strengthening the schools of instructions, and by the arguments put forward by him there that their aid was needed.

Not only will the guardsmen receive additional instruction during the encampment, but regular army officers have been detailed, under the provisions of an act of Congress last year to remain among the various National Guard organizations which have complied with the provisions of the Dick act, which makes the National Guard part of the regular army service in time of war. In the regiments one or two regular army men are permanently detailed to a State, while with the mounted organizations an officer is detailed to a district comprising several States. In the case of Lieutenant Edwin St. J. Greble, who is instructing the men of Battery B this week, his district takes in New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Yesterday was a quiet day in camp, routine drills occupying the time of the men of the four commands, with the usual evening parade late in the afternoon before a big crowd of spectators. Governor Wilson with his office assistants were at Trenton all day for their regular weekly visit, returning late in the afternoon. Last night there was a band concert at General Hine's headquarters, and tonight the regular weekly concert is scheduled for the Governor's cottage, at which it is expected there will be a large number of visitors, as it will be the last concert of the season.

There will be an all day maneuvre today participated in by two battalions of the Fourth regiment and the three mounted organizations. Major Johnson is the referee and Colonel Brinkerhoff will command one of the opposing forces, while Captain Field who is the senior officer, will probably be at the head of the other.

HUNTERDON LOCAL OPTIONISTS.

Clinton, Aug. 9.—At a meeting, largely attended, in the Methodist Episcopal church on Monday the Hunterdon County Local Option League was formed with the following officers: President, the Rev. Dr. C. S. Woodruff, of Flemington; vice-president, George W. Hummer, of Frenchtown; secretary, C. M. W. Lee, of Baptisttown; treasurer, Rev. S. Rechnitzer, of Clinton. A board of managers was also appointed representing the various sections of the county. The league voted to indorse the candidacy of David H. Agans, of Three Bridges, who is seeking the nomination for members of Assembly on the Democratic ticket this fall.

Addresses were made by Rev. Walter C. Kinsey, of Newark, district secretary of the Anti-Saloon League, and Rev. Thomas B. Shannon, an organizer of that institution. Rev. B. V. D. Wyckoff, of Readington, was chairman of the meeting, and Rev. S. Rechnitzer, of Clinton, secretary.

TYPOS MEET.

Union's Laws Committee Has Some Important Plans.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 9.—Impotrant legislative matters will be discussed by the laws committee of the International Typograhpical Union, which will hold its first session here today in connection with the annual convention of the union, which will be formally opened on Aug. 14. At a conference of the committee yesterday, Thomas N. Gaffney, of Syracuse, N. Y., was elected chairman and Samuel Hadden, of Toronto, secretary.

Among the more important of the issues which will come before the committee will be the proposal to adopt a universal wage system, abolishing the piece system entirely. A referendum vote recently taken was in favor of such action, but doubt is expressed as to the advisability of making it immediately effective. Arbitration of disagreements with employers also will be discussed.

WHAT, AGAIN?

Seventh Day Adventist Predicts End of World.

Indianapolis, August 9.—"The world will come to an end within a very few years," declared Elder O. Montgomery, president of the Indianapolis conference of the Seventh Day Adventists during the service at the campmeeting here.

"I cannot set the year. It may be next year, it may be five years. But I do know that it will come before the death of the last man who saw the falling of the stars on November 13, 1833. There are few people living now who saw that phenomenon and I know that the end will come before all of them are gone."

Proctor's New Show.

The Nautical Trio, in a comedy sketch, "The Widow's Bachelor," a merry tale of the briny deep, will be offered at Proctor's theatre, tomorrow and the rest of the week. Special scenery and electric effects are used. Lubin's Merry Humming Coons will be another strong attraction, presenting a beautiful southern sketch. The Bessie Hilt Trio will present a dandy singing and dancing act and Black and Smirl, knockabout comedians, will conclude the bill with a rough and tumble skit. The pictures are the best ever.

RESCUES FAMILY FROM GAS DEATH.

That the members of the family of John J. Walsh, of 62 Pennsylvania avenue Elizabeth, were not asphyxiated by gas Monday night is due to the fact that Mr. Walsh and one of his sons remained later than expected at a meeting of the Elizabeth Lodge of Elks.

It was about 9 o'clock when Mrs. Walsh, her five children, a woman guest and her maid retired, Mr. Walsh and his elder son having gone to the lodge meeting. The bedrooms are located on the second floor of the house.

Shortly afterwards it was discovered that the rear door had been left unlocked and the maid went downstairs again to attend to it. It is supposed that she lighted the gas in the kitchen and when she attempted to extinguish it turned the cock all the way around.

Mr. Walsh and his son returned shortly after midnight and were horrified when they opened the front door to be met with a rush of gas. Realizing that something was wrong Mr. Walsh groped his way upstairs to arouse the family.

They were partially under the influence of the gas, however, and this was accomplished with much difficulty. In the meantime the son, William Walsh, had traced the escaping gas to its source and shut it off. The members of the family then gathered on the front porch while the windows were opened to allow the gas to escape.

It is probable that if Mr. Walsh had returned an hour later the accident might have resulted disastrously as the windows were shut on the lower floor and there was no place for the gas to escape. None of the family feels any the worse for the experience.

WHITE AND NEGRO FIRE COMPANIES IN A CLASH.

Asbury Park, Aug. 9.—There was a near riot Monday night at the scene of a fire in Myrtle avenue, just west of this city, which burned to the ground the cottage of Andrew Jackson. The fire was in the Neptune Township fire district, and an alarm was sent in from box 72, in West Grove, which called out the Uneeda and Unexceled companies, but before they arrived the Eureka colored fire company left their firehouse in Springwood avenue and were preparing to put a stream on the fire from the plug at the corner of Ridge and Springwood avenues.

The Uneeda Fire Company arrived on the scene and objected to the action of the colored firemen inasmuch as they were working outside of their own district. The Eurekas resisted and their resistance was followed by a scramble. Uncomplimentary words and finally blows were exchanged. The Unexceled company had also arrived and the two companies locked forces.

The Eureka company finally withdrew after Policeman Charles Lippincott arrived, and the other vamps went back to the fire. The building was burned to the ground.

FACES 3 CHARGES

Charles Hill, Accused of Stealing $18 From Chris. Pope, Has a Bad Reputation.

WAS ARRESTED AT DUNELLEN.

Inability to Get a Drink Led to a Fight—On Blacklist in Local Saloons—Hearing Tonight.

Charles Hill, who was arrested in Dunellen yesterday as was told exclusively in The Daily Press, is now being held in the borough jail awaiting his trial. Hill faces three charges which have been preferred against him, two in Dunellen and one in North Plainfield. The prisoner was arrested by Marshal James Benson, in Dunellen at 11.35 yesterday morning after the latter had received a telephone message from Chief Marshal George Weiss, of the North Plainfield police force, upon complaint of Christopher Pope, of Pearl street. Hill went to Mr. Pope's home Tuesday night and told him a hard luck story, saying that he had no place to sleep and was short of funds. Mr. Pope, who is a veteran of the Civil War, living on a pension from the United States government, rents rooms in a house on Pearl street. He knew Hill, when the young man lived in the borough and immediately extended the hospitality of his home to the destitute wanderer.

Mr. Pope went to bed, leaving the man asleep on a couch in the next room. Following his usual custom, the veteran arose at 1:30 yesterday morning and to his surprise he found that the night lodger had gone. He also noticed that his coat was not hanging in its usual position and upon investigation found that $18 had been taken from his wallet. The police were not notified until 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Just after Marshal Benson received the message from Chief Weiss, he was called to William H. Taylor's hotel, where Hill was acting in a disorderly manner. The marshal attempted to put Hill under arrest and was strongly resisted. The prisoner was finally subdued and brought to the borough jail by Marshal Weiss and Pope, of North Plainfield.

A careful search was made of the prisoner's clothing when he was brought to the borough but only a small part of the $18, which he had stolen, could be found. It is believed that he hid the greater part of the money when he heard that the police were after him as it is known that he did not spend any of it.

Hill was to have been tried last night before Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape, of the borough, but the case was postponed until this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Robert Newton Crane, who was retained as counsel for Hill at noon yesterday and on account of the short time to prepare a case, the hearing was postponed. It is supposed that Hill will be held to await the action of the Somerset County Grand Jury. As soon as the charge against Hill is settled in the borough, the prisoner will be tried for disorderly conduct and resisting arrest in Dunellen.

It is believed that Hill is a hard character for he is on the black list in the saloons in this vicinity. It was on this account that he was unable to get a drink at Taylor's hotel yesterday when he raised such a disturbance.

PLAINFIELD WATER FOR KENILWORTH

It was practically decided at an adjourned meeting of the Borough Council of Kenilworth, Wednesday night to accept the proposition presented at the last meeting of that body by the Plainfield Union Water Company to install wate there. William F. Groves, the borough attorney, of Elizabeth, was present, and outlined the laws regarding the laying of pipes by the borough. It was also decided to secure an engineer to make a map of the section to be piped and the Water Committee was instructed to report at a special meeting to be called for next week concerning this matter.

Estimates of the cost for installing a water plant will be included in the proposition to be presented at a special election to be held with the general election in November. It is understood that the majority of the residents there are in favor of having a water plant at Kenilworth, and it is not feared that there will be much opposition when the matter is placed before the people for a vote.

The proposition of the Plainfield Water Company presented at the last meeting of the Council was to extend their pipes along Faltoute avenue to the borough line, a distance of about 2,500 feet, and to supply water to the town for $1 per 1,000 gallons. The borough will have to sign a contract for five years, and will have to guarantee at least $300 a year to the company. As far as is now known it will require 12,500 feet of pipe to cover the territory to be supplied with wter.

The Water Committee, which is composed of Fritz H. Krantz, Frank Kipling and John Hiller, has worked hard for several months to secure a water plant for the borough.

COUNTESS DE FESTETICS STILL A CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALER.

An indictment against Countess Elsie H. de Festetics alleging perjury, which had been procured by her husband, Count Gyula de Festetics, was dismissed in Jersey City, recently neither the count nor any one for him appearing.

At the time of her arrest it was stated that Mrs. de Festetics, who is a Christian Science practitioner, was not authorized to practise, as her name was not listed in "The Christian Science Journal." Eugene R. Cox, of the Christian Science committe on publication, said yesterday that this "should not militate against her, as there are many able practitioners who do not have cards in the Journal, nor is there any requirement that they should."

JUSTICE TOO BUSY TO ISSUE WARRANT

T. A. Linaberry, agent for the Lehigh Valley Railroad, at South Plainfield, in explaining the trouble he had with Albert Wright, former day operator in the tower at that place, states that Wright was recently discharged for incompetency, and that another man was appointed in his place. Being angered over the fact of losing his job, Wright, he says, went to the tower on Saturday night and attempted to make trouble for the operator on duty.

When Mr. Linaberry told the man to leave the tower, he refused to go and then the trouble followed, during which Mr. Linaberry was hit in the face and floored by Wright. The latter says that he ordered the company officer at that point to arrest Wright, but refused to do so at first. Later he did arrest the man and with Mr. Linaberry took him to New Market, where he appeared before Justice Rogers.

According to Mr. Linaberry, Justice Rogers said that he was too busy to issue a warrant. He claimed that Wright was the aggressor throughout the trouble and was mad because he lost his position. Mr. Linaberry says that Wright was accompanied to the tower by several companions, who went away with him after the trouble. Wright, it is said, has since disappeared, but Mr. Linaberry has taken the matter up with Justice Suydam at New Brunswick.

MARRIED WHILE ON A VISIT TO THIS CITY

While on a visit in this city, James Mack and Mrs. Ella Dilliard, of Slatington, Pa., made up their minds to marry. City Judge William G. The young couple decided somewhat suddenly to ge married and remarked that the wedding would be a surrpise to their parents and friends when they return home. They will spend their honeymoon here and will go to keeping house in Slatington early in the fall.

FAVOR WIDENING

Several Persons Said to Have Withdrawn Objections to Somerset St. Improvement.

QUESTION NOT UNDERSTOOD.

The Objectors Thought Cost Would Be Too Great—Final Hearing on Ordinance Will Be Held August 15.

A satisfactory solution to the question of widening Somerset street from Jackson avenue to Johnston's drive, is in sight, according to a number of prominent boroughites who have given the matter considerable thought and personal attention, and they are optimistic as to the result of a meeting to be held Tuesday night, at which they assert a number who signed the petition against the widening project, will recall their signatures, if they have not done so prior to the meeting.

Among those who have changed their view on the proposition are a number of the largest property-owners to be affected in the event of the improvement being made. In some cases they have stated their reason for changing, just as thy freely gave their reasons for signing the petition. The principal reason, or at least the one mentioned by the majority of them, was that they thought the figures submited were too high. It was estimated that it would cost $25,000 to widen the street, curb it, make the sidewalks uniform, install storm sewers that would give Somerset street and all other intersecting streets and avenues proper drainage.

Another reason for objection was based on a misunderstanding as to how many feet would be clipped from their frontage. The street is to be widened ten feet and in some manner the impression was given that this amount would be taken from each property owner's front yard. in some cases this would bring the sidewalk objectionably close to his porch, but when it was explained that it was proposed to take five feet from each side of the roadway, this objection was overcome and the objector signified his willingness to see the improvement made.

The fact that the estimated cost was mentioned without telling what specifications it included proved to be another feature to which some raised objections. For just widening of the street, the estimated cost is much lower, but it was considered good business to have all improvements made while the widening work was going on.

SENATOR MARTINE TO SPEAK AT TRENTON

A the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Woodrow Wilson Democratic Club, last night in the headquarters on North Warren street, Trenton, it was announced by the chairman of the Outing Committee that United States Senator James E. Martine had signified his intention of attending the outing and barbecue. Senator Martine informs the committee that Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, will endeavor to be present on this occasion as the guest of the club. The outing is scheduled for August 23 at the Fair grounds.

The club sent invitations to all of the Congressmen from this State, and several have signified their intention of attending. Members of the State Democratic Committee, including Chairman Nugent, Charles H. Gallagher and Eugene Kinkead, are expected to attend.

The barbercue promises to be of the real thing order, and will be prepared a la western style, with all the trimmings. One of the local bands will be secured to furnish music during the afternoon. The committee named to secure speakers intend to secure a half-dozen of the most prominent men of the Democratic party of this State to deliver talks.

The athletic program bids fair to be a feature of the affair, the committee in charge of this end of the program intends to card at least eight races.

He is survived by a brother, Howard Toms, and a sister, Mrs. John Allen, of West Fourth street. The funeral will be held privately tomorrow and burial will be made in the Springdale cemetery.

STATE BOARD TO EXAMINE WATER

The State Board of Health, at the request of the Board of Health, of Dunellen, will make an investigation of the water supply in that borough. Recently the borough board sent a sample of the water to Trenton for analysis, and the report which was received yesterday indicates that there is something wrong with the water. It is not the opinion that the source of the supply, which is furnished by the Watchung Water Company is polluted, but that possibly there is something wrong with the reservoir, or possibly other apparatus used by the company.

The supply comes from a point in the vicinity of Sebring's Mills, the company having a pumping station there and using a reservoir for distributing purposes. Former United States Senator John Kean, together with Frank Bergen control this supply, and there is no question but that they will promptly remedy anything found to be wrong either at the plant or in the supply.

The Dunellen Board of Education has been considering a plan to install drinking fountains in the public schools, but has now decided to wait until the State Board of Health completes its investigation. However, there is no need of the water in the schools at present owing to the vacation time. The connection can be made easily before the schools re-open.

JOSEPH CAPOMPO HELD FOR GRAND JURY

Joseph Capompo, the Sicilian arrested Tuesday on complaint of his employer, P. J. Cerussi, for carrying concealed weapons, was held for the action of the Union County Grand Jury this morning by Judge William G. DeMeza, in the city court. Bail was fixed at $100, which was furnished by Capompo's father.

J. Victor D'Alvio, of Newark, counsel for the defendant, said that according to the law, his client was not guilty of carrying concealed weapons as at the time of the arrest the revolver was in the coat which was hanging on a nail. Capompo said that the gun did not belong to him and that he had not put it in his pocket, but insinuated that some one else did with the intention of getting him into trouble. The fact that the coat was not in Capompo's own home, Judge DeMeza ruled was still a violation of the law but owing to this mitigating circumstance in the evidence, bail was made nominal.

He is well known in this city, where he has a large number of friends. No definite arrangements have been made as yet for the wedding, which will occur some time in the spring.

Surrendered by Bondsman.

Percy Henry, the colored youth, who was held under $200 for the action of the Union County Grand Jury, for passing a worthless check for $10 on Moses Schloss, March 5, was surrendered by his bondsman, Oscar Green, this morning. To Judge William G. DeMeza, Green explained that he did not feel secure about Henry after investigating the case more fully. Robert Newton Crane, who appeared for Henry at the hearing before Judge DeMeza, Monday morning, also announced his withdrawal from the case as counsel.

SLOT MACHINES LEAD TO ARREST

On a charge of maintaining slot machines, which is contrary to law, Walter Sisty and Henry Vogel, of Dunellen, were held yesterday by Justice Suydam, of New Brunswick, for the action of the grand jury. The complaint was made to Prosecutor Theodore Booraem that the men were operating slot machines and a county detective secured the necessary evidence to arrest both men.

Detectives Peltier and Ford Davis, acompanied by Marshal Benson, of Dunellen, visited the two places yesterday, and confiscated the machines and placed the men under arrest. When arraigned before Justice Suydam, the men were admitted to bail, furnishing their own security. Mr. Sisty conducts the picnic grounds at Dunellen known as Wayside Park, and Mr. Vogel has a lunch wagon nearby. Slot machines are not permitted by law and the authorities confiscate them wherever they are found in operation.

KNIGHTS EXCURSION BIGGEST OF SEASON

The excursionists going today to Asbury Park on the Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus outing, completely filled the thirty coaches and there were excursionists enough to have filled two or more coaches. The ideal weather conditions made glad the hearts of the departing multitude, intent on spending a day at the shore enjoying the pleasures it has to offer. The danger of being burned by Old Sol's rays held no fear for any of them and was hardly given a thought as with buoyant spirits they climed aboard and waved adieu to those who had to remain at home as the train pulled out.

Nothing had been left undone by the large committee that would add to the comfort and convenience of the excursionists and to prevent accidents, Charles H. English, trainmaster of the New Jersey Central gave the handling of the excursionists at the North Ave. station his personal supervision. He was assisted by a number of city patrolmen and the train crew. It is estimated that there were 2,500 people who joined in the outing as 1,694 tickets were sold in addition to those given the children, about 900. Last year 1,354 tickets were sold. The excursion will be run home in three sections.

Another fishing party under the leadership of Joseph Clarke, of fire headquarters, was held at Sewaren Tuesday and again the party made a big catch although not as large as the previous hul. The members of the Tuesday party were not the same as those who went last week with the exception of two. Mrs. George Bowers attained great proficiency as a fisherwoman by catching and landing the only bluefish during the day. The others in the party caught 110 fluke but did not have the good luck of getting any weaks.

Afer the fishing was done for the day, the party took a sail in the Evelyn G., which had been chartered from Ackor's dock and went up through New York bay and the harbor. Those who were on the expedition were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clarke, Miss Helen Clarke, Joseph Clarke, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Bowers, George Bowers, Jr., Jerry Griffin, William Jager, Charles Sprague, George Himmer, Richard Crowley and Miss Elizabeth Gulla, of New York city.

A TOTAL LOSS

Report of Committee on Affairs of Mining Co. Not Promising For Stockholders.

PROPERTY HAS LITTLE VALUE.

Investigation Shows That It Would Not Pay to Try and Recover Same—Meeting of Stockholders Soon.

The committee appointed by the stock and bondholders of the National Mining and Leasing Company, and allied interests, met in this city on Tuesday and presented a report, which had been prepared by James P. Powers, attorney, and adopted the same. It was ordered that the the report be printed in pamphlet form and a copy sent to each stock and bondholders.

When the meeting was called there was present of the committee Charles L. Moffett, William H. Abbott, of this city and L. L. Loveland, of Cranford. John Doyle, of Cranford and Den. J. Galbraith, of this city, also members of the committee were not present at the time, and Mr. Abbott was made chairman pro tem. Mr. Galbraith came in a little later and took the chair. There developed some difference of opinion among the members of the committee, and as a result Mr. Abbott was elected chairman of that body, succeeding Mr. Galbraith.

The committee states that its object is to bring the work of that body to a close and make a report to the stockholders. The conclusion of the matter as reported by the committee is that the stock and bondholders must expect a total loss on what property that may be claimed by the National Mining and Leasing Company, it being of such small value that it would not pay the cost of the legal expenses in recovering the same. There will be a meeting of stock and bondholders within a short time. The report adopted by the committee and authorized for publication is as follows:

To the stock and bondholders of the National Mining and Leasing Company:

Pursuant to the authority given to us, we have endeavored to ascertain what property is owned by the National Mining & Leasing Company, its liabilities and who is responsible for the present condition of the company. We find that the National Mining & Leasing Company was incorporated under the laws of the Territory of Arizona by E. D. Middlekauff and Addie M. Middlekauff, his wife, February 8th, 1907, with a capital stock of 1,000,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, and that the only asset was a tract of so called mineral land, located in Boon county in the State of Arkansas, which Middlekauff had under option to purchase for the sum of $2,000, which property was turned over to the company in exchange for 999.997 shares of the capital stock of the National Mining and Leasing Company, after which Middlekauff generously donated 250,000 shares to the treasury of the company, upon condition that he have the exclusive sale of such treasury stock and for the sale of which, he was to receive 40 per cent. and all disbursements as commissions and also the right to vote said stock.

After the organization of the company, every transaction appears to have been dictated by Middlekauff and were acquiesced in by the board of directors, who appear to have been under his domination and participated in the various transactions, intentionally or through ignorance, this board of directors was composed of E. D. Middlekauff, Addie M. Middlekauff and John W. Fisher and later R. J. Curry and Jasper Cadmus were added thereto.

A number of mining leases were authorized by the board of directors, yielding large returns to the company, these appear, however, to have been on paper only, the leasees admitting that they paid nothing for them, except notes, which were not paid by the makers.

The celebrated and well advertised mining companies, known as the "Window Mountain Copper Mining Company," the "Jersey Bell Copper Mining Company," and the "Wyoming Oil and Development Company" were all organized by Middlekauff and associates, consisting of his wife, Addie M. Middlekauff, John W. Fisher, R. J. Curry and Jasper Cadmus, and a controlling interest sold to the National Mining and Leasing Company at prices many times in excess of their value, the scheme being to control all of the properties through debts created and held by Middlekauff, should the properties ever prove of value.

From an examination of the minutes of the various director's meetings of the National Mining and Leasing Company and the associated or subsidiary companies it would ap-

STRANGER GOT LOST FORTUNE

Lincoln Park, Aug. 10.—That the fortune of Adrain Van Winkle, for which his relatives have searched for upward of half a century, has been found and carted away by a stranger is the belief of the numerous Van Winkles in this section. They are now searching for a man who said he was Professor Henry Camperdown, a Boston geologist, and who is believed to have discovered the treasurer.

Professor Camperdown came here to live not a great while ago. He said he was interested in geology and took long walks about Hook Mountains. Five days ago he came home excited. Mr. Van Ness, with whom he boarded, asked him what the trouble was, and he said he had made a rare geological find. The next day he borrowed a wheelbarrow and put some excelsior in a packing-case and trundled it away. That night he asked his host to help him the next day with a team.

Van Ness helped him load a case weighing 300 pounds on the wagon. He drove the case to the station and shipped it to New York, following himself.

When Van Ness told this story it excited the Van Winkles. It was known Camperdown had been over the place. They traced the case from where it had been loaded on the wagon through the woods and a part way up the mountain. There they found a cave that was unknown to all and whose mouth had been filled with stones.

Whatever Camperdown obtained, it is admitted, came from the cave in the rocks. There is evidence that it was a box, and the Van Winkles say there is no doubt it was Old Adrian's gold dust and nuggets, for which they had searched for half a century.

Adrian Van Winkle was one of the "Forty-niners." He went West with the gold rush and came back in a few years. There is no doubting the fact that he had money. In the family it was said he brought it home in an oak chest and that he had hidden it where no one could find it. He was then middle aged. He made frequent trips to New York, according to family tradition, taking gold dust with him and bringing back coin.

In 1861 he died. There was no trace of the chest that many had seen and there was no wealth. The farm was turned over, the cellar dug up, and in time the house torn down. Since then every generation of Van Winkles has taken a hand at the search. It never has been abandoned. It is believed the treasure ranged from $50,000 to $200,000 in value.

William A. Conner, of Hillside avenue, left last week for a short trip to Europe. Mrs. Conner is visiting friends in Michigan during his absence.

HARVARD ELEVEN LOSES TWO STARS.

Harvard will go into her gridiron battles next fall minus two of her star players, Dick Lewis and "Dodo" Minot. These two men failed to pass their June examinations, and, according to a statement issued by Capt. Fisher, of the eleven, yesterday, will not return to college in the fall, at least not in time to be of assistance to the football team. Lewis played left end on the 'varsity last fall, while Minot, who was formerly selected by Walter Camp as all-American fullback, played at right guard last season. Both men have continually been under the ban at the college office on account of scholarship difficulties since their entry into the university. This defection leaves Harvard with but two veterans on the line, Capt. Bob Fisher, guard, and Bud Smith, end.

RUTGERS IMPROVES ITS FOOTBALL FIELD.

In preparation for the biggest and most successful football season Rutgers has enjoyed in years, Neilson Field is being improved and the seating capacity increased almost three times. The work on the new stands is progressing nicely, and when Howard Gargan calls the football men together for the first time early in September, it is expected that everything will be completed.

According to present plans a new bleacher will also be erected on the George street side, and a parking place for automobiles will also be provided for on that side. A new bleacher is also in course of erection on the College avenue side.

An entrance to Neilson Field from George street will also be provided, it is said.

WILL SPEND $180,000 FOR SOMERSET ROADS.

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders reached the high water mark with its annual tax budgets at the monthly meeting held in the courthouse at Somerville, Tuesday afternoon by appropriating $180,000 for county expenses, including bridge and road building for the coming fiscal year. In order to raise this amount and keep within the lawful rate of taxation it will be necessary to increase the ratables throughout the county. This is a matter that the County Tax Board will have to pass upon.

The appropriation for bridge building alone is $55,100, which is greatly in excess of any annual appropriation for bridges in the county in many years.

The board appropriated $1,800 toward the construction of a bridge which James B. Duke has taken in hand on the South Somerville road. The board also awarded a contract for the construction of a concrete arch bridge to replace the old wooden bridge over Peters Brook, at the East High street entrance to the borough.

LEADERLESS MEETING AT PARK AVE. CHURCH

The Sunday school of the Park Avenue Baptist church had charge of the mid-summer prayer meeting of the church last night and the entire affair proved to be most interesting and beneficial. Despite the fact that there was no leader, the meeting did not drag for the program was so well arranged by George E. Hall, superintendent of the school that everyone knew exactly what to do. Many of those present took part but no announcements were made. The subject of the evening was "Are we entirely thankful?" and slips containing questions upon this question were passed around the congregation in palm leaf fans.

The singing during the evening was led by an orchestra, composed of the Misses Arlene and Marjorie Brown and Evelyn Berg, violins, Dr. J. F. Berg, cello, Whitney Frazee, cornet, Elmer Wheeler, flute, and Miss Mary Clark, piano. Mrs. Ada Cumming and Miss Florence G. Hawkins sang a duet, "Sweet Peace," and two quartet selections, "Somebody" and "Share Your Blessings," were sung by Mrs. Ada Cumming, Miss Florence Hawkins, W. S. Lowry and D. M. Runyon.

At the close of the meeting the members of the congregation were pleasantly surprised when lemonade and cake were served. After the refreshments a social was enjoyed and the affair was so successful that another meeting will be led by the Sunday school during this month.

CHARLES C. WHEELER DECLINES TO ACCEPT

A communication was received yesterday afternoon by the Republican committee of Somerset county from C. C. Wheeler, of North Plainfield Township, in which he declines the invitation of the committee to him to be a candidate on the Republican ticket for the General Assembly this fall. Mr. Wheeler thanked the committee for the honor which had been bestowed upon him in asking him to run but he did think that he could accept. The reason given by Mr. Wheeler for declining to serve as a candidate was that if he were elected, he could not give the necessary time to the office.

Continuing Mr. Wheeler said to the committee that he regarded the office of member of the General Assembly an important one and one which required much time and attention of the holder of the position. He did not feel that he sould give this necessary time to his duties as an Assemblyman.

The committee regretted the refusal of Mr. Wheeler to accept the candidacy as it believed him to be a strong candidate in so much that he has served in public office in the town ship for several years and has always fulfilled his positions in an able manner. The committee will reconvene within a short time to select another candidate for the primary elections.

Glory.

"Oh, I had such a glorious dream last night," said Mrs. Wattleson, with a pathetic little sigh, "How lovely it would be if dreams could ever come true."

"Sometimes they do. What did you dream?"

"Oh, it was too splendid to ever come true. There's no use telling it."

"I suppose you dreamed that your husband had done some wonderful thing to make him rich and famous all over the world, and that you, of course, shared in the honors bestowed upon him."

"It was much more glorious than that. I dreamed that I saw an item in one of the papers which said: 'Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wattleson sailed on the Lusitania yesterday for England, where they will attend the coronation.' I could see it just as plainly as if I held the paper before me now."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Farewell Reception.

Rev. J. E. Duerschner will preach his last sermon as pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church on Sunday and on Monday he will leave for Troy, N. Y., where he has accepted another pastorate. The local congregation will meet a week from Sunday to consider the question of a new pastor. A reception was held at the church last night in honor of Mr. Duerschner and his family who are soon to leave here.

A Sewing-Room Item.

Have you ever thought that the joint at the treadle and the shaft of the large wheel needs oiling as well as the other parts of the machine? When you seem to be having difficulty try the oiling of these parts and see if you do not succeed in making it run perfectly smooth. Oil is needed wherever friction exists, as oil every joint in the workings.

J. D. Loizeaux, of this city, addressed the children at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home last evening, taking for his subject the "Floating Logs on the Kennebec." A large audience greeted the speaker and they were intensly interested in the talk given them. Tonight the Christian Endeavor Society of the Methodist church will have charge of the meeting at the Home.

A TOLAL LOSS

pear that Middlekauff acquired 861,562½ shares of the capital stock of the National Mining and Leasing Company also that he asquired $127,500 in bonds and that the company was indebted to him on other obligations to the amount of $272,066.67 which last amount (as appears by the last annual financial statement) was reduced by payment on account to the sum of $187,552.42, in other words Middlekauff paid debts to himself of $85,514.25 last year, but no such credit appears on the books of the company nor does there appear to be any entry of the debts, except on the minutes of the company; it also appears that in addition to the stock held by him in the National Mining and Leasing Company, he held or controlled stock in the subsidiary companies, herein before mentioned, to the amount of 1,355,000 shares; how much of this stock he disposed of this committe has no way of ascertaining as the National Mining and Leasing Company is not in possession of the stock books of the subsidiary companies.

It also appears that the companies known as the Joplin Reduction Company and the Kathleen Mining Company in which the National Mining & Leasing Company had a stock interest are out of business and have been for the past two years and the interest held by this company a total loss. It also appears that during the four years of the existence of the National Mining & Leasing Company dividends were paid to the amount of $38,725 and that Middlekauff's expense account as charged to the company amounted to the sum of $31,205.65, during the same period. This committee has endeavored through correspondence to ascertain what properties were owned by the company and their present value and it would appear that the only real asset is an 80 acre tract of mineral land in Boon county, State of Arkansas, of doubtful value and which would not exceed $1,500, in all probability upon which there is a balance due on a vendor's lien of $97.73.

The properties of the Window Mountain Copper Mining Company and the Jersey Bell Copper Mining Company, were acquired from the locators of the claims by Middlekauff and after acquiring these properties he was supposed to do all the required assessment work, but information received from those who had the local management of these companies, state that Middlekauff did not keep his agreements with them and that no work of any consequence was done, the same can be said of the Wyoming Oil & Development Company, a letter from the Deputy County Clerk of Converse county, Wyoming, states "that the people who located and sold these claims, were frauds, that the land had no prospects whatever for oil, and that those who should try to sell stocks on the strength of these claims, should be prosecuted for fraud."

The committee regret to report that they cannot reach any other conclusion from an examination of the minutes of the various director's meetings and the books and papers together with the correspondence in their possession that the stocks and bondholders must expect a total loss on what property that may be claimed by the National Mining & Leasing Co., it being of such small value that it would not pay the cost of the legal expenses in recovering the same.

The Investigating Committee of the stockholders and bondholders of the National Mining & Leasing Company.

PUBLIC SHOULD DEMAND TO SEE CREDENTIALS.

Trenton, Aug. 10.——Measures to prevent impostors impersonating employes of the State Board of Health were considered at Tuesday's meeting of that body. The only remedy that could be thought of was to impress on the public that officers of the State board are always provided with proper credentials showing their authority.

It is suggested by the board that these credentials, consisting of a properly signed card or a badge, should be demanded, wherever there appears to be doubt as to whether a man is traveling under false colors.

Several recent cases of impostors were called to the attention of the board. One of these was at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove, where two men, representing themselves to be inspectors of the department, called upon various hotel proprietors asking permission to examine their store-rooms. Ostensibly their purpose was to see whether the laws were being enforced.

In one or two cases the men found oleomargarine in the hotel store-rooms. They asked the proprietors if they did not know its use was prohibited by law. After frightening the proprietors it was the practice of the men to suggest that the matter might be "fixed up" by a payment of money.

CHILD MARRIAGE HAS DIVORCE SUIT SEQUEL.

Paterson, Aug. 10.—After ten years of separation, Adolph Borman, who was nineteen years old when he married fifteen-year-old Esther Sopson, June 19, 1900, has sued for a divorce. The couple lived together only a few weeks. The husband charges desertion.

Vice-Chancellor Stevenson heard testimony in the suit yesterday. Mrs. Borman asserted she had not deserted her young husband, declaring he had refused to live with her and her mother. The latter testified along similar lines.

YOUNG GIRLS MISSING; SCOLDED BY PARENTS.

Passaic, Aug. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. William Beyenderg, of this city, are alarmed over the disappearance of their daughters, Catherine and Wilhelmina, eighteen and sixteen years old respecitvely, who have been missing since Saturday morning.

The young women are believed to have gone away because their parents reprimanded them for receiving the attentions of Hanes Parish, twenty-eight years old, of 95 Sherman street, and Otto Hartman, thirty-two years old, of 97 Sherman street.

The young women left home on Saturday morning, apparently bound for the Budd Silk Mill, Paterson, in the office of which they were employed.

The parents visited the boarding-house of Parisch and Hartmen yesterday, but the young men said they knew nothing of the whereabouts of the girls.

The authorities here sent an appeal to the police of 250 cities asking them to help find the young women.

BULLIED THE CLUB

A London Duelist Who Forced His Way Into Brooks'.

VETOED HIS OWN REJECTION.

After Having Been Balloted For and Unanimously Blackballed He Made Every Member Deny His Vote and Then Declared Himself Elected.

It was a witty bishop who once defined a club as a place "where women cease from troubling and the weary are at rest." Another amusing definition was that given by George Augustus Sala. "A club," said he, "is a weapon used by savages to keep the white woman at a distance." Nowadays, however, as Ralph Nevill remarks in his book, "London Clubs," things are different. "Within the last twenty-five years or so the spirit of London club life has entirely changed The old fashioned clubman, whose whole life was bound up with one or other of these institutions, is now practically extinct."

Perhaps the most striking story which Mr. Nevill tells regarding Brooks' club is that concerning the famous duelist, George Robert Fitzgerald, who was executed for murder in 1786. No first class London club would admit him. His name does not appear in the club list, though he must in a sort of way be regarded as having belonged to the club. He was, however, in it only once, though it was his boast that he had been unanimously chosen a member.

Owing to Fitzgerald's well known dueling propensities no first class London club would admit him. Nevertheless he got Admiral Keith Stewart, who knew that he must fight Fitzgerald or comply, to propose him for Brooks'.

Accordingly the duelist went with the admiral on the day of the election to the clubhouse and waited downstairs while the ballot was in progress.

The result, a foregone conclusion, was unfavorable to the candidate, not even one white ball being among the black, the admiral having been among the first to deposit his. Mr. Brooks eventually went to tell Fitzgerald, who was waiting in the hall, that there was one black ball and that therefore his candidature had failed.

Thrusting aside Brooks, who protested that nonmembers might not enter the clubrooms, Fitzgerald flew upstairs and entered the room. Walking up to the fireplace, he thus addressed Admiral Stewart.

"So, my dear admiral, Mr. Brooks informs me that I have been elected three times."

"You have been balloted for, Mr. Fitzgerald, but I am sorry to say you have not been chosen," said Stewart.

"Well, then," replied the duelist, "did you blackball me?"

"My good sir," answered the admiral, "how could you suppose such a thing?"

"Oh, I supposed no such thing, my dear fellow. I only want to know who it was that dropped the black ball in by accident, as it were."

Fitzgerald now went up to each individual member and put the same question to all in turn, "Did you blackball me, sir?" until he made the round of the whole club, and in each case he received a reply similar to that of the admiral.

When he had finished his investigations he thus addressed the whole body: "You see, gentlemen, that as none of you have blackballed me I must be elected. It is Mr. Brooks who has made the mistake."

After this nothing more was said by the members, who determined to ignore the presence of their dangerous visitor, who drank three bottles of champagne in enforced silence, for no one would answer him when he spoke.

When he had gone it was agreed "that half a dozen stout constables should be in waiting the next evening to bear him off to the watch house if he attempted again to intrude, but Mr. Fitzgerald, aware probably of the reception he might get, never did."

Apropos of blackballing, Mr. Nevill mentions the greatest instance of blackballing probably ever known, which took place some years ago at a ladies' club, where one candidate received three more black balls than the number of members present—a case of excessive zeal indeed!

The practical joker is naturally not unknown in the most solemn of clubs, and "some irrepressible jokers have paid for their love of fun by having to resign their membership. One of them, whose escapades were notorious in London twenty years ago, sitting half asleep in a certain bohemian club, became annoyed at a very red headed waiter who kept buzzing about his chair. The sight of the fiery locks was eventually too much for this wild spirit, and, darting up and seizing the man, he emptied a bottle of black ink over his head before he could escape. The result, of course, was expulsion from the club, besides which very substantial compensation was rightly paid to the waiter."

Sauce.

"The impudence of that young brother of mine!" exclaimed Mrs. Nagger. "He just told me I was no chicken when I married you."

"Well," replied her unsympathetic husband, "that's true enough. You weren't a chicken, were you?"

"No; I was a goose."—Philadelphia Press.

THE "ALWAYS BUSY STORE"

Said a visiting Western merchant yesterday:

"I am surprised to see so much activity at this time of the year. No wonder Newark is called the 'Industrial City' and no wonder Bamberger's is known as the 'Always Busy Store.' Why, it looks more like Christmas here today than it does mid-August."

THE ALWAYS BUSY STORE.

There never has been a day, nor a week, nor a month that we have not lived up to the very letter of this title and we don't think the time will ever come when we shall have to relinquish it. This store knows no "off season"—no dull days—no periods of inactivity. Things are happening here every minute of the day—big WORTH WHILE THINGS that sharpen interest and cause a stir.

This has been the busiest summer in our history and we are going to keep the pot boiling, too.

Paint that Stays Painted

That has been my slogan for years. I aim to do the best possible painting—using only the best materials that the manufacturers can furnish, and employing the most skilled mechanics that can be procured. I stand back of every job I do, and when I am allowed to use my own judgment in regard to the best method of doing it, I will gladly make good any work that by any chance proves defective.

SWITCHED THEIR VOTES.

The Incident That Won Tom Corwin's First Fight For Congress.

"When I saw the oil painting of Tom Corwin in the treasury," said an Ohio man, "I could not but recall the story told in Corwin's old home of Lebanon of how he won his first election to congress. He was a young man and already noted as an orator, but he had a hard district and little encouragement for election. He was making his tour of the counties and one night stopped at the double cabin of a farmer known to be a very fervent advocate of political policies of the opposition. Corwin talked politics carefully with the old man and his sons before bedtime, but had little hope of winning a single vote in the household. In the morning the old man took Corwin outside and announced that every voter in the family would be for him on election day. This astonished and delighted Corwin, who could not help but ask why the sudden change of heart.

"The old man told how the opposition candidate had stopped at his house one night the week before and how the host and wife had watched the candidate go to bed. To their disgust, he actually put on a nightgown like those worn by a woman. This disgusted the rugged old pioneer. Then Corwin was told how the old farmer and his wife had watched him go to bed, and as he had not bothered about a nightie they determined he was not taken to frills. Corwin could see the humor of the incident, and in every succeeding speech he told that nightshirt story on the other candidate, holding him up to scorn. The result was a victory for Corwin, and he owed it all to that story of a shirt."—Washington Post.

CORE OF THE EARTH.

It May Be a Mass of Steel Some 5,580 Miles In Diameter.

Various conjectures have been made from time to time by geologists as to the possible condition of the center of the earth. One of the most popular impressions seems to be that the earth's center, or core, is a flaming furnace. At a meeting of the Seismological association at The Hague Professor Weichert asserted that his studies of the varying velocity of earthquake tremors passing through the interior of the globe have led him to the conclusion that the earth consists of a central core of iron or steel, about 5,580 miles in diameter, surrounded with a stony shell 930 miles in thickness. Between the outer solid rind and the inner layer of rock, covering the metallic core, he thinks there is a layer of liquid or plastic material, lying a little less than twenty miles below the surface of the earth.

Men sometimes dream of enormous wealth stored deep in the earth below the reach of miners, but experts now aver that there is little or no ground to believe that any valuable metallic deposits lie very deep in the earth's crust regardless of Professor Weichert's beliefs to the contrary. Such deposits, it is said, are made by underground waters, and owing to the pressure on the rocks at great depths the waters are confined to a shell near the surface. With few exceptions ore deposits become too lean to repay working below 3,000 feet. Nine mines in ten, taking the world as a whole, are poorer in the second thousand feet than in the first thousand, and poorer yet in the third thousand than in the second.—New York World.

To Stop Hiccoughs.

Simple cases of hiccough are often relieved by such measures as sucking ice or taking salt and vinegar, says the New York Medical Journal. Pulling the tongue forward and holding it for some time is an effective procedure. Sometimes obstinate hiccough is relieved when the patient is strong by having him hang with the arms extended and grasping some beam or pole, so that his feet do not touch the floor. With all the abdominal muscles tense, have him hold his breath as long as possible. Sneezing is very efficient in certain cases, since it is the exact opposite to hiccough, being a sudden expiratory act.

McSwiney's Gun.

Near Horn Head, County Donegal, Ireland, there is a hole in the rocks called McSwiney's gun. It is on the seacoast and is said to have connection with a cavern. When the north wind blows and the sea is at half flood the wind and the waves enter the cavern and send up jets of water from the "gun" to a height of more than 100 feet. The jets of water are accompanied by explosions which may be heard for miles.

More Worry.

"I didn't know you admired that official."

"I don't," replied the political manager.

"Then why do you insist on crediting him with a presidential boom?"

"Merely to make his life harder by giving him something more to worry about."—Exchange.

Be Slow to Indorse.

"A man should think before he speaks," said the prudent youth.

"Yes," replied Dustin Stax. "And he should think still harder before he writes his name on the back of any sort of document."—Washington Star.

All Must Help.

A wise man who does not assist with his counsels, a rich man with his charity and a poor man with his labor are perfect nuisances in a commonwealth.—Swift.

CHATTANOOGA

By Captain F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association

"Nice man, dat. Hab he got in trouble?"

"Nebber mind dat, uncle. Go in de house 'n wake up Missie Laura."

"Ain't got no key."

"Can't you wake up some one inside?"

"Why don' yo' wait till mornen?"

"Can't do dat no how. De message mus' be giben at once."

"Waal," said Daniel at last, "I do what I can fo' dat man; he berry fine gentleman ef he war po' white."

Mark followed the old man to the rear door of the basement. On the way a huge dog bounded at them, but seeing Daniel his fierceness ended in play. Daniel succeeded in waking a negro woman who slept within; the door was opened, and they stepped inside.

"Go tell Missie Laura a culled gal want to speak to her right off. Say she got message from de man what war hyar wid he little brudder," said Daniel.

"At dis time o' night?"

"Yas; de message mus' be delibered right away," said Mark. "Don' wake no one but Missie Laura. Tread sofy."

The woman lighted a candle and went off with it grumbling, leaving Mark and Daniel in the dark. They waited for perhaps ten minutes, when they heard steps and saw the light returning. The negro woman was followed by Laura Fain, dressed in a wrapper. She knew Mark from the moment she saw him, but pretended only to see a negro girl.

"Hab message fo' yo', Missie Laura, but cain't tell it to yo' widout dese niggers git away."

"Come with me."

She took the candle and led the way to the dining room above, leaving the two colored people below. Then she turned to Mark:

"Why in heaven's name did you come back here?"

"It was a choice between life and death. I escaped this evening from Chattanooga, where I was to be hanged tomorrow morning. Every place of concealment on this side of the river will be entered and searched. If concealed in this house, occupied by a family of white people and Confederates, I may not be found. Otherwise my recapture is certain."

She thought a moment, rubbing her palms together, as was her habit when excited. Then she called to the servants below:

"Go to bed, Uncle Daniel, and you, too, auntie. This girl is worn out with traveling, and I am going to fix a place for her to sleep."

Then turning to Mark she motioned him to follow her.

They went up two flights of stairs, stepping on tiptoe, and at last reached a landing from which a pair of steps led to a trap door.

"Go up there," she whispered.

Mark climbed the stairs, pushed the trap open and entered the inclosure of the roof. Before lowering the door he looked back to whisper a "God bless you," but all was dark. Laura had gone.

CHAPTER X.

MARK'S KEEPER.

MARK stood for a moment looking about him. There were dormer windows, which let in the moonlight so that he could distinctly see everything in the room. Some trunks were piled in one corner, and in another some furniture. Among the latter he noticed a lounge with threadbare upholstery, and taking it in his arms, carried it, treading softly, to one of the windows at the front of the house. The room was very hot, and he raised the sash, moving it with great care, so as not to make any sound. Then he sat down on the lounge, and looking out of the window began to meditate on his situation.

While thus engaged he heard a light tap at the trap door. Opening it he saw a bundle extended by the fair hand of his preserver. He took it, and letting down the trap—Miss Fain did not utter a word—he unrolled it. There were complete suits of under and outer garments, the property of Miss Fain's brother.

The getting off of his damp garments and donning snow white linen was a grateful sensation to Mark. Having put on what he needed for the night he laid himself down on the lounge. From his window he could see the Tennessee rolling in the moonlight half a mile away. He thought how much more comfortable he was in his dry clothes than he had been floating in the water. Then he heard the bark of hounds. They were on the water's edge, and he knew by the sounds that they were endeavoring to pick up the scent of his tracks.

"Bark on," he said. "When I leave this I'll take with me something to die with. I'll not be taken alive, and if I meet you some of you shall roll over."

Then there came an inexpressible gratitude. He felt thankful to Souri, thankful to Jakey, thankful to Laura Fain, thankful to his God. There was something especially engaging in Miss Fain's efforts on his behalf, inasmuch as she regarded him an enemy to her country. He thought of Souri in prison waiting for old Triggs to discover her deception. What would they do to her? And Jakey? Would they injure a mere boy? He vowed that if he should escape and outlive the war he would find out just what had happened, and if either had been harshly treated he would have his revenge.

Musing he fell asleep, but he soon awoke. It was past midnight—the day of his execution. He shuddered.

He tried to go to sleep again, but the dreadful fate which would have been his had not Souri saved him, and on the very last evening before his intended execution, got into his head, and he could not drive it out. And now, were not men and hounds hunting him for miles around, to drag him back to Chattanooga to that dreadful jailyard, the scaffold, the rope, the black cap?

And Laura Fain, suppose she should weaken; suppose she should, after all, consider it her duty to give him up; suppose a demand should be made to search the house; suppose—a thousand suppositions chased each other through his excited brain.

He lay tossing till just before dawn, when he again fell into a troubled slumber.

He was awakened by a squadron of cavalry passing along the road. The sun had not yet risen, but it was light. He could look right down on them, though they could not see him. They trotted along slowly, all looking worn and sleepy. They were evidently the men who had passed the night before, and were going back from an unsuccessful hunt. Mark noticed the different positions many of them took in order to rest in their saddles. The sight took him back to his own troop, and he longed to be in the stirrups again with them.

An officer, followed by two men, came riding back. Maybe they were coming to the house. They stopped at the gate. One of the men rode forward, dismounted and opened it. The officer entered and rode up to the front door.

Mark's heart seemed to stop beating.

He could not see what was going on below so close under his window, but presently heard the officer talking to some one on the veranda.

"A Federal spy escaped last night from Chattanooga, madam. He was in the disguise of a negro girl." There was something more which was unintelligible.

Then Mark heard the word "no" spoken in a voice which he thought was Mrs. Fain's.

"He was tracked to the river, which he must have crossed. He probably landed a mile or two below Chattanooga, and we believe he is hiding somewhere within a few miles of this place."

"You are welcome to"— Mark could not hear to what the officer was welcome, but he surmised it was to search the house.

"What time did you go to bed?"

The reply was inaudible.

"You saw nothing till then?"

"No, sir."

"And everything was shut up at ten o'clock."

"Yes, sir."

"You are good Confederates, I reckon."

"Yes, sir; my son"— Mark could not hear the rest, except the word "army."

"Well, with your permission, madam, we'll search"— The rest was lost. Indeed Mark was too terror stricken to listen with due care. He supposed the house would be ransacked.

In a moment his terror was turned to a delicious sense of relief. The officer, after calling to the men at the gate, rode around to the negro quarters.

But there was a danger in the search which would follow in the cabins. Daniel would remember the negro girl he had let in the night before, and would surmise that she was the person the men were looking for. Would Daniel betray him? He thought not. Daniel gave no hint, for presently Mark saw the trio ride away to join the troop.

Laura Fain had spent a night no more comfortable than Mark. The responsibility of a human life weighed upon her heavily. At one moment she would picture Mark's face, pale, haggard, despairing, as he would be dragged from his hiding place. The next she was conscience stricken at the part she was playing in shielding an enemy of her cause—the cause of her brother and her lover. She heard the dogs as Mark had heard them on the river bank, and lay shivering till the baying died away in the distance. Then in the morning she saw the cavalry go by; the officer come up and talk with her mother, whom he asked the negroes to call from her bed that he might question her about the presence of the spy. Laura got up herself and stood at the landing, listening breathless while they talked. When the man rode away she muttered a fervent "Thank God!"

As the morning brightened and it was time to rise, her fears were less intense, and she began to think of how she should keep her prisoner concealed from the rest of the household. How should she feed him? When her maid came up she told her that she would take her breakfast in her room, but surprised the girl by the large quantity of food she wanted brought to her. When the breakfast came, Laura was up and dressed. She directed the girl to set it on a table and then sent her to the stable with a message to Daniel about her riding pony. Her maid having gone, Laura took up the breakfast and carried it to the trap.

Fearful Football.

Football had its enemies among the early Puritans in England. In 1583 one Philip Stubbes produced a work entitled "The Anatomie of Abuses," wherein there is a very fierce attack on football. The game was played with vigor in the sixteenth century: "Whosonever scapeth away the best goeth not scot free," writes the author, "but is either sore wounded, craised and bruised, so as he dyeth of it or else scapeth very hardlie, and no meruaile, for they have the sleights to meet one betwixt two, to dashe him against the harte with the elbowes, to hit him under the short ribs with their griped fists, and with their knees to catch him upon the hippes, and to pick him on the neck, with a hundred such murthering devices; and hereof groweth envie, malice, rancour, choler, hatred, displeasure, enmitie and what not els; and sometimes brawling, contention, quarrel picking, murther, homicide and great effusion of blood as experience teacheth."

The Puzzle Master.

To the present writer, who never got the hang of a single puzzle in all his life without help, Sam Lloyd was the most remarkable person in the world, for he invented 10,000 puzzles in more than half a century of diabolical activity. He began when he was six by scaring the cook with ventriloquial voices in the kitchen chimney and taking the rabbits out of the pockets of his mother's guests in the parlor. At ten he was a noted chess player and invented many chess problems. He studied to be an engineer, along with side dashes into painting and drawing, languages and mathematics. But his propensity to puzzle was too much for him. While still almost a youth he invented and drew a puzzle in fifteen minutes, printed the first edition at a cost of less than $5 and made $10,000. Who said he would have remained an engineer when he could make $10,000 in fifteen minutes?—American Magazine.

Cattle, Locusts and Railways.

In running railways in Brazil there are two difficulties to contend with which the European traveler does not know—cattle and locusts. The cattle cannot be kept off the track. Miles and miles of it are fenced in, and yet the cattle manage to force their way through and then cannot get out. The cowcatcher is efficient, but not sufficiently so, as the trains are often derailed by an ox being caught either between the cowcatcher or cylinder and the rail or even between the locomotive and the truss of a bridge, but such accidents are hardly ever serious. Locusts are less common, but occasionally travel along in clouds. When they come to earth they may pile up to a foot deep in the cuttings, and, of course, the locomotives will skid along uselessly. This happens but infrequently.—Cassier's Magazine.

Bridges In Korea.

Some idea of the delights of traveling in Korea is given by the following description by a traveler of the "bridges" in that country: A first class bridge in Korea is simply an assortment of planks nailed together. These are scarce. A second class bridge is a series of isolated stones, from one to another of which the visitor may jump. A third class bridge, much the commonest variety, is invisible, its position being indicated by a couple of posts, one on each side of the river. They mean that you may safely wade across, as the water will probably not go much above your chest.

Creation of a Knight.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have been various. The principal were a box on the ear and a stroke with a sword on the shoulder. John of Salisbury tells us the blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans. By this it was that William the Conqueror conferred the honor of knighthood on his son Henry. It was afterward changed into a blow with the flat of the sword on the shoulder of the knight.

Hard to Find Things.

He—Where are my collars, dear?

She—I don't really know.

"Well, yesterday I couldn't find my shirts; this morning my ties were missing; now I can't find my collars. The only place I know worse than my bureau is my card index system!"—Yonkers Statesman.

Well, Rather.

"I think it is disgraceful to be enormously rich."

"Oh, so do I. I was brought up to think that way. But say"—

"Well?"

"Don't you wish once in awhile that you weren't so blamed respectable?"—Toledo Blade.

Well Answered.

An American woman who had been told by a Britisher that America was deficient in antiquities and curiosities remarked: "The antiquities will come. As for our curiosities, we import them."

Cautious.

Dr. Bill (meeting former patient)—Ah, good morning, Mr. Jones! How are you feeling this morning? Mr. Jones—Doctor, does it cost anything if I tell you?

A Work of Genius.

An ideally brief and delightful advertisement comes from a London shop window. It runs: "Our trousers 5 shillings a leg. All seats free."

The independence and liberty you possess are the work of common dangers, sufferings and successes.—Washington.

PHYSICAL ENDURANCE.

Athletes, as a Rule, Reach the Zenith of Their Powers Early.

In athletic sports physical endurance plays the most important part. This is particularly noticeable in the Marathon races. In boxing, wrestling and rowing ability to stand the tremendous strain on the physical powers is essential.

But every athlete has his physical limitations. He reaches the zenith of his powers early and then gradually declines. A victorious Marathon runner seldom repeats his success, for he has impaired his endurance by his exertions, although he does not think so until he meets with defeat the second time he tries for first prize.

A boxer, as a rule, cannot long remain a champion in any class, although a twelve year record has been made by exceptional men. A prominent wrestler said recently that he hoped to remain in the game five years, but could not exceed that limit and still be a topnotcher.

Oarsmen win their greatest victories in the first few years of their career. The baseball player holds out well because the strain on him is less violent than on most athletes and he gets needful rest. Pitchers, however, are an exception, and some hold out for many years, but most of them do not.—Boston Globe.

LAUGH AND GET FINED.

That Seems to Be a Common Occurrence in Germany.

English law is occasionally subject to criticism, but for real comedy we are a long way behind Germany.

In Berlin recently an ironworker was sent to prison for a week because he laughed. Going along the street he saw a merrymaker being chased by a particularly stout policeman, and the sight tickled him. He was promptly haled before the court for scandal.

Another man attempted to get into a moving train and fractured his leg. After six months in the hospital he was discharged, cured, when the state railway department at once prosecuted him for breaking their regulations. The law and leg breaker was fined $1.25.

Stepping into an omnibus a man trod on the foot of a lady, who was so annoyed that she said he walked like a hen. She was fined $5 for using this term of reproach.

Claire Waldoff, the Berlin singer, outwitted the police, however. She was warned that if she sang any of her songs on Easter Sunday there would be trouble. But the announcement was made that Claire Waldoff would positively appear. She did. So did the police. And she sang—the German national anthem!

The promised prosecution did not take place.—London Answers.

Curbing the Kickers.

One of the St. Louis country clubs has an unwritten rule that whenever a member kicks for something he thinks the club ought to have it is at once put in at his expense. Not long ago a member complained of the cream. "The club ought to have a couple of fine cows, of its own," he growled. That ended the incident for the time being, but the first of the month he found the following item on his bill:

Two Jersey cows..... $130

The result of this policy is one of the most complete country clubs in the Mississippi valley, but the members are growing more and more cautious about kicking, and acquisitions are nothing like so common as they formerly were.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The New York Shave.

I think that the New Yorker's shave is symptomatic of the whole rate of life in New York. It is, if you will, luxurious, but you have to allow twenty minutes out of your day for it. In London I never allow more than five minutes. Here I lie down in a chair and say: "I'm in a hurry. Be as quick as you can, please." My barber surveys me with no look of interest and goes to talk for five minutes to the lady manicurist. When he returns I say from my recumbent position, "I'm in a great hurry." He says, "Yep?" interrogatorily as if I had given him a piece of quite uninteresting and dispassionate information. He goes to a mirror and for some moments examines a wart upon his cheek. Eventually he shaves me.—Atlantic.

True Eloquence.

True eloquence, indeed, does not consist in speech. It cannot be brought from far. Labor and learning may toil for it, but they will toil in vain. Words and phrases may be marshaled in every way, but they cannot compass it. It must consist in the man, in the subject and in the occasion. Affected passion, intense expression, the pomp of declamation, all may inspire to it. They cannot reach it. It comes, if it comes at all, like the outbreaking of a fountain from the earth or the bursting forth of volcanic fires with spontaneous, original, native force.—Webster.

Just Once.

"But Griggs thinks you are his best friend. If you lure him into making this hopeless investment he surely will never have anything more to do with you."

"That's all right. I've never expected to use him more than once."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Relief.

Gabber—You ought to meet Smith. Awfully clever imitator! He can take off anybody. Tottie (wearily)—I wish he were here now.—Variety Life.

ORGANIZE TO COMBAT RULE BY COMMISSION.

Paterson, Aug. 10.—For the purpose of forming an organization to fight to retain the present form of government in this city and combat persons interested in commission rule local citizens met Tuesday night in the rooms of the Paterson Grocers' Association and discussed plans for the proposed special election under the Walsh law.

The meeting was presided over by Joseph W. Cleveland . Among the speakers were: George Wurts, former Secretary of State and editor of a local newspaper; William B. Gourley; former Mayor Nathan Barnert; William A. Arnold; former Senator John Hinciiffe, father of the present form of government in Paterson; Wayne Dumont; Thomas W. Randall, Dr. A. R. Ellis and Rev. A. H. Lucas.

Mr. Gourley was the principle speaker. After discussing at some length how honestly the affairs of the city had been handled under the guidance of Mayor Andrew F. McBride, Mr. Gourley declared in most emphatic terms that Paterson is the best-governed city in the United States. Speaking of the Walsh law, he said:

"The Walsh bill is the greatest piece of machinery organized for the purpose of graft ever put on the statute books.

"It has given commissioners with no one to audit their books, no one to check their actions, no Mayor to veto their acts.

"We, as American citizens, have failed ignominiously in city government. I have only my opinion; therefore, I must express it. I am responsible for it, and I say today that we have the finest system of government of any city in the United States."

Mr. Hinchliffe, during the course of his remarks, declared:

"There is no city in this State governed so well as Paterson. Governor Wilson never said anything against ous system of government. He spoke in every city in the State on the Walsh form, but would not come here. I think he would have favored ours if he had investigated it."

The meeting was well attended, in the audience being many of the city officials.

FIXES HIS DATE OF DEATH.

Bristol, Tenn., Aug. 10.—"I will die in twenty-five days," is the startling declaration made yesterday by John Vesti, a soldier of the Confederacy, residing at Meadow View, in Washington county, Va. This declaration was made following the digging of his grave several days ago.

He has had the opening lined with cement and his request is that he be buried without a coffin, the bare grave being to his liking. The grave was made beside that of Vesti's first wife. Vesti believes he will die September 3, although he is apparently in usual health. He is sixty-eight years old.

WOMEN LOST NEAR HOME.

Rockaway, Aug. 10.—Covered with scratches and exhausted by their wanderings, Mrs. William J. Pengilly and Mrs. William Barnes, of Squirreltown, are recovering from their experiences. They were lost in a swamp, although but a short distance from their homes.

The women had entered the swamp to pick huckleberries, and on entering the high bushes lost their sense of direction. They tramped around in a cirice, never very far from home; before their cries were heard by William Black, who directed them.

YORK TRI-STATE CLUB SIGNS LOUIS SLOCUM

Louis Slocum, the local phenomal box artist, who was recently signed by Connie Mack, of the Athletics, has been released from the World's champion team and has been signed by the York team of the Tri-State League. The deal with Connie Mack was consumated Tuesday by Manager Curtis Wiegand, of the York team, who has paid big money to strengthen that aggregation.

Slocum has not pitched for the Athletics but he was given a try-out last Sunday in a semi-pro game in which he was banged hard. It is not known whether Mack released him as n. g. or whether the foxy manager of the Athletics still has tabs on the youngster and will keep him preserved for delivery in a few years to the big league team. Oldham was secured by the York management from the Philadelphia Nationals at the same time that Slocum was signed.

JOE HARTER SLUMPS IN BATTING AVERAGE

Joe Harter took a big slump in his batting for the Pets this week, his average falling from .423 to .390. This decline in hitting has been due largely to his injured knee, which bothered him considerably last Saturday, when he made but one safe clout in five trips to the plate. He stills leads the team in the number of runs with 10 tallies to his credit. Cosgrove is the chief long distance swatter and Harter is only one base behind him. Eddie Stallings has shown the greatest speed on the bases with ten pilfered sacks as his record for nine games.

Nelson has maintained a clean fielding average and has played in every game so far. Driscoll improved greatly in his batting last Saturday and surrpised the fans by making 3 hits out of 4 times up. Eddie Stallings also took a big leap toward the top position of the hit artists while Brit Martin came down the ladder.

The averages to date are as follows:

	G.	AB.	R.	H.	F'ld.	Bat.
Harter, ss-cf.	8	31	10	12	.869	.390
George, ss ...	3	9	0	3	.869	.333

BASEBALL.

Consolation thought for today—the Plainfield Elks didn't get beat anyway.

Was the Brooklyn lodge afraid of its reputation? Hardly, for it didn't have any rep to lose after 885 trimmed the 22 team so decisively last month.

Captain Harold Schenck, of the Trinity Reformed team, says that he is not exactly discouraged with his aggregation, but, nevertheless, he would like to see a few games won just to change the monotony of the thing.

A few more good hitting days for Driscoll like last Saturday and the handy first baseman of the Pets will be up with the leading baters of the team.

Eddie Stallings is certainly there as a base runner for he has pilfered ten sacks in the nine games in which he has played. Eddie is not as speedy a runner as Cosgrove, but he has the ability on the larceny act anyway and gets there just the same .

Walter Nelson is to be congratulated on his clean fielding record in eleven games for the Pets. He has caught in all the games but one and has not made an error yet.

ADAMS BOYS TRAIN IN THEIR BACK YARD

Platt and Ben Adams, former members of the local Y. M. C. baseball nine, do their training in the back yard of their home in Newark. They very rarely go up to the club's beautiful quarters at Travers Island, satisfied with their own grounds, where they can take a good rest after they have jumped around all day.

Platt is Ben's tutor and manager, if the big fellow's conversation denotes same. He said yesterday he would not allow Ben to do any more hard work until next spring, when he takes a wallop at the indoor championships. He will enter all standing high jump events.

Ben Adams measures 6 feet 1½ inches and weighs about 155 pounds. Platt is a fraction of an inch taller. Ben and William are in business together in their home town, but Platt works in the big city.

Leaving aside Platt for the moment, it is well at this point to state that next to his big brother, Ben is the finest standing high and broad jumper in the business. And he can do lots of other things in the athletic line.

In competition but four years—Ben is only twenty-one—he has mastered the art of jumping second to none. He can make five feet in the standing high; 33 feet in the triple; 10 feet in the standing broad, and 21 feet in the running broad jumps, and 44 to 45 feet in the hop, step and jump.

Young Ben won the junior national standing high jump last year, doing five feet, and three years ago tied Diller, of the Brooklyn Central Y. M. C. A., for first place in the very same event at the seniors. That was his really first trip for big honors. The next two years found Ben battling his brother Platt for firs honors, only to be beaten by inches on each occasion.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

After six years of supremacy, Frederick B. Alexander and Harold H. Hackett, the national and State lawn tennis doubles champions yielded to the slashing racquet work of Theodore Pell and Lyle . Mahn in straight sets to the score of 6-4, 6-love, yesterday in the fourth round of the New York State championship tournament on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club, at Bay Ridge. It was a case of the champions being outplayed. The points, which tallied 64 to 45, fail to give an adequate idea of the closeness of the match.

George A. Chisholm made a decided hit as a hurdler in his only performance in England. The form he displayed seemed to greatly please the English enthusiasts. One well-known sportsman is quoted as having said that the ease and grace with which the Yale athlete topped the timbers was the nearest approach to the great Alvin Kraenzlein he had ever seen, and this includes th efamous Olympic hurdlers of 1908.

The big stallion Andalusia, Jr., owned by W. S. Garrison, of Roadstown, N. J., fell into the fence and was killed in the third heat of the 2:16 pacing race of the Lake Erie circuit race at Titusville. Mr. Garrison, who was driving, was thrown but escaped injury. The stallion was valued at $2,500.

RETURNS DAVIS OUTING TICKETS IN TART REPLY.

Jersey City, Aug. 10.—Charles W. Ostrom, a local lawyer, yesterday, sent to County Collector Stephen M. Egan, treasurer of the Robert Davis Association outing committee, a tart lettter, in which he denounces the action of the association in continuing under the banner of the late Robert Davis, and continuing as its officers men like Egan, himself and William E. Smith, the courthouse commissioners, who figured in recent disclosures.

Ostrom wrote that he is an organization Democrat of the Wilson school and deplores conditions which exist in the Democratic party and in the management of public affairs in Hudson county. He declares emphatically that he will support Felix E. Tumulty for sheriff, to whom he credits responsibility for the expose of corruption in Hudson. The letter is in reply to a request that he purchase a ticket for the Davis Association outing.

DIVORCED FIVE YEARS, ALLEGES ABANDONMENT.

Jersey City, Aug. 10.—Arrested on a charge of abandonment by a woman he divorced five years ago, Isreal Applegate a carpenter of 34 Third street, Weehawken, was discharged in the Second Criminal Court Tuesday by Judge John Wahl Queen. The woman still calls herself Mrs. Applegate and lives at 90 Montgomery street with her eleven-year-old daughter.

Monday she went to Poormaster Hewitt, of Jersey City, and told him that her husband would not supoprt her. In court Applegate established the fact that he had secured an absolute divorce from the woman in the Jersey City Chancery Court five years ago and that the woman was given custody of the child.

S. P. C. A. WORK

Miss Margaret R. Bonnell Wins Prize in Contest For Best Essay.

TELLS WHAT SOCIETY IS DOING.

Thirty Young People Submit Essays Showing Progress Made in Care of Dumb Animals.

The Plainfield Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals offered a $5 prize this year to the pupil of the Plainfield High School who should write the best essay on the work of the society. There were at least thirty young people who entered the contest and the majority of the essays were of unusual merit. After very careful consideration, the society, of which Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen is the agent, decided to award the honors to Miss Margaret R. Bonnell, of East Front street, her subject being: "The Work of the S. P. C. A." The prize has been given to Miss Bonnell, who has been highly complimented for the thoughts expressed. The essay follows:

"The work of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals can not be overestimated. It has so aroused public sentiment that acts of brutality which were common on the business streets of New York city forty years ago would not now be tolerated for a moment, and the offender might be mobbed before an officer of the society could be summoned.

"There are people whose only fear is the law and for these the S. P. C. A. has prosecuting attorneys and agents all over the country, who bring the wrong-doers to justice and provide for the relief of the mistreated animals, humanely killing them if necessary. The passage of several laws making "docking" a misdemeanor has been secured.

"The agents also visit bazars where horses and mules are offered for sale, and in Philadelphia, in one year, 508 aged, broken down, and suffering horses were put out of their misery. But the society believes that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.' It tries to appeal to men's sympathies through placards giving a few simple rules for the care and comfort of horses. These placards are posted in livery stables, fire houses and police department stables. Hundreds of copies of 'Black Beauty' and 'The Horse's Prayer' are distributed yearly among cabmen and others who work with horses.

"In a large Western city, poor owners of horses were given a Christmas dinner for the dumb servants and along with the large sack of oats went a warm horse blanket and a copy of 'Black Beauty.' A prize of $500 is now offered by the S. P. C. A. of New York for the best shoe or device to keep horses from slipping on paved streets. The competition is open to everyone without restriction. A typewritten description must accompany each model or drawing of a design. Every year a work-horse parade is held in many large cities. In New York, last year, Mrs. Russel Sage was present, awarding the prizes, given for the best-cared-for and strongest horses. Public Service departments, truck drivers and collectors of refuse, all contribute to the various classes. Watering stations were used in Boston last summer, each station tended by a man employed by the society. The stations were furnished with buckets and the use of a city hydrant.

"Horses are not the only dumb things which the S. P. C. A. befriends. For instance, in New York many "Bide-a-wee Homes" are open to receive friendless dogs and cats. A lady whom I know heard a cat howling piteously in a deserted store. A telephone call brought an employe of the society, armed with a large covered basket. He got the key to the building and rescued the cat. Animals may be 'adopted' from these Homes into any family where kind treatment is assured.

"The Society takes a deep interest in preserving bird life. In the official paper 'Our Dumb Animals,' vigorous editorials constantly protest against the killing of birds for their plumage and report on State laws affecting the traffic in feathers. This paper contains many interesting stories and observations of birds, illustrated by photographs from National Audubon Societies.

"The representatives of the S. P. C. A. are making a brave fight for decent transportation for cattle on their way to slaughterhouses, and for humane methods of slaughter. Several pages of a recent copy of 'Our Dumb Animals' are devoted to a protest against the opposition of Jews in regard to humane killing.

KNIGHT'S EXCURSION GREAT SUCCESS

The large number of excursionists who went to Asbury Park yesterday with the Knights of Columbus are enthusiastic today telling of the good time they had. This is true even of the eight who were left. It appears that the train being split into three sections for the return trip confused some and in this manner a misunderstanding caused the unfortunates to let the last section pull out without them. They returned on a regular train in time to prevent their friends or relatives and uneasiness over their absence.

The weather continued ideal throughout the day and gave the water just the right degree of temperature to making bathing a long to be remembered delight. Of course, there were a lot of smarting sunburned arms and shoulders and the cold cream market last night experienced a decided bull movement, but this unpleasantness was superficial and marring only to complexions, the joys of the shore being unconfined and unrestrained.

FAVORS PLAN TO LICENSE ALL CATS

At this season of the year when many families leave town for different periods of time, there is the need of exercising especial care regarding the care of cats and dogs. Oftentimes these animals are permitted to roam at will and frequently starve to death. Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, agent for the S. P. C. A., offers some timely advice on the subject. She suggests that in the case of young kittens or puppies the day old ones be put out of the way, except where they happen to be of some special breed, in this way a neighborhood is not over-ridden with the animals.

Mrs. VanHoesen says that she favors a plan whereby owners of cats should be taxed for the same as in the case of dogs, and she believes that the time is coming when the authorities will pass a law to that effect. In discussing the question, Mrs. VanHoesen says she is of the opinion that there is more need for putting a tax on cats for they outnumber dogs in nearly every community and it is now an established fact that they carry disease unless given great care. Persons owning cats which they want destroyed can either notify Mrs. VanHoesen or Mr. Kelderling, the dog catcher, and they will be put out of the way in a humane manner.

TALK OF THEODORE SHIRLEY FOR COUNCIL

Theodore J. Shirley, of the firm of Shirley & Johnston, is prominently mentioned as a candidate for councilman from the Fourth ward. He has not yet signified his willingness to engage in the contest, but his many friends are trying to persuade him to seek the nomination. Mr. Shirley has always been a Democrat and has taken a lively interest in local affairs, political and otherwise. J. P. Singer, of West Front street, has also been mentioned for the nomination, and his friends are doing everything possible in behalf of his candidacy.

Thus far there does not seem to be any lack of material for councilmanic honors in the Democratic party and there is every indication that by primary time there will be a number of candidates from which to make a selection. The committee from the Plainfield Democratic Club, in charge of plans for the outing September 6, will hold a meeting tonight.

PLAINFIELD EXCURSIONISTS ONLY TWENTY MINUTES LATE.

When the third section of the Knights of Columbus excursion pulled into the Asbury Park station last night, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clarke and their two children, Joseph Jr., and Helen, Mr. and Mrs. George Bowers and their son, George Jr., Mrs. James McDonough, her daughter, Margaret, and her niece and sister, all of this city, were among the late ones in arriving at the station and the train went away without them.

They took the next train and arrived in this city only twenty minutes after the excursionists. Herbert Reynolds was in the party, but on account of his wonderful ability as a sprinter was able to catch the third section just as it had pulled out.

Walter Stein, of Mountain avenue, has returned home after a pleasant vacation spent on Staten Island.

ENDEAVOR CAMP

Excellent Work Being Carried on For Boys at Scotch Plains.

URGENT APPEAL FOR HELP.

Christian Endeavor Societies of Union County Are Providing Healthful Recreation for City Boys.

Among the many fresh air camps that dot attractive places in New Jersey the newest is probably the boys' camp at Scotch Plains, established early in July by the Union County Christian Endeavor Union and known as Camp Endeavor. At present there are twenty-five boys in camp—twenty from New York City and five from Elizabeth. They are enjoying to the full all the pleasures of camp, under the wise direction and leadership of the superintendent, John Williams, a young man particularly adapted to the work.

Most of the money contributed for the cause has been given by the Christian Endeavor societies of the county, but some of the Sunday-schools and the Teachers' Club, of Elizabeth, have also given liberally. To date $592.28 has been received by the treasurer, Purdy F. Benedict, of Roselle, and there are additional pledges amounting to $164.50. Funds will be thankfully received and promptly acknowledged, as the money can be wisely and profitably used. Checks or money orders may be sent to Mr. Benedict, at Roselle. If friends of the American boy possessed of the proverbial boy appetite will contribute fresh vegetables from their gardens, the gifts will be most acceptable at camp. If it is inconvenient for friends to send such donations to the camp a postal card sent to John Williams, Superintendent Camp Endeavor, Scotch Plains, designating some central place where the provisions may be secured, will bring someone who will take the goods to camp.

Fred C. Lounsbury, Jr., of Plainfield, is chairman of the committee in whose hands the camp work has been placed. The site secured is a beautiful spot on the Watchung Mountains, near Mount St. Mary's College. It is reached from Johnston's Drive, and is about half an hour's walk from the main line trolley if one gets off at Park avenue, Scotch Plains. Visitors are always welcome at camp.

Several committees are in charge of the various phases of the work, and it is being conducted in excellent manner. There is a strong religious tone to the efforts, the boys being taught to see the close connection between genuine religion and the business of living. Recognizing the fact that it is through the thoughtfulness and generosity of others that they are privileged to spend two weeks in camp, the boys see the practical expression of Christianity—the gospel at work. There are delightful hikes and nature studies in the woods, games of baseball with other boys who visit camp, fine campfiire songs and stories, and—the swimming hole.

ELKS' BALL GAME ONE BIG LAUGH

When word was received by Plainfield's Elk team that Brooklyn's Elk team could not get together to play the game scheduled for yesterday, the local team received a challenge from a pick up team of other members, hastily organized and looking the part. The game bore out the wisdom exercised in the selection of the players as regulars represent 885 in diamond contests. Nobody knows the actual result and nobody cares.

One incident occurred, however, in the first inning of the game that all of the boys care about. It was an accident to Harry Flannery, the regular left fielder. Harry was sliding to second on an attempted steal and turned his right ankle. He was hurried to Muhlenberg Hospital in Manager Marshall's automobile and Dr. Carman set the twisted joint. The accident will put Harry out of the game for the rest of the season and will lay him up for several weeks.

While the game from a scientific standpoint was one of the most unscientific exhibitions of the national game, the few stragglers, who had not heard of the real game being cancelled and came to the field, have witnessed in may a day. It also furnished them with one of the biggest laughs they have had since the days of Harold Hangover and Swat Milligan. It was some fun to the players, too, but today the aching nerves, stiffened joints and sore muscles are silent, but convincing reminders that baseball is some game.

DEPOSE NUGENT

Democratic State Committee Declare Chairmanship Vacant at a Lively Meeting.

FAIL TO ELECT SUCCESSOR.

Old-Time Members of Party Regret Drastic Action—Committee to Meet in Two Weeks.

Several Plainfield Democrats attended the meeting of the State Democratic committee at Asbury Park, yesterday, when James R. Nugent was removed from the office of chairman of the committee, chiefly because of the statement he is alleged to have made calling Governor Wilson an ingrate and a liar. In speaking of the meeting today, one of those who was present said that it resembled a pre-arranged affair with instructions from behind the scenes. There were many of the old-time members of the committee present, and all seemed to realize the unpleasantness of the purpose for which the meeting was called.

Among the prominent old-timers present were David S. Crater, of Monmouth; Willard W. Cutler, of Morris; W. D. Bloom, of Hunterdon; Senator Johnson Cornish, of Warren, and they did not hesitate to express the opinion that they disliked to take drastic action, in fact it was the consensus of opinion of nearly everyone that whatever action was taken it would make but little difference, judging by the more or less demoralized condition of the party from the viewpoint of the State committee. Two weeks hence the committee will meet at the Hotel Sterling, Trenton, to elect a new chairman.

There were sixteen of the twenty-six members present when Mr. Nugent went into the room reserved at the hotel and called the meeting to order. His official presence was what the insurging members had been waiting for, because it legalized the gathering. This special meeting had been called by some of the members who took exception to their chairman's remarks at a sociable at Spring Lake a while ago. They were afraid that he wouldn't attend and that their procedure could be attacked later.

About the first thing that attracted the official attention of Chairman Nugent was the statement of William F. Kraft, of Camden, that he held a proxy from William F. Davis, also from Camden. Mr. Nugent said that this couldn't be true because he had had a letter from Mr. Davis saying that no proxy had been issued by the absent Camden member. Kraft waived a piece of paper in the air and insisted upon being heard. Then there was action.

Three of the dozen or more rangy persons who had been draping themselves about the walls and at the doors advanced and the next thing Mr. Kraft knew he was leaving the room inside a hollow square.

"Won't somebody help me?" cried Mr. Kraft as he touched the high points on the way to the door.

"Ain't we helping you?" returned the muscular one whose hand was in the middle of the committeeman's back pushing ever onward.

Out in the hall several anti-Nugent men were gathered. The swiftly leaving member tossed the proxy to the floor and it was caught up and held until later. The antis took in the meaning of the exodus and shouted loudly that the burly ones from Essex were a menace to life and limb. The guests of the hotel took up the cry and before you knew it Chief Bill H. Smith had his reserves making record time toward the meeting place. The folks staying at the Coleman House, the ones to whom politics was not an everyday occurence, blinked their eyes at the sight of uniforms blossoming in the corridors and about the doors of the committee room. The huskies were notably absent.

Judge B. P. Wills, of Burlington, the vice-president, took the chair so that Mr. Nugent might have an opportunity to say a few things. The Essex man told the committee that what he had said about Gov. Wilson he considered a purely private affair and he added that he was perfectly willing to repeat his remarks to the Governor's face if he felt so disposed

Mr. Nugent also had something to say about what he had done for the Democratic party in Camden. It appeared that he had gone down there and dug up a lot of frauds, that he had reduced the Republican majority from 7,000 to 1,500 and that in Atlantic City he had let the Reupblicans know that the Democratic committee was doing something. Mr. Nugent's speech filled quite a period and then he took up his hat and said:

"Gentlemen, I will retire."

A crook of the finger to Charles H. Gallagher, of Mercer county, his lieutenant, also removed that member from the room.

CLAY A CANDIDATE

Second Ward Member of Common Council to Seek a Renomination.

F. E. MYGATT ALSO A CANDIDATE

City Republican Committee Will Keep Hands Off—Talk of Opposition Candidates.

Councilman George S. Clay is the latest member of the Common Council to announce his candidacy for a re-nomination this fall, and within a short time his position will be in circulation. Thus far there are four members of the present body whose terms expire this year, who have signified their intention to seek a renomination. W. L. Gloak, of the First ward; George S. Clay, of the Second ward; Frederic E. Mygatt, of the Third ward and Charles C. Randolph, also of the Third ward.

Councilmen Herbert Buxton and W. W. Wilson, of the Fourth ward are the only two who have not as yet declared themselves regarding a renomination, but it is confidently believed that their many friends will persuade them to enter the race this fall for another term.

Thus far the City Republican Committee has held no meeting and no plans have been decided upon for the approaching campaign. John H. Cose, chairman of the committee, when seen today, said that the committee would favor an open field this fall, that is no endorsement would be given to any one candidate over another. The committee believes that the members of the party should make their nominations without any special aid from the committee and this policy will be adopted.

That the regular Republican ticket will have opposition is well-known, because Mayor G. W. V. Moy and his friends will conduct an active campaign in every ward of the city and they will have a nominee in each ward in opposition to the "regulars." Just what strength Mayor Moy has remains to be seen, and the primaries will serve to show to what extent the voters of the city are with him in the position he occupies.

Mr. Moy will go before the voters this fall and review the work of the city government for the year, and he believes that the opposition which has developed in the Common Council to his actions, will prove a strong factor in winning votes.

The Common Council feel that its actions have been warranted and the members and their friends will use every effort to prove the wisdom of their course. Consequently, the campaign in this city gives promise of being one of the most exciting in years, especially because of the contest on between the "regulars" and independents, and also because of the fact that the Democrats will take an active part.

BOROUGH DEMOCRATS PLAN MASS MEETING

At a meeting of a number of representative borough Democrats held last night at the home of Freeholder George Kirch, on Somerset street, it was decided to hold a public mass meeting next Thursday night in Debele's Auditorium on Chatham street for the purpose of fixing a slate. This meeting will be open to all Democrats and all are invited to be present.

M. F. Gano, David Bodine and David Moggy were appointed a committee to co-operate with the borough members of the Somerset County Democratic Committee in selecting candidates to be discussed at the meeting. The borough members of the county committee are W. C. Linbarger, George Kirch and John T. Case. W. J. Conroy presided at last night's meeting and David Bodine acted as secretary.

There was considerable discussion on a number of important matters that will be determined by the fall election and the names of J. M. Lewin and J. O. Osgood, it is said, will be presented as candidates for the mayoralty at the meeting next week. W. J. Conroy's name was also mentioned, but Mr. Conroy stated that he would not allow his name to be used.

Mr. Osgood resides on Myrtle avenue, and has taken an active interest in the affairs of the borough for a number of years. He is at present president of the North Plainfield Board of Health and has held this office several years. Mr. Lewin has also been prominently identified with borough affairs and last year made a strong run against L. B. Woolston for member of the Council, being defeated by but three votes.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER DEAD AT BELLE MEAD

After an illness of three days, Mrs. Susan TenEyck, widow of Cornelius TenEyck, and mother of Albert W. TenEyck, of Union street, died yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. vanRush, at Belle Mead, in her seventy-fourth year. Mrs. TenEyck had been making her home with her sister for some time, but prior to Mr. TenEyck's death they resided for a number of years on Norwood avenue. Mrs. TenEyck was a charter member of Trinity Reformed church and one of its oldest members. During her residence here she had surrounded herself with a large circle of friends by her many rare traits and active endeavors in the interest of others.

Surviving besides the son in this city, is another, Fred H. TenEyck, of New York. The funeral will be held at Trinity Reformed church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and interment will be made in Hillside cemetery.

CHARLES HILL HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY

At the hearing of Charles Hill, who was arrested Wednesday morningin Dunellen for alleged robbing of Christopher Pope, a Civil War veteran, living on Pearl street, of $18, the prisoner was held in $200 bail to await the action of the Somerset County Grand Jury, by Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape, in the borough court yesterday afternoon. The case had been postponed from Wednesday night in order to allow Robert Newton Crane, the counsel for the defendant, to prepare his case.

It was stated by Hill in the hearing yesterday afternoon that he was never in Pope's house but that he was in the borough at 10:30 when he was seen in Blatz's hotel. He said that after that he went direct to Dunellen but witnessed proved that he was seen in this city at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Hill claims that he had $5 with him but witnesses testified that he had a $10 bill with him at Taylor's hotel in Dunellen.

The $200 bail was furnished by one of Hill's friends and he was released. He will be arraigned before Recorder David Campbell in Dunellen tonight on the charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

STATE TRUST CO. TO ESTABLISH BRANCHES

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the State Trust Company, a resolution was adopted advising that the certificate of incorporation be amended permitting the corporation to establish one or more branches in other munipicalities of the State. Just what places have been selected as offering opportunities that would make branches profitable, have not as yet been anounced.

Another meeting is to be held August 21 at which the action decided on by the directors will be voted on by the stockholders and if the measure is carried application to have the certificate of incorporation amended will be made to State Banking Commissioner, Vivian M. Lewis.

When seen this morning a director of the State Trust Company said that it would not be good business policy to announce, at this time, what place or places have been selected as offering opportunities for institutions such as the State Trust Company contemplate establishing. That a selection has been made is obvious, but until the certificate has either been amended, it would be unwise to announce the plans the board of directors have under consideration.

Through wide publicity which has been a part of the policy of this concern, many banking-by-mail accounts have been received. Not a few of the depositors thus received are from points far removed from the banking house and the board of directors feel sure that as it is possible to secure so much patronage through advertisments, if a branch were established in different centres, the company's clientele would be increased by thus getting in closer touch with its depositors and offering the same banking facilities that the local depositors enjoy.

Funeral of Henry Muellen.

The funeral of Henry Muellen was held this morning at 200 West Second street and was attended by a number of friends. Rev. C. F. W. Attlee conducted the services and burial was in the Plainfield Avenue cemetery.

—Neuman Bros. will have for tomorrow's trade 125 baskets of fancy Jersey peaches, full size baskets. Prices $1, $1.15, $1.25 and $1.50.

TRAIN KILLS TWO

John Borlick and Posta Thomisky Hurled to Death by Fast Express at Oak Tree.

CONFUSED BY ANOTHER TRAIN.

The Two Men Were Working in Track Repair Gang— Sad Story Connected With Thomisky.

While working in a track gang on the Lehigh Vally Railroad at Oak Tree yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock, John Borlick, of South Plainfield, and Posta Thomisky, of Perth Amboy, both Polish laborers, were instantly killed by an express train whose approach was concealed by a slow passing freight. Both men were hurled far above the track and their bodies were picked up many feet from where they were struck. Borlick's body was terribly mutilated.

Coroner Fred Garretson, of Perth Amboy, was immediately notified and after viewing the bodies, which had been taken to Eugene VanCourt's coal yard, he gave a permit for burial. The remains of both men were taken to Perth Amboy.

Thomisky's body was taken to his home in Charles street, Perth Amboy, and when his sister saw the corpse of her brother, she fainted and then became hysterical. Thomisky had brought his sister to this country only two months ago from Poland and the two had lived happily in their humble home. They had always been extremely fond of one another and it is said that Thomisky had worked hard on the Lehigh Railroad for several years in order to save enough money with which to bring his favorite sister to live in this country, where he was alone without other relatives. It was stated in Perth Amboy this morning that the sister will take the small amount, which they have been able to save, and return to her old home in Poland.

Borlick had lived in South Plainfield for the past four months, boarding with a Polish family there. He has no relatives in this country and came here from Poland but a short time ago.

The accident almost resulted fatally for another laborer, who jumped out of the way of the speeding express just in time, escaping death by only a few inches. It was stated by the foreman of the track gang, in which the two unfortunate men were working, that the party had been broken into two sections, under separate foremen, one section laying rails and the other driving bolts. Thomisky and Borlick were working at the latter job on the express track near the long curve at Oak Tree. A slow freight train came along, going east, and the men all stepped back to avoid it. There were many cars on the freight and when it started to go around the curve, it hid the other train from view. The two victims were working with their backs to the curve when the other laborers shouted to them to look out for the train. The noise of the passing freight drowned their frantic calls and the express, which is due at South Plainfield at 4:55 bore down upon them. According to the foreman the men were paralyzed with fear and stood perfectly still. After the train had struck the men, it was brought to a stop within a short distance, but when it was found that the men were dead, it proceeded toward the west.

Proctor's Great Bill.

"The Widow's Bachelor," being presented at Proctor's theatre, this week, is some sketch. It has to do with a merry young widow, who has an attack of sea sickness and a classy bachelor, who is mistaken for a doctor, and a saloon steward, who is always in the way. The situations are very funny. The Bessie Holt Trio, singers and dancers, are unusually good. Dave Lubin and his merry humming coons, offer a fine plantation sketch, ful of songs and rag-time dances and Black and Smirl, clever as knockabout comedians. Pictures of the great Elk's parade at Atlantic City will be shown on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Petition for Divorce.

A petition for divorce was filed in the Court of Chancery yesterday by George H. Sonksen from his wife Alberta Sonksen and he also requests the custody of their two children, a boy and a girl, six and four years old respectively. The petition is based on desertion, Sonksen alleging that his wife deserted him more than two years ago. She is a daughter of Isaac Scriven, of View avenue.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Dunellen A. C., whose rooms are above the bank building, have just purchased new furnishings for the rooms, and these being in place make the club a most inviting place for the young fellows of the village. This club has been in existence for about five years, and its growth has been slow, but at the same time a sure one and today it is an excellent organization.

The Knights of Columbus excursion to Asbury Park yesterday took out the largest crowd of the season and the borough took on signs of desolation after the evacuation.

Frank Margentino is having an addition built to his ice cream parlor by Walter Apgar, making it one of the most attractive in the village.

George Hume, the grocer, has returned from his vacation.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Miss Louise Meyer, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at Muhlenberg Hospital, is improving so well that she expects to be able to return home during the early part of the coming week.

A delegation of the fans will accompany the team to High Bridge tomorrow and enedavor to root the locals to the big end of the score.

About twenty-five from here attended the excursion yesterday of Watchung Council, K. of C., to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove.

William Reynolds' new house on Barth avenue, is all enclosed and will be ready for occupancy by October 1.

Heating Problems Solved

Sectional view of BOYNTON FURNACE, showing Patented square fire pot and large ash pit.

HERE is the furnace that heats the house from first floor to the attic—makes no dust—little ash, and less bother. A BOYNTON "square pot" furnace will give summer temperature in zero weather, on a surprisingly small amount of coal. It's the square fire pot that does it. The never smothers out because the fire pot is full of ash and cinder. A turn of the BOYNTON ash cutting grate clears the fire completely. The BOYNTON has a capacious square cornered ash pit, that you can shovel out clean. BOYNTON boilers—for house, school, or church heating—have this same economical fire pot. See your dealer about BOYNTON "square pot" furnaces and boilers.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

WILSON BOOSTERS IN DEEP TROUBLE.

Indianapolis, Aug. 11.—The first overt act on the part of Indiana Democrats to start an organization for Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, has been followed by charges of forgery and declarations that the large club of party workers organized here for United States Senator Kern cannot be turned over to Wilson.

The trouble began when W. C. Liller, president of the Democratic League of Clubs, called a meeting of the 300 members of the Kern Presidential Club and succeeded in getting a resolution through which declared for Wilson for President and pledged the members to work to secure the Indiana delegation for him. The name of Secretary Cameron of the club was signed to the resolution.

Mr. Cameron, who says that he is still a Kern man, denounced the action of the club yesterday and said that he was not at the meeting and his signature to the resolution was a forgery. Mr. Liller replied that while Cameron was out of town when the club met he had been told of the meeting and had authorized the use of his name as secretary. Cameron comes back with the statement that Liller lies, that he has not been honest in his advocacy of Kern for the Presidency, but that Indiana is for Kern and the loyal members of the organization will repudiate the club's action and seek to get delegates for Kern.

The local Democracy is torn into factions by the dissension and the only thing that is certain is that the contest for delegates to the national convention is now on.

JUDGE UNABLE TO FORCE WOMAN ON CHAIN GANG.

Iola, Kan., Aug. 11.—D. B. D. Smeltzer, judge of the Municipal Court here, was defeated yesterday in his efforts to enforce his judgment that Mrs. Ella Reese, a city prisoner convicted of a vicious offense, should don bloomers and join the men members of the chain gang in working on the streets.

There were three reasons. First, the judge was unable to find a pair of bloomers in town; second, his order was defied by Commissioner G. C. Glynn, and third, the people apparently had no sympathy with the sentence.

The jailer delivered Mrs. Reese to the foreman of the street department, dressed in her usual clothing, to go into the chain gang. Commissioner Glynn ordered the foreman to return her to jail at once.

"I have all due respect for the court," said the commissioner, "but the court is not running the street department. I will not permit a woman prisoner to do such work. It is a disgrace even to suggest such a thing."

"I am willing to obey the order of the court," said Mrs. Reese after she was returned to jail. "If he says so I'll put on bloomers and go to work on the streets. But I believe that I would be the last woman that would ever do so, as well as the first."

When Judge Smeltzer learned that his orders had not been observed, he said emphatically that Mrs. Reese must go to work.

"I am a little doubtful whether I can compel her to work if she does not want to," he said, "but while she is in jail she is not paying anything on her fine, but is increasing the costs all the time. If she doesn't work, she will stay in jail until she concludes to obey the court.

"The city commissioners are not running this court; they cannot release Mrs. Reese. If she tries to do what is expected of her I will be inclined to be lenient with her. If she does not want an interminate sentence she must get out and work."

RIDERS IN FATAL AUTO ARE HELD FOR MURDER.

Paterson, Aug. 11.—Richard Lyons, Stanley Giblin and E. L. Goetschius, all of Passaic, who were in the automobile which struck John Zabriskie, an aged carpenter, hurling his body against a passing locomotive killing him Wednesday, were arraigned before Acting Recorder John A. Stafford in police court yesterday morning on charges of murder. The complaints were made by Patrol-Sergeant Peter Murner. Albert Zabriskie, son of the victim, was in court, but refused to make a complaint. He said he had not decided as yet just what course to pursue.

The defendants were represented by Ryan & McGuire, who pleaded them not guilty and waived hearings. The court informed the prisoners that he would be compelled to commit them to jail without bail, he having no jurisdiction in such cases. It is understood that counsel for the defendants will apply to Judge Francis Scott to fix bail in each case.

According to the police, the occupants of the automobile were intoxicated at the time of the accident. Lyons is the owner of the machine, and had been out with his two passengers the greater part of the previous evening. After the accident Goetschius fled, but was afterward found on a porch of an Oak street residence and taken into custody. When he was being taken to police headquarters he declared he did not remember the accident.

HEAVY SAFE TIPS OVER AND MAN JUST ESCAPES.

With a crash that caused the people in the building to rush into the street, a five-ton safe in the Essex Loan Office, at 274 Market street, Newark, toppled over yesterday morning, while an employe, Jack Sigmond, was in the act of emptying it of its contents. Sigmond escaped injury.

The safe was recently installed, and had not been braced. Sigmond had just opened the heavy doors, when the safe, overbalanced by their weight, fell over. Sigmond leaped backward, just escaping as the mass toppled, part of it tearing through the floor.

Showcases and ledges in the line of its fall were crushed by the mass of steel. The loss, exclusive of the damage done to the contents of the safe, will amount to $500.

SAVED WEE RABBITS; FINED.

Perth Amboy, Aug. 11.—Ignorant of the law and imagining that he was acting humanely, John White, a farmer living near here, was fined $20 for having wild rabbits in his possession during the prohibited season. White was doing some grading and his plow uncovered a nest of six tiny rabbits. Four of them were maimed and White killed them and took the other two home. Their eyes were not opened, but White taught them to drink warm milk from a spoon.

Wednesday Game Warden Charles Steurwald was notifield that White had the rabbits and an investigation revealed the facts. Steurwald, under the law, had to prosecute, which he did reluctantly, and refused to take any fee for his services. Justice of the Peace H. E. Pickersgill also waived all costs and White paid his fine after explaining the case.

EX-GOVERNOR HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Elizabeth, Aug. 11.—Former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, of this city, had a narrow escape from serious injury, if not death, Wednesday in a runaway near Clinton, where he was staying over night on his farm.

Mr. Voorhees was being driven by a farm hand to the railroad station when his horse, a spirited animal, became frightened and started on a gallop down the road. Running at top speed the frenzied animal was soon beyond the control of its driver, who hung on to the reins while the light wagon spun around several sharp turns on two wheels. Several times the former State executive came near being hurled from the vehicle, but each time managed to keep his seat.

After a run of more than a mile, in which collisions with other vehicles were only avoided by a narrow margin, the horse was brought to a standstill near the railroad station and Mr. Voorhees got out and walked the rest of the way.

This is the second narrow escape of the sort that Mr. Voorhees has experienced. Several years ago, while he was an ardent devotee of horseback riding, his animal suddenly shied on one of the city streets, throwing him to the pavement with such violence that it was several months before he entirely recovered from the effects of the accident.

HEALTH BOARD HELPS VICTIM OF A MAD DOG.

Bayonne, Aug. 11.—The Board of Health decided to send a victim of a mad dog which ran through the city Monday, to the Pasteur Institute in New York. The action was taken after John Carr, father of Frank Carr, twelve years old, who was bitten by the dog, appeared before the board Wednesday night and said his son was in a serious condition.

It was decided to appropriate $50 for the lad's treatment.

PLAINFIELDERS HAVE GREAT LUCK WITH ROD AND LINE.

Clement Morgan, Clarence Thorn, Garret Dunham, Robert Meeker and William Doud spent yesterday fishing at Keyport. Their patience in the piscatorial art was not in vain, however, for their baskets were heavily laden when they arrived in this city last evening. The sum total of the days work was 194 weak and blue fish. William Doud had his first experience as a fisherman, and before many hours had passed he became an ardent supporter of Isak Walton, and a more enthusiastic fisherman cannot be found in the city today.

James Blair and Elvin Van Name journeyed to Bound Brook yesterday afternoon and cast their lines in the placid waters of the Raritan river. Their casting was lucky for they arrived home last evening with fifteen fine black bass. From the size of the catches yesterday it would seem as if the many friends of both fishing parties would not go fish hungry today and it is lucky coincidence that it is a fish day.

mals. The majority of horses and mules in Havana are sleek and well-cared for, but in the country districts constant watching and prosecution are necessary. The public officials now rigidly enforce the laws, and bull-fighting is not carried on any more unless in some deserted place. Cock-fights are more frequent, but the offenders are punished when found out.

"In Mexico, China, Turkey and Italy, the S. P. C. A. is helping forward all humane work and translating books and pamphlets.

"The Society stands uncompromisingly for international peace and argues that one factor in the increased cost of living is the money spent for armament by the United States. The terrible ravages among horses as well as among men which every war causes are also spoken of. In connection with this, the Boy Scout Movement is strongly discouraged, with the idea that 'it is nothing more than enlisting the boys through their love of adventure and outdoor sports, for future military service.'

"The S. P. C. A. is doing a great deal of good by forming 'Bands of Mercy.' The children who belong to them pledge themselves to be kind to animals and undoubtedly prevent much cruelty by reporting cases which no one else would trouble themselves with or see, as in one instance, that of a cat being dropped from a window in the ninth story of a tenement.

"Surely the S. P. C. A. leaves a glorious past, and is pressing on toward the world-wide fulfillment of a still more glorious object, 'peace on earth, kindness, justice and mercy to every living creature.'"

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:—

I wish to correct a wrong inference that might be gained from reading your article in last night's issue in regards to report on investigation of the National Mining & Leasing Co. First, Mr. Doyle, of Cranford, N. J., was not present; second, I did not preside as chairman at any part of this meeting, or participate in any transaction of this meeting, whereby Messrs. Abbott, Moffett and Loveland issued report (drawn up by James Powers), as being the report of the Investigation Committee, and did not consent to this report, because I believe there should be no suppression of facts, or any attempt to shield the persons who assisted in this gigantic swindle, and trust the persons who put their money in this venture will not allow the matter to drop, which no doubt is the desire of the persons implicated; but will cause a thorough investigation, and employ efficient counsel to prosecute the persons who benefited by the manipulation of this fraud.

DEPOSE NUGENT

That left the committee without a quorum and it looked black for the antis. But at the most needful time Senator George C. Low, of Ocean county, put his head in the door and remarked pleasantly, "Good afternoon, gentlemen!"

Mr. Kraft also dropped back into room to make use of the proxy that had been scooped off the floor, but by this time the bluecoat guards had become a little lax and a reappearing visitation of brawn carried Mr. Kraft once more from the room. This time he stayed away and a little while later he was heard from at Sea Girt.

Judge Willard W. Cutler, of Morris, made a motion for a week's adjournment on the theory that swift action wouldn't be wise. The motion was smothered. Then Judge Howard Carrow, of Camden, said that it was impossible to forget that Mr. Nugent had insulted the Governor, but even skipping that insult entirely, his conduct today had been such as no gentleman could countenance. Mr. Nugent, he said, had disgraced himself before the committee. Judge Nelson Y. Dungan, of Somerset, said that the spectacles he had witnessed in which Nugent and his allies figured had removed from his mind any consideration for the chairman.

It was then that Judge Carrow made a motion declaring the office vacant and naming Mr. Grosscup. It was passed when Mr. Grosscup's name was eliminated. The conference at Trenton will be at the Hotel Sterling.

ITALIAN SOCIETY PLAN CELEBAATION

The second entertainment of the Italian-American Civic Club was held last night in the clubroom on East Third street. These meetings are held monthly and at the September gathering the fiftieth anniversary of the independence of Italy will be commemorated. A. Coletta, president of the club, presided last night and made an opening address in which he told of the plans for the next meeting.

The program consisted of recitations, vocal and instrumental numbers. Those participating were: Henry Venga, who declaimed one of the best songs of Dante; F. Spilotro and M. DeSiena, violin and mandolin duet; Clarence B. LaRue, who spoke on citizenship and emphasized the value and responsibility of citizenship in America; M. Baretti told of the three fold aim of the club. He said in part:

"Our club has a triple aim; intellectual, moral and social. This goal embraces all the essential elements and factors of progress. Faithful to this program, we are following and promoting this great law of progress. Our club will be a means of progress for the members and for the Italians of the city. It will be a center of light and life, even as the centre of the earth is attracting all the elements scattered upon its surface; so it will attract all the Italians in Plainfield; attract them in order to elevate them intellectually, morally and socially."

At the conclusion of the program ice cream and cake was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in sociability. The decorations consisted of American and Italian flags draped about pictures of Garabaldi, Dante, Washington and Lincoln.

U. S. POSTAL SERVICE TO PROBE MINING CO

A further examination of the affairs of the National Mining and Leasing Company, which was organized by the late Ellsworth D. Middlekauf in this city four years ago, will be made by the postal department of the United States government. Several days ago Mayor George W. V. Moy, of this city, sent a communication to Attorney-General Wickersham at Washington requesting that an investigation be made of the National Mining and Leasing Company. Mayor Moy took this step, acting in his official position as Mayor of this city, where many of the stockholders in the alleged fraud, reside.

A few days ago Mayor Moy received a letter from Attorney-General Wickersham stating that the matter had been turned over to one of the asasstance in his department and would be taken up immediately. This morning Mayor Moy was notified that the investigation would be carried on by the postal department. A letter was received by the Mayor from R. J. Sharp, chief inspector of the U. S. Postal Service, this morning in which the Plainfield executive was asked to furnish more information concerning the National Mining & Leasing Company and that the matter would be thoroughly investigated.

It is supposed that the postal authorities at Washington will take up the matter at length with the end in view of prosecuting any guilty parties concerned for using the government mails for fraudulent purposes.

Will Hold Annual Picnic.

The annual picnic of the Willow Grove Sunday-school will be held on the chapel lawn at Willow Grove on Wednesday, August 16, from 11 a. m., to 5 p. m. If Wednesday should prove stormy the picnic will be postponed to Thursday, August 17. All friends of the school are invited.

Deputy Sheriff Peter V. Weaver, is enjoying his anual vacation.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR G. O. P. OUTING

Under the leadership of County Chairman Frank H. Smith, of the Union County Republican committee and Chairman John H. Cose, of the Plainfield Republican Executive committee, a large number of the G. O. P. followers of this city will board the Steamer Isabelle when she leaves Elizabethport tomorrow for Far Rockaway, on the annual outing of the county Republicans. The affair will be the biggest of the kind in recent years, from present indications, as from all parts of the county have come reuests for tickets in larger numbers than ever before.

The fact that the fall campaign's opening gun will be fired from the deck ere the steamer has proceeded far from the dock is an incentive to get in on the ground floor, but a day among the pleasures at the Long Island shore resort are also an inducement to many to join the outing.

All arrangements have been made with the large hotels there to furnish shore dinners and the boat will be well stocked with all that goes to make an outing of this kind a delight. Among those from this city who have signified their intention of going are former Mayor James F. Buckle, Andrew McCardell, Alexander D. Ayers, Frank Dunham, Frank Randolph, Charles H. Dunham, Robert and William Craig, James Stewart, Robert Newton Crane, William Newcorn, J. Henry Crane, W. L. Hetfield, Jr., William Clifton, John Bowman, John Mortimer, Herbert Buxton, William Gloak, and of course, all the county officials will be there.

MORE FRIENDS HELP BABY CAMP FUND

Louise T. Warren and 'R. H. R.," are among the friends of the King's Daughters' Baby Camp, and today showed their appreciation by giving the fund another boost. The former contributed $5 and the latter $2 to help care for the sick babies on the mountains. These contributions bring the total amount up to $222.50 to date. Let the good work continue. Every penny given to the fund will help to make some baby more comfortable and give it a chance to get well.

Mt Zion A. M. E. church realized about $100 from the anual excursion to Bellewood Park yesterday. There was in all about 4,500 excursionists at the park, a large number of them being from Newark.

HOME RANSACKED IN FAMILY'S ABSENCE

Sometime during the past month burglars entered the residence of G. Harry Squires, at West Eighth street and Arlington avenue, and ransacked the house from top to bottom. Just how much property, if any, was taken is not known, as neither Mr. Squires nor any member of his family were aware that the burglary had been committed until yesterday, when it was discovered by Harvey Linbarger, an employe of Elston M. French, of North avenue. Mr. Squires was notified and will return to this city today, leaving his summer home, to ascertain the amount of his loss.

Entrance seems to have been gained by the use of a skeleton key as in the hurried inspection made by Mr. Linbarger, there were no evidences of a forced entrance. The door being left open seems to indicate that the burglar left hurriedly or else intended to come back at a later time to make further search for the valuables he felt sure were in the house.

Mr. French has the house on his list of properties for sale and yesterday Mr. Linbarger was showing it to a prospective customer. An inspection of the premises revealed that dishes were thrown about, draws emptied of their contents, pictures had been removed from the walls, closets ransacked and clothing of all kinds dumped from bureaus and chiffoniers. A number of breakable articles had been smashed by the careless handling.

DINNER PARTY FOR 18TH BIRTHDAY OF R. O. MARTIN.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Martin, Sr., of Orchard Park, gave a dinner last night at their home in honor of the eighteenth birthday of their son Ralph O. Martin. The affair was arranged by his mother and sister Mrs. Randolph. The dinner, which consisted of five courses, was served at 7:30.

The dining room was tastefully decorated in royal purple and old gold, a portiere of the same color hanging between the parlor and dining room. Several of the friends of the young man were present and the evening was spent in playing games and a program of musical selections was enjoyed. A piano solo was rendered by one of the young women and loudly applauded.

Mayor Guest of Governor.

Mayor George W. V. Moy and Fred H. Andrews, a member of the Union County Board of Taxation, both of this city, were guests at the final luncheon of the season given by Governor Woodrow Wilson at Camp Wilson, Sea Girt yesterday. Covers were laid at the luncheon for three hundred, the guests being the mayors of towns, editors and members of county tax boards in this State.

ORDINANCE PUT IN TO CHECK SMOKE.

Elizabeth, Aug. 11.—Complaining that the Central Railroad of New Jersey used too much soft coal while passing through this city and that this caused too much smoke, thereby endangering the health of the citizens, Commissioner Williams, of the Board of Health, introduced a resolution at the meeting empowering the health inspector to proceed against the railroad. The resolution also condemned the smoking of automobiles as they passed through the streets of the city, and the health officer will hereafter notify all owners of such machines to appear in the police court to answer charges of maintaining a public nuisance.

State Inspector Cradell, who was in the city last week making an inspection of the ice cream cones for sale in a number of small stores throughout Elizabeth, sent in a report in which he gave the results of the bacteria count taken in twelve of the samples. In almost all the bacteria ran from twice to eight times the amount there should be. The average was about 10,000,000 per cubic centimeter. As all that the State law allows is 500,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter in ice cream the factories furnishing the ice cream from which the samples were taken will probably be proceeded against by the State Board of Health and their licenses taken away. Other samples will be taken during the next few days.

An ordinance also passed its first reading creating a board of inspection for the granting of plumbers' licenses. The board will consist of one plumbing inspector to be named by the board, one master plumber and one journeyman plumber.

The report of the health inspector for the past month showed remarkably few cases of contagious disease. Scarlet fever heads the list with 18 cases; the others are diphtheria, 10; measles, 5; whooping cough, 1, and typhoid fever, 1.

TRYING HARD TO KILL COMMISSION RULE MOVE.

Paterson, Aug. 11.—After going over 850 names on the petitions filed Wednesday for the special election to permit the voters of Paterson to determine whether they will or will not adopt the commission form of government, City Clerk Standeven struck out 236 names as illegal.

Three signatures among those examined he declared were of persons who gave addresses in Haledon, Hawthorne and Totowa boroughs.

Mr. Standeven said that he would go over the petitions as quickly as was possible. He worked until late in the evening carefully scrutinizing every petition. The work is rather slow because of the necessity for carefully determining the correctness of his opinion regarding the forged signatures.

It will require at least three or four days for such work, but Mr. Standeven will be guided by the opinion of the city counsel in his action.

HORSE IN THRILLING MIXUP.

Elizabeth People Treated to a Spectacular Runaway.

Elizabeth, Aug. 11.—A spectacular runaway, ending in a dangerous collision, took place shortly before noon yesterday, when a horse belonging to George Weimar, of 354 Elizabeth avenue, ran down Morris avenue and tried to hurdle a lumber wagon belonging to F. L. and A. Heidritter, which was crossing the avenue at Orchard street.

The horse got its fore legs over the pole connecting the two pairs of wheels, but in an attempt to clear the obstacle with its hind legs it fell heavily to the ground.

The crazed animal, in its frantic struggles to free itself, uttered shrill screams. Neighbors attracted by the noise hastened to the scene and extricated the beast, and its driver, Oscar Caspar, soon ran up and claimed it.

JERSEY JUSTICE ALL AWRY.

Novices in Prison, Old Offenders in Reformatory.

Trenton, Aug. 11.—Complaints have been made to Dr. George B. Wight, commissioner of charities and corrections, by George O. Osborne, head keeper of the New Jersey State Prison, and Dr. Frank Moore, superintendent of the Rahway Reformatory, that there are first offenders in the prison and hardened criminals in the reformatory. Dr. Wight's investigation shows such to be the case and also that there is no uniform rule which judges use. Mr. Osborne holds that reformation is impossible inside the prison, and Dr. Moore is of the opinion that hardened criminals in his institution prevent efficient reformatory work.

Robs Employer and Escapes.

Rahway, Aug. 11.—James Reid, seventeen years old, a former inmate of the Rahway Reformatory, is being sought by the police here. The boy has been in the employ of George H. Kennedy, a farmer, near Rahway. The lad ran away after stealing a gold watch, silver watch, $45 and some other articles.

The veto bill was accepted by the House of Lords by 131 votes to 114, obviating the necessity for the creation of new peers.

FIRE ALARM BOX FAILED TO WORK.

Elizabeth, Aug. 11.—Fire, supposedly started by a spark from a locomotive, totally destroyed a barn on Westfield avenue yesterday afternoon. The structure was used as a storehouse by Laggren Brothers, awning manufacturers, who place their loss at $2,500.

Again the fire alarm system failed to work when needed, and only quick work on the part of Chief Gerstung and his men saved a number of surrounding dwellings that caught fire from sparks before the arrival of the firemen.

The fire was discovered about 5:30 o'clock by a passing citizen who turned in an alarm from box 133, a half block from the scene. The box failed to work and after a wait of fifteen minutes a quick run was made to box 35, two blocks away. This time the alarm worked, but by the time the firemen arrived, the flames had spread so that their efforts failed to save the barn.

Several houses had caught fire, however, and streams were turned on these and the small fires soon extinguished.

The alarm system will be inspected today to ascertain, is possible, the cause of the failure of box 133 to sound.

This was the second trouble with the system yesterday, the first being a false alarm, due to hammering of a lineman on the pole on which the alarm box was situated.

COLORADO WOMEN WANT MORE POLITICAL JOBS.

Denver, Aug. 11.—With the male vote split between the Republicans, Democrats, Socialists, Laborites and one or two other parties, women politicians here believe that united they will be the majority party, and that instead of begging favors can get the entire slate unless they are merciful to the mere man.

This year the representation of the women voters in State offices consists of the State superintendent of schools and four Assembly members. They will demand that both major parties allow the women to name the candidates for Lieutenant-Governor or Congressman, for two State Senators and State auditor, so that whether Republicans or Democrats carry the State the women will win.

"We have made good as voters. We have shown that we can hold office, and better than the men. Then why shouldn't we get what we want?" is the way the women argue.

Mrs. Sarah Platt Decker, a national figure among the suffragists, is one of the leaders in the movement for more general recognition of the women voters, and may be the Democratic candidate for Congress or Lieutenant-Governor. The work of organization already is under way.

NO "RAISE" FOR FREEHOLDERS.

Washington, Aug. 11.—The hopes of the twenty-eight freeholders of Warren county for an increase in pay from $150 to $300 per annum under the new law have been shattered by an interpretation of the act which shows that it applies only to counties having a population of 70,000 or more. The uneasiness of many citizens, due to a fear that the taxpayers of the county would have to stand this increase, has been correspondingly allayed.

So troubled were the citizens over the prospect of the supposed increase on which the freeholders were congratulating themselves, that there was some talk of calling an election to abolish the board and substitute a commission of three members. This talk, of course, has ceased.

The Bubbler.

The "bubbler" is fast taking the place of the drinking cups, especially in public places. It is a little device whereby, on pressing a button, a little stream of water gushes from a spout, from which a person may drink without touching his lips to the concern. It is a clean and handy affair. They ought to be in public places where the wayfarer may get a drink of cooled water. There should be a couple in Capitol square. If there is not money to do this cut down a few salaries and get it. There is plenty of money for all our needs if it is rightly distributed. And a drink of pure water is one of the very first needs.—Columbus Journal.

Cheesecloth Food Covers.

A careful housewife sees to it that no food is left uncovered, exposed in any way to dust and germs. She buys three or four embroidery hoops for kitchen use. She keeps on hand a supply of small cheesecloth squares which may be slipped into the frame of right size and then the frame is used to put over the bowl of soup or the left-over dish of desert, vegetable or any other foodstuff. The cheesecloth permits a circulation of air, so there is no danger of the food becoming sour, as would be the case were a tight cover used.

Kentucky Beverages.

"Hundreds of gallons of buttermilk, iced tea and gasoline were consumed in Louisville yesterday," says the Louisville Courier-Journal. We confess to a mild curiosity as to whether Louisvillelans take their gasoline straight in hot weather.—Des Moines Tribune.

There are two monuments to Hannah Dustin, a heroine of early colonial England. One is at Concord, N. H., and the other at Haverhill, Mass.

And oh! that hoppy taste; could anything add more zest to a wholesome meal?

There's the fullest measure of quality hops and selected barley malt in every glass of the famous Bartholomay Rochester Beer.

That tinge of bitter in the hops is an appetizer and an aid to digestion—the malt is a blood maker and nourisher.

And being fully aged, Bartholomay Beer will not upset your stomach—a good point for you to bear in mind.

Order a case of Bartholomay Beer for your home. It's as easy to get as ordinary beer, and it's a great deal better to use. Mail or phone your order. It will receive immediate attention.

A GRANITE BOMB.

Jack Frost Hurled It Down Into the Yosemite Valley.

Delicate frost tracings on the window panes seem to be the work of fanciful and harmless sportiveness, but the hand that forms them is capable of greater deeds and of other kinds. Mr. J. Smeaton Chase, in "Yosemite Trails," describes an experience that must have been wonderfully impressive to the spectator. He had been spending some weeks in exploring the Yosemite valley and the "great rocks," like El Capitan, that wall it in.

Standing one day of late autumn about the middle of the valley, I was startled by a report like a cannon shot, which filled the whole valley with echoes that roared and boomed, replied and multiplied, in a long continued, glorious tumult.

As the deafening sound died away in sullen mutterings under the vizor of El Capitan I was able to distinguish the point of attack by the long, clattering descent of a vast quantity of rock.

The night had been a cold one in the valley, and on the seven to eight thousand foot levels of the upper rim the temperature must have dropped almost to zero.

Frost, working quietly with his Archimedean lever, had just succeeded in shifting from the shoulder of the sentinel a trifle of fifty tons or so of granite. For near a thousand feet the bowlder fell sheer, swift and silent; then, striking the cliff, it burst like a bomb, shattered into a myriad flying shards and splinters and dislodged a smother of fragments that trickled down to the valley in a stream that lasted for minutes.

Then from the spot where the bowlder had struck dust began to rise into the sunny air, slowly building up and burgeoning like a summer cloud and every whit as snowy. It was the flour of granite, powdered instantaneously by the terrific shock.

GOWNS AND OMENS.

Odd Superstitions That Darken the Dressmaker's Shop.

"Women who wear fine dresses are as superstitious as the girls who make them," said a dressmaker. "If the little accidents that happen in the workroom were not mercifully concealed from the owners of rich gowns they would be sick with apprehension half the time. I had one customer who refused to accept a very expensive dress because a girl who assisted with the fitting dropped a pair of scissors, which fell point down and stuck in the floor. That meant an order for mourning within six months. The customer hoped that by refusing the hoodoo dress she could avert the calamity, but the precaution was useless. In less than three months her father was dead.

"Girls are especially particular in their work on wedding dresses, for if a tiny drop of blood from a pricked finger should fall on the gown the bride would surely die before the end of the year. Then there is green thread. Whether the customer is there to see it or not, no dressmaker will keep green thread near spools of another color. Green thread used for basting means the return of a dress for alterations, and there is enough trouble of that kind in a dressmaking establishment without deliberately bidding for it.

"Women who are themselves superstitious are never surprised or offended at a sewing girl's untidy coiffure. The girls tumble their hair about on purpose when working on a large order, for it is a sacred belief among dressmakers that a hair inadvertently worked into the garment shows that more work is coming soon from the same customer."—New York Sun.

A Hospital Nurse's Hands.

As an example of trademarks have you ever noticed the hands of the hospital nurse? The soft white hand which in fiction is occupied in cooling fevered brows does not exist and could not. It is a skilled hand, but its work makes it rough and chapped. Try bathing your hands in disinfectants twenty times a day and you will find that, look after them as you may, they will soon be seamed with cracks, which an east wind often turns to bleeding cuts. And as they are worked hard for some twelve or thirteen hours a day the nurse takes a somewhat larger size in gloves than most women. If you ever see the photograph of a hospital nurse you may observe that she prefers to keep those hands behind her back.—London Chronicle.

Longest Family Tree.

The biggest family tree in the world is believed to be the one which traces the genealogy of Queen Elizabeth back to King David and thence to Adam, or at least as near to Adam as one could get. The coat of arms is given in almost every case, with full particulars of the dates of births and deaths. The labor of providing coats of arms is abandoned before Methuselah's time, but the chart measures forty-five feet and certainly does take one through a maze of nobility.

An Afterthought.

"Ye-es," remarked a young husband at breakfast, "these biscuits are pretty good, but don't you think there ought to be a little more"—

"Your mother made them," interrupted the wife quickly.

—"of them?" ended the husband, with a flash of inspiration.

Man is his own star, and that soul that can be honest is the only perfect man.—Fletcher.

CHATTANOOGA

By Captain F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association

In another moment she was standing on the ladder with the tray in her hand, half her body below and half in the attic, regarding a handsome fellow looking very much like a gentleman in her brother's clothes. He in turn was regarding what he considered a very pretty picture in the half exposed figure of a young girl holding a tray in her hands on which he knew full well was a breakfast he was hungry for. Then he took the tray and laid it on the lounge.

It was the first time that Laura had seen Mark dressed becomingly. This was the man she had been instrumental in saving, the man she was protecting, the man she must exercise her wits to give an opportunity to get away to a land of safety from the halter. It was pleasant to see that he was good to look upon. What a fine brow, what a resolute mouth! Those locks are golden and fitted for a woman's head. The eyes are heavenly blue. And all this beauty holds a soul capable of plunging into the most frightful of dangers.

And this being, so dazzling to a young girl scarcely twenty, was in her power. Could she not at a word give him over to an ignominious death? And could she not by care almost certainly insure his freedom? He was her slave, bound to her far more securely than Alice, her maid, who had been given her by her father. She could order him to crawl on the floor before her, and he would have to do so. She had once seen a woman enter a cage of a lion with only a slender whip in her hand, and the huge beast had obeyed her slightest motion. Mark was her lion, and she felt inclined to give him just one touch of the whip to see what he would do. She stepped into the room and let down the trap.

"Miss Fain," Mark said, "you cannot have any conception of the fervor of my gratitude. You stand between me and death—not the death of a soldier, but of a felon. And here," pointing to the breakfast, "you are ministering to my wants with your own hands."

"And yet I told you not to come here."

"I did not understand you so. I am sure that you regret your kindness," he added, with almost a tremble in his voice.

"I did not say that I regretted it."

"But you remind me that it is not agreeable to you."

"How can it be? You are a Yankee—a spy—and on a mission to discover the movements of our troops."

"Why, then, do you not give me up?"

She shrugged her shoulders. "Can I turn executioner?"

"I see. I am indebted for my present safety to the fact that you do not care to do an unwomanly act."

"You must draw your own inference."

"But I should like to be grateful. How can I when you tell me that you do all this for me that your white hands may not have a stain upon them?"

"It is not necessary that you should feel grateful."

Mark studied her face for a moment earnestly. Then his manner changed.

"Miss Fain," he said, pointing, "take away the breakfast."

"Why so?" she asked, startled.

"I will not be under any further obligation to one who acts from pride rather than sweet charity. You have saved me from the hounds and from the gallows. Were it not for you I should now be either about to mount the scaffold or have passed by this time into that land where the only human attribute I can imagine as fitted to be there is charity. Whether the danger is now passed from this neighborhood I don't know, but I am going to risk it. I am going down stairs and out from under this roof."

"You will do no such thing!"

"I will!" And had she not placed herself between him and the trap he would have carried out his intention.

"Stay where you are!" she said in a voice in which there was something commanding.

"By what authority do you assume to direct me?"

"Your life belongs to me."

"True." He bowed his head.

"You understand me." She spoke with even more authority than before. "I own you. I own your life. You are my slave in a stronger sense than my colored girl."

"It is that ownership of human beings, Miss Fain, coming down to you from past generations, that has given you the spirit to tyrannize over me now."

"I tyrannize?"

There was a surprise that was not feigned. She did not realize what she was doing.

"Yes, never have I been so trodden upon as by you."

There was a submission in the young soldier's tone that satisfied the imperious girl. She was ready to heal the cuts she had given, but she waited for him to speak again.

"What do you wish me to do?" he asked.

"Remain where you are till I regard it safe for you to go."

"Then you have a desire for my safety?" he asked, looking up at her quickly.

"You came here unbidden and placed yourself in my hands. Do you think it proper to come and go at your pleasure?"

Mark approached her, and bending low took her hand and kissed it. There was something in the act to remind her of the lion—after the training.

It was scarcely more than fifteen minutes after Souri had bid Mark godspeed when old Triggs re-entered the prison grounds, and mounting the flight of steps leading to the second story went into the jail. No one seemed to be about the place. He entered his bedroom and found his wife dozing in her chair by the window. He asked for the colored girl, and his wife told him that she had not yet returned with the medicine. He waited, expecting every minute that she would come in. It occurred to him that perhaps the prisoner might be dead.

Taking up a tallow dip he went to the room where Mark was supposed to be confined. A figure was lying in the corner. The jailer went to it, and by means of the candle saw what he supposed to be the prisoner.

"Yank," he said, "air y' dead?"

No answer.

He took hold of the figure's shoulder and shook it.

Still no reply.

Turning Souri over he at once recognized the face of the "mulatto girl." In an instant he saw through the ruse that had been practiced. Without stopping to interrogate her, he rushed from the room past the sentinel at the door and out to the guardhouse. There he gave the alarm, and in a moment the whole guard was in motion.

Souri hoped that the sentinel at the door would join in the chase, in which event she intended to go to Jakey's room, get him out and attempt to escape. But the soldier only went as far as the door at the head of the long staircase. Then, remembering that he would doubtless be punished for letting one prisoner escape, and that there were several negroes in the "black hole" for him to guard, he went no farther.

In five minutes Souri heard the barking of hounds without.

No word was sent to headquarters regarding Mark's escape till the hounds had followed the scent to the river and there lost it. Then one of the guards was sent in to report the whole affair. Being an infantryman, he was obliged to walk, which took time. Cavalry was the only arm of the service capable of following the escaped man with a chance of success, and cavalry must be ferried across the river or ordered from Dallas, on the other side, ten miles above. The latter course was chosen, and two squadrons were directed to proceed at once, the one to throw a chain guard across the neck of Moccasin point, the other to scour the river bank for a distance of several miles below. Had there been any cavalry nearer, Mark would have had a very slender chance to get away. As it was, he barely escaped one of the squadrons.

About noon the provost marshal sent for Souri and Jakey with a view to gaining from them whatever he might concerning Mark's identity and his mission.

"Who are you?" he asked of Souri not unkindly.

"Missouri Slack."

"Where do you live?"

"On the Anderson road, not far from Jasper."

"And this boy?"

"He's my brother."

"When did you come from home?"

"Three days ago."

"What brought you, or how did you know that the prisoner was here and in jail?"

"Jakey sent me word."

"How?"

"He sent me a silk hankercher what I give t'other un."

"How did you send it, boy?"

"Niggers."

"Um."

"Well, you two are pretty young to be engaged in such mischief."

The officer looked at them with interest and vexation mingled.

"What do you think I ought to do with you?"

"Reckon y' mought gimme back my gun," said Jakey.

The officer could not repress a smile.

"What gun?"

"Th' one yer tuk t'other day."

"Go and get the boy's gun, orderly," he said to a soldier on duty at the door.

The gun was not to be found then, but was recovered later, and Jakey was happy in receiving it.

"Do you know what you've been doing?" the officer resumed, addressing Souri. "You've helped a spy to escape who will doubtless carry information to the enemies of your country."

Souri made no reply. She stood looking at the officer with her big black eyes. Fortunately for her, he had a daughter about her age.

Meanwhile some Tennesseeans who hailed from Jasper had been sent for, and they came in to have a look at the prisoners. Several of them recognized both Souri and Jakey, and told the marshal that they were what they pretended.

This and their youth, together with the fact that the provost marshal was not a harsh man, saved them from punishment.

The officers at headquarters were too busy to meddle with such a case. The provost marshal's communication was returned with the following indorsement:

Respectfully referred back to the provost marshal with authority to do with these prisoners as he thinks for the best interests of the service. The spy having escaped, it does not appear there is any reason to hold them.

The brother and sister were brought in again to hear what was to be their fate. Souri was aware of the enormity of her offense and expected a severe punishment. She had determined to beg the officer to send Jakey back to his parents, then he might punish her as he liked.

"Suppose I let you and your little brother go home," said the marshal, "will you go there and keep out of any interference in matters that concern the Confederacy hereafter?"

"I'll go home," said Souri.

"Well, I reckon you'd better go," replied the officer. Then to the guard: "Send the corporal here."

"Take these children," he said to that person when he arrived, "to the other side of the river and turn them adrift, and see that they don't get back here."

Souri's heart jumped into her throat for joy. Turning her expressive eyes on the officer, she said, "Thank you."

"Mr. Ossifer," said Jakey, "I thank y' fur gimmen me back my gun."

A smile broke over the faces of those present.

The next day the brother and sister arrived at home, and great was the rejoicing in the Slack family.

CHAPTER XI.

A SOUTH CAROLINA GEOLOGIST.

When the trap door of the attic had closed over Laura Fain after her interview with Mark he stood for a few minutes pondering on her strange treatment of him. Then he turned to the breakfast. He had eaten nothing since the evening before and the sight of the greater part of a fried chicken (it had been killed by Laura's orders for him only that morning) was especially grateful.

Soon after he had finished his breakfast a hand was extended through the trap, a pitcher of water and toilet articles were left and the dishes taken. At noon a meal was handed in by the same fair hand.

Though but two meals had been thus left, Laura began to perceive that she could not thus feed her charge without soon being discovered. When she took Mark's dinner to him she entered the attic and had him close the trap after her.

"It will not do for you to stay here much longer," she said. "My mother has already become suspicious that I have something on my mind, and I fear being detected carrying these meals. I dare not tell her all, and I dare not risk her discovering that you are here."

"I will go tonight."

"It will be sure capture for you to go. The negroes tell me that the country people are all out looking for the—the spy."

"I can't stay here and compromise you."

"I have a plan. This evening I will watch for an opportunity for you to go down stairs. You can introduce yourself as a guest, and though you will be every minute in danger you will be safer than here."

"And, in case I am discovered, will not be caught like a rat in a trap."

"You can appear as a traveler. You must have a hat. I will bring you one. At the first opportunity after dark I'll come to the trap and knock. Follow me down stairs. I don't think any one will recognize you in these clothes. They have been packed away since my brother went to Virginia a year ago. Mamma only saw you, when you were here before, after dark on the veranda, and—well, I think there will be a very good chance for you to play guest without detection."

"The servants?"

"They would never betray a Yankee. They think you are all coming down to free them, and they'll have nothing to do but lie in the sun."

"Not an unpleasant occupation on a pleasant day," said Mark irrelevantly.

"Should anything happen, I only fear mamma. And, after all, she is a woman," she added significantly.

"Which you pretend not to be."

"If all goes well you will be assigned a room—the guest chamber perhaps—and if it is not safe for you to be down stairs, you may feign to be ill and keep your apartment."

Mark was better pleased with the plan than remaining where he was. He did not expect to remain in the house longer than till the next night, when he hoped those who were seeking for him would become tired of the hunt and give him a chance for his life.

MISPLACED AFFECTION.

Tragic Story of a Snake Charmer and Her Pet Reptile.

Miss X., a snake charmer well known among show people, firmly believed that one of her snakes was really fond of her. She could do anything with it—fondle it, kiss and caress it.

She grew so fond of it that at last she even let it sleep on her bed, to the great disgust of the other performers in the show. She would eat her meals with this horrible thing coiled around her neck, and once, in very warm weather, she took it under her coat into the woods with her and let it amuse itself by crawling over the ground. She followed it about and kept a most careful watch over it (it was a valuable performer), but it showed no disposition to go off into the woods, as she feared it might, but came back to her and coiled round her as usual.

She was warned several times that the reptile was very dangerous, but she grew more and more reckless, and the snake appeared to become more and more attached to her.

And then one day without any warning, directly after a performance when she was caressing it in her own room, the snake suddenly threw back its head, looked at her steadily and with lightning-like swiftness struck her between the eyes, leaving two tiny punctures. She hastily uncoiled it and thrust it into its box, but she died within half an hour.—McClure's Magazine.

A HASTY MARRIAGE.

And the Bride Was Not the One the Wooer Sought.

Oliver Cromwell was so great a man that he dwarfed his surroundings, and it is singular how little the majority of people knew about the family and family life of this "the most typical Englishman of all time." He had three daughters, the youngest of whom was Frances. Her attractions must have been considerable. The young woman had several love affairs, but certainly the one that had a most amusing termination was her flirtation with her father's chaplain, Jerry White.

One day the protector surprised Jerry on his knees in the very act of kissing the lady's hand. Cromwell coldly demanded the meaning of the scene, and Jerry, with a pretty wit, exclaimed that he had long been courting "that young gentlewoman, my lady's woman," although without success. He was now thereby humbly praying her ladyship to intercede for him.

Cromwell turned at once to the waiting woman and requested to be informed why she refused the honor his friend, Mr. White, would do her. The young woman, fully equal to the occasion, replied magnanimously that if Mr. White intended her that honor she would not be so churlish as to deny him. "Call Godwin," returned Cromwell, and the pair were married straightway.

Feminine Strategy.

Her name is Amy, and she is one of the nicest young misses living on the upper west side. Her father concluded last week he would do something to encourage Amy in habits of industry. Therefore he offered to give her $5 if she would trim a hat for herself. She accepted the proposition and two days later appeared before her father wearing a hat of her own creation, and a very pretty hat it was too. Her father was delighted and handed over the $5 with real pleasure. The next day Amy, wearing another and still handsomer hat, met her father on the street. "And did you trim that one, too?" he asked, with manifest pride. "No," was the reply. "I bought this hat with the $5 you gave me and presented the other one to the janitor's little girl."—New York Press.

Setting an Example.

"Whether the hotel proprietor I lunched with the other day is a hero publicly maintaining his sincere convictions as an encouragement to others or a slave in his own domain I cannot determine," said the gray headed man. "I met him in the street not far from his hotel, and at his suggestion we lunched together. We ate in his own dining room. He tipped the waiter. We had checked our hats, and he tipped the boy in attendance.

"'Do you tip in your own hotel?' I gasped.

"'Always,' said he. 'It is as much trouble to wait on me as anybody else.'"—New York Sun.

Our Country.

Let our object be our country, our whole country and nothing but our country. And by the blessing of God may that country itself become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace and of liberty upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever.—Daniel Webster.

Punctuation.

Pupil—Which is the proper punctuation to use after the word "cash" when entered up in the ledger?

Teacher—Well, it's immaterial, but some people usually make a dash after cash.—New York Times.

Jealousy.

Nell—He swore I was the only girl he had ever loved. Belle—For my part, I don't care for amateurs.—Philadelphia Record.

Fear is far more painful to cowardice than death to true courage.—Sidney.

SPORTS OF TODAY

Plainfielder Wins Pool Match.

Robert Naylion, of this city, took the measure of "Punch" Mallison, of Perth Amboy, in a 125-point even pool match at Amos Stites' pool parlor on Somerset street last night. The score was 125-88. On account of the lateness of the hour, only 125 points were played instead of 200 points as was scheduled. A large crowd witnessed the match which was extremely slow, neither player being able to get a start and it was remarked that any amateur could have put up as good a game as these two men did last night.

Will Not Join the Orioles.

In an interview with The Daily Press last night, Eugene Lidgate, the former catcher on the Scotch Plains Central League nine, declared that there was absolutely no truth in the rumor that he was going with the Baltimore Eastern League club. Lidgate did say that he was tired of Scotch Plains—that is tired of sitting on the bench and letting Henry do it. He expects to sign up with McNulty Brothers, of New York city, or High Bridge team of the Central organization within a week. Liddie, however, still exists in Scotch Plains.

PETS AND SOMERVILLE IN THE BATTLE ROYAL

Games Tomorrow.
Plainfield at Somerville.
Bound Brook at Westfield.
Scotch Plains at High Bridge.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	W.	L.	Pc.
Plainfield	9	1	.900
Somerville	8	2	.800
Westfield	5	6	.455
Scotch Plains	4	7	.364
High Bridge	4	7	.364
Bound Brook	2	9	.182

It's going to be the fight of the league at Somerville tomorrow and provided the day is a clear one the leadership in the Central organization will be decided ere the sun sinks beneath the horizon not to rise again until Sunday morning. The Pets have won 9 and lost 1, while the County Seaters have taken 8 victories and suffered but 2 defeats. Consequently if the Pets lose they will be tied in the fight for the pennant throne by Somerville but if they win, they will have a long lead, which Somerville will have to shake itself to overcome.

Manager Dorflinger said last night that he would present the same lineup tomorrow as he did in the game against Scotch Plains with the exception of Mullen, who will be benched. Louis Hartman, who made such a hit with local fandom when he played short stop for the Pets the first part of the season, will be back on his old job tomorrow in full force. Hartman went with the Troy team of the New York State League after he left the Pets but he did not like baseball for a steady diet. He therefore returned to New York city, where he is practicing law, and informed Dorflinger that he would be able to join the Plainfielders again.

With Hartman back on the job, Dorflinger believes that his team is in first class condition now that Joe Harter's leg is getting better every day. Tommy Mullen was too weak with the stick although his fielding was top notch. Hartman is a more experienced player than Tommy and his batting is far more reliable. Brit Martin will be back on second and it is expected that he will give entire satisfaction with Hartman covering short stop.

"Red" Waller will be on the slab unless the unexpected happens and a pretty battle is anticipated between the Plainfield Peerless one and Jimmy Clinton, the Pride of Somerville. There is much dispute in the league circuit as to the respective merits of these two pitchers and their first game resulted in a 10 inning tie. There will also be some good back stop work with McCarthy, an old Fordham College star behind the bat for Somerville, while Walter Nelson, once the mainstay of the Rutgers College nine, will do the receiving for the Pets.

Plainfield's rooters are going to be on the job when Umpire Degnon shouts, "Play Ball" and it is expected that a record crowd will witness the game.

BAPTISTS TO FIGHT IT OUT IN SUNDAY-SCHOOL LEAGUE.

Games Tomorrow.
Monroe Avenue vs. Trinity.
Park Avenue vs. First Baptist.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

	W.	L.	Pc.
Monroe Avenue	5	0	1,000
Park Avenue	4	2	.667
First Baptist	2	4	.333
Trinity	0	5	.000

Although none of the teams in the city Sunday-school baseball league is to play for charity tomorrow afternoon, nevertheless some fast games will be seen. The Trinity bunch still has hopes and will make a fight on the Clinton avenue grounds to down the speedy Methodists from the Monroe Avenue church.

A hot contest is expected between the Park Avenue and First Baptist schools for the First church boys are clouting the ball a few at present and are determined to make trouble for the Parks. Hobson will undoubtedly occupy the slab for the Park team and it is possible that Harry aVn-Zandt will do the receiving work for him as soon as he can decide whether he is a Baptist or a Dutch Reformer.

DUNELLEN TO PLAY FOURTH GAME WITH C. R. R. NINE.

Dunellen will have a hard game tomorrow on the grounds in the Borough Peaceful when the fast team from the Central Railroad of Jersey will play its fourth game with the Dunellen boys. These two teams have fought three hard contests, Dunellen winning the first two and the Centrals taking the last one by the score of 6-1. In case the railroad magnates win tomorrow a rubber game will be played in the series before the end of the season. Pender, who has always been effective against Dunellen, will twirl for the visiting team tomorrow and Percy Harney will be on the mound for Dunellen. Ralph Shaw, a former Bound Brook star, will be back in the game again, covering the second sack for the Dunellenites.

The Misses Antoinette, Helen, Gertrude and Harriet Moody, and Miss Margaret Runyon, Mrs. Frederic T. VanAuken and Miss Theodora Miller, of this city, have returned after a week's camping at Lake Hopatcong.

BASEBALL.

Consolation thought for today—there's only one more day to wait to find out who will lead the Central League.

Welcome back again to our city, Lou Hartman. Everyone is glad to know that you will be back with the Pets for they need your services with the stick and your speedy work in the field.

Frederickson will have a hard proposition before him Sunday afternoon when he twirls for the McNulty team.

Scotch Plains and High Bridge are going to fight out their tie on the High Bridge grounds tomorrow afternoon and from all accounts it's going to be a game for blood. The teams are almost evenly matched, but with Deegan in the box, the Plains rooters think that their favorites have the better of the argument. The Hunterdon county boys are playing great ball now and expect to spring a surprise on the Scots.

Westfield is banking on putting Bound Brook still deeper in the ruck tomorrow and incidentally fattening the Mt. Arrarat average in the league race. Wiltse will be on the slab again for the tailenders and says that he hopes to make a better showing than was made last week.

Percy Harney and Herbert Stein are booked for the Dunellen battery at Dunellen against the C. R. R. of N. J. team tomorrow afternoon. Harney is delivering the goods in great shape and is a steady twirler with a good catcher behind him.

Will Degnon prove satisfactory at Somerville?

Beware of McDonald, Mr. Waller! He's liable to have a home run in his bat.

Red Sox Get Two Brocket Stars.

Boston, Aug. 11.—The Boston Americans yesterday acquired two New England League stars, members of the Brocton team, in exchange for three recruits and a cach bonus. Walter Lonergan, short stop, and Henriksen, the heavy-hitting outfielder, come to the Red Sox. Steve White, a pitcher for the Princeton University team this season; Giannini, a short stop, and Tracey Baker, a first baseman, formerly of the Pacific Coast League, go to Brocton.

Dover, Aug. 11.—William Pierson, a member of the Rockaway Township Committee, is hot-foot after the Board of Education of that township because it permitted a flagpole to be placed on the Mt. Furthermore, he asserts that he was present when the flagpole was placed and that while the job was in progress a keg of beer was on tap in the schoolhouse.

NUGENT EXPLAINS

Former Democratic StateChairman Says Recent Meeting Was Illegal.

HIS RIGHTS WERE IGNORED.

Not Ready to Say What He'll Do, But Declares His Allegiance to the Democratic Party.

James R. Nugent, chairman of the Democratic State committee of New Jersey until the Asbury Park meeting on Thursday, made a statement yesterday in which he offered an explanation of his side of the session. That a majority of the State committee resented in an emphatic manner the ingrate and liar toast to Governor Wilson did not seem to disconcert Mr. Nugent. He was found yesterday very busy over the legal matters of Newark, of which he is City Counsel.

"I'm too busy with the law business of the city of Newark to discuss politics," said Nugent at first. Then he decided to make a statement, and this is what he prepared:

"The meeting of members of the Democratic State committte was neither formally nor legally held. In the first place there was no authority for its calling. I had notified those members who were desirious of holding a meeting and who had joined in a request for me to issue a call that I would give them and the other members due notice of a meeting it was my intention to call in the near future.

Those members who are guided by a given and hostile hand were not content with my assurances and in violation of the courtesy they owed me as chairman they with the aid of William K. Devereaux, secretary of the committee, ignored my rights and arranged for a meeting.

I maintain that any action taken at that meeting was void and of no effect because of its irregularity. I am not ready at this time to say what my future course will be with respect to the situation that has developed in the State committee, but I shall at all times consider that the thing that is of primary importance always is the welfare of the Democratic party.

"The published accounts of the meeting in several of the newspapers are absolutely biased and untruthful so far as they relate to the dispute over the presence of William H. Kraft, of Camden. Mr. Kraft claimed to have a proxy from William J. Davis, the State committeeman from Camden. I called for that proxy, but Mr. Kraft did not present it. I had a right to question his presence there inasmuch as I had a letter from Mr. Davis, which I read to the committee, repudiating Kraft as his representative in the State committee.

Up to this point newspaper men and others had not been excluded from the committee room. There were less han twenty persons present besides the members of the State committee. While he dispute was in progress Mr. Crater, of Monmouth, made a motion to go into executive session. Then Mr. Crater and several others began jostling the spectators out. Mr. Kraft was jostled out with the rest. Certainly no violence was offered to him. He remained out and I refused to entertain a motion to let him in. I called Mr. Wills, of Burlington, to the chair while I addressed the committee.

"Mr. Wills entertained a second motion that was made to admit Kraft. Then I with Mr. Gallagher, of Mercer county left the room and immediately departed from the Coleman House. What occurred after that I do not know. When I left the room those who were outside crowded in and there was apparently general excitement. Nobody had offered either violence or insult to Kraft up to the time I left.

Proctor's New Show.

James J. Morrison & Co., will offer a protean dramatic sketch "The Verdict," at Proctor's theatre on oMnday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Mr. Morrison impersonates a number of characters with perfect ability. "The Captivators," will be presented by H. Fletcher Rivers. This is a clever act and well worth seeing. Rose & Adams will offer a comedy skit, "The Doctor's Chauffeur," and Hubert DeVeau, the novelty cartoonist, will please both old and young. Pictures of the Elk's parade will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday.

Charged with Disorder.

Mrs. Bridget Doron, of West Third street, who was arrested Thursday afternoon on a disorderly complaint preferred by Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, of the Charity Organization Society, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court yesterday afternoon and sentenced to pay a fine of $15 or be committed to the county jail for a term of 30 days. She paid.

DEMOCRATS PRAISE PRESIDENT TAFT

The Plainfield Democratic Club at its meeting this week, adopted resolutions endorsing the efforts of President Taft in behalf of the adoption of the Peace agreement, and it was also voted to send a copy of the same to the President as an evidence of respect and appreciation of the great work he has done in this respect. The resolutions follow:

"Resolved, That in negotiating the arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France, President Taft has opened a new era of great promise and performed a notable service to the world and particularly to this country, and deserves the heartfelt thanks of every liberty loving person, every lover of Democracy, in that uninterrupted peace means uninterrupted progress, and the ultimate dominance of those great Democratic principles on which this government is founded, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to Senator Martine with the hope that he will use his best endeavors to bring about a speedy ratification by the Senate of these arbitration treaties: and be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to President Taft as an evidence of our respect and our appreciation of the great work he has done in promoting the abolition of war between civilized nations."

The discourse will be complete with citations. Mr. Hirsh is an entertaining speaker, as those who have heard him before can testify. The seats will be free and no collection will be taken. The public is invited.

WILL TAKE 400 MILE TRIP ON WHEELS

George Morrison, of Plainfield avenue and Walter Kenedy, of New street, will leave Monday morning on their bicycles for a trip through Connecticut and New York States, passing through Stamford, New Haven and up the Conecticut River to Hartford, crossing the State of Connecticut to New York and down the Hudson River to New York city, covering a distance of about 400 miles.

While both young men have ridden their bicycles a great deal, this will be the longest trip either one has taken and they anticipate much pleasure going and coming. They will stop enroute when tired and will put up at different points on the trip. The distance does not have to be covered in any specified time and in consequence will afford all the more pleasure.

Neuman Bros. Unfortunate.

Neuman Brothers were particularly unfortunate yesterday in the loss of one of their delivery wagons and a number of grocery orders that were in the wagon at the time it was wrecked. When the driver was going through Putnam avenue, the horse became frightened at a steam roller working on the street. It finally passed the roller but on the return trip, the horse suddenly turned, upsetting the wagon, spilling the orders and driver in the street and damaging the wagon. Freed of its load, the horse ran several blocks before being caught.

F. H. Andrews will be the speaker at the service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, and the soloist will be Miss Madeline Metzler, a member of the children's choir, who has shown marked ability and special talent as a singer. The children's choir will also sing.

Next week promies to be the banner one at the home. Monday evening L. H. Biglow, a former resident of this city, who was prominent in the work at the First Baptist church, will speak to the children and friends. CLAN MACKENZIE WINS THIRD PRIZE

A fifteen dollar prize has been awarded to Clan Mackenzie, of this city, this being the third prize given by the Royal Clan of the Order of Scottish Clans for the largest percentage of members added for the term ending June 30. The check has been forwarded to William Spaulding, treasurer of Clan Mackenzie.

The awarding of this prize to the local clan is a distinctive honor as it is but an infant, not yet being a year old and entitled to third prize in open competition with all other clans in the United States and Canada. It will no doubt be encouraging to the members and will stimulate their efforts in trying for the first prize which is offered for the term now entered upon.

ENDEAVORERS FAVOR ARBITRATION TREATIES

The Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union learning that there has developed some opposition in the United States Senate to the ratification of the arbitration treaties, at a meeting, last night, put itself on record as favoring the proposition, and drafted the following letter which has been sent to United States Senator James E. Martine at Washington :

"Hon. James E. Martine,
Washington, D. C.:

"Dear Sir:—It is reported that there will be opposition in the United States Senate to the ratification of the arbitration treaties signed recently by President Taft and representatives of the governments of England and France.

"We believe that Ney Jersey's Senators aim to represent the enightened progressive public opinion of this State and not a favored few who would receive pecuniary profit from a continuance of the barbarities of war.

"We therefore, respectfully urge you to do all in your power to secure the ratification of the peace pacts.

"Yours very truly,
"Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union

STATE SECRETARY KOEHLER TO SPEAK HERE TOMORROW.

The second of the mid-summer sessions of the Park Avenue Baptist Bible School is to be held tomorrow morning at 9:45. The color scheme of this session will be white, and bunting and flowers will be used in decorating the room. Superintendent George E. Hall is making special effort to have the August session particularly pleasing and has planned a different program for each of the four Sundays.

The features of tomorrow's program include a visit from Louis H. Koehler, Secretary of the New Jersey Sunday-school Association. This is the first time Mr. Koehler has had an opportunity of attending the session of this school, and his talk to the teachers and children will be listened to with much interest. Another attractive feature of the program will be the singing of Mrs. Ferdinand M. Ward, of this city, who will render two solos during the session. The exercises begin promptly at 9:45 and a cordial invitation to be present is extended to any one not conected with any other school.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Smith and daughter, Miss Helen Smith, of Central avenue, are registered at the Grand Central, Asbury Park for the remainder of the season.

LAST DAY IN CAMP

State Militia Leave Sea Girt After Most Successful Encampment.

MEN GIVEN SEVERE DRILLING.

General Edwin W. Hine and Staff Host at Dinner Given at Brigade Headquarters Last Night.

Camp Wilson, Sea Girt, Aug. 12.—Under the broiling hot sun, making the work seem almost as if they were in actual service in the tropics, the commands in camp worked out yesterday by far the most comprehensive manoeuvre that has ever been attempted at Sea Girt. Several of the men had minor prostrations, and the hospital corps was kept busy for the entire day getting them back into shape. The maneuvre lasted from seven in the morning until early in the afternoon, a period of seven hours elapsing from the time they left camp until they returned, and it was a weary and wilted group of men that finally returned to the company streets to rest for two or three hours before going out on parade.

Hill 109 on the topographical map of the country was the centre of the conflict, and it was defended by the First and Second troops, two companies from the Fourth regiment and two guns from Battery B. The attaking army was made up of the other ten companies of the regiment and two guns from the battery. Round after round of ammunition was fired as the two commands approached each other, and the effect was most realistic for the few spectators who braved the hot sun to watch the action. Each section had a hospital corps with it, and when the heat became too much for any of the men they were treated on the field, while others were brought into camp by automobiles which happened to be on the ground. No decision was rendered on the battle.

While the manoeuvre was in progress fire started in a house about three hundred yards from camp. All of the men who had not gone out to the field of action and who were on guard duty rushed to the scene of the blaze and they managed to get nearly every piece of furniture out of the house. The direction of the wind was the only thing that saved the property for the Manasquan fire apparatus did not reach the scene for fifteen minutes, and then the water pressure was very poor. The soldiers helped man the hose, and did invaluable service in getting the blaze under control.

Yesterday was practically the last day of the camp for the season of 1911. The official closing does not come until about noon today, but there will be no more work for the men, except getting the canvas pulled down and cleaning up the camp ground prior to departure. Special trains will convey the Fourth regiment to Jersey City, the First troop to Newark and Battery B to Camden, but the Second troop, counted by many the "most military" organization in the State, will march to its home station, Red Bank, about thirty miles north of Sea Girt.

Governor Wilson braved the rigors of a hot sun, and wearing a high hat and a frock coat, with the officers of his command in full dress uniforms, went to Long Branch, where he was the chief guest at the annual carinval. He returned late in the afternoon. He will try to get a little rest after the end of camp, but will go ahead with the plans for the annual conference of Governors, which begins one month from today at Spring Lake.

General Edwin W. Hine and staff were the host last night at a dinner at brigade headquarters at which Quartermaster General C. Edward Murphy and others were the guests. Vivian M. Lewis, who ran against Governor Wilson and who is in camp as a visitor with Major Edward T. Moore, of the brigade staff, was at the dinner.

Last night was the usual "last night" horse play, in which every one participated, from the staff officers down, and much amusement was caused for those who happened to be in camp. There was a final band concert at the headquarters of Colonel Brinkerhoff, of the regiment, which attracted many spectators.

Edward Stranzenback Arrested.

Edward Stranzenback, arrested Thursday on complaint of his wife, was arraigned before Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court yesterday afternoon and under a suspended heavy jail sentence was ordered by the court to pay his wife $14 every two weeks and leave drink alone.

Miss Harriett Knox, of Pittsburgh, but formerly of this city, is visiting her sister in town this week.

WITNESSED BIG AVIATION MEET

Charles C. Powell, of Mercer avenue, the borough, has just returned from a six weeks' delightful trip in England and France, being accompanied on the trip home by his mother, Mrs. William Powell, of New Orleans. They returned home by the Canadian route, which proved unusually pleasant. While abroad, Mr. Powell witnessed the big aviation meet at Oatland's Track, in which there were eighteen starters. The event was won by a Frenchman. Mr. Powell says that it was a wonderful sight and one that he will never forget.

Mr. Powell says that he was much impressed with the unusual dry spell of weather abroad, the customary green lawns showing to a marked degree the effects from a lack of rain. The trip was partially pleasure and partially business, and altogether was very pleasant. Mrs. Powell will return to her home in New Orleans in the fall.

REV. DR. SWAFFIELD AT UNION SERVICE

Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swaffield, of Lawrence, Mass., will be the speaker at the union service in the Trinity Reformed church tomorrow night. His subject will be "Three Spiritual Mysteries." Dr. Swaffield is a Baptist preacher of some note and it is expected that a large congregation will be present at the union service. The boys' choir of the Netherwood Reformed church, under the direction of Horace J. Martin, Sr., will render several musical selections.

In the morning Rev. Dr. Swaffield will occupy the pulpit of the First Baptist church. His subject for his sermon at this service will be "The New Testament Pentateuch."

H. W. TURNER ENGAGED TO A CRANFORD GIRL

The engagement of Miss Teressa Vreeland Brackebush, of Cranford, to Herbert William Turner, of Proctor's theatre, this city, was announced at a bridge whist party in Cranford this week. Mr. Turner was a former resident of Winthrop, Mass., near Boston, and then lived in Cronford for a short time. For the past two years he has resided on Washington avenue.

Mrs. Aberel Canda, of Willow street, Cranford, gave the bridge whist party at which the engagement was announced. Eighteen of Miss Brackebush's young women friends were present at the affair, which was a most enjoyable one and the arrangements for which were extremely appropriate to the occasion, a color scheme of pink and white being carried throughout.

SON OF COUNCILMAN W. L. SMALLEY IN RAILROAD WRECK.

Councilman and Mrs. W. L. Smalley, of Greenbrook road, received word yesterday from their son Ralph, who left here last Monday for a few weeks' visit with a friend at Riverside, Pa., that on Tuesday morning, while at breakfast in the dining car, it jumped the track. Ralph says that when the wheels and rails parted company he was reaching for a roll. It was thrown out of his reach and brought up against the opposite side of the car.

The train was stopped after running several hundred yards and the dining car was replaced after considerable difficulty. It was quite an experience for the young man and one he does not care to go through again.

HOPE CHAPEL FOLK ENJOY DAY AT SHORE.

The annual excursion of Hope chapel to Asbury Park today took the usual large number of happy, enthusiastic people, intent on partaking freely of the pleasures of the shore resort. The excursion was run in two ten-car sections and nearly all the seats in each car held two or more neatly dressed youngsters with a kindly parental eye watching over them from across the aisle or the seat behind.

That the clean starched clothes will suffer somewhat when the joys are entered upon, is expected and whatever the appearance on the return trip, when going the children presented a pleasing sight.

FAIR SKIES FOR G. O. P. OUTING

If there were any who waited until this morning to see how the weather was before making up their minds about going on the Republican outing, none of them remained at home on this account. As the clans were gathering at the North Avenue Station, each congratulated the other on the ideal day for the frolic. There were no glances cast askance at the skies. Instead, as the smoke drawn from fragrant weeds was exhaled heads were tilted backwards giving the eyes a straight focus on the clear blue dome above. Rocking from heel to toe the loyal G. O. P. sighed contentedly and remarked that the weather man was with the party any how.

Among those in the party were Chairmen F. H. Smith and J. H. Cose and Chief MacDuff, former Mayor Buckle, Charles Matt, Councilmen Buxton and Gloak; Charles Dunham, James Stewart, Col, Frank DeWitt Randolph, Judge William G. DeMeza, John King, J. J. Williams, J. P. Burd, Fred Hand, John Flynn, John Mortimer, Theodore Martin, Harry Runyon, Alex. Ayers, Andrew McCardle, Joseph Clark, J. Henry Crane, Roger Murray, W. S. Angleman, F. J. Blatz, Thomas Buckley, John Bowman, Henry Brentnall, Harey Strayer, Judge William Newcorn, Howard Woolston, Postmaster E. H. Bird, and a number of others.

CITY AMBULANCE AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS

In compliance with a resolution passed by the police committee of the Common Council last week, the ambulance was transferred from the Plainfield Cab Co., to police headquarters today and in the future will be kept there if the present arrangement, which is in the nature of an experiment, works out successfully. The change is made at the request of the Board of Managers of Muhlenberg Hospital with a view of maintaining prompt and efficient ambulance service in case of necessity.

The advisability of keeping the ambulance under the supervision of the police department has often been urged, as many times in the past the patrol wagon has been pressed into service as a conveyance for injured in emergency cases. The chance of any conflict by reason of the patrol horse being used to haul the ambulance is slight and does away with an item of expense to the hospital every time the wagon is called.

The public is requested to 'phone to police headquarters or the hospital whenever the ambulance is needed in cases of accidents. In cases of sickness where the ambulance is needed to remove the patient to the hospital, or any other cases, not emergency, the physician in charge of the case will know the necessary proceedure to secure ambulance service. This part of the wagon's usefulness will not in any way be curtailed or interferred with by reason of the change.

THREE CASES HEARD IN BOROUGH COURT

Three cases were heard by Recorder Charles M. Dolliver in the Borough Court this morning, all of them being the result of too much liquor.

John Richards, a brick layer, who said that his home was in Newark, was arrested for being drunk last night by Marshal L. A. Pope. Upon his promise to leave the borough, his sentence was suspended.

Martin Brandt, of Chatham street, was taken to the borough jail last night on complaint of his wife and several of the neighbors in the vicinity, who declared that they were disturbed by the noise from Brandt's house. Marshals Pope and Herrmann arrested the prisoner. It was brought out in court this morning that Brandt had been drinking and that he had started the trouble because his stepson remained out too late at night. Sentence was suspended with a warning.

Andrew Carroll, of Duer street, who was arrested last evening by Chief Marshal George Keiss for being drunk and making a disturbance at the home of his father-in-law on Duer street, was fined $3.

BOARD OF SEVEN

Movement On Foot to Reduce the Membership of Board of Freeholders.

DEMOCRATS WANT A CHANGE.

It is Reported That the Question Will Be Submitted at the Coming Election This Fall.

The fact that there is a movement on foot to reduce the Board of Freeholders to seven members, has aroused considerable interest among members of the board. It is said that the movement was started by Democrats in the county, who are not pleased with the present arrangements. Steps have already been taken to secure signers to a petition to submit to a referendum vote at the coming election, the question or reducing the Board of Freeholders to seven members instead of the twenty members of which it is now composed. This reduction comes under an act of the Legislature passed in 1902, to which the Strong act of this year is an amendment. Should the referendum be submitted and meet with a favorable vote the present Board of Freeholders will have its term of office curtailed.

The act of 1902, chapter 34, provides in its various sections that a county in which the population is from 100,000 to 200,000 shall have a Board of Freeholders consisting of seven members. The adoption of this act is required to be submitted to a referendum vote at any election for members of the General Assembly held after the passage of the act, and that a petition therefor, signed by at least five per centum as evidenced by the total number of votes cast at the the next preceding election for members of the General Assembly shall be filed with the county clerk, and of this submission to a referendum vote the same notice shall be given as is required for the general election. The legal votes of the majority of the electors in the county may at such election decide upon the acceptance or rejection of the act.

It is provided that the official ballots shall be marked with two propositions for an against the reduction of the number of freeholders, opposite to which the voters put their marks according to their desire in the matter.

The precise movers behind the attempt to secure the signers to the petition are not definitely known, though it is not thought that the present Democratic members of the board are directly concerned. It is rumored that Democrats in the city who are not satisfied with the action of the freeholders in certain matters affecting Elizabeth are circulating the petition. However, this may be, it is understood, that all the signers required under the law will be secured and that there is little doubt that the question will be submitted in referendum at the polls this fall.

Should the vote of the people be favorable to a reduction of the Board of Freeholders to seven members, their actual election will go over until the election for members of Assembly next succeeding the present election. The selection of seven freeholders will not be by districts as under the old law, but they will be elected from candidates at large throughout the county. Should the reduction be approved by the voters, the present board will be legislated out of office, as the terms of only three of them will expire before the election at which the seven new members would be elected.

BENDER ARRESTED FOR VIOLATION OF HEALTH CODE.

Moses Bender, of Somerset street, was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the borough court yesterday on complaint of Health Officer Louis Oliff, who charged Bender with having ignored instructions in regards to a cesspool vault. The health officer served a notice on Bender condemning the vault and Bender said that he would make arrangements to have closets installed in his building. This he had failed to do and in violation of the condemnation proceedings persisted in using the old vault.

Recorder Dolliver explained the law to Bender and warned him in the future to respect the orders coming to him from the health department or any other branch of the government. Bender asked for time to make the needed repairs and was given until Wednesday to do so.

Reading from left to right: Top row (one) Group at the pavilion at Country Home; (second) Deserted baby that was found near Embree Crescent and who is being cared for; (third) Taking a dive at the Orphanage Home pond. Bottom row—(fourth) In swimming; (fifth) Duke and some of his pals.

At the Children's Country Home, at Mountainside, which has been aptly styled a monument to local charity, thirty crippled children are enjoying the health giving and cooling zephyrs that waft over the picturesque Watchung range on these days of sweltering heat. The children for the most part are from the Home for Crippled Children in Newark and the tempered rays of Old Sol combined with the invigorating breezes that unobstructed find their way at all times of the day to the living apartments of the little ones are working wonders in helping them recover their shattered health.

In addition to receiving the benefits of natures remedies, the guests are under the matronly supervision of Mrs. Emily Schwartz and an able corps of assistants. That a number of the latter are necessary will be realized when it is remembered that nearly all of the children are crippled; quite a few of them are in plaster casts and can only get about when helped. The cases are nearly all considered of a curable nature and are the result of spine or hip trouble.

The best medicine for this sort of ailment is plenty of good mountain air, sunshine and a moderate amount of exercise. That this treatment has been more successful than medicine has been demonstrated many times and a marked improvement is noticed in nearly all of the cripples since their arrival at the home. Even those bound up in plaster forget their physical infirmities in watching the others romp about in the sunshine.

"Early to bed and early to rise." is the motto of the Home. The small children are put to bed at 5:30 and the older ones follow at 7:30 o'clock. The "get up" bell rings at 6:30 a. m. and breakfast is served at 7 o'clock.

Then the day's frolic begins. The boys and girls and their faithful old pal "Duke," and affectionate dog, scatter about the spacious grounds under the trees, play baseball, toss the bean bag, and occupy the swings.

One of the favorite pastimes is "playing hospital." The headquarters for this pastime is in the pavilion. The little boys are generally the patients while the girls delight in being nurses.

Mrs. Schwartz is a lovable mamma to all the children. Those who have been at the Home in previous years have grown to love her as she administers to them in their happiness and periods of pain. Mrs. Schwartz has been in charge of the institution thirteen years during which time she has cared for more than 3,000 children.

Not the least interesting of the children is the little baby boy found five weeks ago deserted in a patch of woods near Embree Crescent, Westfield. The youngster has become a prime favorite since his arrival at the home, although he has given the matron no little concern regarding his disposal. Barring occasional fits of infant trouble he is a model child and is thriving on the treatment being given him. The little waif has not been named as yet although numerous names have been suggested. Mrs. Schwartz is loath to put the foundling in a state home, but would far rather let some worthy family adopt him and select what to them seems a proper name.

TRAVELED 22,000 MILES AT A COST OF $4.10.

Newburgh, N. Y., Aug. 12.—James J. Doran, twenty years old, of this city, known throughout the country as the "Penniless Tourist," reached Newburgh Thursday after having covered 22,000 miles, with a total expenditure for carfare of $4.10.

Doran left Newburgh on December 29, 1909, and hit the railroad to New York. He didn't travel over the ties either, but his fare cost him nothing. From New York he went on a schooner to Brunswick, Ga., jumped to Florida via the "brake beam" route and after getting jobs as bellhop in various hotels he wanted to see the West, so he took the train for the Pacific slope and stayed three months in exploring California and other States along the Pacific, traveling around from Seattle to 'Frisco. He went to Honolulu and the other islands of the Pacific before he decided to come East again.

He was arrested only twice, notwithstanding the fact that he had to beg meals and beat his way on railroad trains. Once he was nabbed in Texas for standing on a street corner and again he was "cooped" in Colton, Cal., for being out of doors after the curfew rung. He only paid his way when it was a sure case of going to jail if he did not. He went through the Canadian provinces in the same way.

Doran says the prettiest girls in the States reside in Birmingham, Ala., and in Portland, Ore. The most democratic city in the country is Santa Barbara, Cal., where he once saw the Mayor, the chief of police, a Chinese laundryman and a professional tramp all eating together in a restaurant.

THANSKGIVING DAY ON NOVEMBER 30 THIS YEAR.

Washington, Aug. 12.—President Taft will designate Thursday, November 30, as Thanksgiving Day this year. It always has been the custom to fix the last Thursday in the month. This year there had been some doubt because November happened to include five instead of four Thursdays.

The White House has been besieged by theatrical managers and those in charge of college football games to settle this doubt so that definite arrangements could be made for the usual array of special performances and sports that mark the day.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Plainfield People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick,cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's disease, or dropsy. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Plainfield.

Miss Lena Wahl, 335 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I can endorse Doan's Kidney Pills highly. They did me so much good when I was suffering from pains in my back caused by disordered kidneys that I think there is nothing like them. The promptness with which Doan's Kidney Pills disposed of my trouble was surprising and gratifying. They not only removed the pain and lameness but strengthened my kidneys."

LIVED TOGETHER SEVEN YEARS WITHOUT TALKING.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 12.—That they lived together as husband and wife for seven years without speaking to each other, their only communication being by means of written notes, was one of the statements made by Mrs. Ellen Klitgaard in her application for a divorce from Carl E. Klitgaard, a maritime engineer.

This silence, she declared, was enforced by her husband, who ceased speaking to her soon after their marriage in Redwood City in 1903. He would not even receive the notes from her hand, compelling her to leave them in a designated place. One day she wrote to him:

"How long are you going to keep this up?"

"Forever," was the written reply. "I want you to get a divorce."

This she declined to do, but changed her mind when Klitgaard removed the furniture from their Berkley home, compelling her and her baby to sleep on the floor.

BILL AWAITS THE VETO.

Measure Sent to White House, Where Its Fate is Assured.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Speaker Clark and Vice-President Sherman yesterday signed the bill for the admission to Statehood of Territories of New Mexico and Arizona.

It now goes to the President, who is expected to return it with a veto message declaring his unalterable apposition to the judiciary recall provision of the Arizona Constitution.

Miss Florence Coons, of Duer street, is spending two weeks visiting at the home of Miss Amanda Matthews, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Nyack, N. Y.

Consolation thought for today—Even if Somerville does win this afternoon, the Somerset County Seaters will not be ahead of the Pets.

The Scotch Plains rooters think that their team will win from High Bridge today. What do you think about it?

With Walter Nelson, who is a civil engineer, to stake out foul lines, and with Lou Hartman, who is a lawyer in New York, to do the argument work with Degnon, the Pets should stand some show of winning from the Somerville gang this afternoon.

The Sunday-school lesson for this afternoon is found in the record books of the baseball games. And we wonder as we go galloping to press if this same text doesn't invade the lessons on Sunday, for you know that all the players have to attend the services. But do they?

There is no more enthusiastic baseball fan in this vicinity than Manager Bogardus, of the Dunellen club. For several years past he has spent much of his valuable time and in some cases much of his own money to promote the National Game in the Borough Peaceful. He always manages to turn out a speedy team although he is severely handicapped by lack of financial support. The team this year has proved to be a winning one and has made a remarkable record of victories so far. You're a true sport, Bogardus, and good luck to your team!

Now if the First Baptists should win and the Parks should lose this afternoon—oh, what's the use of any dope—the Monroes are too far ahead to be worried about!

They say alas that Jack Dingwall will not change any more date lines for the Union County Herald despite his knocks on our beloved Willie Cass for the same. All of which goes to prove that he who laughs last, laughs best.

Some great philosopher has said, 'Hitch your wagon to a star and if it be the water wagon, tie it to the great dipper." Evidently this is the case with Scotch Plains.

The Plainfield lawyers are getting their legal wings in shape now under the coaching of J. Henry Crane and the advice of several other counsels and it looks as though they would be ready to meet The Daily Press Scribes and Type slingers ere many moons have become full and put in the cooler. But ye scribes are ready with their lamps burning. Step up and get your oil now and avoid the rush.

Waller and Clinton, Pitchers and Twirlers—positively no hits on credit.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

John J. Daly is back from the other side with the news that America need entertain no fears that our athletes will be beaten at next year's Olympiad. The Irish-Americans' champion steeplechase runner spent the greater part of his six weeks' trip looking over the best athletic material to be found in European countries, and was unable to discover any requisite number of cinder path artists who could give our boys any kind of a fight at Stockholm.

The statement made time and time again that this country didn't possess as classy a lot of long-distance runners as our brethren across the high seas was ridiculed by Daly. He believe they haven't got as good a bunch as some of those rapidly coming to the front in Greater New York. He advises us not to worry about the other events, especially the jumps and hurdles.

Harry Hillman, who has charge of the Dartmouth College track team says that he will specialize Gus Braun, the former Newark High School hurdler, in the 400-meter hurdles.

President James E. Sullivan, of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., will referee the all-around championships at Chicago today.

Trainer Lawson Robertson will open the Irish-American training table at Celtic Park next Monday. He has thirty-five candidates to condition for the senior and the Canadian championships, both of which are to be held in September.

Ernie Hjirtberg, who is training the Swedish athletes for the Olympic games, promises to spring a few surprises in the pole vault on the Americans. It is rather doubtful, however, whether Ernie will hold to his promise if E. T. Cook, of the Cleveland Athletic Club, makes that trip to Sweden. In the national championships at Pittsburg, Cook came within an ace of clearing thirteen feet.

Eddie Pritchard, the Newark athlete, who has carried the colors of the New York Athletic club to the front in the hurdle races for the past three years, has secured his release from that organization and has joined the ranks of the Irish-American A. C. When asked his reason for quitting the Winged Foot organization, Pritchard said that it was simply his desire to come under the tutelage of Coach Lawson Robertson.

Rose Pitinof, the little Boston girl who last season established a long distance swim record by swimming from New York to Coney Island, will attempt to repeat this feat tomorrow, starting from East Twenty-sixth street and finishing at Steeplechase Park pier.

GIRL'S LONG DROP WITH PARACHUTE.

Atlantic City, Aug. 12.—Miss Adelaide Schwiker, a pretty Philadelphia girl, who is spending the summer with her parents in a cottage in Chelsea, went up in a balloon with Chubby Cook Thursday afternoon and dropped with a parachute when she was about 500 feet in the air.

The young woman landed safely on the lawn of the Hotel Shelburn, and while she was just a little bit frightened at first she soon recovered her composure, said she liked it and would try it again.

Cook sailed up until he had reached a height of nearly 2,000 feet before he cut away. He landed in the ocean and was picked up in a boat.

FISH FOUGHT FOR 17 HOURS.

Avalon, Catalina Island, Aug. 12.—C. B. Stockton, of Los Angeles, ended the longest battle with a leaping tuna on record, when, Thursday, for seventeen hours, ending at 8:50 o'clock, Stockton fought with the fish.

When it finally was gaffed by Captain C. Farnsworth, a mile from Avalon Pier, Stockton was completely exhausted. The tuna weighed 170 pounds. Thousands watched the fight from the beach.

ARTISTS AWARDED SIX CENTS' VERDICT

William Saiff and Max Kaplan, partners trading as the Art Decorating and Paper-hanging Company, of New Brunswick, were awarded a verdict of six cents in their contract suit against Alexander Kane, formerly of this city, which was tried before Judge Woodbridge and a jury in the District court at New Brunswick, yesterday.

The action involved a claim for $242 alleged to be due the plaintiffs for labor and materials furnished in re-decorating Mr. Kane's house on Benner street, and it was established that mechanics in the employ of Messrs. Saiff and Kaplan had worked on the Kane premises for five days in the early part of June last.

The plaintiffs asserted that they were driven from the work by Mr. Kane and feared to attempt the completion of their contract, a written instrument which was offered in evidence.

Mr. Kane, who was represented by Warren R. Schenck and Arthur V. Schenck, declared that he had informed the workmen that they must do over a large part of the work that had been poorly done and this caused them to quit the job.

A number of witnesses were called by both sides and the verdict of six cents was returned by the jury after a half hours' deliberation. Mr. Kane has a counter suit against the Art Company for damages done his house and its contents.

On Thursday the members of the Club visited Long Branch, where they witnessed the Firemen's and Business Men's parade at that place. From there they went to Asbury Park to meet the excursion of the Knights of Columbus. One hundred clams were dug by the campers yesterday afternoon in about two hours work.

CARRIER'S HORSE STOLEN.

Metuchen's Centre is Favorite Stamping Ground for Thieves.

Metuchen, Aug. 12.—Despite the fact that two burly policemen were patrolling Main street in the immediate vicinity of the bank, postoffice and railroad depot all Thursday night the horse of Rural Letter-carrier Peter T. Kempson is lost, strayed or stolen. Yesterday the police knew nothing of the horse and had taken no steps to trace the animal. The horse was kept in the stable of the Lyric Theatre. Last winter over 150 chickens were stolen from a coop in this same vicinity. Inside of two weeks recently, there were eight residences of the borough visited by burglars and at a number of the houses they got away with considerable booty. The letter-carrier had to get a horse from a local livery to serve rural route No. 2 yesterday morning.

This particular locality is a stamping ground for robbers. Thrice the postoffice was robbed and the robbers made a clean getaway. They also entered the ice cream store of Charles Starkey. Very recently the proprietor of the Lyric Theatre found the doors open in the morning, they having been forced during the night.

"Thy Kingdom Come"

The Editor-Preacher Will Lecture in Plainfield Tomorrow Afternoon.

Editor R. H. Hirsh, of New York, lecturing for the International Bible Students' Association, is to be here Sunday, when he will deliver a discourse in the W. C. T. U. Hall, 100 Madison avenue, at 3 o'clock on the subject, "Thy Kingdom Come."

Editor Hirsh has spent many years as a Bible student, in research along dispensational lines—quite a novel method of approaching the Scriptures—a method known only to those who wish to "search the Scriptures" deeply.

The discourse will be replete with citations—a "thus saith the Lord" for every statement. That those attending will find themselves possessed of a better knowledge of the real meaning of the Bible than they had before hearing this lecture is the experience of thousands who have heard Mr. Hirsh on this and other topics.

Seats, free, no collection. The citizens of Plainfield will be heartily welcome.

"JUSTICE" MUNDY'S FIGHT WITH A SNAKE

Miss Minnie Spencer, of Coontown, had an experience on the "dog-watch hollow road" Thursday afternoon that she will long remember. She was returning on foot to her home and was near the patch of dense woods through which the road passes when she was confronted by a monster rattle snake which her foosteeps had aroused from its slumber.

She noticed the snake at about the same time it saw her. At first sight it was stretched, lazily basking in the warm sunshine, but at sight of Miss Spencer it wound into a coil, the ugly head waving and darting from side to side, while the tail was elevated and the danger signal was sounded by the rattlers.

Miss Spencer was terror stricken and was afraid to run away as she felt that the snake would give chase and overtake her so she did a most natural womanly thing. She screamed.

"Justice" Charles Mundy was at work in a field nearby and had noticed Miss Spencer when she passed. Hearing the screams he left off hoeing and ran to the end of the row, taking the five rail fence without slackening his pace and still holding the hoe. It took him but a moment to take in the situation, and, but a little longer to reach the scene of what was to be the deadly combat, for he was intent on taking the snake's life.

Turning its attention from Miss Spencer, the snake focused Justice Mundy with its baleful eyes, the forked tongue hissing in and out as the pointed, flattened head darted from side to side and the ominous buzzing of the raised tail continued. Pausing only long enough to reassure Miss Spencer, Justice Mundy raised the hoe. The first swing missed and the snake struck, burying its fangs in the leather top of one of the squire's boots. Before it could recoil to strike he swung the hoe again. This time his aim was better, the keen edge neatly severing the head from the snake's body.

Looking around to see how Miss Spencer was faring, her rescuer saw that his work was not yet through for she had swooned and was lying in the dust of the roadway. Carrying her to the shade of a tree, he went to a nearby brook for water. There was no other means of carrying any back so he filled his hat. Several trips were necessary before Miss Spencer was revived. Being further reassured that all danger was past, and after resting awhile, she was able to continue home.

Upon examination of the snake, Justice Mundy found that it was nearly as large around as his wrist and was about six feet in length. He removed the rattle which had nine buttons, and is going to present it to Miss Spencer.

FLAW IN PRIMARY TICKET.

Passaic Candidate Didn't Name Expense Manager.

Passaic, Aug. 12.—Although the corrupt practises act says that every candidate for nomination at the primaries must file with the city clerk the name of an expense manager, City Clerk Watson yesterday announced that he would not put on the commission ticket the name of T. Cummings Lucas, who filed his petition last Monday and started for Europe before learning that it was necessary to name an expense manager.

Mr. Watson says if there is any illegality it will have to be threshed out after primary day. All candidates filing petitions are going on the ticket he says.

Petitions filed yesterday afternoon brought the total number of candidates for city commissioners to fifty-one. Those added yesterday were George N. Seger, who had 130 signers, the largest number indorsing any candidate; Edward N. Kevitt, John J. O'Leary, Colin R. Wise, William A. Reid, Dominick De Muro and Leo F. Walter.

Today is the last day for filing the petitions.

BELMAR 'ROTTEN," MAYOR ADMITTED.

Belmar, Aug. 12.—In picturesque language Major Carl Lentz, of Newark, speaking at the public meeting in the Tabernacle last night denounced Mayor Coleman A. Gibbs, of this borough, and asked for a combined effect to defeat him at the next election.

"He is either a fool, a lunatic, or something worse," said the Major, "and we want him to go. Without him the Council would be O. K., but with him in office they are overpowered and overawed, and only two of them, Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Van Note, have the courage of their convictions or the necessary backbone."

The Major then told of his visit to the Mayor when he was asked to resign, and declared that the Mayor admitted hat Belmar had a "rotten" government, almost as corrupt as that of New York under Tweed.

When asked if the Council was responsible for the corruption Mayor Gibbs, according to Major Lentz, declared that only one of the councilmen had sense enough to be a grafter. The Mayor would not divulge this man's name.

The chief speaker of the evening was I. Newton Williams, of New-York, who recited the grievances of the borough and showed the necessity of defeating Gibbs. Mr. Williams blamed the Mayor for everything deplorable in Belmar. He, too, said that the Mayor bullied the Council.

W. C. Ashenfelder, of Philadelphia, told of the odor from the septic tank, which he said was unbearable.

The last sepaker was Peter E. Genolf, of Elizabeth.

Dr. W. J. Hassler, the president, acted as chairman.

CONFEREES AGREE ON WOOL TARIFF.

Washington, Aug. 12.—With doors open and the conference held in public the Senate and House conferees on the wool revision bill yesterday agreed upon a duty on raw wool of 29 per cent. ad valorem, as suggested by Senator La Follette. As compensation to the House the Senate conferees agreed to accept the House classification on raw wools, which results in placing all wools at the same rate. Under the LaFollette bill as it passed the Senate, two classifications were made, the first class paying a duty of 35 per cent. and the second class a duty of 10 per cent. ad valorem.

Under the agreement reached yesterday the duty on all wools will be 29 per cent. After agreeing to this fundamental basis of operations the conferees proceeded to the consideration of the duties on manufactured wools, which, it is assumed, will be compensatory throughout on a 29 per cent. basis.

For the first time in recent history a tariff bill in disagreement by the two houses was discussed by the conferees in an open session. The object was understood to be twofold: First, it accorded with the ideals of Senator LaFollette, who believes in requiring conferees to state their positons publicly. Second, it was believed, by the State conferees at least, that there was much more likelihood of an agreement being reached if the doors were opened.

SENATOR MARTINE TO SPEAK AT WESTFIELD

What will be one of the biggest celebrations in Westfield will be the dedicatory exercises of the new Methodist church. The celebration will be inaugurated on Sunday, September 24, and will continue for a full week.

One of the most important features will be a civic national righteousness meeting on one of the days of the celebration which will be marked by the presence of U. S. Senator James E. Martine, of Plainfield and Representative William E. Tuttle, Jr., who will make addresses.

The new edifice will be formally dedicated on Sunday, October 1, and the service will be in charge of Bishop Frank M. Bristol, of Brazil.

According to plans of the contractors the church will be completed by the middle of next month.

NEWARK MOTOR CLUB RAPS J. B. R. SMITH.

The Newark Motor Club has come out against State Commissioner J. B. R. Smith in his action of withdrawing the eight-day touring licenses from autoists of New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Massachusetts. At a special meeting Thursday night the board of trustees of the club passed the following resolutions on the subject:

"Whereas, The State commissioner of motor vehicles, the Hon. J. B. R. Smith, has deemed it incumbent upon himself to withdraw the eight-day tourist privilege from the residents of neighboring States, thus still further accentuating a spirit of antagonism against the motorists of this State, who have already suffered greatly, both socially and financially, through New Jersey's churlish and unneighborly attitude: and

"Whereas, Such action on the part of the motor vehicle commissioner will mean a serious loss to the finances of this State through the deharment of the citizens of other States who would otherwise come here and spend their money with our business men: and

"Whereas, Believing that the motor vehicle law of this State was never intended to give the motor vehicle commissioner the power to discriminate against the citizens of any one State, collectively, irrespective of whether they were law-abiding citizens or not; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the board of trustees of the Newark Motor Club, in executive session assembled, register a protest against such action of the commissioner of motor vehicles, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to him with the reuest that he rescind his orders to withdraw the eight-day touring privilege from the residents of our neighboring States."

THREE-CORNERED TROLLEY DISPUTE.

Elizabeth, Aug. 12.—A three-cornered controversey developed last night at a joint meeting of the street and railway committees of the City Council with representatives of the First Street Association, the South Elizabeth Improvement Association and the Public Service Corporation represented respectively by John R. Connolly, John K. English and Frank Bergen. About 100 people heard the matter of the proposed trolley conection so as to give a short line from New Brunswick, threshed out, but no conclusion was reached. It is expected, however, that the committees will have some sort of a report ready for the Council at next Tuesday's meeting.

A conection with the South Broad street line is the plan of the corporation, but the First street people want a spur into their territory and are trying to hold up the grant of the franchise until the Public Service will agree to grant the spur. The South Elizabeth folks do not want the proposition held up by this detail and the Public Service counsel stated that if there was to be any delay his company would use private right-of-way and thus leave a considerable stretch of city streets off the route. The outcome of the triangular dispute is still uncertain.

Clan Mackenzie, No. 204, Order of Scottish Clans, will hold a regular meeting, Monday night, August 14, in Exempt Firemen's Hall on Park avenue. This will be a very important meeting and all members are requested to be present.

"CAP" ANSON'S

FORTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

Dedicated to all my old comrades and lovers of the sport, who have made the game what it is today, and to all those who will continue to "play ball" after we old-timers have struck out for the last time.

ADRIAN C. ANSON.

The year 1890 was one of the most disastrous ever known in the history of baseball. On account of the quarrel, the teams sometimes found themselves playing to practically empty benches. It was a big contrast to the preceding year, which was the most successful ever known to the National league, money fairly rolling in at the gates.

CHAPTER XXXII.

I Break a Team of Colts.

The revolt of the Brotherhood left me in pretty bad shape at the beginning of the season of 1890. Tener, Williamson, Ryan, Pfeffer and all the others except Burns left me with a comparatively green bunch on my hands, but let me say right here that before the autumn leaves fell I had turned it into one of the best teams in the league, as was proved by our finishing in second place.

No one who hasn't tried it appreciates the amount of work necessary to break in a team of green baseball colts. It was practically a case of Hobson's choice for me, and I just sailed in and worked like a beaver getting those boys into pennant-winning condition. I didn't succeed quite as well as Connie Mack did with his Athletics last season, but I came mighty near it. It was hard work and plenty of it, and although some of the boys shed tears over the amount of drill required of them and the strict discipline I enforced they were obliged to admit in the long run that I was right and that it was the only way to develop the necessary playing strength.

I have never heard that any one of those players ever accused me of shirking. I worked a mighty sight harder than any one else on the team. Whenever we started off on a three-mile run I was at the head, setting the pace. There's one thing I shall never have on my conscience—I never asked a man under my control to do anything I was not willing to do myself. I never forgot that it was necessary for me to be in good condition myself.

My team for 1890 was made up as follows: Hutchinson, Luby, and Stein, pitchers; Nagle and Kittridge, catchers; Anson, first base; Glenalvin, second base; Burns, third base; Cooney, shortstop; Carroll, left field; Andrews, right field; and O'Brien and Foster, substitutes—with the solitary exception of Burns, a lot of half-broken colts, many of them newcomers in the league and with reputations still to gain.

There was never a time during the season that we were worse than fifth and on several occasions we were right up in the front rank. When October came in we held third, and during the short season that followed we

MADE BREAK FOR LIBERTY.

As he was being led into the Somerset County Jail yesterday Harrison Young, charged with highway robbery, broke away from Marshal Timley, of Bound Brook, and was recaptured after a lively chase. He is a prisoner on a charge made by Mrs. Mary Otto, of near Weston, who alleges she was held up by the man in Bound Brook a week ago.

Mrs. Otto with her two children was driving between Bound Brook and Weston, when she was stopped. She carried a large sum of money at the time, but all that was taken from her was thirty-five cents.

The woman recognized Young when she visited Bound Brook and went before Justice of the Peace Reed, who issued a warrant for his arrest. Marshal Timley found Young after about an hour's search.

my management and had come to the conclusion that a change was needed.

Did that rouse me?

I don't mind telling you that it had that effect precisely. I realized the fact that John R. Walsh had a perfect right to be dissatisfied with me if he wanted to—he and Spalding each owned 320 shares of the club's stock and he was the latter's banker—but I was also a stockholder to the extent of 130 shares, and it struck me that if Walsh was responsible for the newspaper attack on me it was rather a contemptible performance. He had never complained to me personally, and it seemed incredible that he would descend to such a procedure. I made up my mind to have a personal interview with Mr. Walsh and find out for myself how much truth there was in the matter.

The big man—I am speaking financially—received me quite affably, inquiring after the health of my family and as to how I had enjoyed my trip abroad. I got down to business pretty promptly and asked him direct if he had seen the article in question. He admitted that he had and that it represented fairly well the opinion he held in the matter. I was boiling within, but I put the brake on and kept myself under control. He went on to justify himself, and I kept silent until he was through.

Then I asked him civilly enough if he thought I had ever done anything toward bringing the club up to its present position in the baseball world.

"You are impertinent, sir!" he snapped, rising hastily and leaving me alone in the room.

He did not return, and I left that office convinced that I had traced the prime mover of the agitation against me to his lair.

After thinking it over a few days, I resolved to give the magnate another chance to redeem himself. It seemed incredible to me that a man of his standing in the business world could be capable of such underhand work. So I presented myself one morning at his place of business, but got no farther than the outer office. Walsh's secretary informed me curtly that the banker wasn't in, although I could see him sitting at his desk in the inner office.

I was indignant over such treatment, and I'm afraid I didn't manage to conceal the fact. I proceeded to air my opinion of the outfit in terms that were more forcible than elegant, and the secretary threatened to call a policeman and have me removed.

That didn't scare me a little bit, and I went right on with my remarks. Among other choice selections of oratory that I let loose I recollect telling the secretary that the time would come when he wouldn't have to lie for John R. Walsh for a living.

That capped the climax, and he made good his threat and called a policeman. I remained until the officer came, in the mean time finding no difficulty in finishing what I had started out to say. The policeman was a likely looking young fellow, with "peace" written all over his face, and he only smiled when I advised him in a fatherly way to keep neutral.

"I wouldn't lay hands on you, captain, if I lost my job for not doing it," he said.

I had my say and the show was over, so I left the office in company with the young preserver of the peace, and before we had reached the street we were discussing baseball. I was right, though, in my predicition that Walsh's secretary would find a more honorable job than the one he was in. He afterward became quite a leading light in the political world and was prominent in local politics.

As for his master—well, the story of how he overreached himself and is now inmate of a federal prison is known to every one, and I would be the last one to grudge him the sympathy to which he is entitled.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

I Decline a Proposed Testimonial.

After I was released by the Chicago management my plans were apparently a matter of great interest to both press and public. If I had been equally interested in a tithe of the schemes that were imputed to me I should have "gone bughouse" inside of a week. Every day brought out a couple of new ones—I was to manage this club, that club and the other club; I was to play here and play there, and in fact there wasn't much that I wasn't going to do, according to the papers. And every one of these fine propositions had millions in it.

Looking over an old scrapbook of Mrs. Anson's the other day I came across a clipping which stated in sober earnest that I was on the point of opening the A. C. Anson Baseball college, a prospectus of which was actually given. The fellow who invented that was certainly a crackerjack at his trade, and it wasn't very difficult to discover what his trade was.

My break with the Chicago club didn't in any way interfere with the friendly relations between A. G. Spalding and myself. To all suggestions from outside mischief makers that he had actually engineered the deal, I turned a deaf ear. In our long and close friendship, covering a period of nearly a quarter of a century, I had always found him perfectly loyal to my interests, and nobody could have juggled me into thinking he had ever thought of throwing me down.

Something happened just then to confirm me in my good opinion of my old friend. I was informed that he had set on foot a scheme to give me a big money testimonial and had called a meeting at the Chicago Athletic club to set the thing in motion. I couldn't help being touched by the kindness, but the idea of becoming a public beneficiary—the scheme was to let everybody who felt like it contribute—was passed Philadelphia and took second position. It certainly was an achievement to be proud of, and if you think I failed to flap my wings and crow a little you are not familiar with A. C. Anson's make-up.

With the downfall of the Brotherhood I thought, very naturally, that it would be a comparatively easy matter to strengthen the Chicago club materially. It didn't turn out that way. I didn't even get my old players back, some of them retiring from the diamond altogether, and others being scattered far and wide among the various league teams. That involved a constant lookout and anxiety on my part to secure new players. I was certainly easy game for the kid with the baseball bug in those days. I didn't dare to refuse any applicant a try-out for fear that I might be turning down championship timber.

The season of 1891 was almost as bad a year for baseball as its predecessor. A war broke out between the National league and the American association because the latter refused to abide by the terms of the national agreement. The result was that salaries took a soar upward. At the time good players were exceedingly scarce and the demand was constantly growing.

So my team that year was again a sort of experiment, but it turned out to be a mighty successful one. Pfeffer came back to us, but he was no longer the Pfeffer of old. Ryan was another prodigal son who returned to his father's house, but all the others were comparatively unknown to fame. It proved to be a very strong organization, and I am satisfied it would have landed the pennant but for the fact that the jealousy of the old players engendered by the Brotherhood revolt would not permit a team of youngsters, many of whom were newcomers in the league, to carry off the honors. I have never doubted that a conspiracy was entered into to prevent the pennant from going to us that season, and that it was arranged that New York should give enough games to the Bostons to throw the championship to the Beaneaters at the last moment, leaving us in second place. We made a whirlwind fight for the top place and no fault could be laid at my door or at that of my players because the Giants dropped enough games to the Boston club to prevent the honors being gobbled by a colt team.

Hutchinson, who did most of our twirling that season, was a topnotcher. He was a graduate of Yale, a gentleman if ever there was one, and a player who used his head as well as his hands when he was in the box. Gumbert and Luby were both talented players, and but for his recklessness the latter might have been a star of the first magnitude. Dahlen, then on his first trip with us, was a tower of strength to the team, as agile as a cat, a sure catch and an exceptionally strong batter. The rest of the infield and the outfield were away above the average in playing ability.

That race of 1891 was one of the closest and most strenuous in the history of the league. Opening the season in third place, we never went lower, but out of the twenty-four weeks which made up the season, we were in first place for fifteen weeks, and should have had no difficulty in maintaining that pace to the close, and did it practically, only losing on account of the combination already mentioned. I want to say right here, too, that I was not alone in my judgment as to the reason why we were not the final winners. The shady method of the eastern clubs was commented on very largely at the time by followers of the sport throughout the country, and the newspapers all over the United States condemned the trickery. It was tough, though, when at the beginning of the closing week Chicago was in the van by a percentage of victories of .628 to Boston .615 to have New York make a present of its last games to the Beaneaters for the clearly evident purpose of throwing us down. As it was, we finished head and head with the leaders, New York being third, Philadelphia fourth, Cleveland fifth, Brooklyn sixth, Cincinnati seventh and Pittsburg eighth.

Sentiment was so pronounced against the New Yorks for their poor showing made in these Boston games that they felt it necessary to offer excuses. One of these was to the effect that when the Giants left home for the Hub the team was in poor condition, which was kept a secret by the management for fear that it might lessen the interest in the closing games. It was also insinuated that Manager Ewing's brother John was disabled by a sprained ankle, and Rusie was suffering from a bruised leg, and also that Whistler had been playing so well at first base that Ewing thought he could afford to give Conner a day off, all of which shows how extremely easy it is to find an excuse for jealousy even in baseball.

In February, 1892, the American association went out of existence, four of its leading clubs going into the National league, which now took in twelve cities instead of eight, the circuit being Boston, Brooklyn, Louisville, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, St. Louis and Baltimore. The financial falling off caused by the Brotherhood revolt had not yet been overcome in full, but the outlook was getting better and the prospect seemed favorable for a big boom in baseball that season.

But we went right on playing to hard luck for several years after that.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

I Go Up Against a Baseball Magnate.

I guess Henry E. Dixie, the actor, hasn't forgotten an incident—perhaps he might call it a serio-comic tragedy that—happened one day when we were playing in Boston. In those days Henry was a very warm fan and never missed a game when he could manage to be present. On this particular afternoon he drove out to the grounds in his yellow buckboard, his bull terrier Dago in the seat beside him. The actor always retained his seat in his rig and on this occasion took his customary position just back of the left field.

Dixie hadn't been on the grounds more than ten minutes when Dahlen swiped the ball for a three-bagger. It was one of that player's long, low, hard drives, and it sailed about ten feet over the left fielder's head and in a direct line for the Dixie turnout. Henry didn't see it coming—he couldn't have got out of the way if he had—and the first thing he knew about it was when he heard a quick yelp at his side and saw Dago tumble off the seat and fall between the wheels with a thud. The terrier was dead, the ball having broken his neck. Maybe you think there wasn't something doing about that time! Fortunately the horses got frightened over the hubbub, and the owner had to exert some of his superfluous strength to keep them from wrecking the trap, but you have it from me direct that Henry managed to get in an occasional remark now and then that was not complimentary to baseball. The whole field was in an uproar, and it was fully ten minutes before things got to moving smoothly again. Dahlen, the author of the mischief, seemed to be about the only unconcerned man on the premises, and, after he had scored on the death of Dago, actually got off a pun that was so rank that I will only tell you that it was something about the only "dog-gone" run he had made that week.

Late in the fall of 1897 the newspapers began to throw out mysterious hints to the effect that I was to be released by the Chicago League Ball club, but as I never heard a word from any one connected officially with the club that would confirm the report I paid no especial attention to the matter at first.

Finally, however, I heard enough to convince me that something underhanded was in progress, and I made up my mind to go straight to Mr. Spalding and ask him to tell me exactly where I was at. So one day I threw a change of linen into a grip and started for New York, determined to get at the root of the matter, with the utmost confidence in the friendship of the man who had been my confidant and adviser for more than twenty years.

When I reached New York I found Mr. Spalding on the point of sailing for Europe on a business trip. He received me very cordially, and when I told him I had come to see him on a little business, he proposed that I should join him in the voyage, saying that we should have plenty of time to talk matters over while crossing over. I accepted, wiring Mrs. Anson that I had gone abroad, as would be explained by subsequent letters.

It wasn't necessary for me to be present in order to get wise to the effect of that telegram. There would be tears, I knew, plenty of them, and a whole lot of excitement until the receipt of my explanatory letter, but I was on a tour of investigation and I wasn't to be turned aside by any ordinary difficulty. I was so anxious to know how I stood that I tackled A. G. at my very first opportunity.

I don't exactly remember what I said to him, but the upshot of it was that I asked him to come out fair and square and tell me if the reports that were going the rounds of the newspapers were true, especially the rumor that the Chicago management was tired of me and wanted to get rid of me.

Nothing could have been kinder and more friendly than Spalding's treatment of me on that occasion. He made light of the whole business and advised me not to worry over club affairs or pay any attention to the rumors I had heard, declaring that the matter would probably be all fixed up by our return.

When we returned I found that matters had indeed been "fixed up." Tom Burns, my old third baseman, had been selected to manage the team, and when I consulted Mr. Spalding as to what I had better do, he advised me to resign. That I refused to do, declaring that I preferred to take my medicine like a man, no matter how bitter the dose might be.

A short time afterward I came across a headline in a Chicago newspaper to this effect: "John R. Walsh Wants a Change!"

The article went on to state that the capitalist was dissatisfied with the showing the team was making under repugnant to me. When I mentioned it to Mrs. Anson I found that she felt exactly as I did. She declared she should feel ashamed to be seen in public. A short time before that I had presented her with a handsome sealskin coat, and she vowed she'd never wear it if I accepted the testimonial.

"Spalding and the other fellows think it's sure to amount to $50,000 at the very least," I tantalized her.

"I don't care if it's $5,000,000," she got back at me. "I'm not going to wear that jacket downtown and have some street urchin pipe up: 'Say, Bill, see that lady? That's Pop Anson's wife, and I helped pay for that sealskin she's got on.' Don't you let them give you a cent."

I didn't. I couldn't. I appreciated the hearty good will and fellowship of the originator of the movement, but I could not give up the feeling of personal independence that meant so much to me. It would have been a great success probably, for the scheme was indorsed by all the league magnates, by the press almost universally and by the lovers of the game all over the country, but I have never regretted my refusal to accept the honor.

Well, don't for a moment think I was idle after I quit playing ball for the Chicago folks. The first thing I tried to do was to light on a scheme whereby I could get possession of the Chicago club. After considerable effort on my part, I succeeded in obtaining an option from Mr. Spalding, and then I hustled to raise the money to pay for the 640 shares owned by Spalding and John R. Walsh. Of the remaining 360 Shares I owned 130, and it was stipulated that I was to pay the holders of the balance of the stock at the rate fixed by Mr. Spalding—$150 per share. I was not successful in raising the money, and I finally gave it up as a bad job. Nor did I succeed in obtaining a franchise in Chicago for the Western league. Had I been able to do so, I could have put another league team in Chicago, and I believe it would have been a good thing for the game and for all parties concerned.

Shortly afterward I was offered the position of manager of the New York team by Andrew Freedman, then the responsible head of that organization. I accepted, with the understanding that I should have full control of the team in matters of discipline. At that time the New Yorks were way down in the list, and it would have taken a miracle to put them on a championship footing right away. I didn't work that miracle, and Mr. Freedman and his friends admitted that they were disappointed. At the end of a month I came to the conclusion that it was a case of too many cooks spoiling the broth, and resigned. A considerable sum of money was tendered to me in excess of my salary, but I took only what was coming to me.

In 1889 there was a strong feeling in baseball circles that the time had come to launch a rival association. I was in favor of the scheme, believing that it would work for the good of the game. Early in October, 1889, a meeting to talk the matter over informally was held in Chicago. I was present by special invitation, and after we had discussed the matter I agreed to place a team in Chicago in case a new association was formed and providing a circuit of eight cities could be secured. By November the business had progressed so far that another meeting was held in New York. I didn't show up, but nothing definite was done. A third meeting was held in Philadelphia just before the holidays. Things began to look decidedly rosy. Finally a meeting to effect a permanent organization was called for February 12, in Chicago. I was elected president, and it was decided to open the playing season April 16, with a circuit of eight cities.

I confess that the scheme looked fishy to me from the first, and I was not a bit surprised when the movement collapsed. Some of the men most interested in it made up their quarrels with the league and others could not get hold of the necessary financial backing. I was disappointed, but I knew it was only a matter of time.

In 1905 I got into politics in Chicago. Ever hear how it happened? Well, I had been doing a little in that line for a year or two. When my friend Tom Barrett ran for sheriff of Cook county I went out and made several little talks for him and gave the reporters a chance to write up a lot of fine stuff I didn't and couldn't say. When Tom was elected some paper suggested Anson for deputy, but Tom didn't see the article and it didn't occur to him. After a while another paper mentioned my name in connection with city treasurer. That set me to thinking.

Yes, I got a hunch on and made up my mind to get busy and see what I could pick up. The dope seemed fairly good to me and I wanted to see what I could do with it. I went around and saw some of my friends on the Democratic committee and played a little at wire pulling, but when the convention got together I went out on strikes.

Anyhow, it was a starter in politics, and that's half the game. Next time I got there. I was given the nomination for city clerk almost without asking for it. That was a mighty proud day for me, for it looked as if folks still had confidence in me and wanted to show it. I got to work and my friends hustled some, and we scored. I don't mind telling you I was as tickled over my election as I ever was over winning the pennant. Everybody seemed satisfied and it looked like an earned run for me.

If anybody has ever said that I ever neglected my post at the city hall to attend a ball game he's been mighty careful to say it when I've not been within hearing distance.

CHAPTER XXXV.

I Make My Exit as a Biographer.

With my retirement from the Chicago club in 1897 my active connection with the game may be said to have terminated. My month's experience in the service of Andy Freeman isn't worth remembering, and I never do except when I have the nightmare. Take it straight from me, however, that my affection for the game is as strong today as it was when I played it with my father and brother in Marshalltown more than 40 years ago. I believe that for all time to come it will be what it has been in the past—the great national sport of the American people.

Looking back on my 27 years of active professional service on the diamond, I do not regret that I chose it for my career, despite the fact that at the time I entered the field professionally it seemed like a foolish thing for a young man to do. It was in direct opposition to the wishes of my good old father that I took the step—a fact that gave me a good deal less concern at the time than it should have done—and it is one of my happiest reflections that eight years before he passed out of this life—he left us on Thanksgiving, 1906—I could show him evidences of the appreciation in which my service in the cause of baseball was held by Henry Chadwick, the "father of baseball." This generous tribute from the veteran authority on all matters connected with the game appeared in the League Guide for 1898 and the portion alluding to my retirement from baseball was as follows:

"Professional baseball history records the development of many an original character in the ranks alike of its press writers, its club magnates and its most noteworthy players, but it can safely be said that its most unique figure can be found in the persons of the league's greatest representative on the field, Adrian Constantine Anson, who today stands forth as one of the most sturdy, fearless and honest exemplars of professional baseball known to the game. The bright, particular attribute of Anson is his sterling integrity, combined with which is his thorough independence. The former was strikingly illustrated at the very outset of his career as a member of the Chicago club in 1876, when he kept true to his agreement with the club, although under the baseball law as it then existed the club could not have enforced its contract, and his independence was plainly exhibited in the act of his refusing this year to accept a money testimonial at the hands of his baseball friends, he preferring to depend upon his existing physical powers for his maintenance rather than upon the proffered financial aid.

"In some respects Anson resembles a rough diamond, his brusque manner and impulsive temper needing the keen polish of the refining wheel of the conventional amenities of life to make his inherent worth shine forth in its full brilliancy. Anson, too, reminds one somewhat of that old western pioneer, Davy Crockett, inasmuch as his practical motto is 'When you know you're right, go ahead.' This latter trait was shown conspicuously in the year of the players' revolt, in 1890, when almost alone as a minority man he stood by the National league in its greatest hour of need in opposition to the desertion of hundreds of his confreres in the league ranks. In these prominent characteristics, we say, Anson stands as the most unique player in the annals of the professional fraternity."

That was the verdict which—whether I deserved it or not—was more satisfactory to the old lover of the game at Marshalltown than would have been the news that his self-willed son had been made a member of the president's cabinet.

Now, although I don't suppose the public cares a whole lot about what I have been doing since I retired from baseball, I'd like to say, for my own comfort, that so far I haven't been obliged to join the bread line. In one of the early chapters of this story I confessed that I had a soft spot in my heart for the game of billiards. I might have said that since the days of my early boyhood I have sort of divided my attention between baseball and billiards, always, of course, giving the preference to the former. After I left the diamond I very naturally turned to billiards, and eventually adopted it as a business.

The game of billiards has undergone many and frequent changes since I began playing baseball for a living. When I think of that old table in the Anson house at Marshalltown it makes me wish I could get possession of it; it would be a splendid start for a museum. The four-ball game and the old-fashioned pocket table are things of the past, but even in those days it was a good game. It is also a fact that some of the famous ballplayers have been experts with the cue. Frank C. Ives, who won the title of "Young Napoleon of Billiards," played ball with a professional team long before he made his reputation at billiards.

The first expert of note I ever met over a billiard table was Eugene Kimball, who, in 1871, was a member of the Forest City Baseball club of Cleveland, O., and who at that time had a good reputation both as a ballplayer and as a knight of the cue. It was while I was playing with the Philadelphia Athletics that I made my public debut as a billiardist. James Lentz, a New Jersey professional, who had cleaned out everything in his line in the land sandflies and mosquitoes, took me on for a match, 300 points up, at the old three-ball style of billiards, for stakes of $100 a side, and I beat him by a score of 300 to 252.

I admit that my victory gave me a pretty good opinion of my ability as a billiard player, but it didn't interfere with my devotion to baseball. To show you that it didn't make me waver in my allegiance to the game of games I will state that it was not until more than ten years afterward that I appeared again before the public as a billiard player. Frank Parker, ex-champion of the old four-ball game, believed that he knew the 14-inch balk line game well enough to down me easily, and to show him that I did not share his belief I made a match with him for stakes of $250 a side. The match was played at Central Music hall, Chicago, and I surprised Parker and his friends—and perhaps some of my own—by winning the match by a score of 500 to 366, averaging in the neighborhood of five.

But when it comes to the final showdown the thing that gives me the most unqualified satisfaction is my batting and fielding record for the 23 years of my active connection with the Chicago club. Let me present it with my final bow:

THE END.

The Rogues' March.

Music has so rarely been employed to cast aspersion upon any person or subject that the instance of "The Rogues' March" is interesting as an exception. The office of music from time immemorial has apparently been praise or commendation. Think of the pieces you know which have been written for special occasions, and you will at once realize that they have been written to laud some person or some purpose. "The Rogues' March" has been in use for considerably over a century, and its purpose is solely derision and ridicule. It has frequently been employed in the army to cast shame upon deserters. When a rogue or scamp was "drummed out" of camp, "The Rogues' March" was played.

The Same Girl.

"Dad, I want to marry Tottie Twinkletoes. I hope you won't blame me for wanting to marry a chorus girl."

"Not at all, my boy. I wanted to marry her myself when I was about your age."

SANCTITY WITH WHISKERS.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 12.—Contending that his long hair and flowing beard enhanced his sanctity, L. B. Mitchell, a street preacher, in jail here for vagrancy, fought his guards when they took him to the prison barber shop.

"I've had a vision from the Lord," Mitchell screamed, as three guards seized him. "He told me not to be shaved."

Although the preacher kicked and struggled the guards finally landed him in a barber's chair and held him while the barber used the scissors.

"The Lord's curse upon you. May he strike you down," said Mitchell. "My sanctity is gone."

CHATTANOOGA

By Captain
F. A. MITCHEL

Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association

"I'll do all you suggest," he said to Laura, "and whether you wish it or not I am very grateful."

She lowered her eyes under his look of gratitude and then went below.

As soon as it grew dark Mark listened for the signal. It came a few minutes before nine o'clock. Mrs. Fain had remained in the parlor up to that moment, when she went up stairs to get some article necessary to a piece of work she was doing. Laura followed her, turning out the lights by the way and keeping on up to the attic.

Within a few seconds after her knock Mark was descending the stairs and in a twinkling was in the parlor. Not half a minute elapsed between the signal and his arrival there.

It was not long before Mrs. Fain was heard groping about up stairs in the dark, wanting to know who had turned out the lights and calling on a servant to relight them. When she entered the parlor she was surprised to see her daughter in company with a stranger, who was standing, hat in hand, as though he had just come in from without.

"Mamma," said Laura, with her heart in her throat, but with the most assured of innocent tones, "this is a gentleman who—Mr."—

"Rhett," supplied Mark.

"Mr. Rhett, of"—

"South Carolina."

Any old Virginia or South Carolina name was quite enough to insure a welcome from Mrs. Fain. Without waiting to hear what he might say further or an account of how he came to be there so suddenly, she said:

"I'm pleased to see you, sir; are you related to the Rhetts, of South Carolina?"

"We all came of the same main stem, madam," said Mark, assuming the tone of a southern gentleman.

"Mr. Rhett is traveling, mamma. He says that—that"— "I am looking for mines, madam. You may not know it, but you are in the center of a rich mineral region."

It is pleasant to hear that fortune may come soon, and Mrs. Fain was evidently much pleased at the information.

"Indeed!" she said calmly.

"Yes, madam, I have been looking for ore. I presume I need not say whether in government interest or not; we must have cannons, you know."

"Government officers are not bound to disclose their identity or their objects, sir."

"I have been prospecting, madam, and am separated from my party owing to the stupidity of the driver of the vehicle which contains my crucibles and chemicals. I appeared at your door and your daughter was kind enough to ask me in—not surprising, considering your far famed Tennessee hospitality."

"You are quite welcome, sir."

Mark bowed low, with his hand on his heart, like a South Carolina gentleman of the old school.

"Have you supped?" asked Mrs. Fain.

"Yes, madam; I succeeded in getting a meal by the way. A poor one, indeed, very poor one, with burned beans for coffee. But since the abolition Lincoln government has violated all rules of civilized warfare by this cruel blockade—intending to starve us into subjection—I suppose we must take what we can get. I repeat it, we must take what we can get, madam."

Mark's eyes flashed with well feigned indignation.

"It is our duty to bear our deprivations cheerfully," said Mrs. Fain. "We shall gain our independence at last, and that should be an incentive."

"It should, madam, and let me tell you we are about to see stirring times and great successes. This region has become of especial military importance. Our forces will be in front of Nashville, perhaps Louisville, very soon, while General Lee can't fail with such noble men as he has in his army—the very flower of the south—the flower of the south, madam—he can't fail, I say, to drive the Yankees out of Virginia!"

"You are very hopeful."

While Mark was thus performing, Laura stood with downcast eyes, and if her mother had not been so interested in the hopeful words of the garrulous South Carolinian she would have noticed a slow heaving of her daughter's bosom, with here and there a slight spasmodic action.

"And now, madam," said Mark, "may I beg for a night's lodging? I fear it is too late to find my party."

"Certainly, sir. Call Miranda, my dear."

Miranda was summoned and directed to show the gentleman to the guest chamber on the second floor in the front of the house.

Mark went with the servant and remained in his room long enough to have made a toilet and then sauntered down stairs. At the door of the parlor in which Mrs. Fain and her daughter were sitting, he paused, as if waiting for an invitation to enter. This was given him, but he did not stay long. For a hot blooded South Carolinian, he seemed not to bear the heat well, and manifested a desire to get out on to the veranda. Indeed he had a wholesome dread of the light. Besides he desired to be where he could converse with Laura.

"If I may beg you to excuse me, ladies," he said, "I will go out for a little fresh air."

He strolled out into the night and walked back and forth on the veranda.

"Laura," said Mrs. Fain, "go out and entertain Mr. Rhett. I'm afraid of the night air myself."

"Do you think it essential, mamma?"

"Certainly I do. South Carolinians are especially particular about the entertainment of their guests, and I wouldn't have it go back to Charleston that we had been remiss for the world."

Laura obeyed her mother and joined the guest on the veranda.

"You are safe for the present," she said, her eyes glistening in the moonlight and a bright spot on each cheek.

"Thanks to your courage and ingenuity."

"Oh, no; no! That's absurd. For you to speak of my courage! Do you know that the recklessness with which you put your neck into a halter is as unintelligible to me as mathematics would be to one of our servants."

"For the cause," said Mark, "one ought to"—

"Nonsense! The cause! You love these dangers."

"There is a fascination in them, I admit. So long as there is one chance for me, no matter how many there are against me—so long as I have an arm or a weapon to fight with I am a man. When cornered and taken I am the veriest coward in the world. While in prison in Chattanooga I moaned and whined like a frightened child. The truth is that danger is fascinating only either before it is encountered or after it has passed. When I am in it I want to get out of it; when I am out of it I want to get in it again."

"I don't believe you know the meaning of the word fear."

"Indeed you are mistaken. If I did not feel fear there would be no fascination in danger."

"Then you have a way with you of making people do what you like. When you were here before you fascinated all the servants. You completely captivated Uncle Daniel, who has talked of no one else since."

"Daniel is a good man. He'll be of use to me yet."

"Yes, of use to you. You use every one either openly or by deception. I almost fancied you were professor—somebody, just now, when you were deceiving poor mamma. You reminded me of Mephistopheles for all the world."

"You flatter," said Mark in irony.

"You are Mephistopheles. You come here and compel me to harbor you. You are seeking to injure the cause I favor, and I give you my brother's clothes, when that brother is fighting for that cause. Why do I not send for some one to come and take you?"

"On account of your native loveliness."

"You are a very devil."

"I never regarded myself a saint."

"And the worst of it is," she went on, her eyes sparkling all the while, and talking rapidly, "that such deviltry is especially fascinating to me. I would love to be a man. I would do what you do. I would belong to the cavalry. I would be a scout. I would be a"—

"Spy?"

"Anything I had the courage to be. I would delight in battles, in charges, in—heavens!"

The exclamation was occasioned by a horseman who had approached while they were talking.

"Don't be frightened," said Mark bending over her and whispering in her ear. "It is only a private soldier. He is not after me, and if he is he can't have me."

Mark left her and advanced to the rail of the veranda.

"Can you tell me how fyar 'tis ter Chattanoogy?" asked the man.

"About two miles, I reckon, as the crow flies; three or four really."

"Straight 'long up the road?"

"Yes."

"I'm a courier. I be'n carryen dispatches; but I didn't go this way."

"Well, you just keep the road and you'll get through all right. Any news from the front?"

"Don't know any. I be'n away from Chattanoogy two days."

"Well, you haven't far to go."

"Good night, sir."

"Good night."

HUSBAND TOO POLITE, SHE GETS A DIVORCE.

Kansas City, Aug. 12.—A husband can be too affectionate and too polite, according to the testimony of Mrs. Wentworth Carter, who was granted a divorce in the Circuit Court here Thursday.

"Too much poetry, too many kisses, too much love, too many smiles and too little work make an unfit husband," she said.

Mrs. Carter said that when she married ten years ago she was temporarily blinded by love and a deluge of poetry.

"He was positively irresistable, but he would not work, judge. When our last cent was gone he went to South Carolina, where he had an uncle, who, he said, had money and liked poetry and wine, too."

TRAIN DESPATCHING BY TELEPHONE

The Telephone Review for July states that train despatching by telephone was not introduced into practice nutil 1907, yet in these few years approximately 49,000 miles of railway in the United States and Canada have been equipped for telephone train despatching, and 15,329 miles in the United States were equipped between June 1, 1910 and June 1, 1911, and increase of over 60 per cent.

It has been demonstrated that telephone train despatching has effected a saving to the railroads of about $100 per mile or an annual saving on these 48,000 miles of $4,800,000. That train despatching by telephone is only in its infancy is admitted by all and it will undoubtedly supplant the telegraph eventually.

The 31st annual convention of the Association of Railway Superintendents of Telegraph will be held in New York City next year beginning June 24th.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

"Jolly" John Larkin and his happy flock of pretty girls and funny boys, in the new big musical comedy, "Royal Sam," will be the attraction at the Plainfield theatre on Thursday, August 24. Larkins has rallied around himself about all the talent worth having in the colored world of comedy song and dance. His success has been so great as co-star with Black Patti for the last four seasons that he has been able to create a sort of monopoly and plutocracy of a jet tint. His company numbers over two score of white teeth and shiny-eyed male and female funnines and funsters. This collection of talented singers is headed by the merriest of fun makers, "Jolly" John himself is a corker, in fact, a fancy cut-glass stopper in the way of a good cork, who don't need burnt cork to be black or be merry, droll or hilariously amusing.

At Last--

The VIRTUOLO

AT LAST a player-piano which does not require the player's attention on the expression devices. One which responds to the player's mood and fancy, so that the music actually contains his inspirations.

Evolved by the makers of the famous Hallet & Davis Pianos of Boston. The result of an ambition that could be satisfied only with the best, utilizing the best pneumatic engineering skill which the three million dollar resources of this firm could command. In this new instrument, we have all the pride and enthusiasm of an ambition realized. We have produced at last an instrument which will banish the prejudice the music-loving public may have against player-pianos.

Because, the Virtuolo makes it possible to put real expression, real life, into your playing directly. It is so wonderfully made that you get any musical effect instinctively. It is so simple that you do not have to think what to do.

The new Virtuolo "Air Muscle" mechanisms correspond, in playing, to the fingers of the pianist. They produce music that is a real departure from the lifelessness which has been the great drawback of old style player-pianos. The responsiveness of these "Air Muscles" to your instinctive pressure on buttons and pedals will be a revelation to you.

Also, an entirely new system of "control" is used in the Virtuolo. Awkward levers are replaced with simple buttons, which bring instant response to every fleeting inspiration.

We make the Virtuolo Player-Piano in our recently erected $500,000 model "Daylight" factory at Boston, and offer it in the Hallet & Davis Piano at $700 in a special Mahogany Colonial case. At $775 in a refined Arts and Crafts design. Also in the Conway Piano at $575 in a chaste design, either mahogany or walnut.

The Virtuolo is sold by the better dealers everywhere. We will send you the name of the nearest one, or we will ship to any responsible person a Virtuolo Player-Piano for free trial in the home. Our faith justifies us in doing this and puts you under no obligation or expense.

We make special easy terms of payments as low as $15.00 monthly. Pianos and ordinary player-pianos taken in exchange at fair values.

Our reliable, fully guaranteed, Lexington Player-Piano is sold at $450 on terms as low as $12.00 monthly.

If you who love beautiful music, would like the means of having it always in the home, you should by all means investigate the Virtuolo.

"THE INNER BEAUTY."

Send your name and address on the accompanying coupon today, and we will mail you complete information, together with a copy of the fascinating free book, "The Inner Beauty." Besides telling you all about the Virtuolo, it tells you things about music and its inner meaning that you may not know. You will enjoy reading it.

FIRE LOSS $2,000

Sixth Blaze at Joseph Harrigan's Coal Yard Does Considerable Damage.

CAUSED BY ENGINE SPARK.

Firemen Fight Flames for Hour and Half—Tillerman Freeman Meets with an Accident.

The fire department was called to Harrigan's coal yard on South avenue for the sixth time in three months on Saturday night, to put out a blaze caused by sparks from an engine on the Central railroad, which extends along the northerly side of the yard. The blaze gave the firemen an hour and a half's work and did $2,000 damage, a part of which is covered by insurance. Only last week Mr. Harrigan with an adjustor for the railroad company agreed upon the price to be paid for the loss sustained by the other five fires.

Tillerman G. H. Freeman, of the Hook and Ladder truck, stepped on a nail while at the fire and received a dangerous wound in the instep of his foot. He was taken to Dr. Pittis' office in Chief Doane's automobile where the injury was dressed. It will incapacitate him from service for several days.

The fire was discovered by Amalda Bow, an East Indian girl, a maid at the Harrigan home. Mrs. Harrigan and Miss Elsie Harrigan with the servant were the only ones at home. William Ridenour, a neighbor, saw the flames and reached the scene at about the same time as they did. A garden hose was brought into play, but they soon saw that the fire had progressed too far so Mr. Ridenour pulled box 28.

By the time the fire fighting machinery arrived the flames were licking up the railroad trestle over the coal bins and had leaped to a shed in which a quantity of baled hay was stored, the building used to house the wood sawing equipment and a wagon shed. The trestle was partly destroyed, the hay shed burned down, the wood house and wagon shed gutted. In the wagon shed were three wagons which were destroyed and the machines used in sawing wood, including a powerful high priced motor were a total loss.

HORATIO N. PINARD, AGED 62 YRS., DEAD

Horatio Nelson Pinard, aged 62 years, a son of the late Jean Baptiste Pinard, who for a number of years was a well known New York caterer, died at his home on Clinton avenue, this morning following an illness of a year with kidney trouble and dropsy. He was born at Ogdensburg, N. Y., and had been a resident of this city about four years. He retired from business several years ago. He was identified with the Episcopal church.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Lucinda Buckelew, of this city, a son, Charles Pinard, of New York, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Riley, of Newark. The funeral services will be held at the parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son, undertakers, 402 Park avenue, tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The burial will be in the family plot at New Durham, N. J.

TEACHERS HERE NEED NOT PAY FULL FARE.

In a decision anounced yesterday the State Board of Public Utilities Commissioners holds illegal the selling of tickets at reduced rates by the street railway companies to school teachers. The commission finds that reduced rates of fare for inter-State trips to school teachers are prima facie discriminatory and therefore illegal, unless there be a municipal contract with the carrier entitling the teachers to ride at a reduced rate as a municipal employe. As the local franchise of the P. S. C. provides reduced fares for teachers in this city the decision does not adversely affect Plainfield.

The board further holds that free transportation or rides at less than regular rates may be legally accorded to persons engaged in administration of charities.

Ann Fitzpatrick.

Ann Fitzpatrick, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Fitzpatrick, of South Second street, died yesterday at her home after an illness of several weeks. The funeral will be held privately from the residence of her parents tomorrow morning and burial will be made in St. Mary's cemetery.

—Drop in at the Ritz tomorrow for a delicious pot of tea with toast and English Marmalade.

MANY MINOR CASES IN THE POLICE COURT

This was a busy day in the city court. George Sanderson, colored, arrested on complaint of Belle Stansbury, colored, of West Third street, with whom Sanderson boarded, was allowed to go under a suspended sentence. Sanderson and his landlady had an argument Saturday that resulted in his being locked up by Patrolman Bader, who was summoned.

Albert Cook, colored, arrested on complaint of Spencer Conway, colored, who charged him with collecting money under false pretenses and representing himself to be Conway's son, was dismissed for lack of evidence and as the complaint seemed to have been brought through jealously because Conway has lost business since Cook left his employ.

Richard Ferris and Davis Dalton, both colored, arrested for fighting, treated the court to a recital of a scrap, in which Dalton admitted hitting Ferris as charged, but amusingly explained the extenuating circumstances, the fight being due to a money matter. Ferris received a suspended sentence and Dalton was fined $5.

Leonardi Velaradi, of Richmond street, caused the arrest of his tenant, Mateo Popolille, Saturday night because the latter came home intoxicated and began a fight. Mateo was find $5 and Leonardi was allowed to go under a suspended sentence.

The complaint against Barnet Ogens, of West Third street, by Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, agent of the S. P. C. A., was dismissed, as the charge of cruelty to animals was not substantiated. A similar case brought against John Crowley, of Ann street, was set over for two weeks on request of W. L. Hetfield, counsel for Crowley. At that time the trial will be before a jury.

Golevanna Eamelle was arrested by Patrolmen Bader and Messler Saturday night on complaint of Harry Percella, of East Front street, in whose front yard Eamelle lay drunk. He was fined $5.00.

James Maguire, a sailor from Boston, was locked up by Patrolman Wicht for drunkness Saturday night and was allowed to go under a suspended sentence.

James Rogonsky, of South River, caused a burglar scare at the home of Alonzo Aldrich, of Sherman avenue, at 3 o'clock this morning. The man seemed to be demented. He was prowling about the Aldrich home and when a shot was fired to frighten him away he went to the barn and seated himself in a chair, where he was found by Patrolman Dooley, who having heard the shot made an investigation. Rogonsky could only tell that he was on his way to work in a brick yard and lived at South River. He was given his breakfast and put aboard a car bound for New Brunswick.

MR. HIBBARD TO WED MRS. CHAS E. BROOKS

Mrs. Charles E. Brooks and Henry D. Hibbard, both of East Seventh street, will be quietly married on Wednesday at Grace church by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson. The hour for the ceremony has not been announced for the reason that only the immediate members of the two families will be present. The couple will leave at once for a six weeks' trip to California and upon their return will reside at Mr. Hibbard's home on East Seventh street. While away they will visit VanWyck Brooks, son of Mrs. Brooks, who is a professor of English in Leland Stanford University, and who with his wife is living in California.

Mrs. Brooks has been a resident of this city for many years, during which time she has been active in the work of Grace church, and also a leader in the various philanthropic institutions including the Charity Organization Society, the Woman's Exchange and for years she was an officer of the Plainfield Relief Association.

Mr. Hibbard has also resided here for years. He is now consulting engineer for the Manganese Steel Safe Company, formerly the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Company. He is a graduate of the Boston Institute of Technology. He served the city as a councilman for two terms. He is a member of the Plainfield Country Club and an active golfer, taking part in the various events at the club each week.

Former U. S. Senator Kean In the Party—Edward Frisco Bauer Gets a Real Medal For Bravery.

The annual outing of the Union county Republicans on Saturday proved to be one of the best in recent years, scores of Republicans from all parts of the county enjoying the excursion. It is estimated that when the Steamer Isabel left her dock at Elizabethport at 10 o'clock for Far Rockaway, there were about 400 aboard. The party included practically every Republican member of the Board of Freeholders, all of the county officials. Former United States Senator John Kean, Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson and former Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce were conspicuous in the crowd. County Chairman Frank H. Smith was in charge of the general arrangements, the details being carried out by a committee.

One of the chief topics of conversation during the early part of the day was the Nugent-Collins controversy, which has aroused unusual interest in political circles. The charge by Nugent and the denial by Gen. Collins was freely discussed. There was also some general discussion of the political situation in the county. Assemblyman Lloyd Thompson, who seeks to succeed State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, received much encouragement from his many friends, while Assemblyman Carlton B. Pierce, who is a candidate for the same position, appeared gratified over his show of strength.

Perhaps, the incident of most interest to Plainfield was the launching of several booms of a local nature. David E. Titsworth was prominently mentioned for the Assembly nomination, and there were not a few who favored Mr. Titsworth for the position. Another boom was that of Francis J. Blatz for member of the Common Council from the Fourth ward to succeed Herbert Buxton. Mr. Blatz's friends were quite enthusiastic over the mention of his name and promised him their support.

During the trip to Far Rockaway Deputy County Registrar Edward Bauer was presented with a "Karnegee Medal," which was a reward for his heroism in saving a bather from drowning at Asbury Park recently. Former City Judge William N. Runyon made the presentation speech in his characteristic manner. The medal, made of leather, was an elaborate one. Mr. Bauer made a happy response amid lusty cheers.

There was plenty to eat both going and returning and the party found no trouble in amusing themselves at Far Rockaway. The return trip was started early, and included a sail about New York harbor. Several members of the party returned home early in the afternoon.

Among those from this city who enjoyed the outing were County Chairman F. H. Smith, 'Chief' MacDuff, former Mayor James F. Buckle, Charles Matt, Councilman W. L. Gloak, Charles Dunham, James Stewart, Col. Frank DeWitt Randolph, Judge William G. DeMeza, John King, J. P. Burd, Fred Hand, Alexander D. Ayers, Andrew McCardell, Joseph Clark, John Mortimer, H. C. Runyon, Charles W. Runyon, J. Henry Crane, Roger F. Murray, Winfield S. Angleman, Francis J. Blatz, Thomas Buckley, John Bowman, George Strayer, Howard Woolston, Postmaster Elias H. Bird and Robert Newton Crane.

Woman Acted as Superintendent.

An unusual condition existed at the session of the First Baptist Sunday-school yesterday. The school has no regular superintendent at present, but Frank W. Jones has been filling the position temporarily until fall.* He happened to be out of the city yesterday enjoying his vacation, and it finally fell to the lot of Mrs. Lewis Matlack, a teacher and officer of the school to act as superintendent for the session. She took charge and filled the position in a very satisfactory manner.

THREE MYSTERIES

Rev. Dr. Swaffield's Text at Union Service 'How Can These Things Be?'

LARGEST CONGREGATION YET.

Netherwood Reformed's Vested Choir Under the Direction of Horace J. Martin, Sr., Is Heard.

"Three Great Mysteries" was the subject of the sermon by Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swaffield, of Lawrence, Mass., at the union service of the Trinity Reformed, First Baptist, First M. E. and First Presbyterian churches in Trinity church, last night. The service was attended by the largest number that has been at any of these summer gatherings and long before 8 o'clock every seat in the edifice was taken. A feature was the singing of the boys' choir of the Netherwood Reformed church, under the direction of Horace J. Martin, Sr., and assisted by his son, Ralph Martin. The choir was gowned in white robes and sang processional and recessional hymns.

Dr. Swaffield preached a forceful sermon, taking for his text, John 3-9. "Nicodemus answered and said unto Him, 'How can these things be?'" The sermon was in part as follows.

"There are three great mysteries connected with the spiritual life of man; the origin of the spiritual life, or how are we to be born again; the growth of the spiritual life, or how can He give us His flesh to eat; and the consummation of the spiritual life, or how are the dead raised up? Many Christians balk at trying to solve these mysteries today because they are spiritual mysteries, but they are related to our lives and so it is necessary to investigate them. Inquisitiveness is the inspiration of progress and as Henry VanDyke has so ably expressed it, 'Man is a walking interrogation point.'

"How can a man be born again when he is old? This question was a msytery to Nicodemus and there are thousands of men today who are staggering before the mystery of conversion. But then there are millions who are converted. The thinking man objects to this re-birth from a scientific standpoint but Luther Burbank, the noted botanist, has proved that a fruitless tree can be made to bear fruit by a life giving artificial shock, thus disproving the apparent law of Nature. If man can make a worthless tree to bear fruit, why can he not produce a similar change in his brother man who is created in his like image? And if man can produce such a change, why cannot the all powerful God create a complete metamorphisis? But let us then accept Martin Luther's conclusion—to crucify the how and consider only the product of God's power for Christ can make pure characters out of impure. Let us never mind how things can be done for they can be done again and then we shall have all eternity to ascertain the how.

"The second mystery is how can He give us His flesh to eat? In a garden the roots of the peach tree select from the soil only those elements which are beneficial to its growth and those of the pear tree select entirely different ones although these two trees are growing side by side. We do not know how these things occur yet we believe them. What we are depends largely upon what we eat, physically, mentally and spiritually. Our roots should feed from the wells of Christ's Truth for this is the way to eat of His flesh.

"How the dead are to be raised up is the third great mystery. Man must live in two worlds and consequently he wants to know about both of them. The spiritualist says that a veil hides the future life, the poet thinks that he has been beyond the shadow, the superstitious tries to crawl under the veil but the mystic attempts to penetrate it. In the Scriptures we are told that in the last day when the trumpet blows, we shall be raised up. We know that the crocus bulb comes up in the spring but we do not know how and so let us crucify the how, for He has promised that He will raise us up.

"We cannot solve the mysteries but the facts can be substantiated by those who have been converted, by the souls who are feeding upon Christ's Truth, and by Christ's promise to meet his loved ones in Glory."

'PETS' KEEP LEAD

Driscoll Scores Winning Run Against Somerville in Hot 10-Inning Struggle.

PLAINFIELD'S SPEED WINS.

Westfield Surprised By Bound Brook 4-3—Scotch Plains Takes One From High Bridge—Somerville Protests Game.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	W.	L.	Pc.
Plainfield	10	1	.909
Somerville	8	3	.727
Westfield	5	7	.417
Scotch Plains	5	7	.417
High Bridge	4	8	.333
Bound Brook	3	9	.250

Saturday's Results.

Plainfield, 8; Somerville, 7.
Bound Brook, 4; Westfield, 3.
Scotch Plains, 7; High Bridge, 4.

Saturday was a day of surprises in the Central New Jersey League as well as a time when there was some fast ball playing. The lead in the penant race was decided for some time to come when the Plainfield Pets defeated Somerville in a hard ten-inning game on the Somerset county seat grounds before the largest crowd that has attended a league game this season. Westfield was greatly surprised when the Bound Brook tailenders snatched a 4-3 game and thus took the Mt. Arrarat aggregation down the ladder to the top, which it was speedily climbing. Contrary to expectations the High Bridge nine was dumped by Scotch Plains, the trick being done in one inning when the Thistles scored five runs.

The Plainfield-Somerville contest was by far the most exciting game yet played in the league, for upon the outcome of it depended the occupancy of first place in the pennant race and the old time rivalry between these two towns was revived in full force. Everybody in this city who was able to go to Somerville was there and many went to the game instead of taking their usual week-end trips to the seashore.

Much dissatisfaction was expressed by the fans at the work of Umpire Degnon at Somerville. Several of his decisions were of the blind order and the supporters of the Blues were especially loud in their denunciations of "His Umps" whenever the Pets took the lead. The decisions, however, did not favor either side regardless of the fact that Somerville objected.

PETS OUTDASH BLUES

With a dash and a spirit that would have well characterized a two-year-old in prime form, the Pets went through ten innings at Somerville Saturday afternoon and amid the shouts of 1,500 frantic fans, Plainfield maintained its lead in the Central New Jersey League by downing the Somervillites in a zig-zag game. After Driscoll had slid home with the eighth run and the last Somerseter had died on an easy fly to Cosgrove in the tenth, Somerville was a sad town for the penant aspirations of their loyal supporters had been vanquished by their old rivals. And the score was 8-7, but that makes very little difference as long as Plainfield won.

The game was a heart thriller for the Somerville fans to lose, for it was taken from them just when victory seemed to be in their grasp, as the Peerless "Red" was being clouted to all corners of the lot. When Wolfe brought Swanson home ahead of him with the tieing runs in the ninth by swatting the ball over the centerfield fence for a trip around the circuit, the fandom of the Somerset county seat had visions of the pennant floating peacefully over their beautiful city and consequently a subscription of $15 was taken for the heavy hitter. But they soon woke up for Waller struck out Grimes and McCaffery with two men on bases.

Plainfield's victory was due to the dashing speed of the Pets on the bases for although they only made 7 hits, they made them all for runs whereas their opponents banged out 16 safeties, but had the "marble-head" label on their base running. Lou Hartman was largely responsible for the good playing by Dorflinger's Darlings. The speedy little short stop came back with the team just at the time when his "pep" was needed and he inspired every player with unusual snap. Time and again Somerville had chances to score, but Hartman and the rest of the infield were on their jobs and shut out the runs by almost lightning work. Waller was there in the pinches and when the result looked dubious for the Pets, he tightened up and was invincible.

ALLEGED HOLD-UP TALE IS DOUBTED BY POLICE

George H. Rockefeller, of Watchung avenue, says that while waiting just beyond the Dunellen car barns for a car to Bound Brook about 8:30 Saturday night, he was held up and robbed of $22.75 by two men who also administered a severe beating, the marks of which will be evident on the victim's face for some time. No sign of the men was found when Mr. Rockefeller's story was being investigated later and Marshal Benson, of the Dunellen police force, is inclined to discredit the holdup tale.

That Rockefeller was in a fracas is evident but the place where it is supposed to have taken place is well lighted and would hardly be selected for such a purpose. In addition to losing the money Rockefeller says that the men took a lot of letters from an inside pocket. He stated that they were found yesterday morning along a fence in a field across which the alleged robbers were claimed to have fled, leaving their alleged victim unconscious in the road. Dr. Fisher in Bound Brook dressed Rockefeller's injuries three hours after Rockefeller alleges the holdup occurred.

To employes of the P. S. C. at the car barn, the story as told differs somewhat from the one related to the police. Eighteen dollars is the amount taken according to those to whom the story was told at the car barns. Twenty-eight is the amount according to what Rockefeller is alleged to have told Marshal Benson and according to what Mr. Rockefeller told a reporter it is twenty-two dollars and seventy-five cents.

The story as told by several people who saw Rockefeller in a lunch room at the barns before he is supposed to have been held up and robbed is to the effect that he boarded a car for Bound Brook at the barn and left it at Lincoln in company with a party who was in the lunch room at the time he was also there. Two other men alighted at Lincoln. They are known to both of the other parties to the incident, it is said, and it is alleged that they did thrash Rockefeller after he is alleged to have offended them by his talk.

The evening was spent playing games, after which refreshments were served. Before departing all wished Mr. Vail many happy returns of the day.

YOUTH IS ROBBED

John Giles Held-up Near Driving Park and Relieved of His Wages.

FIRST THROWN FROM BIKE.

One Man Held Revolver to Victim's Head While Other Searched His Pockets—Second Robbery There Recently.

While returning from Metuchen to his home near Hillside cemetery, John Giles, seventeen years old, was held up by two highwaymen on Park avenue near the Driving Park on Saturday night about 10:30 o'clock, and robbed of his pay envelope containing $10.00 He was riding a bicycle and the first intimation he had that robbers were in the neighborhood was when he was lying in the dust of the road after taking a header over the handle bars of his bike when it struck a fence rail barricade thrown across the roadway.

As he lay half stunned, one of the robbers grasped his arms from behind while the other held a revolver to his head commanding him to keep quiet, get up and throw up his hands. The men came from opposite sides of the road and the taller of the two kept the victim covered with the gun while the other went through his pockets.

Giles was then told that he could go if he did not make any outcry. The short man lifted the bicycle over the rails and the youth mounted his wheel and hurried to police headquarters.

Chief Kiely and Patrloman Saffron went to the scene of the holdup in an automobile, but found no one. Continuing on to the Lehigh Valley railroad tracks near Metuchen they saw four men who ran away as they approached. Two of them were captured and Giles was given a chance to identify them but was unable to do so positively as the place where he was robbed is quite dark. The men told straight stories under cross-fire questioning and were released.

Several weeks ago Harry VanNess was held up at about the same spot, but was less fortunate than Giles, as that robber fired a bullet at his victim which lodged in his leg, besides taking his bicycle on which the robber escaped.

RESISTED THE CHIEF WHO HAD NO UNIFORM

While assisting several uniformed patrolmen in keeping the crowd back at the Harrigan fire Saturday night, Chief Kiely, who was dressed in plain clothes, was assaulted by John Miller, of East Second street, who resented being ordered off the lawn by the chief, who was a stranger to him and who he did not know had any such authority. The men clinched and were on the ground with the chief on top when Patrolman Meyers came up and placed Miller under arrest, after which Chief Kiely introduced himself.

This morning in the city court Chief Kiely stated that he believed the statement made by Miller to the effect that had he known who the officer was he would have done as told and that the incident had taught him a lesson, long to be remembered. In view of this condition of circumstances, Judge William G. DeMeza suspended sentence.

After the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the bride's home, and the day given over to merrymaking.

The local ball team, not satisfied with defeating High Bridge in the League game Saturday afternoon by a score of 7 to 4, put another over on the Hunterdon county team by defeating them yesterday in an exhibition game by the score of 12 to 4. MacLaughlin and Randolph pitched both games and the old veteran had the best of botn arguments.

PRINTERS IN CONVENTION.

Fifty-Seventh Session of the Union Opens in San Francisco.

San Francisco, August 14.—The fifty-seventh session of the International Typographical Union was opened here today with an address by Mayor P. H. McCarthy and remarks from representatives of the daily press, the commercial printing branch of the industry and from representatives of the local typographical union. Response was made by President Lynch, of the International Typographical Union.

While the union was organized in 1852, this is the fifty-seventh convention that has been held by the International Typographical Union; it is not the fifty-seventh annual gathering. In 1894 the organization adopted the biennial idea and no convention was held in 1895 or in 1897; a return to annual conventions began with 1898, and they have been held yearly since that time.

The reports of officers submitted to the convention today shows that for the fiscal year ending May 31, 1910, the membership of the International Typographical Union earned $45,602,944, or an average of $953 per member. For the fiscal year ending May 31, 1911, the membership earned the total of $49,770,668, or an average per member of $973.

The average membership for the fiscal year ending with May, 1911, was 51,095, while the average membership for the prior fiscal year was 47,848.

These figures represent an increase in earnings of more than $4,000,000, and an increase in average membership of 3,247.

It was stated in the reports that at this time the average paying membership was more than 53,000.

The convention is quite largely attended, and will be in session throughout the week.

AGED BROTHERS FIGHT TO DEATH.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Aug. 14.—Hearing that he had been accused of burning his brother's barn two nights ago, Abraham Peterman is alleged to have attempted to kill his brother John, but was himself beaten to death by his intended victim Saturday. Abraham Peterman was more than seventy years old, and his brother is near the same age.

The fight occurred at John Peterman's barn in Sugar Loaf township, near here. Each was armed with stones and a knife, and a death struggle ensued until both lay helpless. Abraham Peterman's brains were literally battered out and John Peterman is said to be at the point of death.

The tragedy marked the end of a thirty years' feud. The brothers lived on adjoining farms.

PROFANITY AT BASEBALL GAMES SCORED IN NEWARK.

Judge Simon Hahn, in the Third Precinct Police Court in Newark Friday, condemned the conditions at the baseball park of the Newark Eastern League Club which he declarde such "that ladies were prevented from attending the games because of the profane and obscene language used." The Judge was emphatic in declaring that rowdyism at the park must be stopped. He added that ball players were not above the law, no matter what provocation might beset them. "Iron Man" McGinnity, President and Manager of the club, was present and heard the Court's ultimatum. McGinnity appeared as complainant against Lawrence Pierre, who was charged with creating a disturbance, following a game.

COLORED ELKS' ELECTION.

Boston, Aug. 14.—After a session lasting more than twelve hours the national convention of the Improved Benevolent Order of Elks (colored) came to an end early Saturday by the election of the following officers:

Harry H. Pace, Memphis, grand exalted ruler; George E. Bates, Jersey City, grand secretary; W. E. Gates, Washington, grand treasurer; S. E. Hoyt, Boston, loyal knight; William E. Leonard, Philadelphia, lecturing knight; Francis Warren, Detroit, grand organizer; Dr. R. E. Jones, of Richmond, grand medical examiner; J. J. Jones, Chicago, grand esquire.

Dayton, O., was selected as the place for the next convention.

The Grand Temple Daughters of Elks elected the following officers: Mamie E. Hodges, Hampton, Va., grand daughter ruler; Emma V. Kelley, Norfolk, Va., grand secretary; Frances Young, Hampton, Va., grand treasurer.

EMPTIES GUN AT STRANGERS.

Bernardsville, Aug. 14.—Awakened by the noise of someone prowling about the house early Friday morning, Mrs. Charles Pfadenhauer, of Essex avenue, aroused her husband, who looking out the window, saw a man standing near the corner of his carpenter shop. Procuring his revolver, Mr. Pfadenhauer fired at the fellow. Another man was seen to sneak away from the office door of the shop. Mr. Pfadenhauer fired several more shots at the men, but they got away in the darkness.

It is believed the men fled in an automobile, as one was seen speeding away from the section at a rate of about sixty miles an hour.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT.

Tired of chaos, dissension and inefficiency in the City Council, the voters of Spokane decided to abandon the old form of city government and adopt the commission plan.

They wanted the city to be put upon a sound business basis. Investigation showed that under this plan Des Moines, Ia., a city of similar size, had reduced its water rate in one year by 20 per cent., its light rate by 25 per cent., and hed effected a total saving to the taxpayers in twelve months of more than $244,000. Furthermore, politics has been removed from the city government and the city had been put upon a higher and better moral plane.

The citizens of Spokane wanted, and now want, a similar change in their own municipal administration.

But the way to remove politics from the city government is not to elect politicians as city commissioners.

The way to remove members of the City Council from control is not to elect them on the city commission.

The way to save the people of the city money in taxes is not to elect for commissioners men who have demonstrated no particular ability in economical and efficient business management.

As the Spokane-Review has repeatedly declared in this campaign, this is an election of men.

The ultimate success of the commission form of government depends upon the character of the men selected as commissioners. The commission plan is not in itself a cure-all. It allows the individual voter greater opportunity to select good men for office. If the citizens of Spokane want better city government, if they want to enjoy some of the benefits of the commission plan that Des Moines has enjoyed they must stand together to see that the class of men who will insure such government are elected.

To put a city on a business basis men of marked business ability must be put in charge of city affairs.

To insure a dollar's worth of value in a dollar's worth of taxes commissioners must be elected whose decords show they are qualified by ability, judgment and character to make possible requisite economies in the city administration.

In short, to insure good government the voters must cast their ballots for good men, and to make their ballots most effective must confine their votes to the fifteen candidates they believe to be the best.—Spokane Spokesman Review.

Hudson—How did you vote?

Mrs. Hudson—Well, I wanted to vote both ways, so I paired with myself.—Harper's Bazar.

DUG GRAVE FOR MAN IN TWO CEMETERIES.

Bernardsville, Aug. 14.—Discovery of the fact that Domentico Morinile was in life a Catholic resulted in a change in the arrangements for his funeral at the last minute here Saturay. A grave had been dug in the Evergreen Cemetery, and Rev. Tomasso Barbieri, of the Italian Presbyterian church, was to have conducted the services.

As soon as the discovery was made the body was taken to the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, where Father Joseph J. Antliff delivered the funeral sermon in Italian, while a grave was being dug in the Catholic cemetery at Mendham to receive the body.

Big Upset in Tennis.

In one of the fastest and most spectacular lawn tennis matches ever seen in the East Maruice E. McLoughlin and Thomas C. Bundy, the pair of crack Californians, deefated T. R. Pell and Lyle E. Mahan in the semi-fianl of the New York State championship doubles on the courts of the Crescent A. C. Friday. Exceptional importance was attached to the contest chiefly on account of the fact that Pell and Hahan defeated Hackett and Alexander, the National champions, in coming through to the final bracket.

SURPRISE LINEN SHOWER FOR MISS MAY G. BROWN.

Miss Pauline Denton, of West Sixth street, gave a surprise linen shower at her home Saturday afternoon in honor of her cousin, Miss May G. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Brown, of this city, whose marriage to Clifford Ransdale, of Brooklyn, will take place in October. The affair was supposed to be a thimble party in honor of Miss Edith Fayerbrother, of Providence, R. I., fiancee of Arthur Denton, and Miss Brown did not learn differently until she arrived.

Miss Brown received a large number of handsome gifts, which were given to her in an unusual way. She was requested to make a search through the house, being directed to certain places. When she completed her task she had collected a large number of presents. Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

IN CITY COURT.

Bound Brook Plumber Violated Local Ordinance.

Edward Cook, of Bound Brook, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the cty court this morning on complaint of William Addis, Health Inspector, who charged that Cook had installed the plumbing in a house on Terrill road without permission to do so and that the work did not conform with the health ordinance. In his defence Cook stated that he was aware of the law requiring all plumbers to be registered when doing work in Plainfield, but did not know that the house in which he had done the work was inside the city limits. He signified his willingness to register and make such changes as may be required. With this understanding sentence was suspended.

WHO'D THINK IT?

That So Many Words Start With the Letter S.

Colonel Frederick G. Agens is the author of the following article in which every word begins with the letter "S:"

Simeon Sykes, silver seller, strayed slowly southward, steadily seeking satisfactory sales; soberly sauntered, swinging satchel, systematically showing solid silver spoons, sugar shovels, small-sized salvers, superior spectacles, scissors, sewing shield. Somber skies sent soft showers, soaking Simeon's satchel, shoes, stockings, shirt, skin.

Suddenly something seemed softly saying:

"Sweet Sally Slater Simeon soon shall see."

So Simeon straightway strode stupendous strides, seeking Sally's sunny shelter.

Simeon soon saw sundry stately sycamores' spacious shelter; spied Sally, sitting solus sewing silk stockinettes, slyly snuffing sweet-scented Scotch snuff. Sudden surprise seized Sally's soul seeing Simeon's swift strides. Sally's sanctity soon skedaddled shamefully.

She, somewhat sensitive, suspiciously started, suddenly spilled some snuff, soiled stockinette, stammered, stuttered, said "S-s-seat, s-sir."

Simeon shivered, shook, said "Smart shower."

Sally said: "Slightly so."

Simeon's shins seemed sore. So Sally sought some soothing salve (Sawyer's), supplied some soft-soled slippers.

Square-shouldered, slab-sided, spindle-shanked Simeon seemed satisfied.

Sally said: "Sold some silver since Sunday, Simeon?"

Simeon scowled savagely.

Sally suggested supper.

"Sartin, Sally!" said Simeon: something sufficiently strengthening. Some strong stimulant."

So Sally sent some sausage, sirloin steak, savory stew, some soothing sangaree.

Simeon's stomach seemed satisfied; so Simeon smoked several "Spanish segars," stupefied, soon slept, snored sonorously.

Sally, sitting solemnly stitching stickinette, suddenly sneezed! Simeon sarted—seemed scared—suspiciously surveyed surrounding space; shutters, shades; seemed secure.

Sally stopped sewing; said she saw something slyly sneaking, stealing Simeon's silver.

Simeon, slightly susceptible, seemed suddenly smitten, sought Sally's side, sacrilegiously surrounding sanctimoniously Sally Slater's smooth symmetry. Simeon said: "Sweetest, surely such solitary souls should sympathize."

Sally stopped Simeon.

Simeon seemed snubbed.

She seemed sorry, showed some softening symptoms, supinely sought Simeon's sturdy shoulder. Sh! Sh! Sh! Sim smacked Sally! So, straightway surrendering, she smacked Sim!

Simeon said: Set some suitable season." Sally said: September." Simeon, shrugging Sim's shoulder, said: "Sooner! Surely Scripture sanctions such strong sympathy; say Sunday."

So Sally succumbed.

Simeon still sells silver, supplying substantial subsistence.

HOME-MADE COLLARS.

This summer the sailor collar has first place and the girl who has not a goodly supply of them must replenish her wardrobe. This can be done at small cost; all that is needed are ideas.

Get a well-fitting sailor pattern, adjust it to your neck and vary the designs and shapes with each new collar. As the deeper ones are only effective on the young and slender, make more of the shallow ones.

With the sailor backs the fronts can be varied; sometimes brought to a shallow point, again reach to the bust line with a plastren inserted; squared across the front or shaped into revers. A smart shape has back and front indented, that is, a small square cut out of each corner.

A yard or two of cotton marquisette, lawn or dotted muslin will make many. Short lengths of lace and insertion or bits of all-over embroidery may be used.

As many of the newest collars have a contrasting binding or are combined of several kinds of material, the deft girl can often get a good-looking collar for little.

A good style collar is in cheer linen, lawn or a fine pique covered with conventional designs in hand embroidery. A combination of vines done in eyelet and solid dots is effective or medallions of lace in the corners of the collar and at the back can be connected with lines of dots or delicate vinery in satin stitch.

Do not put too much work on these collars. All-over embroidered batiste, flowered Swiss and open embroidery or nets give the same effect.

A handsome collar, resembling a fichu in front, is made from white lawn, edged with inch-wide Cluny insertion and striped diagonally with with arrow insertion. Outlining the collar is a double frill of finely plaited mull with a finished edge. This is sewed to the insertion and is rounded quite fully across the narrow squared fronts.

A quickly made collar of lawn has an edging of heavy lace with insertion to match run diagonally from corners to binding at back and brought straight across the squared fronts. Medallions of the same lace are used across the lower edge of the collar or rows of diamond shapes alternating with a large coin dot all worked in heavily padded satin stitch in white.

A smart-looking collar of white pique with dark blue or red dots can have a binding of plain white pique or of the same tone as the dots. These need careful laundering.

For a young girl a collar of jink or blue with a deep binding in a contrasting color or a dotted material will transform an old blouse.

HAD HIM AGAIN.

The hotel visitor had taken his dinner elsewhere with a friend. When, on coming to pay his bill, he found himself charged with a day's board, he protested vigorously. It was explained to him that the American plan adopted there was based strictly on a day rate, and that if he choose to eat elsewhere it was his own lookout. The man, however, refused to be pacified and paid the bill under protest. Then, to everyone's surprised, he asked if diner was "still on." He was informed that it lasted until 9 o'clock in the evening.

"I've eaten one dinner," he exclaimed, "but I'm going to get my money's worth out of this house if I suffer all the torments of dyspepsia!"

He rushed into one of the dining-rooms, seized a bill of fare, and ordered everything he could think of. Wher he finally reached the limit, the watier handed him a bill for a good round sum.

"But I have already paid for my dinner in my bill," protested the unfortunate man. "I am staying here on the American plan."

"Then you should have gone into the other dining-room," said the waiter. "This part of the hotel is conducted on the English plan."—Tit-Bits.

A DANGEROUS RISK.

Here was a case where it seemed as if everything was settled. The insurance company's doctor had reported that the man seemed to be all right and the man himself had certified that he was not engaged in any dangerous occupation.

"I lead a sedentary life," he told them. "I work in an office and we have no danger or excitement."

"How about sports?" the examiner asked. "Do you football? Baseball? Do you box? Do you belong to an athletic club?"

"No—none of that stuff. I guess I m a safe risk."

"Do you scorch?"

"What do you mean?"

"Do you drive your car faster than the speed limit?"

"I have no car."

"What? How do you get about?"

"I walk."

"Risk refused. A scorcher is a dangerous risk, but a pedestrian has no chance at all. Buy a car, old chap. Sorry. Good-night!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Rice Cheesecakes.

Mix smoothly with a little cold milk one ounce of ground rice, add about two tablespoonfuls of sugar, a pinch of salt and half a pint of new milk. Boil all together, and when cooked mix in two eggs and a few drops of any flavoring best liked. Fill pastry shells and grate a nutmeg on the top before baking. Bake in a moderate oven.

Take It From Him.

Judge—You are charged with beating your wife. What have you got to say?

Prisoner—Not guilty. If I could lick her I'd be the White Hope.—Puck.

AS TO TEETH.

For some reason the toothpick trade has collapsed. We are told that that the majority of the factories have either shut down temporarily or else gone out of business. It this be true it is seriously to be regretted if it means the popular abandonment of the toothpick.

For few things are more important of a personal nature that the care of the teeth for health, for comfort and for looks. And in this case the toothpick ranks first. The silken thread is perferred by some, but this is merely the toothpick in another form.

The question is further asked whether a paste or powder is best for the teeth. You should have both, using them alternately, or the powder three days in the week and the paste the rest of the time. There are many excellent preparations on the market but the world has never yet found a better combination for the teeth than prepared chalk and good castile soap. The chalk is prepared in cones of excellent quality an at low price. This preparation takes the tartar off the teeth as the dentist does with his pumice. It may be used constantly as well as the castile soap.

But remember that a poor or wornout tooth brush will make any paste or powder practically useless. Be sure to use a good stiff brush and place it in the sun to dry every day. It will serve for twice as long. Any odor about the teeth, whether natural or artificial, is best removed by a mouth wash composed of water and 2 per cent. carbolic acid.

MUSINGS OF THE TIMES.

The age of discretion is reached when one has learned to be indiscreet—discreetly.

The woman who wants to vote is an economic evil—she shows lack of instinct for husbandry.

Not many men can do a good deed and then think of something else right away.

The truth of today is the lie of yesterday and it will be the paradox of tomorrow.

At the final analysis, all one gets out of life is board and room and sense of achievement.

Men are as bad as they dare to be, women as good.

Nowadays, to become famous, one must have a press agent, a valet, an amanuensis and a mistress.

In many a marriage, as soon as the home is established Duty enters at the door and Love flies out at the window.

You can't make truth out of a lie by standing the lie on its head.

Time is not money—it cannot be hoarded; it must be spent, whether one will or not.

If religion is the consolation of the soul, then art is the consolation of the intellect, and love of the heart.—Smart Set.

The Only Condition.

A SULTAN'S SEVEN BEDS.

Abdul Hamid Changed His Sleeping Place Every Night.

An interesting reminiscence of Abdul Hamid, the former sultan of Turkey, who was known as Abdul the Accursed and by several other more or less unpleasant titles, is given in the description of a visit to Yildiz Kiosk by Colonel (Count) Gleichen in the Household Brigade Magazine.

"The house was a perfect labyrinth of small rooms," he writes. "In no fewer than seven of these rooms were beds on which the sultan used to sleep—not ordinary beds, but large couches, sloping at a considerable angle from the head end downward, so that, covered with a quilt or two, his majesty could sleep in a semi-upright condition and spring up at a moment's notice to be ready for anything.

"No one knew in which of the seven rooms the sultan was going to sleep, for he changed his resting place every night for fear of hidden dangers. Along the main passage which led past many of these rooms a most ingenious arrangement existed for giving warning of the approach of any one. The floor was composed of loose planks under the carpet, so that merely to walk along it started a clanking sound which must invariably have waked a light and nervous sleeper."

OYSTER ISLANDS.

Their Growth Is Exactly Analogous to That of Coral Reefs.

Oyster islands similar to those formed of coral are found in several parts of the world. The islands in Newport river and Beaufort harbor, North Carolina, says a writer in the Century Path Magazine, have been discovered to have as base a reef to which the spawn were attached and above this layer upon layer of oysters, vegetable growth and debris brought by the action of the waves and winds, all of which finally grows high enough to rise above the surface of the water. This growth is exactly analogous to that of the coral islands of the Pacific.

The islands near the mouth of the river Tagus, in Portugal, are said to have been built up in this way also. Here, where there is such a quantity of oysters that 100,000,000 a year would scarcely be missed if they were removed, the expanse of water just beyond the river's mouth is dotted with oyster islands. As in the case of the coral reefs, which on the seaward side may be covered with living, growing coral, live oysters thrive in the same waters where the accumulation of dead generations has served to form the islands.

Muscles May Move Themselves.

Albert von Haller, a Swiss surgeon of the eighteenth century, was the first to point out that the muscles of our bodies have an automatic action. Before Haller's time it was believed that the muscles could not contract or swell up of themselves, but were drawn up by the nerves of volition. Haller discovered that this is not so, but that a muscle, if irritated, will draw itself together automatically, even when it is quite separated from the nerves, and this has since been proved to be true by a great number of experiments. So that, though it is true our nerves are the cause of our moving, because they excite the muscles and so cause them to contact, yet the real power of contraction is in the muscle itself. The body of man is full of wonders, not the least of which is this automatic power of contraction in all muscles. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Comma.

The point on which most writers are at odds with the compositor is the comma. He is too fond of this particular punctuation point. He takes a delight in breaking up the flow of a sentence with his artificial pauses. We all say, "Why then did you do it?" in one breath. It is the compositor who says, "Why, then, did you do it?" It is possible to be too hard on the comma. It has its undeniable uses. Edward Clodd in his memoir of Grant Allen tells the story of a compositor who dissented very strongly from that writer's moral philosophy and had to "set up" an interview with Allen in which the sentence occurred, "He is happily married." He salved his conscience by printing it "He is, happily, married."—London Chronicle.

A Cheerful Liar.

One time the late ameer of Afghanistan asked the English diplomatic agent at his court to give a description amid a circle of Afghan boys of the largest gun in England. The Englishman described the 100 ton gun, and when he had finished the ameer observed to his admiring subjects, "I have seen a gun the cartridge of which was as large as the gun which has just been described to you." It would never do for an ameer to be astonished, much less to confess himself beaten.

One Idea Developed.

Browning—How is your new club for the exchange and development of ideas getting along, old man? Greening—Not as rapidly as we had expected. So far it has developed the idea in each member that he is the only man in the bunch who has any ideas worth while.—Chicago News.

Good Qualifications.

"Mrs. Teaser would make a great baseball catcher."

"What makes you think so?"

"Why, the other night she caught her husband stealing home and put him out."—Exchange.

True men and women are all physicians to make us well.—C. A. Bartol.

The White Whale.

One of the creatures that inhabit the northern seas is the beluga, or white whale. It frequents the Arctic ocean, enters the numerous bays and inlets and sometimes travels up the fresh water streams to a considerable distance in search of food. It preys upon fish, and owing to its ability to swim very rapidly it is able to capture the fastest of these. It is pure white in color and quite large, often reaching fifteen to eighteen feet in length. It has a large mouth, containing a number of very sharp conical teeth. It swims by doubling its strong tail back under its body and driving itself forward with a powerful stroke. The natives of those cold regions which it inhabits catch the white whale with a stout net and by the use of the harpoon. A portion of the flesh is used for food, and the remaining portion is converted into a very fine grade of fish oil, which finds a ready sale. The skins are removed and made into leather.—Harper's Weekly.

Elephant Toothache.

A London surgeon who had been for many years in India says he would sooner risk a railway accident than meet an elephant with toothache. It appears that toothache affects an elephant in a more severe manner than it does any other animal. Elephants have very sensitive nerves, and a touch of toothache often brings on madness. Provided you are able to chain down an elephant and draw out the offending tooth, the brute is certain to be affectionate to you afterward. Here is an instance: An elephant in Bengal, India, became affected with toothache, but the keepers managed to secure it while a dentist drew a decayed tooth—the cause of the trouble. After a time the elephant seemed to understand that the dentist was trying to do something for his pain, and he gave every evidence of appreciating the attention. When the operation was over he frisked round the dentist like a young lamb.

Oxygen as a Cutting Tool.

A jet of burning oxygen from a blowpipe may be successfully employed to cut sheet iron, iron tubes and small bars. The cut made is almost as sharp and thin as that made by a saw. In earlier attempts difficulty was encountered in clearing the cut of liquid metal and in preventing the spread of the melting effect beyond the borders of the cut. In later processes two blowpipes were used. The first has an ordinary oxyhydrogen flame, which heats the iron to redness at the place where the cut is to be made. This is followed immediately by the second jet, composed of pure oxygen, which instantly burns the metal without melting. The liquidized iron is blown swiftly from the fissure, so that there is no serious spreading of the heat to surrounding parts.—St. Louis Republic.

Two Days In One.

Chatham island, lying off the coast of New Zealand, in the south Pacific ocean, is peculiarly situated, as it is one of the few habitable points of the globe where the day of the week changes. It is just on the line of the demarcation between dates. There at 12 noon on Sunday Sunday ceases, and instantly Monday meridian begins. Sunday comes into a man's house on the east side and becomes Monday by the time it passes out of the western door. A man sits down to his noonday dinner on Sunday, and it is Monday noon before he finishes it.—London Globe.

Spanish Etiquette.

There is a curious story of how the Duke d'Aosta when king of Spain told a muleteer to whom he was talking to cover himself, the sun being hot, forgetting that by so doing he made the muleteer a grandee. Marshal Prim, to prevent this catastrophe, knocked the man's hat out of his hand, and, according to some, the muleteer had something to do with the assassination that followed a few days afterward.

Progressing.

"Do you think Miss Roxy cares anything for you?"

"Well, I think she's beginning to care a little."

"What makes you think that?"

"Why, the last time I called she only yawned twice, and two weeks ago I counted five yawns in one evening."—Variety Life.

Hurt His Pride.

"Do I understand you to say, prisoner, that you knocked him down because he called you a dirty liar?"

"Yes, your honor; I simply couldn't stand it. If there is one thing I have always prided myself on more than anything else it is my cleanliness."—London Answers.

Mistaken Affability.

"What made our pirate chief compel the prisoner to walk the plank so hastily?" asked the pirate.

"He was one of those cheery and familiar ready made humorists. The first thing he said when he saw the chief was, "Oh, you Captain Kidd!"—Washington Star.

Economical.

Husband—You are not economical. Wife—Well, if you don't call a woman economical who saves her wedding dress for a possible second marriage I'd like to know what you think economy is like.—Glasgow Times.

A Great Deal.

"Whenever I look at my wife," said the husband of the celebrated fattest woman on earth, "I feel that I have a great deal to be thankful for."
